OSSIDINE

KALAMAZOO, Mich., Sept. 15, 1888.

GENTLEMEN:—We have used Ossidine for the past two years and consider it invaluable for Sprung Tendons, Curbs, Ringbone and Spavins; there is nothing equals it; and for us it effected a permanent cure where firing failed, although performed by one of the most successful veterinarians on the continent. We have recommended it to others with like success, and believe it has more merit than any blister ever used.

Very respectfully yours, S. A. BROWNE & Co., Prop's.

This scientific preparation is an absolute cure for all bony or callous lumps on horses, and is a more powerful absorbent than "firing," without creating the slightest blemish. After a few applications the excrescence is so palpably reduced that even the skeptical frankly acknowledge that it is by far the most valuable outward remedy for horses ever invented.

The ONLY preparation in the world that will remove a Bone Spavin after it has become ossified.

Price $3.00 per Large Bottle,

Owner of Eole, St Saviour, Eolist, etc, says; I have long used it in my stables, and find it to be all that is claimed for it in removing callous and unnatural bony growths, without leaving the slightest blemish. From my experience, I most strongly recommend the use of Ossidine, and feel that it is a necessary adjunct to every stable. Yours respectfully,

WALLA WALLA, W. T., July 1, 1889.

SELBY SMELTING AND LEAD CO., San Francisco, Cal.

Sirs: During the last two or three years I have used several thousand of your Standard Cartridges, for both 10 and 12 gauge Guns, in sizes of shot ranging from 8's to 4's, and I must confess that I never have used ammunition in a shotgun that gives such entirely satisfactory results as the Standard Cartridges made by you. Being skeptical as to quantity and quality of the ammunition used in these cartridges, but more particularly anxious to know whether wads were ALWAYS firmly and squarely seated on powder, I have often cut open these shells, and every one has revealed, plain as day, that one shell is the exact counterpart of the other, and in my humble opinion your Standard Cartridges are the very best loaded shells I have ever seen, while comparison with other makes only further confirms my belief.

It would have pleased you to have heard the unbounded praise bestowed on your Cartridges at the recent Tournament at Tacoma, where they were almost exclusively used. The scores made there, especially on live birds, will prove all that I claim for them. Judging from the 10's and 12's, I feel quite confident that the 16's are just as good, and I shall blaze away a good many hundreds of them in my little Parker this Summer at doves.

Yours, very truly,

ARTHUR W. DuBRAY, "Gaucho."

Pleasanton Stock Farm Co.

Grim had a long standing engagement with Mr. Salisbury to visit the stock farm and track at Pleasanton on the 13th, but owing to a sudden illness he was confined to his bed, and even the ubiquitous and irrepressible Grim could not be in his bed and in Pleasanton at the same time; so I was deputed to make the trip instead of him, and at 8:30 on Saturday morning the writer joined Mr. Salisbury, his little daughter and Col. Thornton at the foot of Market street, and we were soon under way, time passing rapidly with reminiscences of Director and other mighty heroes of the trotting world, interspersed with racing gossip, for Col. Thornton, though he breeds and is training a few trotters, is much more closely connected with the turf, and entertains great hopes of next year seeing his black and orange in the van in some of the crack two-year-old races of the East; but revenons a nos moutons, we started out with trotting intentions. Mr. Salisbury has been an owner and breeder of trotters for years, known all over the trotting world as the owner of Director, Monroe Chief and other equine heroes, and therefore his opinion always carries weight whenever and wherever expressed. On the question of over draws or not he is decidedly in favor of continuing them, but not to the extent that some people use them. All his horses are checked up, but not tightly. With regard to yearling and two-year-old training, Mr. Salisbury does not favor it, except to the extent that colts should be educated when young and then given a chance to grow and harden before being put to fast and severe work. His great object is to raise from his peerless black, Director, and some of his invaluable mares, a horse that will lower all records. He justly says that apart from the honor even of owning and raising a horse that can trot inside 2:10, instead of 2:30, there is much more money in it, even if you only have one such, than there is in putting a hundred in the thirty class. He is of the opinion, and justly so, that in Director he has the purest gaited trotter in the world, and that when mated with mares with a thoroughbred foundation he naturally infers that the produce ought to possess both pace and stamina in the highest degree.

On our arrival at Pleasanton we were met by J. H. Neal, the Secretary, and Andy McDowell, the well-known trainer. Andy is looking as well and confident as ever, and as he drove me to the track, only about four hundred yards from the depot, he was wonderfully eulogistic about his chance of bringing back the Spirit of the Times stakes with Margaret S.

Pleasanton is happily named, for it is beautifully situated in the most productive and prettiest section of the Livermore Valley. It is well protected from the Bay fogs and all the attendant evils by the Coast Range, while the Mount Diablo Range equally well wards off the dry, searching north winds. The soil is the most productive in the State, growing anything wished for without resorting to artificial means. The race track is made from the natural soil, which is a mixture of clay and sand, soft and elastic, without a sign of rocks or pebbles, and having a substratum of quicksand, which dries the track rapidly in winter and keeps it cool in summer. The first quarter is slow, particularly so, being very much up-hill, but the last half counterbalances it, being very fast.

It was quite a gala day on the track. Upwards of a score of buggies and carriages were hitched up, and a small crowd congregated in hopes of seeing something fast, for all knew that Saturday was Andy's working day, and without giving us time to look round, he got up behind Direct (three-year-old, 2:23) the four-year-old son of Director (2:17) and Echora (2:23); the game little black looked as fit and well as could be expected so early in the season, and though he has grown very little since last year, he has thickened out and looks more like his sire every day. Gold Leaf 2:15, (Sidney—Fern Leaf), one of the last year's crack three-year-old pacer, who has also improved and grown a good bit, looking gamer and sturdier than when I saw her last, was brought out to work with the black, and after scoring up a few times, Direct, on the inside, cut out the pace, and, going easy round the turn, passed the half in 1:16. There the pacer closed up, and getting the stallion on his mettle, he went the last half in 1:08, the full mile 2:24, with the pacer going easy. Lilly Stanley, 2:17½, by Whippleton, was put into the sulky, and with the roan pacer (who, by the way, is a full brother to little Brown Jug, 2:11¾,) as a teaser, trotted a fair mile in 2:24½. She does not show any signs of lameness, but seems to have lost a little of her pace, possibly because she has been bred (to Director). Direct and Gold Leaf came out again, and, going off fast, went to the quarter in 35½ and slowed up a trifle, passing the half in 1:12½ coming home like a whirlwind, the last half in 1:07¾, with Gold Leaf at his neck, going well within herself. The full mile was done in 2:20, and had it not been for the pace cut out in the first quarter against the collar, he would undoubtedly have come home faster. Homestake, a slashing looking seven-year-old bay gelding by Gibraltar 1185 out of Kate by Volunteer was brought out by Miller, who has charge of him and will probably campaign him through the circuit, his hocks look as sound as a bell since Dr. Bowhill fired him, and Miller has persuaded him to trot fast and not leave his feet, several of our crack trainers have tried, but none could keep him level; but on Saturday he astonished and surprised us all by trotting as squarely and as steadily as possible a full mile in 2:20½; and to show us there was no mistake he was cooled out and then jogged once round to the head of the stretch, and, being driven out for the last quarter, trotted it like a world beater in thirty seconds flat. Of course, it is rather a fast portion of the track, but the performance is astounding, anyway. Miller said he had no trouble with him at all now, as he just did as he told him, and he hoped to give him a good record well inside 2:20 before the fall. Lilly Stanley was given a second heat, but did worse than before, for after going the first quarter in 36½ seconds, she broke up badly and did not catch at all handily, going to the half in 1:15 and then settling down she came the last half readily in 1:11. We now left the track to visit the stables, and the first to come out was the lord of the harem, Director, 2:17. The old horse had been jogged in the early morning before 6 o'clock, and was looking as fresh and handsome as possible. He is a coal black, about 15:1½, with a good intelligent, though rather plain, head, strong muscular neck, grand shoulders, a wide, deep chest, is well coupled, having plenty of power behind and good legs and feet, he has a very resolute style of going, rapid, strong and rather high action, and a sweet disposition, being as gentle and kind as a lamb. His courage and endurance have been proved by his campaign record. As a three-year-old, he won both his races (value of the two $3,000), getting a record of 2:30. Mr. Salisbury bought him in the fall, and won two races as a four-year-old in Kentucky. When he was five years old Johnny Goldsmith started out with him on the California Circuit, at Santa Rosa he was third to Echora, who has nicked so well with him since. He won his other four races that year, aggregating $1,950, and getting a record of 2:23¾. As a six-year-old, Goldsmith took him East and won eleven races with him, (value about $20,000), giving him a record of 2:17, and beating Fanny Witherspoon, 2:16¼, Phallas, 2:13¾, Wilson, 2:16¼, and a host of other good ones. His first race was on the 1st of June, at Pittsburg, and his last at Albany, in October, when he beat Phallas and Fanny Witherspoon in four heats, only allowing Phallas the second in 2:22, and and winning the race in the fourth heat in 2:19¾. The season's campaign will probably never be equalled, for split-up beats, and, do as they would, the black only kept going faster, and no day seemed too long for him, and no combination could beat him, for though his record was not as good as some of theirs, his stamina was never equalled, and the bull-dog-like tenacity with which he would hang on to his opponents and fairly wear them down was the theme of general admiration.

When he was put in the stud his reputation was so great that every one wanted to breed to him and his price had to be raised and only approved mares taken, and now after standing here and in Kentucky his progeny have shown so well that he is still the fashion. Direct, his four-year-old out of his old opponent, Echora, will keep the old horse's image before the trotting world, and great hopes are entertained of his beating the stallion record next season if he keeps all right. Mr. Salisbury likes a thoroughbred cross among his brood mares, saying that Directors action and stamina combined with thoroughbred, should beat the world, as all his colts are so docile and quiet, a child could drive them, and trot, why they seem to know no other gait.

By the way, I wish to mention right here that a glance at last year's books show that 72 per cent. of Director's mares had foals. I mention this now because the prevailing impression abroad has been that Director was not a good foal getter, and there is no doubt Mr. Salisbury has lost several good mares on that account, and had some owners not been misled they would assuredly have bred to him. Directors breeding is unexceptional. The lines are not only of the very best, as he can show sire and dam that have earned everlasting fame as producers, and closely related to nearly all the crack trotters. Director 1989, is by Dictator 113, he by Hambletonian 10, dam Clara (dam of Dexter, 2:17¼ etc.) by American Star 14. Director's dam is Dolly by Mambrino Chief 11, out of a thoroughbred mare. Dolly is the dam of Thorndale, 2:22¼, (sire of Daisydale, 2:19¾, Edwin Thorne, 2:16¼, and four more in thirty class), Onward, 2:25¼, (sire of 16 in thirty class), and several others. Dictator himself has twenty in the thirty list, Jay-Eye-See, 2:10, heading the list. Where can you find a horse so closely allied to so many performers and with an untarnished reputation as Director, 2:17.

Mr. Salisbury also has Monroe Chief, 2:18¼, who shares the honors with Director, but this season has been in San Luis Obispo. He went through the campaign of 1883, but was handled by Budd Doble, and often was fighting against Director, and gamely, too. He is by Jim Monroe 835, dam Madam Powell by Bay Chief, son of Mambrino Chief 11, grandam by Toronto, great grand dam by a Whip horse. Monroe Chief is the sire of Genevra, 2:24¼, and several very promising youngsters in the Southern country. He is expected up this week after a season there.

The other horses in training were then looked over. In the first stall is a black three-year-old filly by Director, dam by Admiral. She is a big rangy black filly, showing a true Director gait. She belongs to F. W. Loeber of St. Helena. Katie S, another Director three-year-old filly, is out of Alpha Medium, she is black of course, and shows a good deal of quality, her head being not quite as thoroughbred looking as it might be, but everywhere else she is beautifully put up, she was purchased for $2,500 by Mr. Kirkendall, from her breeder Col. Thornton, and has been in McDowell's care since then (4 months ago). She was trotting well inside thirty when distemper struck the stable, and she suffered more than the rest, but is now all right again and ready for steady work. Direct I have already mentioned, and also Gold Leaf, they both are pretty nearly ready for two heats, but want a little more work before they can stand a hard race. Margaret S. was next seen. She is a grand looking bay, three years old, by Director, dam May Day, 2:30, by Cassius M. Clay Jr. She is a splendid dark bay about 15.1, with a beautiful thoroughbred head and neck, grand shoulders and back, with good legs and feet; one hind fetlock is slightly enlarged, but it does not affect her and was caused by too severe blistering to remove a slight knot on the fetlock which was only an eyesore. She has been working so fast that Mr. Salisbury has decided to take her East for the Spirit of the Times stakes, and she will most assuredly give a good account of herself. It was quite interesting to see how all the stable assistants seemed to watch and care for her, in fact it was a hard matter to tell whether she or little winsome Miss Margaret Salisbury, who took me to see her namesake, was the greater favorite. Miss Monroe, 3, bay filly by Monroe Chief, dam by A. W. Richmond, 2d dam by Glencoe (imp.), is a handsome bay mare, showing quality all over, as she should. Richmond and Glencoe have no reason to be ashamed of their share in the filly, and if ever the heats are split up she is bound to make it hot for some of them before they get through. She belongs to Mr. Brown of San Luis Obispo, who won several local races down there with her. Creole, the black four-year-old son of Prompter, has been sent down from Sacramento and should lower his record of 2:25, which I saw him obtain this spring. Andy McDowell's two-year-old filly Sea Foam is by Sidney, dam Lady Hannah by Arthurton, her dam was a thoroughbred. She shows a good deal of the thoroughbred in her appearance and is a natural pacer. I had quite forgotten to mention that on Saturday she was given two-quarters, the first in 37, and the second in 35 seconds—a twenty gait without a skip or break. Chaboye is training two on the track, Eva W., 2:26½, by Nutwood, and Redwood, a nine-year-old stallion, full brother to her. They are both trotting well, the stallion particularly so, and it is intended to give him a record. He has covered a dozen mares this year and should soon make a name for himself.

Thistle is a two-year-old pacer, own brother to Gold Leaf, 2:15 (Sidney—Fern Leaf). He is a big, fine black colt, with a good deal of white on his legs. He has been bred to ten mares this season, but is now being worked, and shows a very rapid gait, with the same mechanical style as his sister.

Navarre is a bay two-year-old horse by Nutmont, dam by Electioneer. He is full of quality, and though not a big colt, will repay his purchaser ere long, he has a very taking action.

The yearlings were then inspected. The first was a slashing looking colt by Monroe Chief, dam Daisy, who is very promising. Pleasanton is by Director, dam May Day, 2:30, and therefore full brother to Margaret S. A finer looking colt could not be wished for, he is a bay, and in what little work he has had does not belie his looks, he is entered in the Occident Stakes of 1891. Gertrude S. is by Monroe Chief, dam Brown Crocket, she is a good rich brown, showing every indication of trotting. The bay colt by Monroe Chief, dam by Whipple's Hambletonian, is a very late one, and wants time, but though smallish and light, has good legs and feet, and will not disgrace his sire. The bay yearling by Director, dam Sweetness, 2:21¼, is, to my mind, the pick of the lot, being a big, strong colt, with splendid shoulders, a strong muscular back and grand legs and feet. He has the regular Volunteer head, taking after his dam instead of his sire in that respect.

Sweetness, 2:21¼ (dam of Sidney, 2:19¾), is by Volunteer 55, dam Lady Merritt by Edward Everitt 81, grandam by Harry

Clay 45; bred by Alden Goldsmith. She is now eleven years old, and was sold this spring to Mr. Corbitt, of San Mateo, for $5,500, and has since had a fine black foal by Director.

Thornton is the black yearling brother to Direct. He has a white star and snip on his face, with a white fetlock, he is a bigger, rangier looking colt than Direct, but has the same resolute, straightforward style of going.

In the adjoining paddock were two Guy Wilkes fillies (one and two years old), a yearling filly by Clovis, dam Nettie, 2:26, five Monroe Chief yearlings (fillies) and one Director filly. They all looked exceptionally well, but we had only time for a very short glance through them.

A move was now made for the alfalfa paddock to take a look through some of the mares and colts. Just behind the stables, splendidly located in a fresh green field, were about a dozen of the most fashionable matrons that money, combined with good judgment, could procure. Old Echora, 2:23½ (by Echo 462, dam the Young Mare by Jack Hawkins, a thoroughbred son of Boston), with a beautiful filly, own sister to Direct, was inviting inspection. She is a seal brown mare, showing quality all over, and looking as fresh and young as if she had forgotten all her hard work on the track in the early part of the '80's. It is the first filly she has had, and she was quite proud of it as it trotted round without a sign of breaking or running.

Belle Echo, 2:20, by Echo 462, is another model brood mare, a nice, bright bay with a brown Director filly at her side. A filly by a :17 horse and out of a :20 mare should do something big, for "like begets like," and there is nothing but speed and stamina on both sides. The youngster is a wonderfully neat, handsome one.

A magpie looking mare and filly foal were the next to attract attention, and on inquiry it turned out to be Gertrude, pacer, by Del Sur, 2:24½, dam by Argyle, a Palo Alto thoroughbred. The mare and her offspring were marked the same, black with white legs and white face. The mother seemed a very handy pacer, while the foal trotted out as steady as a rock.

The next mare was a good looking chestnut by Blue Bull 75, dam by Bennett's Red Oak, sister to Blue Bell, 2:26½. She had a nice chestnut filly by her side by Director. The filly takes more after her dam than her sire, but trots and is very racy looking, and a fast trotter should result from a cross of this kind sure. Roxana, by Gibraltar (2:22½) 1185, dam May Day, 2:30, is a half sister to Margaret S., and like her, is a bay with black points. Her filly foal, by Director, is one of the best fillies in the whole bunch, a rich seal brown and a trotter from the word go.

Col. Thornton's Oriole is a grand looking daughter of Monroe Chief and Queen of Hearts (thoroughbred), with a black colt by Director at foot. The colt has a white star and a suspicion of white on his fetlocks, he will be a beautiful black when he gets older, and was to our mind the pick of the basket, being a splendidly topped colt with a beautiful head and neck, excellent shoulders, a good strong coupling and very powerful quarters, with good flat legs and nice looking feet. The Colonel was the happiest man in Pleasanton when the colt, with his head and tail up, moved round us with that pure characteristic Director style of trotting.

Nellie Gilmer, by Norfall (a thoroughbred son of Norfolk), dam Nellie by Geo. M. Patchen Jr., has a pretty bay Director filly at her side which should make a sticker with Norfolk's blood in her veins.

Misfortune is a good looking mare, so called, I suppose, because she has a hip down. She is by Monroe Chief, dam by Gibraltar, out of Lady Tiffany. Her black suckling colt, by Director, has a very taking appearance, especially when moving, as he bends his knees and hocks in beautiful style.

In the adjoining paddock were several outside mares; like all the above, they are stinted to Director. Three of them were pacers, one by Elmo another by Prompter, and the third was the bay mare Corette, 2:19, pacing, by Winthorp.

We now adjourned for lunch, and after a very nice repast at the hotel, Mr. Neal drove me down to the Valentine Ranch, a little over a mile on the Sunol road. Mr. Salisbury has leased the greater portion of the land for his matrons, and in the valley, in a hundred acre lot, part of it natural wild oats and the other alfalfa, were a large and brilliant collection of mares, while the remainder were grazing on the slope opposite.

In the low-lying land was Nellie R., 2:17¼, an in-bred Gen. McClellan mare, being by Gen. McClellan Jr., son of Gen. McClellan 144, dam Susie Rose by Sam McClelland (also a son of Gen. McClellan), grandam by Hector. She is a good looking, rich chestnut, heavy in foal to Director, and great hopes are entertained that in a month or so a trotter will be on the scene. May Day, 2:30, by Cassius M. Clay Jr. 54, the dam of Margaret S., unfortunately slipped her colt on Christmas day, Mr. Salisbury observing that telegrams such as the one he received were not calculated to improve the festivities on that usually festive occasion. She looks wonderfully well now, and has evidently caught again to Director.

The Malone mare, by Echo 462, dam Lady Dudley, has a splendid Director colt which has grown and thickened out well since the sale, still showing a pure pacing gait without a trace of a trot. She should be in foal again to Director, judging from present indications.

There were eight mares from Montana all stinted to Director, two of which are Smuggler's, and should nick well with the old horse. Aurora (dam of Guido) and Lugena (dam of Jack Pot) are both by Thad Stevens, thoroughbreds, the former having a nice chestnut colt and the latter a chestnut filly by imported Mariner, they belong to Col. Thornton, who has bred them to Director, Aurora has a regular trotting gait and ought to nick well with the black; the Colonel also has Alpha Medium, Lucy Patchen and Adena (a sister to Adair 2:17½) stinted to Director.

On the hill were Nellie (sister to Graves, 2:19) by Hambletonian 725, her Director filly died, and she has been bred back to him. Maid of Oaks, 2:23, by Duke McClellan 9080, dam Ocean Nell (dam of Dan Voorhees, 2:23½), is bred to Director.

Nannie, by Inca, 2:27, dam full sister to Little Brown Jug, is stinted to Director. She has no foal this year.

Dr. Pardee's Nellie Grant, a nice looking bay mare by Santa Claus. She has a stylish looking Director colt at her side, and is bred back to him.

The Black mare by Wilson's Blue Bull has a good looking filly by Director; Brown Crocket by Overland—Nell Crockett; Dolly Whipple by Hambletonian 725 is sister to Lou Whipple, 2:26¾; Nettie, 2:27, by Elmo, sire of Overman, 2:19¼, Alfred S., 2:21, L. C. Lee, 2:15; Midget by Inca, out of dam of Little Brown Jug; Belle S. by Whipple's Hambletonian; Epithet by Princeps—Fantress by Hamlet, second dam Favorita by Alexander's Abdallah, third dam by Mambrino Chief; are all stinted to Director, as are the following outside mares: Nanah (dam of Secretary), Alice R. (dam of Eva W., 2:26½), Lida W., 2:26, Phaeola (Silver Thread—Minnehaha, dam of Sweetheart, 2:22½, Alcazar, 2:23, Eva, 2:23½, and the celebrated Beautiful Bells, 2:28½), Lady Wattles (by Abbotsford, 2:19½, dam Lady Budd by Belmont), Kate Jeannette, Maude, 2:20, Daisy, 2:38½, as a yearling, Fontana by Almont, Brownie H., Alice Garrett, Stem Winder 2:29, Young Miami and Lilly Stanley, 2:19½. Navarre has served two mares, and Thistle ten, including Queen Emma by Woodburn, dam Peggy Ringgold.

Mr. Salisbury has entered in the Spirit of the Times ($11,000) stake six fillies and one colt, and also Nellie R.'s foal, which is not on the scenes yet. The fillies are out of Echora, 2:22½, Belle Echo, 2:20, Roxana, Gertrude, Nellie Gilmer, Echo—Lady Dudley mare, and the colt out of Oriole.

Before leaving the ranch I must say that all the mares and colts were in exceptionally good condition, evidently having had the best possible attention from Mr. Neal, who superintends the mares as well as the books. McDowell said that he would probably come up to the Bay District track in about a weeks' time, and from there go to Montana; while if Direct kept improving he would most probably go East with him when Margaret S. went. And now with regret I bid farewell to Pleasanton with the hope that some day I may have the opportunity, and more time, to revisit the farm and wander through the splendid matrons and grand colts at leisure.

Memoirs of Lexington.

Continued.

A day or two after the race between Lecomte, Lexington and Reube, the following note was handed Mr. T. J. Wells, the owner of Lecomte:

NEW ORLEANS, LA., April 10, 1854.

"Col. T. J. Wells—Dear Sir—I did not wish to run Lexington again this season, and believing you entertained the same sentiment in regard to Lecomte, I forbore making a proposal which you would have to decline or change your views in respect to your horse (though I believe Lexington's defeat was caused by his unskilled rider). As however, it was stated to me at a public assemblage yesterday, that you said that Lecomte stood ready to meet Lexington at any time, for any money, and at any distance, thereby inviting a proposal, I now say that I will run Lexington against Lecomte, four mile heats, over the Metairie Course, on Wednesday of next week, at 3 P. M., for $10,000 a side, half forfeit, which will be deposited to-day with the President of the Metairie Jockey Club, at which time you will also say whether the horses shall carry three or four-year-old weights."

Respectfully yours, etc.,

"R. TEN BROECK.

NEW ORLEANS, LA., April 10, 1854.

"Dear Sir—Your note of this date has just been handed me. Your proposition to run Lexington against Lecomte, four-mile heats, on Wednesday of next week, for $10,000 a side, I beg leave respectfully to decline.

Your obedient servant,

T. J. WELLS.

CHALLENGE FROM LEXINGTON.

To the Editor of the Spirit of the Times.—Although the mistake made by the rider of Lexington, in pulling up at the end of three miles in the recent fast four mile race at New Orleans, was witnessed by thousands of persons, I believe it has not been referred to in print, except in the last number of your paper. As Lexington will probably follow the fashion in making a foreign tour, I give the following as his valedictory: I will run him a single four miles over the Metairie Course at New Orleans (under the rules of the Club) against the fastest time at four miles that has been run in America, for the sum of ten thousand dollars, one-fourth forfeit. Two trials to be allowed, and the race to be run between the 1st and 15th of April next. Arrow to be substituted if Lexington is amiss.

"Or I will run Lexington over the same course, four mile heats, on Thursday previous to the next Metairie April meeting, against any named horse, at the rate expressed in the proposition subjoined.

"Or I will run him over the Union Course at New York, the same distance, on the third Tuesday in October. The party accepting the last race to receive twenty-five thousand dollars to twenty thousand, or to bet the same odds if Lexington travels to run at New Orleans. The forfeit to be five thousand dollars and to be deposited with Messrs. Coleman & Stetson of the Astor House when either race is accepted. If the amounts of the last propositions are too large, they may be reduced one half, with forfeit in the same proportion. The first acceptance coming to hand will be valid—subsequent ones declined—and received after the commencement of the races at the National Course, New York, the 26th of next month.

R. TEN BROECK.

"NEW YORK, May 30, 1854."

In the same number of the Spirit of the Times, "A Turfman," in reply to "Observer," makes the following propositions in concluding his letter:

"It is well understood that "Observer" does not own race horses, nor make matches, but it may not be out of place here to say that Mr. Wells will match Lecomte, at heats of four miles, against any horse in the United States, for from five thousand to ten thousand dollars aside, half forfeit. The race to be run over the Metairie Course near New Orleans, and agreeably to the rules of the Metairie Jockey Club—the party accepting may have choice of New York or Virginia weights—on the Saturday previous to the next regular fall meeting of that course.

"The sum of five hundred dollars will be allowed to the party accepting the challenge to defray expenses, providing the party accepting does not reside in an adjoining State to Louisiana. The forfeit money to be deposited on the acceptance of the proposition in New Orleans. And the proposition to be left open until the first day of September next.

A TURFMAN.

GLENCOES AGAINST BOSTONS.

"The undersigned will name four horses, the produce of Glencoe, which will run against any four horses, the produce of Boston, in the United States, at one, two, three and four-mile heats. The one mile race to be for $2,000; the two mile race to be for $3,000; the three mile race to be $4,000; the four mile race to be for $5,000. To make a race the matches must be all taken, and one half the amount of such sum proposed to be deposited as forfeit with Miles & Cromeline, bankers, No. 50 Wall street, New York, on or before the first day of September next, at which time the horses must all be named. The races to be run over the National Course near the city of New York, on the first Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday in October next, and to be governed by the rules of said course.

W. W. BOYDEN.

"NEW YORK, June 19, 1854.

In the issue of the same paper, a week before this challenge was issued by Mr. W. W. Boyden, June 19, 1853, the paper states that Lexington's challenge against Lecomte's time, 7:26, had been accepted by Col. Calvin Green and Capt. John Belcher of Virginia, and the forfeit money deposited with Coleman & Stetson of the Astor House. In the Spirit of the Times of July 8, 1854, we find the following communication:

"THE CHALLENGE FROM LEXINGTON."

"To the Editors of the New Orleans Delta.—It has become necessary that I should respond to a communication in the Spirit of the Times of the 3d inst., signed R. Ten Broeck, and dated New York, April 30th. There appears to be a great similarity between the editorial contained in the preceding number of the Spirit and the above named production. The resemblance is so perfect that they might be considered as having the same origin. It may be that the paternity is a joint one. Indeed, it would seem the date of the "Challenge from Lexington" was purposely arranged to claim the 'age' of the challenge in the communication signed "A Turfman." And the coincidence in their publications, the one being dated three thousand miles off, and the other dated at New York, on the spot, is so striking that I will be excused for saying that Mr. Ten Broeck's challenge was an after thought. If I am wrong in the supposition that the communication of "A Turfman" was shown Mr. Ten Broeck, before its publication, I would then ask why was his challenge, which was dated the 30th of April, withheld until the 3d of June? The communication of "A Turfman" was dated the 12th of May.

"I make no complaint against the editor of the Spirit of the Times. His paper is his private property, and he has the right to conduct it in his own way. But I believe and assert that Mr. Ten Broeck did see the communication signed "A Turfman" before it went to press, and that he felt called upon to meet the challenge therein contained, and instead of doing so in an open and fair proposition, he used it as a subterfuge to avoid a meeting with Lecomte. This conclusion is irresistible, if not from the facts stated, from the illiberal terms of the challenge itself. But what stamps upon Mr. Ten Broeck's note to the Spirit of the Times the truth of my matter contained in an editorial of the paper of the 27th of May. Thus, Mr. Ten Broeck being endorsed with a prescience so extraordinary, is enabled to refer to what the brain of the editor of the Spirit of the Times will bring forth twenty-seven days hence.

Murder, though it hath no tongue, will speak with most miraculous organ.

"This challenge from Lexington is in perfect keeping with the taste displayed immediately after the defeat of Lexington by Lecomte. A proposition was made to run Lexington against Lecomte, when it was known that it could not or would not be accepted. It was well known to Mr. Ten Broeck that I strenuously opposed Lecomte's running for the State Stake, and that my consent was not given until about three weeks prior to that event. He knew my objection arose from the belief that no three-year-old rider could manage Lecomte in a four-mile race. He knew I attributed Lecomte's being beat in that race to that fact. He knew I would run Lecomte for the four mile day succeeding the State Stake—for I so expressed myself to Capt. Viley, Mr. Duke, &c., &c.—provided the Hon. D. F. Denner's boy—Abe—could be reduced to within three or four pounds of the proper weight to ride him."

"Mr. Ten Broeck being urged, perhaps, by too confident friends of Lexington, or prompted by a desire to give his horse a fictitious reputation, by bolstering up his future fortunes, or it may be, to gain for himself a wondrous notoriety, proposed two or three days after their last race to run Lexington against Lecomte for five or ten thousand dollars, which I declined, for, before doing so he secured my rider from Mr. Kenner, and thus being fortified against the possibility of a fair and equal contest, he sends his challenge. The challenge that Mr. Ten Broeck now throws out, with a display of great boldness, is in character with other challenges emanating from him; for instance, last winter he proposed to match the get of Boston against the world, and he made the conditions so unequal, complicated, and absurd, that he could not himself have expected any one to take him up. Such as I have shown, was the nature of his challenge to me last spring, and such is the nature of his present challenge. So far as I am concerned, Mr. Ten Broeck has placed it out of my power to accept his present challenge, even if it presented the ordinary character of such things. He issues it for the first time, on the 3d of June, and says no acceptance will be received after the 26th of the same month—thereby allowing only three weeks for me to receive and reply to it—requiring in the meantime, a travel of six thousand miles, and that, too, involving an amount of from $20,000 to $45,000. My own challenge is in plain and open terms. Ample time is given for the world to take it up. It is made to run at all distances. I claim the substitution of no horse, in case Lecomte is amiss. I propose the contest to come off over his own track, where the pecuniary advantages accruing are entirely his own. I have made no arrangements with the proprietors of any course to receive a percentage of the receipts, should I make the race to come off over their track. I have not bought up nor engaged all the best jockeys, to prevent my antagonist from having an equal advantage with me. Lecomte does not propose to follow the fashion of a foreign tour, that he may 'dodge' a fair and honorable contest. My challenge speaks for itself, and there let it remain, 'to fright the souls of fearful adversaries.' Mr. Ten Broeck has studiously attempted to avoid my challenge, when he might have availed himself of all that is there so liberally offered; and if, by chance, I have said anything here that may hereafter provoke him to accept the same, I reserve to myself the right, so far as he is concerned, to designate the course over which the match shall be run—pledging myself to name either the Natchez, the Mobile or Metairie Course.

"In conclusion, Mr. Editor, allow me to say that this communication should more properly be addressed to the Spirit of the Times, but as Mr. Ten Broeck's challenge bears internal evidence that an improper use was made of my challenge before its publication, I do not feel disposed to trust this where (to say the least of it) an apparent want of courtesy has been shown me. Yours, &c.,

"THOMAS J. WELLS.

"RED RIVER, June 16, 1854."

NOTE BY THE EDITOR OF THE SPIRIT OF THE TIMES.

"We give place to the impertinent letter above, from Gen. Wells, though it is replete with groundless assertions and bold falsifications. For instance, the editorial article which appears to have "stirred up the monkeys," was written before Mr. Ten Broeck's arrival here, and he first saw it in print." The absurdity of charging us with "antipathy to Southern horses" is beneath notice. There have been no Northern horses on the turf for years. Since Lecomte's great race, several articles from well known (to us) correspondents of this paper have appeared in an obscure New Orleans journal, evidently from the same pens, charging us with all manner of uncharitableness towards that horse, which we shall not condescend to notice. If it should be deemed proper, after the correspondence between the parties shall have closed, in respect to the half dozen matches and challenges which have appeared in this paper lately, we may undertake to strip off certain masks we wot off, and if "fur flies" it will not be our fault. The course pursued towards us by these Louisiana jokers, who have "laid their heads together" for the purpose, is utterly unprovoked and will not be forgotten, they had better believe.

LEXINGTON TO LECOMTE—ANOTHER CHALLENGE.

Mr. Editor:—I dare say your readers are heartily wearied with hearing of Lecomte and Lexington, and I should not again resume the "grey goose quill," except to correct the errors and sophistries of a communication signed "Thomas J. Wells," dated Red River, June 16, This I will do, seriatim, and as briefly as possible. It is intimated that a communication signed "A Turfman" was withheld by you, to give my challenge on the part of Lexington precedence. This is doing you great injustice and is wholly incorrect. I must confess my surprise that on a subject so unimportant as a discussion concerning the superiority of two horses, so grave an accusation should be made where no evidence for it can be afforded, except in the imagination of the writer. The same fatuity is displayed in considering the communication signed "A Turfman" a bona fide challenge. If my memory serves, the response was to be sent to New Orleans. There may be many turfmen in New Orleans, and I believe it is not usual to offer matches under a nomme de plume. The friends of Lecomte say with Byron, "Give me a successor, but no rival."

"The date of the challenge on the part of Lexington should have been May 30.

Three miles from the beautiful city of Santa Barbara lies the picturesque little lake called "Laguna Blanca." It is one mile in circumference, and is filled by the waters that rush into it from the high hills around. The scenery around the lake is beautiful. Immense oak trees with their wide spreading branches add much to the grandeur of the scenery. The Pacific Improvement Company have purchased the large tract of land known as the "Hope Ranch," and the company propose to build on a high hill that overlooks the lake, a handsome hotel and improve the surrounding lands. The lake will be kept filled to its utmost the year around.

Seventeen years ago the good people of Santa Barbara built a mile track around the lake and offered a beautiful silver cup to the horse that could win in a mile hurdle race. Conditions were that the horses that competed were to be owned in Santa Barbara county, and each horse to be ridden by its owner. Colors and horses to be named three days before the race. There were to be four hurdles, each four feet high. Great preparations were made for the event. The gentlemen who were to ride were all single men, and of course as they were model young men, and looking around for a wife—Santa Barbara has always been noted for its handsome and accomplished young ladies—each one would appear to the best advantage. When the young ladies discovered that their friends were to appear arrayed in short pantaloons, bright colored jackets and jockey caps, their indefigatible imaginations worked with willing skill in the selection of colors and artistic style of their suits. John S. Bell who owned and entered Bonny, found himself in a great predicament. Two or three weeks after the race he was to be married to a prominent and accomplished young lady of Santa Barbara, and she objected seriously and empatically to his riding Bonny over those horribly high hurdles. The mere thought of them made her shudder. Mr. Bell being of a gentle and sweet disposition at the time, especially disposed to listen to the capricies of his bethrothed, appealed to his friends, and vehemently did he plead his cause, so after a long and warm discussion his friends yielded, and Mr. Bell was allowed to substitute a bright Englishman who bore the name of Mr. Bromley. It was surprising how often these gentlemen went to the ladies to fit on their jackets and caps All the gentlemen who rode in this race are married to-day—all married to beautiful ladies—but one, he is married to his profession.

The day for the great race finally came. Nature was in her happiest mode. It was early in the spring, so that the high hills, deep canyons and beautiful meadows wore their fresh green mantles, variegated with the sweetest perfumed flowers of the forest.

> "All sorts are here that all the earth yields; > Variety without end."

All went out to the lake early in the day, many taking their baskets filled with the best of everything to eat. The thick forest joyously entertained the young ladies and gentlemen. I was then too young and too much interested in my books to think of love, so I wandered in the woods and thoroughly enjoyed the beautiful scenery around. I could hear the roar of the ocean, hear the sweet birds of spring and the soft voices of the "senoritas," and I kept repeating unto myself:—

> "There is a pleasure in the pathless woods,
> There is a rapture on the lonely shore;
> There is society where none intrudes,
> By the deep sea, and music in its roar."

An hour before the time for calling the race the home stretch was filled with carriages. The grand stand and the private carriages were artistically decorated. The young lady who was to be married soon after the race was fortunate in her selection of the winner of the race. She christened a beautiful brown mare "Mariposa," and this speedy mare was ridden by Mr. Jacques, who, with eyes full of love, looked towards Old England for his betrothal's blessing and good wishes. A handsome bay mare called "May Queen" was entered and ridden by Captain Forney of the United States Coast Survey. Jarret T. Richards, a prominent attorney of Santa Barbara, and who ran on the Republican State ticket for Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of this State, rode a sorrel gelding called "Skylark." Joe Pleasant rode a black gelding called Blackbird. O. M. Coarrubios, who is proprietor of the Fashion stables and a great lover of equine sports, rode George Temple. This grey gelding was the handsomest one my eyes ever beheld. He stood sixteen hands, had a beautifully turned head, a long, thin neck, and handsomely shaped ears that stood erect and gracefully moved in token of recognition. His large, bright eyes stood out and betrayed his kind disposition, and his wide nostrils gave the sportsmen an idea of the gelding's ability to run far and strong. I have never seen better hindquarters than this handsome grey gelding possessed. His symmetrical form could not but attract all eyes which came near him.

When the bell rung for the amateur jockies to mount their racers the band began to play a lively march. It was amusing to see and hear the jockies, for so must we call them till the race is finished. One objected to this and another to that. George Temple's jockey seriously objected to being dressed as a clown. He wore white pantaloons, white jacket and yellow cap. He declared that he would not ride in that suit. He said that he had not come out to take the part of a clown before such an immense crowd. He said that if he had known that there was to be a band and so many eyes to gaze upon him he never would have consented to appear in short pantaloons and jockey cap. His brother Nick and friends finally persuaded him that it was just the thing, so he was lifted on his gelding. Mr. Jacques wore pants, jacket and cap made of blue silk. His handsome brown mare, "Mariposa," trotted gracefully towards the stand, and seemed inspired by the sweet strains of music that traveled softly over the waters of the serene lake, and were taken up by the joyous birds of spring that were watching the sport from their alcoves on the high oak trees. Captain Forney's colors were blue pants, white jacket and red cap. I sat on the front seat of a three-seated carriage, in which were Miss D., Miss L., Mrs. Dr. S., and Mrs. Captain G. The amateur jockeys were given their positions and instructed by the judges.

The music had ceased. Ladies and gentlemen were attentively watching the horses. The scene was an eloquent one to behold. The serene white sheet of water unconcerned; there was not sufficient wind to move the leaves, and that immense crowd of attractive ladies and gentlemen silent and all attention, and the proud, prancing steeds coming for the word "Go!" They made several attempts to get off. The intense excitement was inspiring, and the delay to get off only made the ladies more anxious and attentive. At last the word "Go!" was given, and away rushed the horses at a great speed. Miss L. and Miss D. stood upon their seats, Miss D. supported by Mr. Bell. Just as the horses were reaching the first hurdle the ladies covered their eyes with their soft, white hands and gave a faint "Oh, my!" Over the hurdle went the horses, George Temple, Mariposa and May Queen together, followed closely by "Bonny," Skylark and Blackbird. Away they go again, straining every muscle, and the brave amateur jockeys striving to guide their steeds to victory. The second hurdle is reached, and over it leap Mariposa, May Queen and George Temple. Three or four lengths behind them are coming, increasing their speed, "Bonny," Skylark and Blackbird. "Look at them run!" cries Miss L., and then she covers her eyes. She sits down, and Mr. Bell rushes off tor water. Confusion in and around our carriage. I looked for the horses, and a feeling of horror came over me. I saw the sorrel gelding "Skylark" running towards the hills—riderless.

The last hurdle is reached by the horses. The three first horses are still in the lead. You hear voices shouting, "George Temple, Mariposa!" As they approach the last hurdle, O. M. Coarrubias prudentially checks George Temple and the horse makes a strong effort to run around the hurdle, and he jumps over it on the extreme outside. The crowd shout, "Foul! go back and take the jump again." He was so excited and so worn by his efforts to keep his horse under control that he actually stopped his horse, went back, and made the horse take the hurdle again; and so it was that this fast, brave and handsome gelding, George Temple, lost the first hurdle ran in the State of California in the spring of 1872. Mr. Jacques was the great hero of the day, and "Mariposa" the speedy heroine. She was crowned "Queen o' the May." Poor George Temple! he seemed to feel that he was neglected after the race, and his rider swore that he never should have ridden in those short white pantaloons and yellow cap.

Before the next race came off the band played sweet lively airs. The crowd began to scatter and seek the shade of the widespreading oaks to discuss the merits of each horse or to talk of their future days. Ganymeade was around in the forest with his silver pitcher pouring out wine to the gods and godesses. "Mariposa" was the proudest queen one ever saw. She was fond of the caresses and kind words spoken to her, and she seemed to glory in her great victory. An hour after the hurdle race the Consolation race was called, and the only horse that responded to the call was Mr. Bell's Bonny. The crowd was much disappointed, but to their relief came the brave and accomplished gentleman, Dr. Jas. B. Shaw, who declared his willingness to ride his black gelding against Bonny, provided Bonny took the hurdle and the Doctor's horse ran around them.

The announcemant of Dr. Shaw was received with vehement applauses, and it was not long before Mr. Bromley was again on Bonny and Dr. Shaw by his side. The horses went to a good start and ran evenly, Bony taking the hurdles. Under the wire Bony showed his head first and was awarded the race.

Last Friday I took a ride out to Mr. Hall's ranch, twelve miles from here. Mr. Hall has a beautiful ranch of eight hundred acres. Water is piped all over the farm. He has set out two thousand lemon trees, five hundred loquats, and all varieties of tropical plants. Large banana plants, palms of all kinds, a large bed of asparagus and strawberries. Although he is not interested in equine racing, he has a great fancy for birds and dogs. He brought with him from France, English pheasants, grey patridges, redleg partridges and French quails. He also brought with him some fine dogs.

Yesterday morning I went down to the track to see a two-year-old that J. M. Rochin had sent from Los Alamos to Pete Doyle. The colt is named Don Ramon; he is a sorrel stallion by Almont, he by A. W. Richmond, dam Monte Belle, she by Ten Broeck, and out of Granny, dam of Tom Stout, record 2:24. The dam of Don Ramon is by Newry; second dam by Dan Voorhees, record 2:23½, he by Gen. McClellan. Although this youngster is just broken, he can trot a quarter handily in 45 seconds. I saw Gus Walters drive Don Patricio a fast quarter—too fast for me to give away. Don Patricio is rounding out in fine shape. He feels and trots like a twenty horse. T. M.

Horse Notes From San Luis Obispo.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—It may interest some of your readers to hear a word from one of the extreme backwood counties of the great State of California, and to learn that we have here, or think we have, some horse-stock that is worthy of mention in the columns of your most excellent paper. I will give you a partial list of the stock now at work at the trotting park: Mr. N. N. Craig has his bay stallion Harold Cossack by Don Cossack, dam by Harold. He is still doing stud service, and gets light exercise on the track, yet shows nice, square trotting action, and is improving in speed. Acrobat (pacer) bay horse, three years old, by Sterling, he by Egmont, he by Belmont, dam by Tom Hal. As a two-year-old this colt made a record of 2:37½ at Sacramento. The track here has been too deep and loose to favor the pacing gait, yet this young horse is improving rapidly, showing quarters in 38 seconds. In this string is Mr. Petty's bay filly Daisy, three years old, by Mt. Vernon, a finely gaited mare. She trots quarters in 42 seconds; mile trial, 2:57.

G. W. Walker's black filly Maude, two years old, by Altoona, dam by A. T. Stewart, has been worked two and a half months, and trots quarters very fast.

N. H. Fitzwater's Duke McClellan Jr., grey stallion, four years old, by Duke McClellan. Mr. Craig has had this horse three weeks, and he trots mile trials in 2:56. Mr. Pennington's black mare, four years old, by Altoona, is a well gaited and promising one.

Hiram Tracy has Mr. Trowbridge's Promise 6416, black stallion by Almont Pilot 763, dam by Cassius M. Clay Jr. Promise is a finely bred fellow, has good action, is level headed, and under Mr. Tracy's management, is making rapid improvement. Mr. C. R. Calander's brown gelding is of Black Hawk stock, Mr. Farr's bay gelding of Kentucky Hunter extraction, and Mr. C. W. Dana's chestnut gelding by Duke McClellan, dam by A. T. Stewart, are all doing well, and while they are only thought of as roadsters now, some trotter may think he has been at a race after interviewing either of the trio.

R. S. Brown has Monroe S, bay colt three years old, by Monroe Chief, dam Lady Tiffney. This colt has made quite a season in the stud, and is only just beginning work. On Thursday last he trotted a mile in 2:51. Antiall, brown colt, two years old, by Antevolo, dam Lady Tiffney, is a nice large fellow, and is in every way a fine colt. Flora D., black mare, four years old, by Director, has been worked but little, and is stinted to Monroe S.

J. H. Hollister's brown filly, three years, by Altoona, dam Nellie, is a full sister to Allo, 2:22¼, and looks, when trotting, as if she intended to head off her illustrious brother.

General P. W. Murphy's brown filly, two years, by Gaviota, he by Electioneer, is a nice and promising one.

Judge Adams is the happy owner of very nice two-year-old bay gelding by Alexander, Jr. This completes Mr. Brown's stable.

H. M. Seig has Commodore Nutwood, b h by Nutwood; is only just out of the season, and last Saturday trotted a mile in 2:33.

Charles Lee's bay mare, three years, by Gaviota is improving.

J. H. Hollister's gray pacing gelding, only at work a few days, but Harry says he will go fast this fall.

H. M. Warden's two chestnut fillies Skip and Daisy, by Quien Sabe are doing well. Daisy made a mile trial a few days since in 2:45. Billy Nutwood, b c, two years, by Commodore Nutwood, winner of the yearling race here last fall, will be liable to make it warm for some of the fast two-year-olds at the coming Fair.

Nellie Nutwood, full sister to Billy, b m, four years, record as a three-year-old, 2:55. Adjutant, b h, six years, by Admiral, has just been brought to Sieg's stable by the owner, Mr. McKinnon.

Mr. Tognazzini's sorrel filly Nellie, by Altoona, dam by Anales Alexander, is a great, fine filly, and has a fine way of going. Susie, same owner, b m by Altoona, dam by A. T. Stewart, is a nice large mare and a good mover.

C. L. Woods has Harry Oaks' brown gelding Charley W. by Altoona, dam old Lill with probably as much of old Belmont's blood in her as any thing now living. This colt is three years old, and if nothing happens him I predict that he will become a fast horse.

Woods also has Thos. Cashin's dun gelding, two years by Gaviota, dam by a son of Capt. Fisher. This colt is known on the track as Dynamite, and is liable to explode, look out for him in the future.

In this stable is a little beauty, three years by Altoona, dam by A. T. Stewart, the property of W. Sandercock.

This morning we were treated to a heat between H. D. Albright's blk stallion Fred Arnold and a ch mare, driven and trained by Jack Cochran. The horses went like a double team from wire to wire, and trotted the mile in 2:33, which, in view of the fact that Fred Arnold has just closed a season of 105 mares, is simply wonderful for the horse.

SAN LUIS OBISPO, Cal., July 22, 1889.

A Question in Breeding.

There is considerable difference of opinion, says The American Cultivator, among practical breeders as to whether the sire or dam has the greater influence upon the offspring. According to theory the dam should have the greater, for the fœtus is a part of herself during a period of several months. It is nourished from her system and is influenced greatly by her emotions. This is often strikingly illustrated by peculiarities of color and shape, which appear to be almost identical with those of some strange object that has produced a strong impression upon the mare.

It seems probable that the extent to which the offspring is influenced by either parent depends upon the relative strength of the characteristics of the two parents; that is, if the dam is more remarkable in any particular respect than the sire, and especially if her ancestors were distinguished for the same qualities that make the mare remarkable, the foals will be more likely to resemble the dam in that particular feature then the sire.

It is a common remark that great men always have remarkable mothers. It is true that noted turf performers and successful trotting sires are from mares noted for strong individuality of character. The Arabs, who are generally credited with possessing a very thorough knowledge of the science of breeding, believe that the sire exerts far greater influence upon the offspring than the dam.

San Mateo Stock Farm.

By Grim.

Having been asked at least a score of times what Mr. Corbitt had in training at the farm, and being unable to answer positively, a visit was paid to San Mateo a few days ago, and now it can be stated on authority, what will in all probability, be started in the races this year to uphold the honors of the home of Sable Wilkes and Guy Wilkes.

There was another consideration that took me to the farm and that was the report, current for the past week or two, that Lillian Wilkes had "a leg," and I wished to see for myself how far the rumor was justified. This is the time of the year that all sorts of idle gossip is flying around in reference to promising performers, and the Breeder and Sportsman staff have explicit orders to publish nothing but what can be verified, there being no room in these columns for sensations, that are printed one day, only to be contradicted the next.

The proprietor, and his able assistant, John A. Goldsmith, were both on hand to show up the stable and give whatever information was desired. Mr. Corbitt was told that the Directors of the Stockton Association would give a free-for-all stallion purse, and asked if he would enter Sable Wilkes. His answer was an empathic "no." When he made the entry in the Breeders Stake, the horse was turned over to Mr. Goldsmith, who drove him several times, but when the purse was reopened, Mr. Corbitt decided to withdraw his nomination, and the horse was at once put out of training, and sent back to stud service. An invitation was extended to take a look at the great young stallion, and he was found in his palatial stall, a monarch in every look and gesture, although his crown has lately been wrested from him by his relative Axtell. Closely examined, he fails to show a blemish of any sort or description, and his underpinning is "clean as a whistle." The black beauty was led out and the first impression was strengthened that he is fit to trot for a man's life. However, Mr. Corbitt has firmly decided that he will not start Sable Wilkes and therefore the public will not have the pleasure of seeing the mighty son of Guy Wilkes enter the lists this season.

A look was then taken at the various horses which are being prepared for the campaign, and a royal lot they are, everyone bred in the purple and of the kind that can keep coming. It is only natural that the many visitors who are constantly paying their respects at the farm should have favorites among the large number that are constantly to be seen, and the fair Lillian Wilkes holds the first place in the opinion of the majority, but under pain of being thought contrary I wish to go on record as being a strong believer in the prowess of Atalanta Wilkes, who is beyond all odds the very best of the equines in my estimation now at the San Mateo Stock Farm, and I am also strongly impressed that Mr. Corbitt is now extremely sorry that he has sold this magnificent daughter of Guy Wilkes and Atalanta (a full sister to Beautiful Bells) to Mr. Allen, notwithstanding the long price of $15,000 was paid for her. Since this fine filly became the property of Mr. Allen he has refused $20,000 for her; and in view of the fact that he has never seen her, it shows what a strong idea he must have of her blood lines, and I sincerely trust he may never have to regret his refusal to sell Atalanta Wilkes. She is now two years old, coal black in color, stands fully 15.3, and displays immense power, with a perfect, frictionless action. Her beauty is enhanced by a mane and tail that would cause Abbottsford to grow green with envy if he could but see them. She takes to her work kindly, and is moving very fast.

Now then for a look at Lillian Wilkes, the pride of the farm, and which Mr. Goldsmith hopes may be able to reduce the three-year-old record. The beautiful filly was found to be in first class fettle, the mole hill, from which the mountain grew, being nothing more nor less than a slight abrasion of the skin on one of the fore legs where she scraped herself with one of the hind shoes when in exercise. The hair was knocked off, and that was what caused the rumor to spread that the daughter of Guy Wilkes and Flora Langford had broken down. Unless something else happens to her, Lillian Wilkes will be a surprise party to any horseman who has the fond hope that he may be able to beat her, for she is the picture of health, and is undeniably very fast.

Rupee is a brown colt two years old by Guy Wilkes, dam Sable Hayward by Poscora Hayward, 2:23½. This namesake of the principal Hindoostanee coin is a pacer, and a rattling good one at that, having already shown low enough in the "twenties" to warrant Mr. Goldsmith in the opinion that it will have to be a world beater that can lower the colors of Rupee.

Anita, by Le Grande, dam Hannah Price by Arthurton, is a large rangy three-year-old that moves in an even smooth way, and should be a good, useful animal in the slower classes, as she has no record.

I have another favorite in the stable which deserves especial mention for his good looks, and from whom I expect to hear good reports before the season closes. This is Regal Wilkes, two years old, by Guy Wilkes, dam Margaret by Sultan. "Handsome is as handsome does," is an old and very trite saying, but if this representative of The Moor and Wilkes families, only performs one-half as well as his appearance indicates, he will indeed show wonderful speed, for in beauty he cannot be excelled anywhere.

Several months ago my old friend Dan DeNoyelles, of New York, sent out to the San Mateo Stock Farm his favorite mare Nina D. by Nutwood, dam Adelaide (2:19¾) by Phil Sheridan 630, to be bred, and Mr. Goldsmith will try to give her a record before she makes the return trip. How well I remember her dam, a small, tiny, little thing no larger than a pony, and what speed she had; a regular flyer. The ladies always fell in love with the diminutive creature, and although Nina D. is not much larger than her mother, I hope she may be able to get a record just as low.

While Tassa, Wilkes will not be seen on the public tracks this year, still she is being taught the preliminary work, preparatory to showing up as a two-year-old. Tassa is a fine large yearling with an exceedingly good gait, and gives promise of being one of the fast ones.

Grandee, the well known gelding, is ready and eager for the fray. As a three-year-old he got a record of 2:23, and it will trouble many of the crack four-year-olds to win a heat from him this fall. He is in excellent condition, tough as a nut, legs sound, and fit to cope with the best.

Next are shown two full sisters, Una Wilkes and Hazel Wilkes, the first a three-year-old and the latter a year older. They are by Guy Wilkes, dam Blanche by Arthurton. Both of these are showing up well, and, as neither have records, should be able to earn their oats.

Mr. Goldsmith has several good ones of his own, but he had only one in training, Sister V., when a few days ago a gentleman named McLeod, from Seattle, Washington Territory, paid a visit to the ranch and asked her price. On being told what would purchase her, he said he would take her if a certain time could be shown. Mr. Goldsmith showed the necessary amount of speed, and the sale was consummated at once, and it is highly probable that this fast mare is now on her way to the northern country.

The black stallion Memo has been placed under the charge of this careful trainer, and will be given the necessary amount of work to fit him for his contest against the many who are entered in the 2:20 class in the P. C. T. H. B. programme. As yet his fastest full mile for the year was completed in 2:38, but this will be gradually reduced in time.

Time being limited, only a casual glance could be taken at the brood mares, for which this farm is so famous. They are all looking well with the exception of Sweetness, 2:21¼, who is limping, probably from the effect of a kick or strain. The foals are all looking well, and it might not be amiss to give here a list of the youngsters by Guy Wilkes and Sable Wilkes, foaled this spring:

What a grand array of trotters, and what combinations of blood lines! There is probably no one farm in the United States that can show such a magnificent collection of matrons as are assembled in the paddocks of Mr. Corbitt's breeding establishment, the brilliancy of their pedigrees being only surpassed by the individuality of each, for speed lines and producing quality are equally looked at with breeding when new purchasers are made for the stud. There has never been a year in the past when so many promising trotters have been in training at San Mateo Stock Farm as at present, and that the proprietor may be abundantly satisfied with his success on the track this season is my earnest wish, for he is deserving of both honor and profit for his immense outlay.

A Rich Man and His Horses.

About two months ago one of the steamers coming from Liverpool brought among her passengers three gentlemen who had been in Paris for several weeks, says the Canadian Sportsman, endeavoring to patch up an agreement in the broken syndicate controlling the world's copper supply. The news which had come over to the United States about their negotiations with the Rothschilds and the Paris capitalists had not been satisfactory, and when the steamer bringing the representatives of the Americans interests arrived at her pier on the North River, there were reporters from all over New York, and even from some of the Boston and Philadelphia papers, anxious to interview the three American as soon as they could land. One of these men was Mr. J. B. Haggin. He is the largest owner of copper in the United States, and his Anaconda mines out West could probably be depended upon to furnish the world with all the copper it wants for a number of years to come.

About a fortnight ago there was a sale of ninety-six of the finest yearling horses that lovers of the turf have ever seen in one stable put up at auction. One of the animals brought $22,000, another sold for $10,000, and altogether the lot realized for its owner $113,750. On the whole it was the greatest sale of the kind that has ever occurred in the United States. Mr. Haggin is the man who sold these horses.

A few days ago the great Realization race was run at Sheepshead Bay. It was a grand struggle for the $40,000 prize, and that magnificent horse called Salvator crossed the line first. Mr. J. B. Haggin was his owner.

It is very likely that this man, who has a mountain of copper, a ranch miles and miles in area in California, a breeding farm with 300 brood mares, and a stud of the finest stallions to be found in any one man's stable anywhere in the world, could walk up Broadway through the throng on any pleasant afternoon and pass unrecognized by most of the people who see him. Even racing men to whom his name is familiar would not at all know him by sight. Yet he is really one of the most picturesque characters among the rich men of the country. In figure he is of medium height, with trim, straight legs, supporting a rather stalwart frame, with a head well covered with hair that is almost white. He wears a beard and moustache closely cropped and in color like his hair. There is a firm look upon his face, and his eyes are bright and strong in their gaze. He is perhaps 65 years old, but walks with firm step. There is nothing in his manner or his dress that is ostentatious, and, while he might be taken for a prosperous banker, there is nothing about him which would lead one to think that he is a man of wealth that runs far up into the millions, and a man who has so many irons in the fire that his interests extend almost all over the world.

Mr. Haggin is a man who will not say very much about himself. He is courteous, however, and when he says he does not wish to answer a question the inquirer may always depend upon it that he means what he says. A story is told that Mr. Haggin is of Irish parentage, and was born in Kentucky. There is another story that he was born in Turkey. However this may be, he is now an American. One of the things that those who say he was born in Turkey tell as a proof is the name given to his son, "Ben Ali." It is also related that Mr. Haggin, Sr., ran away when a boy, and passed some of his time in Constantinople, where he was befriended by a Turk, in memory of whose kindness the father gave the name Ben Ali to his first born. Mr. Haggin lived, when a young man, in Kentucky, studied law there, and about the time there was a great rush for the Pacific coast, went West to make his fortune. He stopped on his way at St. Louis, and with a cousin began the practice of law and the sale of real estate. They did not meet with the success there that they desired, and with $500 that was given to his cousin, they went on to San Francisco. While they were busy with their law practice, they learned a great deal about mining stocks, and made investments. Everything that Mr. Haggin touched seemed to turn into money, and a short time he acquired a gold mine at Deadwood, a silver mine at Bodie, in California, and other mines in other places. He also became interested in the Wells, Fargo Express Company, and the bank which the company runs. The copper mine in Anaconda, Montana, is one of the most valuable of his possessions. It takes 3,000 men to run it.

But it is probably Mr. Haggin's possessions in California that are of most popular interest. His farm, the Rancho Del Paso, covers an area of seventy-two square miles, and its borders nearly touch the boundaries of the city of Sacramento. Down in Kern county, in southern California, he owns 400,000 acres of most magnificent land. It is irrigated by a canal 60 feet wide. The Rancho Del Paso is where he has his horses, the first sale of which last year and the second sale two weeks ago have attracted so much attention. Mr. William Easton, the auctioneer who rattled off the horses at Hunt's Point, knows about the ranch in California, and although he has been a horseman all his life, and has probably seen most of the breeding farms, he is intensely enthusiastic over that owned by Mr. Haggin. He says that the life of the young colts and young fillies out there is one of activity under circumstances most favorable to the development of aristocratic horses. After the youngsters are weaned the colts are put into one field where they can get a straight run of a mile over easy ground, and then are put into another field where they can get a similar stretch. He says that in no sense of the word are these yearlings pampered. They may be forced, so far as having plenty of food and exercise to promote growth goes, but they are as far from being pampered as is possible. One of the most splendid spectacles that horses may furnish for men to look upon is that which the visitor to the Haggin ranch may see when, on the signal being given for the horses to come home for the evening feed, the forty or fifty colts at the furthest end of a field a mile or more long come tearing along at the very top of their speed, each one struggling to get there first.

This truly is a race. Every horse, urged by the influences that were born within him, inherited from a long line of dams and sires whose business it was to pass beneath the wire first upon the track, stretches over the ground, every muscle playing, every footfall strong and elastic, every instinct of the true bred horse forcing him to get the lead and keep it. In this free for all spirited contest there is no jockey urging the horse with whip and spur to do his best; the animal is running as swiftly as he can simply because it is his nature to do so, because he likes it, because he wants to do so. It is this kind of out-door vigorous life, this freedom from warm and ill-ventilated stables, this plenty of unrestricted exercise, Mr. Easton says, that gives the Rancho Del Paso yearlings their great muscular development, their even size, and their promise of a magnificent future. There is a great deal due to the climate. California hasn't had a very long time to demonstrate what she may do as a horse breeding State, but those men who have made the experiment have already accomplished such wonderful results that it is almost certain that in time the greatest horses in the United States will come from there.

The horses which have come from California have been noted for their size, their constitutional substance, and particularly for their ability to beat all comers at all distances, very often under heavy weights. These are essential qualities, which are particularly tested in the long journey which the yearlings have to undergo before they are put on sale here in New York. Racing men think that the climate in which the horses pass their first year helps largely. The colts on Mr. Haggin's ranch, no matter when they are born, says Mr. Easton, have the advantage of warm sunshine and equable temperature from the very hour almost that they first see light. They are not subjected to the many vexatious setbacks which those bred in less favored parts of the world have to contend with.

Mr. Haggin was present at the sale of his horses at Hunt's Point a few days ago. He and his son and Fred Hoey of Long Branch, sat together. Each one kept a tally of the prices at which the colts and fillies sold and of the men who bought them. A close observer of Mr. Haggin's face couldn't have detected any sign to lead to the belief that the sphinx-like man, so quiet and apparently unconcerned, was more personally interested in the success of the sale than all the other men there. The stablemen seemed to have more at stake than he had. But this stolidity is one of the chief characteristics of his nature. That and his ability to concentrate all his energies upon one thing at a time have been great factors of his success. His horse farm, big and valuable as it is, constitutes only a small feature compared with his other business. Besides the mines, to which he gives probably more thought than to the horses, Mr. Haggin raises vast quantities of hops and big flocks of sheep. He looks after his farm and mining affairs as a matter of business. He looks after his horses more as a matter of recreation. He takes pleasure in all his forms of business, but it is his breeding farm and the horses that afford him the rest which a man so rich and busy must have. He passes much of his time in New York, though necessarily he travels a great deal, and, of course, is often in California.

Brentwood Trotters.

A correspondent from Brentwood writes that their district is coming to the front among trotters. He says that they have several promising trotters there. Mrs. N. R Harriss and Mound Ranch owns Rollie H, by Anteeo, dam Humming Bird by George M. Patchen Jr. He is at present being trained by Jas. Corcoran on the Petaluma race track. Mrs. Harris also has a yearling and a two-year-old, both fillies by Antevolo, dam Humming Bird. The two-year-old shows every indication of trotting fast in what little work it has had. Humming Bird was stinted to Director this year.

Mr. N. R. Harris has some very well bred trotting stock, his juveniles so far seem to be very good. One is a yearling gelding by Cleveland (by Anteeo) dam Queen by G. M Patchen Jr.: another yearling, also a gelding is by Rollie H. dam Fanny by Black Hawk. Mr. Harris also has a Rollie H., yearling out of Daisy Dean (a fast pacer with quite a local reputation) who trots like a streak. Queen visited Sidney this year. Mr. Smith (at present in Europe) has been making a successful season with Cleveland. Shafer who has had charge of him says Mr. Smith has some particularly good yearlings on his Sunol place including colts by Director, Sidney and Antevolo.

The London Sunday Times says it is the duty of the Stewards of the Jockey Club to add a few stringent "new rules" to prevent the renewal of scandals such as have been ventilated. First, no partnership in race-horses should be allowed under any pretext. Secondly, no owner should be permitted to train in more than one stable at one time. Thirdly, any jockey holding a retainer from any specific stable, if a horse is running in any race from that stable, should be forbidden to aid any other horse in a different stable in the same race. Fourthly, the veto against jockeys betting should be enforced. Fifthly, any trainer owning horses and running them should not be permitted to train for any other person. Sixthly, assumed racing names should be discontinued. Seventhly, no bookmaker should be permitted to own horses. The more openly all connected with turf matters is carried out, the better it will be for those who have the real interest of the sport at heart.

Pacific Coast Trotting Association.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—In answer to your circular letter, I would state that I am in favor of forming a Running and Trotting Association on this coast, and believe that every person interested in breeding, feels the same as I do. Yours respectfully,

E. L. HUBBARD.

CARSON CITY, NEVADA, July 20th, 1889.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—In answer to your circular letter of June 19th, I will say that I have read with much interest the different views advanced on both sides of the proposition, and feel assured that the advantages to be gained by a new organization would more than pay for the trouble, anxiety or any financial outlay that might be needed by its formation and maintenance. Yours very truly,

LOU D. HALL.

GILA BEND, July 18, 1889.

ROD.

The fishermen all agreed that Sunday last was one of the best days of the season. The scene around the Tiburon Depot was a lively one indeed. People were swarming in from all directions loaded down with fish.

Ed. Cahill, of the O. A. C., accompanied by a lady friend, did some good work in the neighborhood of Kershaw's Point. Notwithstanding the fact that it took this young couple four hours to eat lunch on the beach, they were able to show over ninety very fair sized rock cod on their return to the boat landing.

Ben. Naphthally, the well known police court lawyer, was seen struggling along the wharf at Tiburon on Sunday, bearing on his shoulders at least fifty pounds of rock-cod.

Two men, whose names could not be ascertained, caught close to two hundred pounds of rock-cod at Lime Point on last Sunday.

From all points along the Marin County Shore favorable reports were received on Sunday, and the majority of the reports stated that the fish caught were all good sized ones.

To-morrow should also be a good day, the tides being even more favorable than on Sunday last.

Postal carrier Bottemly and a friend named Hannon made a very large catch at Angel Island on Sunday.

On last Monday D. Strong and a companion named Rice tried their luck in the vicinity of Arch Rock, and at the close of their day's work their sacks contained over three hundred pounds of fish.

Messrs. Ed. Murphy and Jack Kelly caught 100 pounds of rock cod at Lime Point on Sunday last.

Smelt did not take well on Sunday last, as the tide was running out nearly all day; to-morrow, however, the tide will be just suited for smelt fishing, and good catches should be made along the different wharves.

A party of young men from this city rode out to Lake Merced on Tuesday evening last, and several large black bass and some very fine carp were caught by the crowd.

ATHLETICS.

Athletic Sports and Other Pastimes.

Edited by Arphippus.

SUMMARY.

The amateur runners and walkers have settled down to hard work, and are anxiously awaiting the arrival of Admission Day. Thinly clad athletes may be seen exercising at the Bay District Track every afternoon and evening, some running, some walking, and some jumping, but all having a hard and set look on their faces as if they meant mischief on the 9th of September. Many large catches of fish were made on last Sunday, and the anglers are once more happy. Below will be found a report of the final bouts of the Catch-as-catch-can Wrestling Tournament, which was held under the auspices of the Olympic Amateur Athletic Club.

RUNNERS, WALKERS, JUMPERS, &C.

There is some talk of an all-round match being arranged between John Purcell of the O. A. C. of this city, and A. A. Jordan of the New York Athletic Club. Mr. Purcell is very willing that the match should be made, and if Mr. Jordan makes up his mind to come to California, win or lose, he will be well repaid for his long journey, as the people here would flock by the thousand, to see these two great athletes struggle for the championship.

It is said that Walter A. Scott will make an effort to smash the new half-mile running record on September 9th. If any man on the coast can do it, we think Scott is the man.

Cooley says he will train hard for the next six weeks, and swears that he will win first medal or none in the mile on Admission Day. At all events he is a good runner, and may yet hold the Pacific Coast record.

Raye Locke attributes his defeat at the Scottish Thistle Club's games to want of training. He expects, however, to do better next year, as he anticipates getting an easier position, which would allow him time to train.

Several well known amateur athlets have lately joined the Golden Gate Athletic Club's annex.

V. P. White of the C. A. A. C., is earning quite a name for himself as a wrestler. With a little more practice and experience he should be well able to hold his own in a championship tournament.

With a start of twenty-five yards, Billy Keneally of the O. A. C. should make it rather hot for McGee in the quarter, on Admission Day.

By the way, it is reported that McGree has lately got over the ground in fifty-two seconds. This report we doubt. Although this young U. C. athlete is, in our opinion, the fastest quarter-mile runner on the Coast to-day, still we cannot believe him to be better than fifty-three and a half. However, he will be compelled to do his level best at the next out-door meeting of the O. A. C., and then we will have a chance to find out what he really is capable of doing.

Charley Hill, the ex-Pacific Coast champion walker, is in the city at present. The wife of this well known athlete recently presented her spouse with a bouncing baby girl, and Charley asserts that he is now ever happier than when he first broke the one mile record.

The athletes who won medals at the last championship meeting of the P. C. A. A. A. were informed that their medals would be presented to them on the first night of the wrestling tournament at the Olympic Club Rooms, but the jeweler went back on his word and the champions were disappointed. The medals were not ready until two days after the announced time, and those who have not yet received their prizes will find them waiting for them at the office of the Olympic Club.

At the games of the Acorn Athletic Association of Brooklyn, N. Y, held on July 13th, E. D. Lange walked half a mile in 3 min., 10 3-5 seconds. F. L. Lange put the 21-lb shot 34 ft. 7 in; put the 16-lb shot 40 ft. 9 in., and threw the 16-lb hammer, without a turn, 108 ft. Great Scott, what show would our local men have against such athletes as these?

THE WHEELMEN.

Riders lately arrived from the interior report the roads in first class condition.

The tournament announced to be held at San Jose on Admission Day promises to be a big affair. Wheelmen from all over the State will take part in the races.

The wheelmen are in hopes that some bicycle events will be added to the programme of the California State Fair Association. The State Fair will be held at Sacramento during the month of September, and the wheelmen who take part in the Admission Day meet at San Jose, will be in fine trim to race at Sacramento, providing the State Fair Association decides to add some bicycle events to their programme.

On account of the San Jose meet the O. A. C. may decide not to include any bicycle events on their Admission Day programme.

The novice race at the San Jose tournament will no doubt attract a large field of competitors.

The annual meet and races of the American Wheelmen was held at Hagerstown, Md., closing on July 4th. Although the proceedings were somewhat interfered with by rain, the affair may be termed a success. On the Fourth over five hundred cyclists participated in the parade, which ended at the Fair Grounds, where the races took place in the afternoon, in the presence of about three thousand people. Owing to the soft condition of the track the time made in the different events was rather slow, but, nevertheless, the contests were interesting. Return—

ONE MILE BICYCLE, L. A. W. championship—A. C. Banker, New York, first; W. E. Crist, Washington, D. C., second; W. I. Wilhelm, Reading, Pa., third; A. B. Qich, New York, fourth. Time, 3m. 8s.

ONE HUNDRED YARDS SLOW RACE—H. E. Dayhoff, Hagerstown, Md., first. Time, 2m. 38s.

ONE MILE TANDEM SAFETY BICYCLE — W. D. Banker, Pittsburg, and A. C. Banker, New York, first; E. B. Emmet and H. E. Dayhoff, Hagerstown, second. Time, 3m. 12 2-5s.

ONE MILE TEAM—Berkeley Athletic Club, A. B. Rich, A. C. Banker and L. L. Clark of New York, 27 points; Reading Bicycle Club, W. J. Wilhelm, J. Kilmere and Jacob Schmidt, 15 points.

CLUB JOTTINGS.

The California Crib Club has established itself at Mowry's Hall. If the managers of this new organization have any desire to increase it's membership, the best thing they can do is to secure headquarters nearer down town. Already we have heard complaints about the location of the club-rooms, and no matter what inducements the club may offer, they will not suffice to make up for the undesirable location of the club's quarters.

The Directors of the California Athletic Club say that as soon as the improvements at present being made are completed the initiation fee of the amateur annex will be reduced to $5. and the monthly dues to $1. Members of the annex will be entitled to all privileges of the club with the exception of witnessing the monthly "knock out" matches.

Work on the new training grounds of the O. A. C. is being rapidly pushed, and it is safe to say that everything will be in readiness for the grand opening on Admission Day.

The out-door members of the G. G. A. C. are anxiously awaiting the decision of the club in regard to training grounds.

An amateur wrestling and boxing tournament will be held under the auspices of the California Amateur Athletic Association at the new exhibition hall of the C. A. C. next month. It is thought that athletes from some of the best clubs on Coast will enter and some lively tussles may be anticipated.

The members of the Pacific Athletic Club is rapidly increasing, and before long the P. A. C. will be as well known as any of the old established clubs on the coast.

The Pacific Athletic Club will hold its first cross-country run next Sunday at Fruitvale under the management of Phil Moody, the young and successful captain of the field team, who, by hard work, will bring his men in fine condition for the coming games. Amongst those who will participate are Palmer, a promising young man, Edgar, who will show up in the mile race, Culin, a fast 100-yard runner, Howard, the modest heel and toe walker, McKinnon, Herring, C. C. Johnson, A. Roberts, Joe Hesketh, the jovial, scientific and hard hitter of the club, and a host of others. In regard to Hesketh, he will now challenge any amateur light-weight of the Pacific Coast to box for the championship either four or six rounds under the auspices of the Pacific Athletic Club. The club will offer a very fine trophy on this occasion valued at $150.

On Friday evening of last week the catch-as-catch-can tournament at the Olympic Club for the amateur championships of the Pacific Coast at the various weights was concluded. In the feather weights, after Eugene Van Court had won a fall from R. C. Jones, the latter forfeited the match to him. At light weight P. P. Bernhard took two straight falls from L. Greenebaum and the championship at the weight. The middle weights were R. G. Cole, a juvenile, and E. A. Kolb. Both were skilfull and lively, Cole being on the aggressive. Cole took the first fall. Mr. Kolb is always very cautious, and when called for the second bout, wrestled twenty minutes without a fall, but when called out for the third ten-minute round, he soon put on a hammer and laid Cole flat. Mr. Cole then stated that he was suffering from a sprained shoulder, and forfeited the medal and championship to Mr. Kolb. The tournament was very successful throughout.

Grim's Gossip.

R. P. Ashe is in Saratoga looking after his stable there.

There is some talk of a free-for-all stallion race being given at the Bay District track before the August meeting ends.

The next payment in the Vallejo Colt Stakes is due on the first.

C. L. Woods is the manager of the San Luis Obispo track and is working diligently to get it in first-class order for the fall meeting.

Sonoma County has within its limits three mile and one-half mile track, and there has been some talk lately of building another at Cloverdale.

Several Eastern papers say that a prominent horseman is on his way here to buy Stamboul. He must come with a big sack if he proposes having him.

Strathway, 2:26, by Steinway, dam Countess (dam of Dawn, 2:19½) and Emma Temple, 2:28, by Jackson Temple, 2:38¾, are being worked by H. H. Helman on the Petaluma track.

Nominations to the P. C. T. H. B. A. free-for-all and 2:30 class purses will close on August 1st. Horses need not be named for the free for-all until October 9th.

B. C. Wright, of Mendocino, has sold to the Rancho Cotate his chestnut mare Lady Del Sur by Del Sur, 2:24½, dam Cecilia Clark by Clark Chief 89 (sire of Kentucky Prince).

One Eastern paper says Garrison evidently wears a num-five hat; another, that he has the big head. Probably both are correct.

The bay filly Adelaide by Grinstead, dam Victoria, owned by R. S. Paddock, has been leased by Kelly and Samuels. The term extends for two seasons.

Sam Gamble says he shall go East to pick up a stallion for next season. If he finds one to suit him he will probably go in for the Wilkes blood this time.

Jim Douglas is in training in Montana. Some of our local talent will not have such an easy time if they strike Jim in his best form up there.

Dick Havey's crack yearling was brushed up several times on Tuesday and finally sent the last half mile of the track, which he readily covered in 1:18, pulling up.

Pete Brandow was happy a few days ago, when he beat Mortimer, driven by (Tom) Hickok's lieutenant, down the stretch at the end of a slow mile, with his Abbotsford mare.

The Cleveland Trotting Association offer a purse of $5,000 for Axtell, if he can beat the stallion record 2:13½. Mr. Williams, the owner of Axtell, is specially preparing his colt, to win the purse.

A lot of new stalls are being erected behind the grand stand at the Bay District Track for Senator Stanford. Marvin will bring about a dozen head up next week, including Palo Alto, 2:20¼, who will go in for the 2:20 class.

E. C. Long of St. Paul has sold to Marcus Daly of Montana the well-known trotting mares, Fanny Witherspoon, 2:16¼ and Belle F., 2:15¼. They will go to the Bitter Root Farm and be bred.

Senator Hearst has among his brood-mares a five-year-old half sister to Estelle, called Elsie Ban, late Bankura (King Ban—Booty). She should nick well with Cheviot.

Lady Button, the dam of Alexander Button 2:26½ (sire of Yolo Maid 2:14) is at the Rosa Dale Breeding Farm, Sonoma County. She has a fine yearling, and also a sucking colt, both of which are by Daly. The old Lady is looking extremely well although over 22 years of age.

Of course you have heard that Sunol has broken down—everybody has. Well, Sunol was sent a mile lately in 2:20, the first three-quarters at a moderate gait, and the last quarter in 31½ second. Funny how these broken down trotters manage to cover the ground.

A letter from T. E. Moore of "The Cedars" Shawhan, Ky., gives me the information that the brood mares, or rather those saved from the fire which occured on May 6th, have been bred to Victor Von Bismarck, Twilight and Anteeo. The latter was served to the Victor Von Bismarck fillies, and Mr. Moore is confident that the cross will be a good one.

El Rio Rey makes his first appearance on an extreme Eastern track to-day in the Red Bank Stakes at Monmouth Park. He is not nominated for the junior champion, unfortunately, but he is entered, however, for the rich Great Eclipse Stakes, Larchmont Stakes and White Plains Handicap of the New York Jockey Club.

Jockey Martin does not seem to give satisfaction to his employers or the public. Mr. Withers last year gave orders that he was never to ride again for him, and was much amazed to see him upon Fitzroy in the Midsummer Handicap at Monmouth. Martin's riding is said to have been more than suspicious on that occasion.

Lee Shaner does not seem to have come to the scratch in his offer to trot Lot Slocum, 2:17½, or Dawn, 2:19½, against Alfred S., 2:21. Probably Lee thought it would not be doing right to spoil one of the main attractions to the circuit races?

The purses offered by the Fair Associations in the Grand Circuit are unusually large, and are devoid of strings. Our horsemen should show their appreciation of this progressive movement by making liberal entries at these meetings.

The Directors of the Stockton Agricultural Society will, in all probability, offer a free-for-all stallion purse. This should have a large entry list, as positively Mr. Corbitt will not start Sable Wilkes this year in a race.

From the list of entries, received for the Ione Meeting, it looks to a man up a tree, that Kelly and Samuels had a cinch on several of the races.

Frank H. Burke is going to have ten new stalls built for his horses at the Bay District. He has also purchased Stella D., a full sister to Alfred S., the price paid being $650.

We have a very interesting letter from Humboldt which will have to lay over until next week owing to lack of space.

The running races at the Petaluma track August 27th to August 31st are all free purses. If running horse owners do not come forward under these inducements, there is every likelihood that some of these associations will have to drop the galloper in future.

J. C. Simpson has given up his thoroughbred stable. Rathbone won both his matches in good style against Bryant W., but since has broken down, and, with the five-year-old mare, has been turned out. Spanish Charlie is now out of employment, but should soon have another engagement.

Jimmy Dustin is giving Almont Patchen steady work. Last Wednesday the pacer was given four heats, the first three about in 2:26 and the last in 2:19. Maggie E. was driven two heats just inside 2:30, and a third in 2:24, the last quarter in 32½ seconds.

We are glad to learn that the Pleasanton Stock Farm Company has abandoned its intention of working the Montana Circuit, and will patronize the home circles. Had Gold Leaf been taken to the mountains it would have left only Adonis, 2:14¼, and Almont Patchen, 2:15 to compete in the free-for-all pace.

J. H. Kelly, of San Bernardino, has sold to B. C. Holly, of Vallejo, the chestnut mare Pink (2:29¼) by Inca, dam by Echo. Friend Holly will probably make a strong bid with her for the 2:30 class purses through the circuit.

Johnny Goldsmith has sold his mare Sister V., by Sidney, 2:19¾, dam the dam of Valensin, 2:23, to Oregon parties for $8,000. She must be pretty hot goods, and a good many of our 2:30 class horse owners will be glad to learn she will be out of their way through the circuit.

Ariel Lathrop's four-year-old pacer was given two steady heats on Tuesday and then sent right out, but breaking going round the bend, was almost pulled up. Hickok got him going again and paced the last half in 1:12, the last quarter in 23 seconds.

Our reporter evidently got slightly mixed in his returns of the Porterville races on the 3d and 4th, probably owing to participation in the celebration. Mr. Clancy, editor of the Porterville Enterprise, kindly supplies the corrections. Judge Kyle is the property of Capt. J. Hayes; C. Nesbit's Milkmaid was the winner of the quarter mile dash, not H. Conner's Birdie.

Frank Burk sent six horses up to the Bay District track from San Jose last Tuesday, viz: Eros, his pretty Electioneer stallion; a rangy bay Anteeo mare, four-year-old; Wanda, another four-year-old mare, by Eros; Marquita, a good looking bright bay mare by Eros; Halcon, a three-year-old Fallis mare, and Daylight, a brown two-year-old gelding

Sports Afield, the Denver sporting paper, asks in the current issue, "What better business can a rancher go at than mule raising?" It would be hard to say from this far Western point, but most of "our folks" this way are at present devoting all their energies toward raising something that will beat Axtell. It may be that mules would pay better in the long run, but as yet it is a —?.

Noonday has been sublet by Sam Gamble to D. M. Reavis, Chico, subject to the owner's approval. The splendidly bred son of Wedgewood, 2:19 and Noontide, 2:20¼, should prove a great acquisition to the Chico ranch, which has some very valuable brood mares.

Tempest, 2:19, by Hawthorne, dam by Chieftain, has arrived safely at Buenos Ayres. Mr. Hammond, who took the mare to South America, writes that she did not miss a single meal on the trip, and notwithstanding there were twenty-one horses on the steamer, the Californian was more admired than any of the balance on landing.

The case of Weaver vs. Storn which had been carried to the superior court of Sacramento Co., was decided Wednesday in favor of the plaintiff. This was an action to determine whether Weaver should receive $20 or $25 per month as a horse rubber, the former being the usual price paid to men performing this work. The court decided on the higher price and Matt Storn will have to pay the difference. The lower court had already decided in favor of Mr. Storn.

Of all men commend me to one who loves horse flesh. Not your swaggering, tough, rough and loud jockey, up to every trick, and who is in the business for the sly dollars he can palm; but the man who loves and respects the horse for the horse itself. A man that loves a horse cares for him and treats him with kindness and consideration; such a man, you will find, is a man in the true sense of the word. As a rule, such a man is genial, warm-hearted and mild, and generous to a fault.—Quarter-Stretch.

The District Fair which takes place in September at Central Point, Oregon, is expected to be a big success. F. C. Sheridan of Roseburg, L. Swan of Yreka, Dr. Van Dyke and Miller & Chanslor of Grant's Pass, N. C. Boynton of Ashland, Dr. Lewis of Medford, James McDonough of Willow Springs, C. W. Kahler, J. N. T. Miller and E. C. Brooks of Jacksonville, and other prominent local horsemen are interesting themselves, and entries are expected from all the notable horse owners in the Willamette Valley.

The great luck of the Duke of Portland continues. July 19th his four-year-old colt Ayrshire, by Hampton, out of Atlanta, won the Great Eclipse Stakes, at a mile and a quarter at Sandown Park, England. He carried the top weight, 142 pounds. Mr. Douglas Baird's three-year-old colt El Dorado, by Sterling, out of Palm Flower, 127 pounds, was second, and the Duchess of Montrose's three-year-old filly Seclusion, by Hermit, out of Boundary, 124 pounds, was third. There were six starters. The value of the Great Eclipse Stakes to the winner is £10,000, with £500 additional to the nominator which also went to the Duke of Portland. The second received £500 and the third £100. Ayrshire also won the Royal Stakes at Kempton Park, worth £9,500, on May 11, and it may be truly said that the colt is worth his weight in gold.

It will be good news to the backers of the Baldwin Stable to learn that Jockey Barnes has signed to ride for "Lucky" for the balance of the season.

Taylor, who has ridden so successfully for the Dwyer stable this season, has been engaged to ride for the Lorillard stable the rest of the year.

A full list of the entries for the Spirit Purse has been received, and it is seen that 559 nominations have been made to the purse, of which 138 are from California. When it is considered that there are twenty-four states represented, and that this State makes almost one-third of the entries, it is "a straw" that speaks for itself. The following are the entries: Frank H. Burke, 9; Wm. Corritt, 28; John A. Goldsmith, 2; J. B. Haggin, 10; G. W. Hancock, 1; James P. Kerr, 2; Palo Alto, 58; Wilfred Page, 1; Pleasanton Stock Farm Company, 5; L. J. Rose, 5; L. H. Titus, 1; Col. H. I. Thornton, 1; Valensin Stock Farm, 12.

There is a very bad outlook for the free for all pacing race to fill on what is known as the grand circuit. The celebrated pacer Adonis is the subject of a prospective law suit, and it will not be possible to enter him for at least some time. As this only leaves Almont Patchen and Gold Leaf as probable entries, there is little likelihood of the race filling. This will be a source of disappointment to many, who have looked forward to see this great trio have any quantity of battles royal down the line.

The Directors of the Napa Association have made quite a number of changes at their track, including the building of a large addition to the stall room. The fence nearest the street has been placed back eighty feet and the street leading up to the box office widened to sixty feet. The narrow entrance way is also enlarged considerably, and the accomodation for public materially increased. The hotels will strain every point to find room for the visitors, and a special line of stages will run daily, after races, to the various springs in the immediate neighborhood, and for which Napa is so famous. Taken all in all the vineyard city will be in its glory during race week, and those who attend will have an enjoyable time.

The Tulare Driving Park Association has been formed and have just had a half mile track built, situated about a mile from the City of Tulare, says the Fresno Turf, upon which it is expected many an interesting contest will take place among San Joaquin Valley trotters. The following named gentlemen are the directors of the association: Edward Eaton, J. F. Batchelder, S. H. DeWitt, and Joseph Clark. They will inaugurate the racing season by a series of races, the details of which will be duly advertised. The Directors of the association are all men of good financial standing and responsibility, noted for their business integrity and sagacity, in addition to their able qualifications as horsemen, that will insure the success of their undertaking, and mark their track as one of the most popular in the Valley.

Hon. Frank L. De Long of Novato, Marin County, the representative of his district in the State Senate, is one of the leading horticulturists on "the coast," Commissioner of the Fourth Agricultural District (Sonoma and Marin), being largely interested in the immense fruit and vegetable canning establishment located at Petaluma, he has now been appointed by Governor Waterman as a member of the State Board of Agriculture, in place of the Hon. J. Mc. M. Shafter, resigned. Mr. De Long does not claim to be a horse breeder, but we very much doubt if there be a man in the State who takes a greater interest in fine stock of all descriptions, or more dearly loves a "horse race" than does the new member of the State Board. A better appointment has not been made in many years.

Entries to a great many meetings close on August 1st, and as soon as notified by the Secretaries we shall publish them. We should like to call the attention of horse owners as well as of secretaries to a defect or omission in the trotting horse rules which all horsemen would be pleased to see corrected. The rules require that the sex, color and name of entry shall be stated; also the name of sire and of dam when known; or, if unknown to be so stated. It seems to us a grave omission that the sire of the dam should not be exacted, when known. There might for instance, be three or more entries reading as out of a mare called Beautiful Bells; yet the name might represent three different mares, sired by three different horses, neither of which was The Moor.

It is an excellent indication of how generally and deeply the science of breeding is studied and believed in, that even drivers and gamblers ask 'how is the dam bred?' before they risk their money.

Please give us the sires, as well as, the names of the dams.

The Secretary informs us that he is still getting additions to the membership list of the Breeders' Trotting Horse Association, but there are over one hundred and fifty names in this State alone not on the list that should be there. Breeders and others interested in track horses all over this coast should not wait to be personally solicited. The membership fee ($25) and the dues ($5) are so extremely moderate that they do not warrant the employment of solicitors and collectors. Send in your names, post-office addresses and a check to cover the membership fee ($25) to Wilfred Page, Secretary, post-office Penn's Grove, Sonoma County, Cal. The annual dues will not be due nor collected until the first trotting meeting in October next.

At last Frank Baldwin has returned from his Eastern trip, and failed to bring any entries with him for the $20,000 running race at Fresno. It is thought that there were three entries made, but as yet the association have given out no official news about the matter. As stated in last weeks BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN, four entries were made from the East for the 2:20 trotting purse, and five from this State. The names of the nominators are as follows: Charles Stiles of Chicago, W. H. McCarty of New York, Budd Doble for G. B. Effner of Buffalo, Jim Page of Cheyenne, S. P. Emerson of Oakland, Charles Dupee of Los Angeles, B. C. Holly of Vallejo, Orrin A. Hickock and Alfred Gonzales of San Francisco.

"The Oregon Sucker" is the unpoetic cognomen of a dudish Israelite with a massive cane that has been plunging on the races at Washington Park. He came over the Rockies in company with the Maltese Villa Stable, and must be blessed with wonderful luck, or has stood in with the alleged colored combine, as he was parading around in front of the press-stand the other day with hat in hand filled full of greenbacks that he had not room for in his pocket. One of the scribes suggested champagne, and The Sucker responded, but he has given the section of the grand-stand a wide berth since. He is credited with very large winnings.—Chicago Horseman.

Mr. Spooner Goes Camping.

CAMP CLEAR SPRING, ONE MILE EAST OF GLENCOE, ON THE OLD WEST POINT TRAIL, July 18, 1889.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—We left Stockton at 9 A. M., July 8th, in camp rig specially fitted to carry our party of five—Mrs. Spooner, Miss Sue and Master John P., Jr., and John Hammond, Jr., and your correspondent. By easy stages and sundry visits to our friends, we arrived here on the Saturday folowing, at noon. Mr. McNoble, whom everybody here knows, took us in charge, and in true cavalier style has seen that nothing is wanting to make us enjoy to the fullest our 'outing." Although his years are almost three score, he daily comes to our camp with some luxury that campers seldom get—vegetables, fruits, etc.

One day his son "Will" pilots the two Johns to North Fork of Mokelumne, next day to the "Reservoir," and so it has been all the while; consequently, we have had some four kinds of trout on our table at a time—and such fish! Our camp is under a lone oak, which for near one hundred feet casts a shadow all day. In the shadow we find ample room for our tent, wagon and equipage. Sitting at the door of our tent, we see doves and quail in flocks come to the spring to drink, only thirty yards away, and one of the prettiest sights witnessed for many a day has been the antics of a pair of quail and brood of some eighteen chicks now two-thirds grown, but all very tame. The road running by us being old and now unused, we have, what we came for, perfect quiet, no one coming over it unless to our camp. We find the Indians in this vicinity pretty good fellows so far. Though lying around under trees promiscuously, they are liable to scare your horse, so he will unseat you if you are not careful.

We find doves are still nesting. In fact, on the day we left home, Charles Merrill, "the trap shot," told us, he being then running a harvester, that doves' nests with eggs in them were very plenty. We saw more doves at Valley Spring and Rich Gulch than any other place. We find considerable many here, but they are later in nesting and more scattered. The woods seem full of quail; but the people here say they are valley quail, and will be gone long before the law permits them to shoot a mess. Deer are here, but very shy, and it's a good man every way who can catch one. Some beautiful mountain climbing is required to reach this place, and more natural magnificence is revealed to the "eye of one who looks to see" after arriving here. In fact, all of you who have stolen away from business, as the writer has, now and then, and can enjoy a rest among the pines, know how beautiful our mountains are To those who are not yet initiated let us say, array yourself in old clothes and steal away, and lie on the mountain top where, under the pines, you can hear the tree-tops whispering with the angels. You'll return to business new people, and rich in health and experience, your ideas aud views of everything broader and nobler and more generous, because you have communed with Nature, and where is a more generous teacher?

J. PITCHER SPOONER.

Seattle Notes.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN: Now that the lull in the storm has occurred and the great prize fight and its attendant excitement is over, we have got our second wind and again turn our attention to every-day affairs.

Seattleites are recovering from the late fire, and her sportsmen and trap shooters are oiling up their weapons of defense, otherwise their inanimate target pulverizers, and making ready for the coming campaign among the grouse, pheasant, snipe, quail and duck, which abound throughout our Northwestern Territory; those whose ambition soars higher are laying their plans for larger game; the elk, deer, grizzly and cultus and Rocky Mountain goat will lose many from their ranks the coming season if the boys do as they expect and promise.

Lovers of the rod and line are having good sport among the trout in our many swift and beautiful streams flowing from our numerous mountains Dr. Swett, your wholesouled and thorough San Francisco sportsman, had great sport in the Cedar River at Cedar Mountain with some Seattle anglers. The catch being large, the Doctor showed our anglers what California sportsmen were composed of; no finer angler has yet appeared amongst us.

During the late tournament a very pleasant incident occurred, which was attributed to Dr. Partington in the report of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN, but Dr. Swett was the gentleman meant He, not being a member of the Association, was not eligible to compete for the medal, which parties, getting their ten straight live birds, tied for, and therefore by getting into this hole there were no honors for the Doctor; he having got his nine straight everybody expected and intimated that he would miss his tenth bird, as by doing so he would tie for a big purse.

The Doctor stepped to the score, and his bird was a regular screamer, a white one which went straight up towards the clouds. The Doctor stopped it in great style, and, turning to the wondering audience, "Gentlemen," he says, "I wouldn't have missed that bird for anything, and put myself in such a light before you all. I shoot for pleasure and not for profit."

What a yell went up from that crowd, a number of sportsmen wringing the doctor's hand with great good will, the ladies in particular were touched by the very sportsmanlike but uncommon action.

The doctor will find a very warm spot in some of his friends breasts here for him.

A few more such sportsmen would elevate our morals wonderfully in shooting and sporting circles.

Silalicum and the "eccentric poet" leave for the Sumas, one of the grandest trout streams in the country next month, where the elk, deer, grizzly and goat hold forth, and several varieties of grouse, snipe, duck, brant and goose do love to gather, no finer section for sport can be found on this or any other world. Mt. Baker's snow clad crests will be defiled and polluted by the tread of their city-made boots, and the echo of the reports of modern fire arms will be hurled defiantly back from crag to peak, with what result they promise to inform you upon their return.

If their purse holds out they intend wrestling the mysteries from Olympia's dismal ice bound cairns. The Olympic ranges are threatened with an invasion before many more moons have passed over their heads. If possible a photographer will go along to shoot, the mountains to keep them from falling on the interlopers. These vast ranges although within a very short distance of Seattle and all other sound cities, are entirely unexplored and unknown, but it is to be hoped that such will not be the case very long, as they are supposed to be a veritable sportsman's paradise, and as near being the "Indians happy hunting grounds" as it is possible to find in this one horse world of ours.

The jolly and irrepressible Mr. Robertson is still holding his own, and at the 18 or 30 yard mark his Smith gun still continues to dust the sancers and stop our 40 cent live birds. Its a very cold day when Bob's smiling countenance is not amongst the boys.

Mr. W. A. Hardy, our popular caterer to the sporting wants of our many good and enterprising shots, has been doing good work with his beautiful shooting iron. His brother Joe, although he has not been seen at the traps very long, has been doing phenomenal shooting of late andwe expect to hear from him very often in the future.

The fraternity were out to the Seattle Rod and Gun Club's grounds on July 4th, the attendance being small, the day very warm and scores only fair. This club has adopted the Keystone target altogether. Our other club, the Queen City, uses the Blue Rock Pigeon altogether.

While the Keystone is giving pretty fair satisfaction, having a regular flight and very few balks in trapping, they fail to break with anything like the certainty of the Peoria Blackbird, which we believe to be the best target in use to day, with its beautiful regular and flat flight of great swiftness and certainty of breakage when hit at all. They are the nearest approach to the flight of a quail of any target on the market, and we are sorry to see other birds adopted.

Some whose scores are the highest on the Keystones can do very little with the Blackbirds.

Both clubs shoot from five traps set according to American Association Rules, which rules are very nearly perfect, according to my way of thinking.

First sweepstake at 10 Keystones.

Target Practice Rules.

As the Code has been amended to require the National Guard of California to parade for target-practice at least twice in the year, Adjutant General Orton has promulgated rules to govern the same this year.

He has ordered that the first practice shall take place in camp, or at such time as may be designated. No State decorations will be issued for scores made at the first day's practice, except to the best shot in the company and each general and regimental staff to whom a silver badge will be awarded, provided the score is at least 35 out of a possibie 50, or 70 per cent.

Non-commissioned officers and members of regimental bands will shoot with the staff of the organization to which they are attached, and such details will be made "as may be necessary to prevent fraudulent scores being made or reported." No score will be considered legal unless made with the Springfield rifle or carbine or the revolver issued by the State, the distances being for rifle 200 yards, for carbine 175 yards, and for pistol 40 yards.

SHOOTING IN UNIFORM.

Every officer and enlisted man will fire ten shots and no sighting shots will be allowed, all competitors to appear in full dress or fatigue uniform, and this rule to be "strictly enforced" against retired officers as well as all others. Absentees from whatever cause will be counted as having fired and missed in figuring the percentage of the command. Organizations delinquent in sending in their reports of the practice will not receive the State decoration for marksmanship. The State decoration will be awarded as follows:

To each competitor who shall make not less than 50 per cent, or an aggregate of fifty points upon both days of the annual competition, the bronze decoration and (or) bronze marksman's bar.

To each competitor who shall make not less than 80 per cent, or an aggregate of eighty points upon both days of the annual competition, the bronze decoration and (or) the silver rifleman's bar.

To each competition who shall make 90 per cent, or an oggregate of ninety points upan both days of the annual compeiition, the bronze decoration and (or) the gold sharpshooter's bar.

THE CHAMPION DECORATIONS.

To the competition who shall make the highest score, not under 90 per cent, will be awarded the champion gold decoration and bar.

To the competition who shall make the second best score not under 00 per cent, will be awarded a silver decoration and bar.

In case of ties being made for the gold or silver decoration, they shall be shot off under the direction and supervision of the Inspector-General of Rifle Practice. No competitor will be awarded either decoration or bar who shall have attended less than 60 per cent of company drills for the preceding year. This rule applies to members of companies.

Bars only will be issued to those who have already received the Ltate decorations.

To be used in the competitioh 32,000 ball cartridges have been issued of which the Second Brigade will receive 18,000 and the economical Adjutant-General adds; "The empty shells should be saved and may be retained by the different organi zations. They are suitable for reloading."

Inter-Club Tournament.

Most gratifying interest is beiug shown in the proposed match between club teams, to be brought off at San Jose in October.

The last letter in relation to the matter is from Mr. C. E. Mack of Sacramento County, who writes to Major S. I. Kellogg as follows:

SACRAMENTO COUNTY UNION HOUSE, July 14, 1889.

DEAR SIR:—Your favors of July 12th are at hand. I will say in reply I saw our President, Mr. J. M. Morrison, to-day, and he informed me that the Pacific Gun Club did not hold a meeting last Wednesday. He said, moreover, that he was heart and soul in favor the friendly shoot spoken of by you, but as six or seven of our boys are away, that it would be hard to get a team together before, say, August 18th, or thereabouts. The boys will all have returned from their outings by that time, and will, no doubt, go in. This is a very popular move, and every shooter I have accosted has been in favor of it. I know we can get a team together who will shoot, and who will also go to San Francisco on a return shoot. Thus you see the situation as it is; the boys are going away and gone, and, consequently, my club is not in working order. I go to-morrow to Tahoe, to be gone four weeks.

In conclusion, I assure you there will be no trouble in getting up a team here. We want you to come. We do not know many of you, but that magic link, brotherly love, makes us one, and, being so, we want to know you better. San Francisco and Sacramento are not far apart, not far enough apart, or ought not to be, to prevent us from mingling and commingling in that exemplary pastime, trap-shooting. If you have any suggestions to make or anything developes, write to J. M. Morrison, Twelfth and E Streets.

How would it do to come up Fair week for the shoot? I think we could get a nice little plum from the Agricultural Society. They gave $200 once. C. E. MACK, JR.

Wild Game in California.

In no other portion of the United States—or, for that matter, in the world—is wild game found so varied and so plentifully as on the Pacific Coast. In Oregon and Washington there is now greater abundance and more species, for obvious reason besides natural endowment. These are, in the sense of the world's nomenclature, newer countries, and therefore of less area of population for the hunting of game in the regions in which wild game make their habitats. Only on the Coast is the grizzly bear found. The common bear is another of the species found nowhere else. Moose are rarely found, but they roam the northern territory as they do that of Maine. Elk and the different species of deer are common annual game for sportsmen—unfortunately for all, skin hunters also aggress upon it. Antelope have been driven from the coast, or exterminated by ruthless slaughter, and are now seen only in parts of Montana and Wyoming. In the early years of the gold hunting they were numerous on the vast plains of the San Joaquin, and ranged the valley of the Sacramento. They had never been hunted, and showed no concern or fear of the presence of man. In 1849 and 1850 it was not an unusual thing for packers, teamsters, and parties going to the mines or returning, to see bands of antelope bounding close to the trails and side roadways as if in temptation or defiance of shooting. From this state they have entirely disappeared. The hunter at length got in his deadly work, and the instinct of the animals, with which all of brute and dumb creation, whether of the land or sea, is endowed, impelled the pursued to haunts of refuge in distant lands across the mountains. Likewise with elk. The miners of the Northern diggings and of the Southern diggings—as the gold regions were classed in pioneer days—could readily find fresh meat for their use in camp while prospecting, and those inclined to the sport made good wages in hunting to supply the camps. Elk were found from the North American, the Yuba and Feather rivers high up on the Sacramento, along the Cosumnes, and as far down as the San Joaquin, the Stanislaus, the Tuolumme, the Calaveras and the Merced, which coursed though the Las Mariposas. The extreme Western coast north of San Francisco to the Oregon line which was then embraced in the Sonoma district, was practically unknown, except the portions along San Francisco and San Pablo, and the country which now comprises the counties of Mendocino, Lake, Humboldt, and Del Norte, Trinity, Siskiyou and Modoc, had been only indifferently explored. In this extensive region the heavy coated and antlered game—bear, elk and deer—were most abundant. The lofty mountains, the deep ravines, the confined valleys, the occasional snow, the perennial warmth, the torrent streams, the placid lakes, the refreshing brooks, the giant forests, the grateful shade, the dense chaparral and nutritious grasses, singularly fitted this vast region for the homes and haunts of the wild brute species of the different genera. The great rivers and tributary streams were habitats of the finny tribes, and these and the marshes were the favored attractions of the wild fowl, which in yearly flight from the breeding places of the colder climes reaching to the Arctic, naturally made selection in the southern flight as birds of passage to the regions of best fare.

The wild game of California in the pioneer period embraced in fowls almost every species from canvas back to wood-duck, from widgeon and teal to doves. Passengers on the river steamers made it a common sport to gather upon the forward lower deck, on the passage between San Francisco and Benicia, to shoot into the multitudes of ducks which swarmed the bay. From the river sailing craft the same—all indulged in it, whether for present food or for sport. The country seemed overrun with game never before hunted, and none seemed to think that it could ever be materially thinned, or driven away, or exterminated. The custom was, and everybody carried fire-arms, to shoot on sight and at random at everything that could be shot. It was a generation of unmindfulness, recklessness and destruction. California was regarded merely as a place to load up with the expectant "pile," then to depart from; and none borrowed care with thought of involving coming generations to suffer therefrom. Killing is quick; to grow is tedious process. California is a land of regretful and exasperating reflections in some respects—in none more so, with any who are fond of sport, than in relation to game and sport. It is as in cases in the Old World, where primogeniture rules, in which a spendthrift possessor squanders and inextricably sinks the patrimonial estate, beyond the means of the next in inheritance to redeem the

Still, and notwithstanding the waste and destruction of game in past years, California maintains high rank in every game—flesh, fowl and fish; in the species of these most befitted to sporting. Of deer, why the woods are full of them. Say you birds, you need go only to the vineyards and welcome for quail, and elsewhere to a free range and everything inviting and favorable, to shooting of other varieties of good game kinds. To pot hunters the jack rabbit may compensate for the antelope, and other species of game in the manner; but the sportsman aims at excellence, and will neither shoot against rule nor angle in a mud pool. Game has its aristocracy of consideration, and properly. It has better right to the distinction than many of the haughty who lay claim to it.

Although much of the wild game or of the species of it, has either become scarce or disappeared since the pioneer period, California can still boast of more than any State to the eastward, and ample to supply the zealous sportsman. There is yet fine deer shooting in the coast counties and in the interior. Santa Cruz, Marin, Sonoma, Mendocino, Humboldt, Del Norte, Trinity, Siskiyou, Shasta, Modoc, Lassen, Sierra, Plumas, Butte, El Dorado, Nevada, Placer, Tehama, Yolo and Yuba, are to be numbered among the deer haunts. Lower in the tier of counties the antlered game is less abundant. In wild fowl, birds of passage, geese and ducks, the whole central portion of the State offers ample field for the hunter. Along Petaluma and Sonoma creeks the canvas back excel in quality. On Cache creek, in the marshy portions of Solano, on the low grounds of the Sacramento valley, and in portions of the San Joaquin, are found wild geese and almost every species of duck, mallard, brant, teal, red-bill, widgeon, etc., of good food quality. The State lacks not in the feathered game of the woods and fields—quail, snipe, doves and other kinds. The waters of the State yield the choicest fish, from the splendid salmon to the favored tomcod—trout, perch, shad, bass, smelt, pompano, pike, sole and flounders, rock cod and sturgeon, and many other species common to every equal clime. Shell fish are abundant—oysters, clams, crabs, craw-fish and the smaller fry of which shrimps are the most favored. From the coast shore to the mountain summits of the towering Sierras, upon the expansive plains, and in the thousands of hills, in marsh and in grass, California is dowered with wild game of choicest qualities. Wise game laws protect the game against vandal killing. Protection is ordered for the propagation of this game, of land and water, of air and marsh. Under these good laws the surviving pioneers and their worthy sons strive to make amends that are due for the wanton destruction of the years in which the home in the East was lovingly held in fond remembrance as the haven of desire to quick return, and the land of gold was regarded simply as the place from which to dig the pile that should enable an after life of comfort, ease and contentment. Opinions and endearments have changed in these years, to such consequence that the most enamored of California are these surviving pioneers, unless it be their sons and daughters born to the soil, who surpass them in this love of native home, and bid fair better to advance the glory of the State.

Major S. I. Kellogg has challenged Mr. F. J. Bassford, to shoot for the Selby Medal representing the championship of Central California at Blue Rock Targets and the match will be shot of at Vacaville on Saturday next, at 50 single and 25 pairs of Blue Rock targets, open to all. Several San Francisco experts will be present, and a lively time is assured.

There is a grizzly bear hung up in front of one of Seattle's butcher shops on Cherry street, which the owners claim to weigh 1,500 pounds, and after an examination one is led to believe the weight is about right. He is considerably larger than Old Bob, the Cinnamon bear which used to "hang out" in Jefferson Park in Chicago, and Bob weighed over 1,100 pounds when alive. Bob was the largest specimen we ever saw, looking as big as a camel with a monstrous head and paws as big as a man's body, his claws being as thick as a man's fingers. He was killed some time since by a small black bear in an adjoining cage.

ROWING.

David Dean of San Diego has challenged Charles Long of the Pioneer Rowing Club to row three miles in best and best boats for $1,000 a side.

Mr. Long signified his willingness to row the distance named for $500 a side and Mr. Dean will shortly arrive in this city to meet Mr Long and draw up articles, with a first deposit of $250 a side. Of course, it is rather early to speculate on the winner, but judging from the news records the race will be anybody's until the finish line is passed Long has met several of our local scullers, among them being Wm Growney of the Ariels, whom he defeated twice and suffered defeat once. He also won an open regatta, defeating Mr. Sullivan and Charles Hall. Dennis Griffin then came to the front, and a match was made between him and Long for $300 a side, over the Alameda course, three miles with a turn, Long winning in 22:18.

Long next rowed Henry Henchman of Stockton three miles for $500 a side. The race was rowed over the Stockton course on the 21st of last April, and Henchman won handily.

David Dean has rowed but two match races, both being against Henchman, and though he was defeated in each; he and his friends partially attribute his defeat to lack of condition, Dean being badly afflicted with Stockton malaria. Should Dean win the coming race with Long he will then again challenge Henchman for the third and last time.

There is considerable talk of a match race between M. Stockes and Leander Stevenson, the latter being exceedingly anxious to row, but unable to get backing for the amount of $250 a side, which Stockes is willing to row for. Could Leander imbue his friends with the same amount of confidence he possesses himself, the amount of stakes would not delay the match making many days.

Van Guilpin, of North Beach, also deserves a match with the Pioneer Sculler, but Stockes declares he has won medals enough, and the expense and work connected with training is such that nothing will tempt him into a match but a good substantial stake.

The piling under the Ariel Boat Club house has become so badly eaten away by the Teredo, that they have put some of their boats in the house of the Pioneer Club until they get into their new quarters

The match between the Dolphin and Ariel Amateur crews still hangs fire, but the rowers all look for the race anyhow by July 4, 1890.

During an animated discussion as to the merits of the rowing abilities of Tom Flynn and Jno. Sullivan at the Pioneer Club Sunday, Sullivan's enthusiastic admirers were quickly squelched by the offer of one of Flynn's friends to back him for a dinner for the whole club, to row two miles any Sunday with one weeks notice. Sullivan remarked Tom was a hard nut to crack, and he thought he would follow the illustrious Jno. L.'s example and retire on his laurels.

Henry Peterson has returned from Salt Lake City. He reports that the boys there are all enthusiasts on the rowing question, and predicts that when they send down a few samples the boys here will find a surprise in them. Henry himself wants to row anybody in America at this date, barring none for $1,000 a side, Hanlan or Gaudaur preferred.

A Notable Pointer.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—Mr. Hall, who owns a fine rancho twelve miles from this city, recently brought from Belgium a very fine pointer dog which he calls Sam, of breeding that may interest your readers. I was much interested in the dog's performance in the hills. The dog, although trained for English hunting, has not forgotten his lessons in the very interesting art of pointing. Mr. Hall has also thoroughbred hounds. This would made a model stock farm. Three hundred acres of the farm are rolling hills, on which grow the finest grasses. The ranch is well timbered, and water all over it. The hills are just sloping enough for stock raising, as the colt roaming over the hills develope earlier, his muscles come out in great shape, his lungs expand, and when a yearling he has the strength and endurance of two-year-olds raised on low and even plains. I hope that Mr. Hall will turn his attention to stock breeding. The following is a translation of his fine dog's pedigree:

An Irish Setter Stake.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—I see the Indiana Kennel Club offers an extra stake for Irish setters exclusively at their coming trials this fall. This I believe to be a move in the right direction for many reasons, and I hope the Irish setter men will respond with many entries.

Irish setter men need encouragement. The entries of these fine (the Irish setters not the men) animals at field trials are few and far between, while the number of grand field performers are many, and increasing every year.

At all bench shows the Irish setters compare favorably with other classes, and if field trial managements made separate classes for them, they would loom up and eventually hold their own in same classes with the Llewellin and pointer.

Red setter men believe there still exists a strong prejudice against the red dog, and think a judge, be he ever so honest, will invariably fail to see merit or good work in the red, overlooking good points and seeing only the bad ones.

The red dog in the past has earned a reputation for strong headedness, wilfulness and general cussedness. Whether deserved or not it is not for the writer to say, but such a state of things no longer exists.

The Irish setter of to-day in America has no superior for docility, tractability, gentleness, good nose and genuine bird sense.

The sires and dams, such as Elcho Jr., Glencho, Tim, Chief, Sarsfield, Brush, Bruce, Berkeley, Rory O'More, Noreen, Lady Elcho T., Leigh Doane and Leigh Doane II, Faun, Lorraine and many others, a number of which are now dead, are producing and have produced progeny equal to the most famous of our Llewellins and pointers. The question has been put, if equal, why are not more of them winning in the many trials. The answer, after a canvass among breeders, will be found to be, the fear of prejudice prevents their being run.

The Llewellin has had his day, the pointer is getting his innings now, and the Gordon threatens to have his soon. If the Irish setter has a separate stake offered him for a time, he will soon win his way to popular favor again.

While the writer believes there is little choice between the field merit of the different breeds, each being given the same opportunities and training, still, when it comes to a choice of looks, beauty, endurance and color for stubble shooting, he prefers the red chap every time, if of the right breeding; he can conceive of no object more beautiful than the present well bred red dog, with his handsome glossy coat and muscular limbs; absence of white hairs sticking to ones clothes is also a desideratum. The modern red dog (American) is unsurpassed as a gentleman's shooting dog

The imported strains do not equal the former. We have far better dogs in this country than they have across the big ditch, our breeders having bred more intelligently, depend upon it any of the already mentioned specimens produce better progeny than the imported articles do.

Many so-called Irish setters in the northwestern country, are indeed sorry looking specimens, but the sportsmen are coming and with them many red dogs of good breeding and quality. The next few years will find us supplied with our share of good ones.

The suggestion in a recent issue of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN for a circuit of shows throughout the Pacific Slope, is a good idea, and would prove a success financially, and would afford the lovers of the dog a chance to see some good animals, also enabling those having any such, to exhibit and discover how they compare with others.

A circuit of shows comprising the leading California cities, Portland, Oregon, Tacoma and Seattle in Washington Territory, and may be one or two of the leading Montana cities, also possibly Victoria, B. C., should prove very successful, but California sportsmen would have to take the initiative, Northwestern doggy men being very backward in coming forward. JAY SEE EN.

J. M. Avent on Fox Hunting.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—Having selected quite a good pack of red fox hounds for the purpose of breeding and running in the trials for fox hounds, I claim the name of "J. M. Avent Red Fox Pack" for my pack. The principal part of this pack are from dogs that I have been running after red fox for the past fifteen years, and I am very anxious to see fox hunting clubs organized in many different States, so that I will have a good opportunity to thoroughly test dogs of every breeding under good, competent judges after red fox against the best from the many noted packs in America.

Most of the hound men in this section are farmers or merchants, and it is almost impossible for them, particularly if they have much business, to be absent eight or ten days at any time before Christmas. The same circumstances were the worst drawback on our races last year; everyone present seemed to be in a great hurry to get back to his home on business, and it was therefore impossible for the judges to give proper time to each stake as was necessary to test the actual merits of so many high-class dogs, although they did remarkably well considering the very short time in which they were compelled to decide the merits of the work.

To make the trials a great success, I believe that they should be run in January or February in some section where there are plenty of red foxes; then all will be afforded a chance to come, and be satisfied as to who owns the best red fox dogs in the country.

To hold the trials before Christmas would make it impossible for me and many others who attend the field trials for setters and pointers to take and part whatever in the fox hunt. After the field trials are over the sporting press could be represented by their regular field editors; and many others who have had great experience in field trials would attend and assist our new effort in many ways.

Taking everything into consideration, I think the committee will make a great mistake and impair the welfare of the club if they designate a date for running before Christmas.

I am one who wishes to see the next hunt a great success. I would like to see all the good packs in America represented by the very best dogs; and to induce them to come out, I will be one of ten or more who will give one hundred or two hundred dollars for the pack stake, provided that it is run after the field trials are over and in not less than three days.

What I want is plenty of time and good running of red foxes under competent judges so that we can test the actual merits of the foxhounds; and in less than three days or longer, with so many good packs represented, I do not think the judges could accurately decide which was the best.

I have been reading with great pleasure the many wonderful hunts and about the wonderful packs, and each seems to think his own pack, or his friend's pack, is the best in America. Let it be seen if they cannot be encouraged to come forward and give a little for the good of the grand sport, and let us make the pack stake from one thousand to two thousand dollars, which will certainly induce the owners of these wonderful packs to send five or six of their best dogs to the trials, and then we will see if their dogs are as good after red foxes as they are on paper.

My great experience at field trials ought to teach me that no man knows exactly who has the best dogs until they have all been run in competition; but I am like many others in thinking that I have the best little pack in America, and I will always think so until I have run them in company with something better; and from the present prospect, I may induce some of these wonderful dogs to come out and down them easily. For the last seven years, I have turned the most of my attention to breeding and running English setters in field trials, and I had let my pack of foxhounds thin down to a few of my old dogs; but the efforts of the American Field to bring the foxhound into prominence, have renewed my interest to such an extent that I have already eight old dogs for breeding purposes and have several litters of very promising puppies which I hope will be heard from among the winners in a year or two.

Note the grand improvement which has been made in English setters and pointers, all caused by the field trials. It will be just as easy to improve the foxhound, and to hold successful trials for them as it was for setters and pointers.

Come forward, gentleman! Let those wonderful packs be heard from which are all over America. Let us make the purse large and we will have the grandest lot of foxhounds together that are in America.

If the committee will only set the time so as not to conflict with the field trials, you can count on me being on hand with about six from my small pack, to run against the larger packs as long as I can get one of my dogs to bark.

Horsemen Attention.

Next Thursday, August 1st, entries will close for many of the meetings, and it is necessary for trainers and owners to make their selections as to where they will trot, pace or run. The following places close on that day and the full conditions together with the classes can be seen in our advertising columns:

Vallejo Fair Association	Aug. 1st
Chico	Aug. 1st
State Fair	Aug. 1st
Willows	Aug. 1st
P. C. T. H. B. A	Aug. 1st
Solano and Napa	Aug. 1st
Petaluma	Aug. 1st
Bay District Association	Aug. 1st
Denver	Aug. 1st and Sept. 2nd
Glenbrook	Aug. 1st
Oakland	Aug. 1st
Santa Rosa	Aug. 1st
Ione City	Aug. 1st
Deer Lodge, Montana	Aug. 1st
Anaconda "	Aug. 1st
Helena "	Aug. 1st
Butte City "	Aug. 1st
Missoula "	Aug. 1st

Be sure and reread the advertisements, even if you have already done so, for several changes have been made since last week. The secretary of the Bay District Association has been importuned to give a 2:25 pacing race, and the Directors offer a $500 purse for that class on the first day of the meeting. The Montana Circuit has added the thriving town of Missoula to their combination, thereby giving owners a chance to make five different entries in that circuit. At Ione, two special races will close on Thursday, one for trotters and one for pacers. Oakland and Petaluma will receive a full list of entries for their running races, as the purses are free.

At Denver, Colorado, the racing stakes and Guaranteed trotting purses close August 1st. The State Fair entries close at the same time. There is still another meeting which should have a large number of entries and that is the Nevada County Agricultural Association, which offer $6,000 in purses and have an excellent programme. The meeting will take place at Glenbrook Park and will be well worth a visit from any one. From the present outlook there will be better racing this year than ever before, and the meetings of 1889, are likely to go on record as being the best ever held in the State.

Grand Circuit for the Season.

The arrangement agreed upon early in July, among the representatives chosen for the purpose, in the preparation for the annual fairs and race meetings of the season, for the district comprising Napa, Sonoma, Marin and Alameda counties, has created unusual interest on the part of turfmen. The grand promise of $50,000 in purses has aroused attention. This looks like business; it means business. The money will be to hand; the horses will be there. The multitudes will congregate. And first-rate racing, tip-top sport and enlivening pleasure all around, will be enjoyed at each of the four fairs and meetings. The beginning will be at Napa. The fair to open August 12th and close on the 17th. L. L. James is President, A. H. Conkling, the Secretary of the Association. On every day of the six days of the Fair will be good, spirited sport—racing, trotting and pacing, for liberal and large purses, from $500 to $1200, in which some of the most noted runners, trotters and pacers of the State will contest.

Next in succession is the week at Santa Rosa, beginning August 20th and ending the 24th—from Tuesday until Saturday. Another week of fine sport, with good horses and big contention for them—running and trotting every day, and pacing on two of the days. I. De Turk is President, George A. Tupper Secretary. W. B. Sanborn is Manager of the track—one of the finest in the State, with superior grand stand and buildings and general accommodations.

Third, comes the fair at Petaluma, of Sonoma and Marin counties conjointly. The association has for President J. H. White, Secretary Wm P. Edwards. The Fair week begins August 27th and closes the 31st—five days of attractive turf sports, embracing running, trotting and pacing, with purses from $200 to $1000. The annual fair at Petaluma has for many years drawn large attendance and the prominent turfmen of the State, and the fair of this season will be beyond any of the past.

Last of the grand circuit is Oakland—the Golden Gate Fair; from September 2d to the 7th. A marked feature of the turf sports is that all races are open to the world. This means free purses, free entrance; no chance to lose; every chance to win. No blanks are in this fair scheme for any to draw except those who fail to get there; handsome prizes for all who do.

The purses will be hung up from $300 to $1,500—mostly above $800 and into the $1,000 figure. Carroll is President; Jos. I. Dimond, Secretary. Among the purses are those of Leland Stanford, George Hearst, Jesse D. Carr, the Bank of Oakland, the Russ House, the Palace Hotel, the Occidental, the Baldwin, and those of prominent breeding farms in the State—Poplar Grove, San Miguel and Valensin, and of the Golden Gate Stable.

The races of the grand circuit are open, on equal terms, to the outside counties of Solano, Lake, Mendocino, Yolo and Colusa. The Southern Pacific Railroad Company and the Donahue Railroad Company have made liberal terms for travel and transportation to and from the several points of the circuit, not only as to fares and rates, but also in regard to special trains to facilitate the transit; to accommodate all who are desirous of enjoying the sport and in a hurry to get back—for reasons best known to themselves. The BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN will give full attention to each fair and meeting.

The Gun Club.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—The sixth regular match of the Gun Club, season of 1889, took place at Adams Point on Saturday last, the 20th inst. It was but sparsely attended, now that the deer and dove seasons are in full blast, and several of the members are out on camping excursions. It is the usual season of the year, when there appears to be a letting up in the interest taken in pigeon shooting, and we scarcely look for a very full attendance.

The question has been mooted by some of our members that, on the occasion of the last match of this season, in September, sides be selected as evenly as possible, so as to eliminate the element of chance as much as can be done, and shoot for a dinner, the losing side to pay for the wine and dinners. The idea is an excellent one, and calculated to bring the members together in a social way, and the pros and cons discussed, besides matters of general interest to the club and its future. We sincerely hope that before another year rolls around the club will have secured shooting grounds of its own contiguous to the city and easy of access by some one of our lines of railroads.

The shooting on last Saturday was not quite up to the usual standard, although one or two members, notably Messrs. B. B. Woodward and F. S. Butler, did some remarkably fine shooting, particularly the first named gentleman. He seemed to get on to his birds with unusual quickness, securing eleven out of his twelve, using but his first barrel, and losing his twelfth bird out of bounds. The worthy President, Mr. Jellett, was not in his usual good form, nor was the Secretary, J. K. Orr, both stopping but nine of their twelve birds, the last named member for the first time this season getting under double figures. With a few exceptions, as usual in a mixed lot, some of the best birds the writer has ever seen stopped were provided by Mr. Murphy, perfect drivers; and these usually managed to get past the boundary line in double quick time, several dropping dead outside.

Several sweepstakes and freeze-outs were shot after the main match, participated in by Messrs. Jellett, Butler, Woodward, Levisons and Riordan, the winners in most of the events being Messrs. Woodward, Jellett and Butler.

Respectfully yours,

GUN CLUB.

Picking Fruit.

WRITTEN FOR THE BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN.

Persons having small orchards are not aware that fruit picking is an art in its way. Anybody can pick fruit, yet there are a right and a wrong way in doing it, the same as in everything else

There is nothing so disgusting to the experienced orchardist as to see people, though innocent of what they are doing, enter an orchard and stick their thumbs into fruit until they come to that which is ripe. They have no idea that they damage more fruit than they eat. Yet that is the case. Whenever fruit is bruised, whether on the tree or not, it spoils the specimen, and decay starts in.

Now, in the first place, persons owning orchards should be able to tell, from the looks of the fruit, whether it is ripe or not; a little experience enables one to acquire this, and whenever it is necessary to handle fruit with the hand to test its matureness catch it in the palm of the hand, carefully closing the fingers over and around it, and pressing it gently in that way, you can feel whether it is hard or soft, and judge of its maturity without injuring it a particle.

On gathering pit fruits, take hold of them easily, and raise them up with a twist of the wrist, and not grab at them catch as-catch can, breaking the tender flesh, as is often done by inexperienced pickers; and, above all things, do not drop them into your basket. Handle them as you would eggs. This may seem like a rather severe caution, but wherever the skin is broken on a peach, apricot, or any other kind of fruit, it is identical with breaking the shell of an egg. It's bound to decay, and then the value of your fruit and labor is lost. After picking lay your fruit down, don't throw it at all. I have seen pickers throw the fruit three or four feet into their baskets. Now, a picker of that kind is damaging his employer to a greater extent than his services are worth, and if, after being told once to correct himself, should he pick in the same way, he should be dismissed instantly.

Pears and apples being picked somewhat green do not show the effects of bad handling as soon as the more delicate varieties of fruits, unless closely examined, but the orchardist soon finds it out when he commences shipping, if they are held any length of time. In emptying the fruit from the baskets, let your men take them out with their hands; then lay them on the pile and don't turn the baskets upside down and throw the fruit down heavily.

There is a knack in handling fruit properly, which every old picker knows, and those directions if closely followed, will be found rather tedious at first, but will prove to you in time, that more money can be made by careful handling, even if less is picked in a day, than by running the fruit off the trees as though it was a lot of ten penny nails. A Visit to Stockton.

BY GRIM.

It is now seven years since last I visited Stockton, to say good-bye to many old friends before sailing for Australia, where I went to see the mighty racing giants of the Antipodes. The interim between 1882 and 1889 does not seem long, but in that short time great changes have occurred in that section of the San Joaquin Valley. Property has increased in value, crops have been bountiful, farmers have prospered, and, as a natural consequence, the merchants in the interior cities and towns have made money. Perhaps this is nowhere more plainly visible than in Stockton, where everything is on the "go ahead," improvements being seen at all points. The new Court House, now under construction, will be, when finished, one of the finest public buildings in he interior anywhere.

The Pavilion, which was erected a little over two years ago by the Directors of the Agricultural Association, is only two blocks from the center of the city, and occupies an entire square. Earnest and diligent inquiry was made to ascertain what style of architecture the Pavilion was built on, but it seemed a conundrum to all who were asked. From outward appearances, it looks a cross between the Queen Anne and a Chinese pagoda, with the latter predominating; however, the building is a massive one, capable of holding at least twenty thousand people, and is just what is required for the purpose. Many new business blocks have been put up since my last trip to the Slough City, all being of a substantial nature, and erected with an eye to beauty. Stockton is growing rapidly in wealth and importance, and is now recognized as one of the principal racing centers, and to "get a line" on the horses now in training there was the cause of the present visit.

A trip to the Association's grounds revealed the trainers all at work, taking advantage of the pleasant, warm morning to move their charges, and several of them were worked out. Quite a number of owners were present to see the performances, including C. E. Needham of Belotta, L. Funk and Wm. Waugh of Farmington, Mr. Moore, S. Lombard and S. M. Morse, the two latter using the ribbons themselves in an artistic manner.

A glance had to be taken through the stables, as many of the horses were not brought out on the track. The nearest stalls to the entrance are occupied by Will Parker, well and favorably known to all horsemen, not only in the vicinity of Stockton, but all over the State. He is a careful and painstaking trainer, handling all the horses under his care himself, and is fully competent to know when a trotter is ready for the word. His string includes many good ones, the first to deserve notice being the Electioneer colt Campaign, owned in partnership by L. U. Shippee and W. H. Parker. The sire is the premier stallion at Palo Alto, the dam being Lilly B. by Homer, 1235. If for no other reason than that Sally Chorister was the dam of Homer, the services of Campaign should be in great demand; therefore, it was not surprising to learn that this well bred youngster had mares enough to fill his book and many were turned away. He is a trim built colt, a beautiful dark bay in color, 16 hands high, and fit to grace any harem in the country. Campaign is a natural trotter, and moves with an ease and grace that is simply pertection. Yet, while he is being exercised gently, no hard work will be given him until next year, so that he may have the benefit of age before he is sent for a record.

Steve Whipple is too well known to need comment at my hands, his speed last year stamping him a horse of rare quality. Chrisman's Hambletonian begot a worthy son in this young stallion, and the record of 2:23 is no criterion of his speed, as I saw Mr. Parker drive him a second mile in 2:22, the watch showing 35 seconds for the first quarter, 34 for the second, the last half being negotiated very slowly in 1:13, Mr. Parker easing up on the speedy stallion, especially in the last two hundred yards. Steve Whipple will be heard from this season, for it must be remembered that he has only been away from stud duties about five weeks.

Lottery Ticket is another good one, who, if my memory does not lead me astray, distanced a horse at Sacramento this spring, and was beaten by the same one in a drawn out race, as the judges allowed the slow one to start again. Lottery Ticket is two years old, by Dexter Prince, dam by Nutwood, 2nd dam Lady Emma, who was a rattling good mare herself. Lafayette Funk of Farmington owns this promising colt, and he may well be proud of him.

In the next stall we find a fine looking light chestnut mare by Hawthorne, dam by Inauguration. She is the property of Mr. Everhart of Stockton, who has never developed her speed, but she is now showing up well.

Mr. Hopkins, of San Joaquin county, owns Colonel, seven years old, a son of Reliance, that can show fast miles. The owner has Colonel entered in a three handed match race, which takes place during the Ione meeting. Ajax and Hiram Wilkes are his competitors and they will have to get way down to beat him.

While Cleveland and Hendricks are both owned by the one gentleman, only the latter is being worked. It needs but the first glance to see that he is by Mambrino Wilkes, the marked individuality of that great sire being strongly presented in Hendricks. His dam was by Chieftain, and he will astonish some of the smart ones in the district races.

Lizzie is a likely looking filly by Richard's Elector, dam by Duke McClellan, while the second dam is that old time trotting wonder Mattie Howard. Some few weeks ago she had her shoulders hurt and was let up in her work, but can still beat a "40" clip, which will be materially lowered, when the injury is all right again.

Mr. Parker also has charge of a neat appearing youngster, which is owned by Mr. Miller of Stockton; it is a gelding by Mount Vernon and has the action of a trotter.

Another Elector two-year-old filly is the property of Hayes and Nicewonger, the dam being by Defiance. She can travel along at a three minute gait now, with a strong probability of her going much faster before long.

William Waugh of Farmington, has a son of Venture which ought to make a splendid road horse, as he has a good turn of speed, and can show a clean pair of heels to almost anything on the county highways.

A yearling by Dexter Prince is owned by Mr. Drais, which has all the necessary elements of speed and is doing well under the Parker management. This completes the first stable in which there are many good ones, and if there is not merry times down the line this summer, it will not be the fault of W. H. Parker.

J. H. Whit ng is the manager and trainer for the Shippee stable, and he is the right man in the right place, having been for many years a familiar figure on the California Circuit as trainer and driver. He has a rare lot of prime movers in his contingent, but as there has been a slight touch of distemper in the stable lately, the work has not been pushed. The first brought out for inspection was the dark bay stallion Kilrain, a beautiful specimen of the get of Hawthorne, dam by Whipple's Hambletonian. He is a magnificent three-year-old, and came very near getting a record last year, being beaten a short head in 2:33¼.

We now come to the well known Moses S., the brown four-year-old, by Hawthorne, dam by McCracken's Black Hawk. As a two-year-old, Moses S. got a record of 2:29½, but the company was too hot for him last year, and he will have to try and lower his record this season. Mr. Whitney has already jogged him in 2:25, and without pushing him at that. He will do to watch on the circuit during the coming meetings.

Major Thorne is a promising brown stallion by Hawthorne, dam by Morgan's Rattler. He is a full brother to Shelly 2:29½ and can get into the "30" list himself, whenever he is sent for a mark.

In the next stall to Major Thorne is an unnamed Hawthorne, two-year-old, whose dam is an inbred Hambletonian. He is a thrifty and well muscled youngster, and has already made half of the circle in 1:18. Judging by looks this is a very fast baby and I expect to hear good reports about him before long.

Red Thorne, as the name indicates, is also by Hawthorne, and has for a dam, one of the get of Priam, 2nd dam by McCracken's Black Hawk. He has gone a half in 1:17 and the full mile in 2:38, pretty good for a two-year-old, ailing with distemper.

Mr. Shippee also has his road horse in training, to see how fast he can go. He is a gelding, full brother to Kilrain, and has already shown two heats in 2:35. There is also another gelding in the stable, which never had shoes on until three weeks ago, still he already demonstrates considerable speed.

The good things on a bill of fare usually comes at the last, and I have purposely left the gem of the collection to finish up the Shippee Stable. For some time Mr. Shippee has been in negotiation with parties in the East, trying to secure the very best colt money could purchase, having determined to let nothing stand in the way of securing a desireable cross for his find brood mares. A selection was finally made with the understanding that he would take the colt if Mr. Stemler approved of him as an individual, so consequently when the well known trainer went back to Kentucky lately, he closed the bargain and brought the colt with him. As yet he has received no name, but in all probability will be called Dictator Wilkes. He is by Dictator, and his dam by George Wilkes. Fifteen months and two weeks old, he looks fit to be a two year old, perfect in conformation; in color a handsome bay, relieved by black points, he is my beau ideal of a horse especially as he is sound in every particular. I heard one gentleman say his legs were "too beefy," and he may be right, if plenty of bone and extraordinary good tendons are called by that rather vulgar sounding name. His neck slopes into a sturdy pair of shoulder set just right, and of great depth from the withers to the fore arm. He has a good barrel nice flanks, grand quarter, fine stifle action, stout canons and excellent feet. Taken all in all he is one of the most desireable acquisitions to the stallions of the state, that has arrived in many a long day, and with an average amount of luck his owner should have before many years some of the finest young horses in California.

It would hardly be a race track if there was not a few bangtails knocking around, and here we find Frank Brown and A. Miller with a half dozen thoroughbreds in training. Of the lot I am inclined to the belief that March Wind, a three-year-old by imp. Partisan, dam by Spectre, is the best of the outfit. He is not badly named if he goes as fast as I think he can. Ramona started at the last meeting of the Pacific Coast Blood Horse Association, but failed to make an impression, as she was evidently short of work. Ramona is by Kelpie, dam Di Vernon by Joe Daniels. Dutch is another of the one time starters, having made an appearance at the Blood Horse Meeting but a runaway lost him all chance of winning. He is by Joe Daniels, dam Black Willow. There is also a five-year-old, as yet unnamed, who when a foal, was bitten by a rattlesnake, and although having been several times prepared for a fast trial usually loses speed just when it is needed. Sam is a quarter horse of unknown pedigree, but fast enough to beat almost anything, from 400 to 600 yards. The last of the string is Ben, a roan, by the well known race horse Jack Brady, the dam being a Spanish quarter horse.

Harvey Squire owns a fairly good trotter by Ha Ha 2:22¼, dam by Billy Cheatham, and a four-year-old full brother to the above. Both of these show up well and should be performers.

Mr. Carter has in training for L. M. Morse the well bred stallion Dexter Prince by Kentucky Prince, dam sister to Dexter. This fine representative of two great families is being exercised by his owner, who expects to make a record for him this fall. Dexter Prince has been called the best bred son of Kentucky Prince, and he is justly entitled to that credit, for on blood lines he cannot be surpassed.

In the same stable there is also an unnamed son of Director, 2:17, dam by Santa Claus, 2:17¼, which has fine trotting action, and will be able to "go a streak" when ready for a race.

W. D. Hamilton has Hector C. by Priam (son of Hambletonian 725), dam The Cole mare. He is a promising colt with plenty of speed. Mr. Hamilton also has Princewood, three years old, by Dexter Prince, dam by Nutwood, a dark chestnut, owned by Mr. Shippee. This is a very handsome colt, and may be relied on to trot fast.

Mr. S. Lombard has quite a number of good looking ones, among them being Harry L. by Priam, dam by Lorenzo Dow. He is capable of beating 2:40 easily, and when he comes to his full speed, will be a handy one to have for the "green" races. There is also a pair of beautiful chestnuts, both by Priam, which are used by Mr. Lombard as roadsters. A fine Dexter Prince colt is being broken in for fast work, and as he moves in an easy, graceful fashion, will undoubtedly prove a bread winner. There are also a pair of two-year-olds, which look well, one being by Elect and the other by Thomas's Cornet. Three other trotters will be added to Mr. Lombard's stable this week.

H. C. McCue is handling a pair of fine youngsters, one called Daybreak, by Dawn, being a particularly well-put-up fellow, while the colt by Nephew is not far behind him in good looks.

The French Bros. have Kitty Vernon, by Mount Vernon, dam by Chieftain; Victor, a two-year-old, by Mount Vernon, dam by Winthrop, and Sir George, a bay gelding, by Mount Vernon, dam a chieftain mare. They all take to their work kindly, and will be entered in the forthcoming races

Mr. Alexander still has his stallion Ben Allen, who, many years ago, won a notable race, he weighing at the time 1,410 pounds. His best record is 2:36, but got at a time when beating "40" was considered a great thing. He is by Sportsman, dam by Belmont. Mr. Alexander also has a fine filly by Elector, dam by Chieftain, and an excellent colt by Dexter Prince, dam by Ben Allen, 2nd dam by Chieftain.

Every one at Stockton and for miles around has heard of the fast pacing mare George Kneier is working, and no wonder, for she can go like a bullet. Quarters in 33 and 34 seconds, are almost every day occurrences, and a wager has been made that she can travel that distance in 32 seconds. She is by Reliance, dam by George M. Patchen, Jr., 2nd dam Lulu by Speculation. Revive, as she has been named, is a bay with black points, and the trainer assured me that unless she can show 2:17 easy he will not enter her this year. Revive is three years old. The same trainer also has Erie, a three-year-old. by Elect, dam Rose by Priam, which is owned by Mr. John Patterson. Harry Gear is now six years old, by Echo, dam by Chieftain, and can show a 2:30 gait any time. Mr. Kneier's stable also contains Princess Alice, by Dexter Prince, dam Mollie by General McClellan; Crown Prince, by Dexter Prince, dam Clara by Chieftain, and Reliance, Jr., by Reliance, dam by Kentucky Hunter. These are all above the average, and "Rio Vista" has strong hopes of placing most of them in the charmed circle.

At the Park House C. W. Turner and E. E. Snow have Sunshine, a four-year-old pacer by Reliance, dam Leaner Carlton by Imagination, 2d dam by Seeley's American Star. She is a good mare, her breeding being exceptionally fine. Reliable, in the same stable, is a five-year-old by Reliance, dam by Gen. McClellan, 2d dam by Morgan Rattler, 3d dam by Belmont. A bay colt by Campaign has been named W. H. Parker, in honor of trainer Parker, who is also part owner of Campaign, the sire. The dam of this colt is Leaner Carlton, and the produce of the mare are all magnificent lookers and this one is no exception to the rule. Sneezer is a two-year-old by Elect from the same dam as the last mentioned one. The last of those at Park House is L. M. Morse, a yearling by Dexter Prince, also out of Leaner Carlton. Turner and Snow will in all probability sell some of their well bred ones before long, and purchasers will secure a bargain.

The Directors of the Stockton Association give free stabling to all who apply for room, and as the track is always kept in the best of condition, there are plenty of horsemen take advantage of the liberality displayed. In the near future a large addition will be made to the stall room, and many other improvements are contemplated. The fair for 1889 will surpass any hitherto given, from present indications, and is sure to be a great success.

Please oblige by giving breeding of General McClennan No 144; also pedigree of Ocean Nell. Surely such a producer, being the dam of Maid of Oaks 2:23, and Voorhees 2:23¼, must have been traced further than is now given in Wallace.

Answer:—Gen. McClellan (formerly Red Iron) ch h foaled 1855, got by a horse that worked in a six horse team, at Pike Station, Wayne Co., Ohio, called North Star; dam a small chestnut mare, weighing about 900 pounds that was called a Morgan, and had a frenchy appearance. Bred by L. B. James, then of Pike Station, Wayne Co., Ohio, and by him taken to Rock Co., Wis.; passed throught several hands to James M. Learned in 1858. In 1861 he took him across the plains to to California in the company of Seneca Daniels, and in the division of some stock he became the property of Mr. Daniels.

There is nothing known of Ocean Nell's breeding.

Can any of our readers give the pedigree of a horse called Mountain Boy that was taken to Mendoceno County about 1868 by a man named Slarter He was afterwards sold to John Todd.

Frank Drake.

Can you or any of your readers tell me anything about the horse Silverheels that was owned in or near Sacramento in about 1868. Who owned this horse, and what was his breeding?

Answer.—He was reputed to be owned by a Mr. Cummings of San Francisco. His sire was Hutton's Bulwer. Probably some of our readers can give further information about him.

Reader.

EDITOR BREEDER ANE SPORTSMAN:—In answer to a communication I saw in your paper of the 20th inst., I beg leave to answer by saying that a hose team from St. Helena was at a free for all hose tournament held at Santa Rosa, and secured a record of 32½ seconds, which was the State record until broken at Chico July 4th by No. One's team, which ran in 31 seconds, making it the fastest record in the State at present.

RED BLUFF, July 21st, 1889.

Thomas Ford.

I would thank you to give me (in the next issue of your paper) the name and pedigree of the sire of Billy Cheatham.

Answer.—Cracker, by Boston, 1st dam Lance Mare, by Lance; 2d dam by Blackburn's Buzzard: 3d dam Lady Guy, by Greyhound; 4th dam by imported Spread Eagle; 5th dam Sister to Lamplighter, by imported Medley; 6th dam by imported Lonsdale, etc.

VETERINARY.

Conducted by Thos. Bowhill, M. R. C. V. S.

Subscribers to this paper can have advice through this column in all cases of sick or injured horses or cattle by sending an explicit description of the case. Applicants will send their name and address that they may be identified. Questions requiring answers by mail should be accompanied by two dollars, and addressed to Dr. Bowhill, 1523 California St., San Francisco.

Subscriber.

Can you inform me through the columns of your paper if there is any way to take the "pot belly" off a colt about five or six months old; if so, how to do it?

Answer.—Abdominal distension—or pot belly—is in some colts, especially the age you mention, natural. Again, it is a symptom of disease, and when so is accompanied by other symptoms. If natural, he will outgrow it. I would advise you to obtain the services of a competent veterinary surgeon, when any diseased condition can be ascertained. As the case is now stated, it is impossible to hazard an opinion or give any line of treatment.

I think, from what I can learn, that most of the gentlemen present last December, are in favor of again accepting the kind hospitality of Major and Capt. Young by holding the trials at Waverley, Miss.

As I am one of the committee on by-laws and rules, and as we expect to meet about August 5 for the purpose of formulating them, if you Mr. Editor, would allow the space, I would be glad to hear the views of some of the owners of leading packs on those subjects

Followng is a list of my foxhounds:

Fox III, black and tan dog, seven years old, by Fox III—Norali.
Jennie, black and tan bitch, seven years old, by Fox II—Norali.
Mink, black and tan dog, three years old, by Red Mink—Fan.
Music, black and tan bitch, three years old, by Red Mink—Fan.
Foxes Rock, black and tan dog, two years old, by Fox III—Jennie.
Nellie, black and tan bitch, two years old, by Fox III—Jennie.
Florali, black and tan bitch, one year old, by Fox III—Willurse's bitch.
Mollie red bitch, about three years old, from Mr. Spearse's noted pack of Miss in whelp, by Fox III.
Cleveland, red dog, about four years old, by Kurney's Mink, out of his bitch.
Fannie Farry, black and tan pups, ten months old, two bitches, one dog, by Fox III—Jennie.
Two pups, black and tan dogs, eight months old, by Spot—Musick.
Flash, black, white and tan bitch, three years old, bred by H. S. Cook, Detroit, Mich., by Champion Brood—Fly, in whelp to his Dan.
One black and tan dog pup, one year old, bred by Mr. Cook.
One litter of pups, whelped April 24, 1889, all black and tans, by Fox III—Musick.
Two pups, whelped May 9, 1889, by Mink—Jennie.

HICKORY VALLEY, TENN. J. M. AVENT.

Two articles which appear elsewhere in the kennel department should be read with consideration. Both are from notable men, who have given much time and thought to the development of field quality in dogs. "Jay See En" is unmistakably an Irish red setter man. He writes with spirit, and from the standpoint of a specialist. That he sees all there is of good in the red setter there can be no doubt; whether he magnifies his office as a defender and advocate of the breed we must leave to our readers to determine. There are many fanciers of red setters among readers of this paper, and we invite them to discuss the questions mooted by "Jay See En."

W. H. Pierce and Wm. Dunphy, of Peekskill, N. Y., Max Wenzel, of Hoboken, N. J., A. B. Truman and L. L. Campbell, of this city, F. E. Browne, of Los Angeles, and others, might be named, all of whom belong to the advanced rank of sportsmen, and if from each we could obtain an expression about the desirability of creating a field trial stake for red setters, the matter could then be ultimately settled.

The other letter, from J. M. Avent, is full of that sound judgment and common sense which have made him a great field trial handler. We confess to a measure of surprise at learning that Mr. Avent was so enthusiastic about fox hunting, but a moments reflection convinced us that a man so thorough in other sports of the field must necessarily be devoted to one so attractive as that of hunting the fox with hounds. There is but little scope for fox hunting proper in California, and as a consequence the packs of hounds number but two or three. But in place of the fox there is the coyote, a sort of timber wolf of small size, which leaves good trail, runs well, is as "foxy" as need be, and affords great sport not alone to Mr. Murphy, of San Jose, who maintains a regular "fox hunting" establishment, but also to a list of sport-loving ranchers who keep nondescript packs and put in some rare days with them. Mr. Murphy breeds and uses English foxhounds, the other Californians own the red and red and black dogs of indeterminate breeding known as Virginia hounds. Mr. Murphy and his huntsman might furnish some interesting notes about the Coyote Kennel pack.

A note from Mr. C. M. Munhall announces that he reached his home in Cleveland safely on July 4th. He enjoyed his visit to California very much, and we can assure him that he left many admiring friends here who will be glad to see him again.

Messrs. Clabrough, Golcher & Co., 630 Montgomery street, recently received a very interesting picture of the last litter whelped by Mr. C. M. Munhall's pointer Champion Patti M. before her destruction by fire at the Columbus, Ohio, dog show last fall. The puppies, nine in number, are shown clearly and make a picture worth going a long way to see. There is also a picture of the noted dam.

The City Pound is to be placed in the hands of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, the president, Mr. Jacob Z. Davis, is to be poundmaster. The change will be beneficial in more ways than one.

Mr. William Schreiber's white and lemon pointer dog Nester strayed away on Wednesday evening, and is now at large somewhere about the city. The dog is a light weight pointer, very cleanly built, and answers to the name Nestor. Sportsmen will confer a favor by taking up the animal if they chance to see him, and sending word to Mr. Schreiber at 21 Kearny street, city.

We were pleased on Thursday last by a call from Mr. J. D. Larpenteur, a Parisian artist, who is touring America and painting by the way. Mr. Larpenteur recently painted a picture of the imported English setter Monk of Furness, owned by our advertisers, the Elms Kennels. Of the picture Mr. H. W. Clarke, Superintendent or the Kennel, writes that it is a finished and faithful portrait, and he highly commends the skill of the artist. Mr. Larpenteur is at present executing a painting of a black pointer bitch for Mr. J. E. Watson.

BILLIARDS.

The tournament on the evening of the 17th, 18th and 19th insts. at the San Francisco Verein Club proved a perfect success, and Mr. S. Steinhart, of the Anglo California Bank, is now the champion. However, he cannot, like Hanibal, rest on his laurels. He was challenged immediately by a member, and to show the interest taken, the winner of the coming contest was also challenged. The trophy is a McCleery Combination Cue" (3 in one), elegantly ornamented by Braverman & Co, jewelers, with a solid gold cap and gold plate for inscriptions; a splendid leather case ornamented with silver holds this chef-d'oeuvre of workmanship.

Eugene Carter defeated M. Vigneau in Paris last week. Cushion Caroms—Score: Carter 100, Vigneau 40. Both are giving exhibitions in the gay capitol at rival establishments.

There has been considerable talk of a team from the Olympic against a team from the Bohemian Club trying conclusions on the green at an early date. Both clubs have good amateurs.

Why can't we have an Amateur Coast Championship Series? Thus allowing each and every club one or more representatives.

Dr. M. Nicolay, messmerist, etc., introduces a billiard seance in his entertainments, delighting his audiences at the Standard Theatre Saturday and Sunday last.

We are to have artistic billiards at the Mechanic's Fair, also at the State Fair this year.

"Can he make them talk?" said a lady the other evening. Prof. McCleery was giving a fancy exhibition at a residence on Van Ness Avenue when, after executing several brilliant and seemingly impossible shots, he tossed one ball on the floor, a quick survey of the situation, a rapid stroke at the ball on the table, when to the admiration of all, the cue ball jumped to the floor and describing a draw shot of more than two feet on the carpet counted. CLENDRUYONE.

Answer to questions:

1. A. C. Forsyth is the champion billiardist of the Olympic Club.
2. Amateur.

All trotting and pacing races best 3 in 5, except as otherwise specified.

National Association rules to govern trotting and pacing, and rules of the State Agricultural Society of 1889 to govern running, except as herein stated.

The Board reserves the right to trot or run heats of any two races alternately, or to call a special race between heats, also to change the day and hour of any race, if it is deemed necessary.

A high-class champion-bred, thoroughly broken, all red, 3-year-old bitch, litter sister to the well known Birmingham and Crystal Palace prize winner Killaloe, and equally handsome. Also two brace of youngsters by Frisco (the famous prize winner and sire of the Field Trial winner Drogheda) ex Maureen by Chieftain (sire of Killaloe, Kincora, Colonel II, etc.) ex Kathleen by Palmerston II, ex Sal, niece to the once noted Plunket. In these puppies are combined the blood judiciously crossed of the three great families of Irish Setters, whose progenitors have been alike successful on the bench and in the field. OSSIDINE

KALAMAZOO, Mich., Sept. 15, 1888.

GENTLEMEN:—We have used Ossidine for the past two years and consider it invaluable for Sprung Tendons, Curbs, Ringbone and Spavins; there is nothing equals it; and for us it effected a permanent cure where firing failed, although performed by one of the most successful veterinarians on the continent. We have recommended it to others with like success, and believe it has more merit than any blister ever used.

Very respectfully yours, S. A. BROWNE & Co., Prop's.

This scientific preparation is an absolute cure for all bony or callous lumps on horses, and is a more powerful absorbent than "firing," without creating the slightest blemish. After a few applications the excrescence is so palpably reduced that even the skeptical frankly acknowledge that it is by far the most valuable outward remedy for horses ever invented.

The ONLY preparation in the world that will remove a Bone Spavin after it has become ossified.

Price $3.00 per Large Bottle,

A. P. BUSH & CO., 149 Pearl Street, Boston, Mass.

Sole Agents for Unitad States and Canada.

Owner of Eole, St Saviour, Eolist, etc., says; I have long used it in my stables, and find it to be all that is claimed for it in removing callous and unnatural bony growths, without leaving the slightest blemish. From my experience, I most strongly recommend the use of Ossidine, and feel that it is a necessary adjunct to every stable. Yours respectfully,
LONG BRANCH, July 28, 1888. F. GEBHARD.

Our Humboldt Letter.

Ho! ho! ho! for the races! Now, this time we are not mounting a four-in-hand, or, as the novelists term it, a prancing steed, but find ourselves on Washington-street wharf, alongside the steamship Humboldt, bound for Eureka, and Mr. Searles of Searles & Stone, the agents of the steamer, introduces us to the Hon. W. J. Sweasey, the owner.

Amidst the bustle and hurry of departure, the captain is not to be approached on matters of a social nature, therefore we are handed over to the care of that most obliging and genial of pursers, Mr. Kalish, who straightway asks amidst all the bustle and hurry of departure, "Have you had breakfast?" thereby immediately ingratiating himself in our favor and proving that he well merits the name he bears for hospitality.

The time draws toward departure, viz, 9 A. M., so, excusing himself, he puts us in charge of that able Major Domo Factotum and Provider, the Chief Steward, Mr. Newell, who has grown gray in looking after the wants of his fellow-men on sea.

Number of your berth, sir? Shows us there, just putting our little fixings in place, and, to quote the language of the son of Gaul, "Me voila! Chez moi!"

Glancing around, I see the faces of such well-known lovers of horse flesh as Mat. Storn, Ed. Culver, the Secretary of the Blood Horse Association, Thos. Jones, M. McManus and Wm. Napier.

After being a short time out we try to get our sea legs and in that endeavor become a victim to Father Neptune. There we make the acquaintance of a gentleman well known in the liquor interest, viz.: Mr. A. Britton, who is the personal compounder and proprietor of an infallible specific against sea sickness, after partaking of the same, which we find is a composition of cayenne pepper and beer, we find ourselves slightly worse, but being amongst such jovial company soon loose the effects of the movement of the vessel, and at the sound of the bell proceed to the saloon and enjoy an excellent lunch in company with our jovial friend Mr. B. A quiet smoke in the afternoon, a chat, an excellent dinner, a game of cards, the looser to swallow a dose of Mr. B's specific or foot the cocktail bill for all hands next morning.

Just before going to bed, hearing an equine neigh, we, in company with Mr. Jones take a journey between decks and find his two horses as comfortably installed as though in their own stable, showing that the Humboldt was alike good to man and beast.

Getting up in the morning with a vigorous appetite, we go to the fore part of the steamer, have a chat with that good and careful navigator, Captain Manson, who has been on deck all night. He names to us several points of scenery on the coast. A beautiful morning, again we partake of an ample lunch, cross the Humboldt Bar, then Eureka. At the wharf we find many members of the Jockey Club, in fact all the officers, viz.: Mr. C. F. Roberts, H. M. Devoy, R. W. Rideout, C. G. Taylor, Dr. R. Gross, W. S. Clark, Dan Murphy, C. M. Dollison, T. F. Ricks, Alex Cormick, S. F. Pine and Cattan and several other friends which space does not allow us to mention. After a shake all round we proceed to Dan's Hotel. We mention the prefix, as every one knows Dan Murphy, one of the best all round lovers of good legitimate sport in Eureka.

On Monday we call around on the boys, being franked on our route by Mr. Rideout, the Secretary of the Jockey Club, To put it in old-time English, we are presented with the freedom of the city.

The BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN representative has already given an excellent account of the races, so that it is needless to say anything on that score. The sport was good, but the liberal amounts given in purses by the Association warranted a much larger number of entries, and there is no doubt that the next meeting will see at least twice as many horses to contend for the added money.

As we have had such a pleasant time in Eureka, Mr. Will Harris and self conclude we will remain over and take a trip round the country in a fine team which we obtained from Tom Ricks, and an A 1 pair of pacers they were.

We left Eureka at 6.30 A. M., passed by Field's Landing, a place for the loading of lumber. After leaving Blocksburg three miles or so behind, we commence to ascend a hill on the summit of which is Table Bluff, a hamlet consisting of a hotel, general store and three or four houses, from which you obtain an excellent view of the surrounding country; leaving there we commence to descend towards Springville, passing hilly, rolling country, with fields full of crops, mostly of oats. About two miles before reaching Springville the country assumes a flatter aspect. Though this town at the present moment is experiencing rather a dull season, a stranger is impressed with the fact that considerable business must be done there; new buildings are being put up on all sides. There is a large sash, door, blind and general planing mill kept in constant operation. In connection with the mill is one of the best drying kilns in the State. There are two hotels doing a good business, one of which (The Tremont) has lately been taken in hand by a very pushing gentleman; another hotel of forty-eight rooms is in process of construction, and some general stores, all carrying large stocks, and not to be forgotten an excellent livery stable. From appearance a prosperous future is in store for this little town.

Leaving Springville we traverse a rolling country slightly wooded, and after a drive of two miles, find ourselves in Rohnerville, this being an older town, having what will ingratiate it at once into the sympathies of our readers, a very fine race track.

Here resides Mr. W. E. Smith, the owner of some of the finest Percherons ever imported into this country. We called on him and were very hospitably received. During our rounds, in company with Mr. Smith, we called on Mr. Hogoboom, whose horse won the 2:40 trot at the Eureka races. This is a town which seems to be devoted exclusively to agricultural interests, supporting two good hotels, several stores, livery stables, etc. In a later edition we shall have the pleasure of giving our readers a more detailed account of the stock owned by Mr. Smith and Mr. Hogoboom.

Bidding good-bye to our genial host, Mr. Smith, we push on to Hydesville, passing at first over a gentle rolling country bearing every evidence of prosperity, then we reach a picturesque wooded gorge descending a steep declivity on one side and ascending to the table land on the other, and shortly after reaching Hydesville. As we arrived there late in the evening, and our intention was to reach Riodell that night, we are unable to do justice to what appeared to us a picturesque little town; it bore evidence of doing a good business by the number of stores it contained, having a general appearance of thrift.

Hurrying on we after a little descend a steep road by the side of a hill and reach the railroad junction, where there is a blacksmith shop, newly erected hotel and store, as well as a very commodious railroad depot. After partaking of refreshments, at the same time not forgetting our four-footed friends, we journey on to our destination; ascending a hilly road heavily wooded to the left and to the right fields of ripe grain, and after fording a river, make Riodell at 1 P. M., the last refreshments we partook of being of a liquid nature and strictly of a temperance order, notwithstanding the pressing invitation of the genial host of the Junction Hotel to blend it, our appetites began to assert themselves for something of a solid nature. Though strangers on arriving at Riodell, we were immediately invited to take part in a ball which was to take place at Scotia, a mile and a half distant, and a very enjoyable evening we had, there being about thirty ladies present, with the gentlemen slightly in the majority.

Having passed a very pleasant evening we returned to Riodell and gave ourselves up to repose. We woke up feeling greatly refreshed after our long drive of the previous day, took a look round the town, which speaks well for the energy and push of its inhabitants. As Mr. Smith of the Pacific Lumber Co. wanted us to look over the mills situated at Scotia, we went there and were shown around one of the most complete lumbering plants in the State, employing over 400 men. Leaving here we return to the junction bound for Ferndale, a place of considerable business importance. On our way here we have to ford the Elk river three times, first passing through some romantically wooded country, and when within a few miles of the town we enter into a grazing and grain growing section noted for its dairy produce. Arriving here late and tired we ate our dinner, and after a smoke and chat go off to bed. Getting up on Sunday morning we were unable to judge of the volume of business transacted in this thriving town, but it bears the name of being next in importance to Eureka, however, if one may judge by the number of well equipped conveyances seen there, is any evidence of the prosperity of a place, this account is not overdrawn. After leaving here in the afternoon to proceed to Table Bluffs we were still further convinced of the fact that our first impressions as to the thrift and prosperity of Ferndale and its vicinity were correct. We pass over the same road from here to Eureka as on leaving, so there is nothing to describe further. Getting in Sunday eve we again try a glass of Pine Apple and you know, have a good dinner, and soon go to bed to be ready for our trip to Arcata. Next day we start out passing through some lovely woods and after a sharp drive of about 13 miles arrived there. The town is situated the other side of the bay and has a ferry steamer constantly plying between here and Eureka. This town bore evidences of good solid business, as around the plaza you find located two good hotels and various stores. After calling on a few friends we harness up and make Eureka in time for dinner at 6 P. M.

Now friends we must say good-bye, as after settling up our business we find ourselves again on board the steamer Humboldt full of passengers, showing she full well merits the good name we give her. After an enjoyable trip back again we find ourselves at the Washington street wharf.

Just one little word more. We wish to mention the career of one of Eureka's most prosperous and honored merchants, the owner of the steamer, the Hon. N. J. Sweasey, who is 85 years of age, hale and hearty still. He was born in the city of London, England, his father being a pilot on the river Thames. He followed the sea for some time, then settled in Posey county, Indiana, after which he came to Humboldt county where he has been identified with all prominent business enterprises. Mr. Sweasey, the son of this pioneer, is the prime mover in laying a 13-inch diameter pipe from the Elk river for the purpose of supplying Eureka with water. He also has a fine door and sash factory in full operation.

BREEDER.

The Dams of Trotters.

Written for the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN.

The science of breeding has never reached such absolute perfection that the result could be foretold with certainty. The progeny of the same mare and by the same horse differs materially. Therein lies the charm of breeding the trotter. It is not so charming when you miss the objective point, but the illusion is sufficiently good until the real appears.

I have always contended that individual excellence in a brood mare was better than pedigree. If I could have individual excellence and pedigree too I would be doubly well pleased. For instance, take two mares. The first one a finely bred mare, with standard ancestors back three or four removes; a trifle lazy withal, and with about enough speed to show a four-minute gait. The second mare we will say, sired by some good horse, and the blood of her mother unknown. This mare, though, is of a nervous, gamey temperament; a good walker and fast trotter; willing to do all she can without whipping.

I would rather have this second mare for a brood mare than a half dozen of the first one, no matter how highly bred.

A mare cannot impart something she hasn't got.

When a study is made of the great matrons of to-day it is a trifle puzzling to know where the excellence of some of them come from. They are certainly not fashionably bred, and the man looking for the regulation brood mare—standard bred, bay, with black points, good tail and mane—would disdainfully pass them by. Let us inquire into the inside history of some of them.

Addie, by Hambletonian Chief, dam unknown, is the dam of Woodnut, 2:16½, and Manon, 2:21. Hambletonian Chief never sired a trotter, nor sired a mare that produced a trotter outside Addie.

Addie Lee, by Culver's Black Hawk, is the dam of Adair, 2:17¼, and Grace Lee, 2:29½. Her dam's breeding is unknown. Culver's Black Hawk never sired a trotter nor the dam of a trotter, except this mare.

Annie Laurie, by Harris' Hambletonian, dam not known, is the dam of Annie G., 2:28.

Aralon, by Young Woful, dam unknown, is the mother of Clara, 2:21, and Hades, 2:27¾

Belle, by Barnard's Muscatine, dam unknown, is the dam of Tramp Jr, 2:30, and Tramp S., 2:28¾. Barnard's Muscatine would never have been heard of except through this mare.

Belle of Cayuga by Hambletonian Prince, dam unknown; is the dam of Bertha S. 2:29¼ and Parana, 2:19¼.

Black Flora is a mare owned in our own State. She was sired by Black Prince, a horse with a faint local reputation. Her dam was untraced. She is the dam of Huntress 2:28, Perihelion 2:25, and Sister 2:19¼.

Black Jane by Mambrino Patchen, dam not traced, is the mother of Rosa Wilkes 2:18¼, a well known race mare, and Simmons 2:28, a widely known stallion.

Burch mare by Brown Pilot, dam not traced, was the mother of Donald 2:27 and Rosalind 2:21¾.

Clara by American Star, dam not traced, was the dam of Alma 2:28¾, Astoria 2:29½, Dexter 2:17¼, and the great stallion Dictator.

Clara by a son of Henry Clay, was the dam of Gipsy Queen 2:26¼ and Blanche 2:30. The only earthly claim to distinction this son of Henry Clay had was that he sired this mare.

Columbia by Columbus, dam unknown, was the dam of Abbottsford 2:19½, and the pacer Dido 2:23¼.

Cooney by Stewart Morgan, dam not traced, is the dam of John S. Heald 2:27¼ and Tinnie B. 2:27½.

County House Mare by Seeley's American Star, was the dam of Nettie 2:18. Nettie was one of the gamest and most noted compaigners that Ryskyk's Hambletonian ever sired.

Crop by Pilot Jr., dam not known, is the dam of three trotters—Blanch Amory 2:26, Code 2:22¼ and Counsellor 2:24.

Dahlia by Pilot Jr., dam not traced, is the dam of Dacia 2.29½, and Daireen 2:21½.

Doll, pedigree unknown, is the dam of Edgewood 2:27½, and Elmwood Chief 2:18¾, both by Black Ranger. He never sired a trotter except from this mare, and it is only reasonable to concede that she must have been a mare of great excellence.

Dolly, pedigree not traced, is the dam of Ino 2:21¼ and Redbird 2:27½, both by Chenery's Gray Eagle. As these were the only trotters he got, though many seasons in the stud, Dolly must have been a producer.

Dolly by Iowa, is the dam of Envoy 2:28, and Fleta 2:28. Iowa was a running bred horse and never figured in a trotting pedigree before nor since. Envoy and Fleta were both sired by Gen. Hatch, an unheard of horse, but for the produce of this mare.

Dolly Varden by Hiatoga Johnnie, dam untraced, was the dam of Flora P. 2:23¼, and Lucy 2:26¾. The inquiry comes trooping up the misty way, "Who was Hiatoga, Johnnie? I give it up!

Duryea mare by Pintlar's Young Bolivar, dam not traced, was the dam of Widow Machree 2.29, one of the gamest racehorses in olden times, and afterward famous as the dam of Aberdeen.

Emily C., pedigree unknown, is the dam of Bayonne Prince 2:21¼ and Marcus 2:29¼.

Falka by Stubtail, dam unknown, was the mother of Elmore Everett 2:30, and Kitty 2:30 These two horses were sired by Andrew Jackson (not the Bashaw horse of that name) and although he made several seasons in New York and Vermont, he sired but these two trotters from this one mare.

Fanny Jewett, pedigree unknown, was the dam of John J. Cook 2:29½ and Lady Grosbeck 2:25½.

Green Mountain Maid by Harry Clay, dam Shanghai Mary, pedigree unknown, is the dam of Antonio 2:28¾, Dame Trot 2:22, Elaine 2:20, Mansfield 2:26, Prospero 2:20, Storm 2:26¾, and the great Electioneer.

Hackett mare, pedigree unknown, was the dam of Argonaut 2:23¼, and Nancy Hackett 2:20.

A mare by Sackett's Hambletonian, dam unknown, was the dam of Hattie 2:29¾ and Milton Medium 2:25½.

Jane Murray, pedigree untraced, was the dam of Clark S. 2:27¼, Lottery 2:27 and William H. 2:29.

Jenny Lind by Bellfounder, dam unknown, is the dam of Dixie, 2:30, and Tackey, 2:26, both of whom are well-known brood-mares. Jenny Lind's dam was unknown.

Jenny Martin by Canada Jack, dam not traced, is the dam of France's Alexander, 2:19, and Woolly Jim, 2:29½. If Canada Jack were alive to-day and could gaze upon his grandchildren, he would be a proud horse, unless he fell dead from surprise.

Kate by Bellaire, dam not traced, is the mother of Breeze, 2:24, Bruno, 2 29½, and young Bruno, 2:22¾. The pedigree of Bellaire is unknown, and what right he had to sire a mare that was the dam of three trotters does not yet appear. He failed to distinguish himself in any other quarter.

Kate Bradley by Clifton Pilot, dam unknown, was the dam of Billy, 2:29¼, Charley Wilkes, 2:25½, Mike, 2:28.

Lady Abdallah by Alexander's Abdallah, dam not traced, is the dam of Don Carlos, 2:23, and Granville, 2:26.

Lady Fulton by Stubtail, dam unknown, was the dam of Buzz, 2:28½, Rufus, 2:29, and Wizz, 2:23½.

Two mares well known in this State are Lady Hubbard by Benicia Boy, and Lady Washington by American Boy, Jr. The dams of both mares are of unknown blood. Lady Hubbard is the dam of Pansy, 2:24½ and Thapsin, 2:22¾, while Lady Washington figures as the mother of Ewing, 2:21¼ and Kate Ewing, 2:21¼. Benicia Boy and American Boy, Jr., would probably have died "to fortune and to fame unknown," except for these two mares.

Logan Maid by Paige's Logan, dam not traced, is the dam of Billy Button, 2:18¼, Lady Williams, 2:28½, and Peralto, 2:26½. The name of Paige's Logan would never have ornamented the Trotting Register unless this one mare had fairly outdone herself.

Mayflower by St. Clair, dam unknown, to the cover of Electioneer, produced Manzanita, 2:16, and Wildflower (2 years), 2:21.

Myra Shaw by Tom Lang, dam untraced, was the dam of Alice Peyton, 2:27½, Grove's Blue Bull, 2:26¼, and Myrtella G., 2:28.

Silverella, pedigree not traced, was the dam of Mamie, 2:21¼, and Silverton, 2:20¼, which are two very speedy horses for one mare to produce.

Woodbine by Woodford, dam untraced, is the dam of the well-known sires and campaigners, Wedgewood, 2:19, and Woodford Mambrino, 2:21¼.

The above list is only a partial one, but it is sufficient to show that many of the greatest stallions and race horses came from what would be termed "short pedigreed" mares. It is a fact, however, that all of these mares were individually superior, endowed with plenty of nerve force, and the capacity to go a distance. Many of them, to my knowledge, possessed lots of speed, and would have obtained a low record had the opportunity presented at the right time.

I truly believe that in no one of the instances I have mentioned could one of these mares be found other than a very superior animal.

The dam of Maud S., 2:08¾, would not have suited a man who was looking for a standard brood mare. Neither would the dam of Jay-Eye-See, 2:10; neither would the dam of Maxey Cobb, 2:13½; neither would the dam of Rosaline Wilkes, 2:14½; neither would the dam of Harry Wilkes, 2:13½; neither would the dam of Axtell, 2:15½ at three years; neither would the dam of Sunol, 2:18 at two years; neither would the dam of Jack, 2:19½. The dam of Jack, it is stated, is only 14½ hands high, and after Jack was weaned she was sold for $60. Jack last season captured $15,000 in money, besides quite a reputation.

The dam of Prince Wilkes was probably not much thought of before his advent upon the turf. She did not possess a standard line of blood, so far as I can ascertain.

The dam of Arab, 2:15 (that muchly damed horse) would not have filled the bill when a fashionable pedigree was the desideratum. This statement applies with equal force to any of the mares variously claimed as his dam.

The breeding of the dam of Johnston, 2:06¼, the king of pacers, would not have proved sufficiently attractive to have secured her owner a fair price for her.

The dam of Dawn, 2:19½, was not a standard bred mare, but she is much better, a standard producer. I have always considered Dawn the fastest Nutwood alive, and I still think so. That his dam, Countess, was a producer of speed is seen not alone in Dawn's case, but in Strathway as well. This young horse trotted a trial as a three-year-old in 2:24½, and will certainly some day beat 2:20, barring accidents.

I think I have offered sufficient evidence to prove almost beyond a doubt that individual excellence is better than pedigree. Were I asked to choose between two equally well shaped mares, one of which could trot in 2:30, her breeding being unknown, while the other could could go a mile in 3:20 and sired as follows: sired by Nutwood, first dam by Volunteer; 2d dam by Cassius M. Clay Jr.; 3d dam by Rysdyk's Hambletonian, I should unhesitatingly choose the first mare, and would have more hopes of securing a fast and reliable colt, than from the second mare. It might be claimed that the second mare, though individually not fast, might "breed back." True she might, but life is too short to wait for a brood mare to breed back of herself.

LEXINGTON AGAINST TIME.

[From the New Orleans Picayune of April 3d, 1855]

"The most brilliant event in the sporting annals of the American turf, giving, as it has, the palm to the renowned Lexington, came off yesterday, over the Metairie Course, and its result greatly surpassed the most ardent hopes and enthusiastic expectations of the friends of the winner, and the lovers of turf sports.

"The day was the loveliest of the whole season. As the hour appointed for the great contest approached, the town was all astir with excitement incident to the occasion. Vehicles of all sorts were in requisition, and our beautiful level shell roads were filled with them from the last pavingstone to the gates of the course. The displays in equitation during that busy part of the day, which may be defined as "going to the races," were almost as amusing and exciting as the greater event, for witnessing which so many thousand were intent.

"The judges selected for the occasion were Gen. Stephen M. Westmore for the Virginia gentleman, Arnold Harris, Esq., for Mr. Ten Broeck, and John G. Cocks, Esq., the President of the Metairie Jockey Club, as umpire. The timers were Hon. Duncan F. Kenner, Capt. Wm J. Minor and Stephen B. Elliott, Esq.

"It being the first event of the season, there was the usual bustle at the gates, the distribution of the members' badges and the strangers' badges, the admission to the different stands, and, from the character of the event, an unusual rush of carriages, cabs, buggies, wagons, saddle horses and foot passengers; and by three o'clock the course presented a most brilliant appearance. There were representatives of every section of the country and almost every State in the Union, and among them we were happy to see a goodly show of the fairer portion of creation.

"The field inside the course presented a most animated appearance, and the feeling in favor of the gallant Lexington was general and decided; and as the predestined hero of the day appeared upon the course, in company with his stable companions who were to be partners for a time in his trials, his feelings and his fame—his bold, reaching and elastic step, his unequalled condition, and his fearless, defiant look—conscious of superiority and of victory—gave strength to his backers that all was as it should be.

"Of the temerity of his backer and owner, Mr. Richard Ten Broeck, in standing before the world bidding defiance to all the previous performances ever marked by a horse, we have before spoken as our feelings dictated, and his extraordinary self reliance, based upon well directed judgment and sound sense, cannot fail to place him in the estimation of true sportsmen as the leader of the host. He knew he had an animal of unflinching game coupled with lightning speed, and bravely did his gallant ally respond to his call.

"The betting was large. Lexington's appearance made him a favorite, and before starting it was firm at $100 to $75 against time, and but few takers. The greater portion of the betting had been done in town, and there were but few left who dared to brave the lion in his lair. The conflicting opinions which had been generally expressed in regard to the terms of the match, and its mode of performance, caused a very general excitement, each party in turn expressing his views as to the right of the points discussed, namely, that of allowing horses to start with Lexington, to urge him to an increased speed, and the propriety of giving the horse a running start. The judges, however, ended the matter by deciding that he could do both. The decision gave very general satisfaction.

"Gilpatrick, upon Lexington, now prepared for action, and as he started up the stretch on his proud courser, to do which no other horse had ever attempted, the man and horse formed a beautiful and perfect picture. He turned him around just below the draw-gates, and as he reached the judges' stand, when the drum tapped, he was at the pace it was intended he should run. To our mind he was run too fast the first mile, which he accomplished in 1:47¼, the first half mile in 0.53. Upon reaching the stand it was intimated to him to go slower, which he did.

"Joe Blackburn was started behind him at the beginning of the first mile, but the respectful distance he kept in his rear must certainly have done him an injury rather than a benefit, for at no time was he near enough for Lexington to hear the sound of his hoofs.

"The pace in the second mile visibly decreased; Arrow, who was started before its commencement, waiting about thirty yards behind Lexington. In the third mile Arrow closed the gap, and Lexington, hearing him, was a little more anxious, and slightly increased his pace. Upon entering the fourth mile Arrow was stopped, and Joe Blackburn went at him again, but as in the first instance, he was "like chips in porridge"—of no benefit. Lexington darted off in earnest, running the last mile in 1:48¾. He reached the head of the front stretch in 6:55, running its entire length in 24¾ seconds. The whole time of the four miles was 7:19¾, carrying 103 pounds, Gilpatrick being three pounds over weight. That the course was in admirable condition we need not assert, but that we have seen it in better order for safety and for time, we think we may assert. The writer of this was not present when Lexington and Lecomte met last spring, and can therefore make no comparison, but agrees with "A Young Turfman" that the extreme hardness of the track might prevent a horse from fully extending himself, which must have been the case with Lexington yesterday. He lost his left fore plate, and half the right one; and Gilpatrick at the drawgate in the last mile had no little difficulty in keeping him on his course, Lexington making violent efforts to swerve to the right, where it was soft and heavy.

"With regard to the time, not a doubt can be entertained, the official being slower than any other. Outside, by many experienced timers, it was made in 7:19¼.

"The excitement attending the progress of this remarkable race cannot be described. It was intense throughout; and to those who had no opportunity of taking note of time, Lexington's deceptive fox-like gait could not have given them hopes of success. The joyousness and hilarity everywhere visible, which followed the announcement that Lexington was the victor, showed the feeling of the vast majority of the vast assemblage.

"It must be a source of the highest gratification to the rider of Lexington that he guided him through his perilous journey successfully, despite the prophecies and hopes of defeat that attended him. In this connection we may fearlessly assert that through a long career of usefulness and success of more than twenty years upon the turf, the name of Gilbert W. Patrick, better known as Gilpatrick, the rider, has never been tainted with even the breath of suspicion, and that the bright escutcheon of his name remains untarnished; and as this is perhaps his last appearance in public, it is the writers hearty wish that he may live to enjoy an uninterrupted flow of wordly comfort, and that when death calls him to answer that to which all living must respond, he may be full of years and honor. The names of Gilpatrick and Lexington are inseparably connected with the greatest achievement upon the American turf.

"That this great race will go down to generations yet unborn as the fastest time made, is the honest conviction of the writer.

SUMMARY.

New Orleans, La., Monday, April 2, 1855—Match for $20,000; Lexington to beat the fastest time at four miles. 7:26.
R. Ten Broeck's b c Lexington by Boston, dam Alice Carneal by imp. Sarpedon, 4 years old, 103 lbs., 3 lbs extra—Gilpatrick; won.
Time—1st mile, 1:47½; 2d mile, 1:52½; 3d mile, 1:51½; 4th mile, 1:48¾—four miles, 7:19¾.

Thus ended the second act of this remarkable drama; but the play itself was not so to end, for the gallant champion whose time had been so defiantly challenged and so bravely beaten, came up once more in his proper person, to try the fortunes of the field.

THE GREAT RACE AT NEW ORLEANS—THE FASTEST TIME ON RECORD—LEXINGTON VICTORIOUS IN ONE HEAT—TIME, 7:23¾—THE THIRD EVENT.

"It is not strange that this match should command more attention than an ordinary race. The antecedents of both animals were brilliant beyond comparison, and the improvement which each had shown at every successive trial, led to an almost wild belief that some new miracle of time would be performed in the impending meeting. There was much, too, in the annals of the turf connecting itself with the present position of these horses, that was calculated to add immensely to the interest. It will be recollected that Time, which should be progresive, stood still for twenty years on the heels of the renowned Eclipse, who ascended into glory—over Henry—on the Long Island track in a four mile heat in 7:37. At length the brilliant mare Fashion sprung up and excelled it, on the same course, by five seconds, gaining a double victory, by beating the till then unconquerable Boston in a four-mile heat of 7:32½.

"The world was astonished, and so miraculous was this considered, that a report was current that the judges were almost afraid to proclaim it; indeed, that the true speed was 7:31½, and that two of the judges who had so taken it, yielded to the third, who was the second slower, for fear the public would be dissatisfied with their decision. This time of Fashion's held the field for almost nine years, and the lovers of the turf, as they dolefully contemplated her decline, feared they would never look upon her like again. But there is a time for all worldly glory, and it was destined that last spring the renowned Lexington and the phenomenon Lecomte should both shoot forth together to outdazzle all previous lustre, and so turn the possibility of racing speed into a bewildering maze of doubt. Those rivals not knowing each other, and themselves unknown, first came together on the Metairie Course, New Orleans, for the State Post Stake of the last spring meeting, and then, as all the world already knows, Lexington was the winner, although not as yet inside of Fashion's time. In the following week, however, the ambitious rivals met again, and it was on that occasion the superb Lecomte reversed his late defeat, and at one astounding stroke reduced Fashion's time to 7:26! Six and a half seconds of glory at a single bound!

"It might have been supposed that a defeat like this would have quite satisfied the owner of Lexington that he had contended against impossibility or lightning; but what was the surprise of the whole racing world to hear in the midst of the roar of his exploits, Mr. Ten Broeck offer to wager $10,000 that his horse Lexington, which had just been beaten, that he could beat Lecomte's time, and $2,500 more that he could afterwards beat Lecomte himself. Both offers were of course accepted, and the 2d of April was selected for the first trial, and the 14th of the same month for the other. Your readers know already by the previous mail, the result of the effect of the second, and that Lexington on that occasion beat all the annals and exceeded every expectation, by performing his four miles in the unheard of, I may add undreamt of, time of 7:19¾—thus striking Lecomte a heavier blow than Lecomte had administered to Fashion, and going inside of his time six seconds and a quarter! This was the state of things I found at New Orleans at half past 9 P. M. on the 13th of April, by the glass clock, and now that I have explained myself so fully, I think you will have no more surprise left than I had, and I took my light upstairs, that the Crescent City was on that occasion in something of a buzz.

"In the morning I found the excitement in no way decreased; everybody was inquiring about the starting of trains, or making arrangements with hackmen to take them to the course, while practised parties of bon vivants were displaying a world of intelligence or intent in packing champagne baskets with layers of ham, chicken, brandy, beer Boker's bitters, cigars, and soda water, to regale themselves with during the dry stages of the afternoon. The race was set for three o'clock, and the course being three miles off, at one the town began to move toward the track, at two it was pretty nearly deserted, and at three it was as silent and abandoned as at midnight. All the roads leading to the track streamed with pedestrians and vehicles, and the line condensed towards the gateway into a choked column that could move onward and in, only by the most tedious series of instalments.

"On reaching the inside, the arena presented a most brilliant spectacle, and I do not remember having seen so many people together for a race except at the celebrated meeting of Fashion and Peytona on the Union Course, L. I. The two public stands were densely crowded, the field was filled with vehicles and saddle horses, and even the trees, that from a distance over-looked the track, drooped heavily with the freight of human fruit. The track itself, however, under better judgment than those of New York, was kept clear of all intruders, except in that portion known as the homestretch, to which exclusive section the members of the club, and such privileged strangers as had provided themselves with ten-dollar badges, were admitted.

THE RACE.

"At length the bugle sounded the signal for the horses to be stripped. Upon this everybody pressed forward to secure eligible places, every neck was stretched to its utmost length. Even the gamblers in the alleys, underneath the public stands, undoubled their legs from beneath their faro-tables, locked up their double card boxes, stopped the snap of their roulettes, and slapped the little ivory balls in their vest pockets to run upstairs and become innocent lookers on.

"Wagers on the contestants had a small revival, in consequence of this eruption from the betting quarter, and the odds on Lexington went up again to the mark of $100 to $80. It was freely taken, however, by the gentlemen from Red River, where Lecomte was raised; and, with many of them, confidence in their favorite stood so high that they put out all the money they had brought to town on equal terms. They reasoned that if Lexington could perform a four-mile heat in 7:19¾, there was no reason why Lecomte could not also do it if required; for the contest now stood equal between them, and it must not be forgotten that in Lecomte's victory, in 7:26, he had trailed Lexington, and then turned out and passed ahead of him. It was, moreover, said on their side that the 7:19¾ was not as good as the 7:26 of Lecomte, for that by running alone and choosing the close side of the track, Lexington saved nearly two seconds of distance in each mile, and likewise had the advantage of a long start, and receiving the word 'go' at full speed, instead of beginning 'from the jump,' as in match fashion.

"HOPE TOLD A FLATTERING TALE."

"On the strength of these calculations there was considerable betting on time, but with none did I hear it set at less than 7:26, while many believed—though I heard no bet to that effect—that the heat would be achieved as low down as 7:15 or 7:16. I do not know that anything can furnish a better idea of the revolution made in racing time by Lecomte and Lexington than this state of expectation shows. What would have been thought, ten years ago, of the declaration that in a little while we should see a four-mile race in which the highest mark on time would be 7:26?

"There is something in this matter of increase of speed that is worthy of reflection and philosophy. We find continual advancement, and what is most remarkable, exploit begets exploit, as if knowledge and emulation touched new powers which had never been electrified before.

"Whence does the spark proceed that awakes these energies, but from the mind of man, imparting itself by some strange process to the mind and body of his horse as he does to the corporeal faculties in possession of himself. Trotting time stood for years at 2:32, then 2:30, and then 2:28. At length Beppo and Lady Suffolk made a dead heat under saddle on the Beacon Course in 2:26; straightway 2:26 was repeated by several other horses; by and by it was reduced still lower, and at last 2:28 was banished to mile heats in wagons. So with the racers I have named, and so with Lecomte and Lexington. One-half of a horse's speed is found in the brain of his rider or driver, and that subtle essence, that knowledge how to do, and will to command it, blends with the power of the beast and makes all things done. So with foot racers, when they have known that nine miles within the hour could be increased to ten, and the ten to eleven. They were the same men, without any improvement in their breed; the same men, who had once been able barely to do nine. Shall we be told that the Bonny Black Bess of the bold Turpin did not respond to her master's spirit when she took her wondrous bound over the spiked turnpike gate? or that a portion of the soul of the brave Mameluke, who alone escaped the massacre of the Beys by leaping his horse over the walls of Cairo, did not enter into that of his matchless barb?

"The bounding steed you pompously bestride,
Shares with his lord his pleasure and his pride,

"Assuredly the best portions of the horse's speed lies in the mind of his rider; and it is so by no means certain, that if Gilpatrick, who rode Lexington in 7:19¾ had, with his present knowledge of what is within horse hide, grasped the rein and pressed the sides of Eclipse, he could not have brought his 7:37 down to 7:26.

"When the blankets were stripped from the horses, and their magnificent combinations of blood, heart and muscle stood glistening and flickering in the sun, the crowd near by could not resist an involuntary burst of admiration, at which Lecomte stepped coquettishly about, showing his beautful chestnut coat and branching muscles, while the darker Lexington with a sedate and intelligent aspect, looked calmly around, as if he felt that the sensation was quite what he expected and deserved. Both animals were in the finest possible condition, and the weather and the track, had they been manufactured to a sportsman's order, could not have been improved. At last the final signal of 'bring up your horses,' sounded from the bugle, and prompt to the call, Gilpatrick, the well-known rider of Boston, put his foot in Lexington's stirrup, and the negro boy of Gen. Wells' sprang into the saddle of Lecomte. They advanced slowly and daintily forward to the stand, and when they halted at the score, the immense concourse that had up to this moment been swaying to and fro, were fixed as stone. It was a beautiful sight to see these superb animals standing at the score, filled with unknown qualities of flight, quietly awaiting the conclusions of the directions to the riders for the tap of the drum.

"At length the tap of the drum came, and instantly it struck, the stationary studs leaped forward with a start that sent everybody's heart into their mouth. With bound on bound, as if life were staked on every spring, they flew up the quarter stretch, Lexington, at the turn, drawing his nose a shadow in advance; but when they reached the half-mile post—53 seconds—both were exactly side by side. On they went at the same flying pace, Lexington again drawing gradually forward, first his neck, then his shoulder, and increasup the straight side amidst a wild roar of cheers, flew by the stand at the end of the first mile, three-quarters of a length in the lead. One hundred to seventy-five on Lexington! Time, 1:49½.

"Onward they plunge, onward without pause! what makes this throbbing at my heart? What are these brilliant brutes to me? Why do I lean forward and insensibly unite my voice with the roar of this mad multitude? Alas! I but show the infatuation of the horses, and the levelling spirit common to all strife, has seized on us all alike. 'Where are they now? Ah! there they fly around the first turn! By heaven! Lecomte is overhauling him! And so he was, for on entering the back stretch of the second mile, the hero of 7:26 made his most desperate efforts, reaching first the girth then the shoulder, then the neck of Lexington, and finally, when he reached the half-mile post, laid himself along-side him, nose by nose. Then the mass, which during the few seconds of this special struggle had been breathless with hope and fear, burst into a shout that rung for miles, and amid the din of which might be heard here and there, $100 even on Lecomte!' But his equality was only for a moments' time. Lexington threw his eye jealously askant; Gilpatrick relaxed a little of his rein, which up to this time he had held close in hand, and without violence, or startling effect, the racer of races stole ahead gently, but steadily and easily, as before, until he drew himself a clear length in the lead, in which position they closed the second mile. Time, 1:51.

"Again the hurrah rises as they pass the stand—one hunto seventy-five on Lexington!—and swells in still wider volumn when Lexington increased his one length to three, from the stand to the turn of the back stretch. In vain Lecomte struggled; in vain he called to mind his former laurels; in vain his rider struck him with the steel; his great spirit was a sharper spear, and when his tail fell, as it did from that time out, I could imagine he felt a sinking of the heart, as he saw streaming before him the waving flag of Lexington, now held straight out in race-horse fashion, and anon nervously flung up, as if it were a plume of triumph. 'One hundred to fifty on Lexington.' The three lengths were increased to four, and again the shout arose, as in this relative condition they went for the third time over the score. Time, 1:51.

"The last crisis of the strife had now arrived, and Lecomte, if he had any resources left, must call upon them straight, So thought his rider, for the steel went into his side, but it was in vain, he had done his best; while, as for Lexington, it seemed as if he had just begun to run. Gilpatrick now gave him a full rein, and, for a time, as he went down the backstretch, it actually seemed as if he was running for the very fun of the thing. It was now $100 to $10 on Lexington, or any kind of odds, but there was no takers. He had the laurel in his teeth, and was going for a distance. But at this inglorious prospect Lecomte desperately rallied, and escaped the humiliation by drawing himself a few lengths within the distance pole, while Lexington dashed past the stand hard in hand, actually running away with his rider—making the last mile in 1:52½, and completing the four in the unprecedented time of 7:23¾. I say unprecedented because it beats Lecomte's 7:26, and is, therefore, the fastest heat that was ever made in a match.

"Thus ended the greatest match that has happened on the turf for many years; nay, I might rather say, that ever took place, and putting to rest all cavil so far as Lexington's powers are concerned, about the difference between 7:19¾ and 7:26. In comparing the time, however, with that recorded in favor of other racers, it should be stated that the track at New Orleans is what is called a 'fast track,' of a springy and elastic nature, which is very favorable to the stroke of a running horse, and, of course, conducive to speed. The Union track, at Long Island, is not so favorable in its character, and it should be born in mind by those who wish to be particular in these matters, that Lexington and Lecomte, both being colts, denominated under the term of 'four-year-olds,' have neither of them, as yet, carried full weight. In closing, it is also proper for me to state that Lexington carried three and three-quarter pounds more of weight in his rider than Lecomte, a circumstance which is more worthy of mention, as he is 160 pounds the smaller horse.

"My account of the race is now concluded, for on the time arriving for the second heat, the owner of Lecomte withdrew his horse, and the purse and the laurels were awarded to the 'Hunter of Kentucky.'

"I will add, that no one who saw Lexington walk quietly through the cheering crowd that flocked round him at the close, as if his triumph were a matter he fully understood, doubts that he has sense, memory and powers of reflection—horse sense, at least. And yet presumptious mortals will aver that such an animal has got no soul! In conclusion, and according to racing style, I will now append the

That our readers may form some estimate of Lexington as a race-horse, we have taken the liberty of attaching two letters from his former trainer, Mr. J. B. Pryor. His well known reputation as a trainer, his high character as a gentleman of truth and integrity, will go further to establish the horse's reputation than any words of ours could do:

"BERKSHIRE, ENGLAND, May 9, 1863.

"DEAR SIR—I was much pleased yesterday to receive your letter of the 21st ult., and most cheerfully give you any information that you may want about Lexington. Lexington was a horse of the best and kindest temper, a good feeder, and at the same time was a horse that never wanted the hard work that some horses do. I never allowed him to run his best in any trial. I gave him a four mile gallop at Natchez, over the Pharalia Course, a few days before he went to New Orleans to run for the Post Stake. I mean the Great State Post Stake. He went the first mile alone, the second mile he beat Jim Barton, the third mile he beat Col. Bingaman's Attila, and the fourth mile he beat Little Flea. Each of these horses was set in fresh, and each beaten from thirty to forty yards. The last mile was run in 1:48. He was three years old with 104 pounds on him, the others had about 80 pounds on each. No horse was ever his match or ever could race with him after a half mile. Lexington was not fit to run when Lecomte beat him; he was full of cold, and even then, after having caught Lecomte and had him beat, the boy stopped him, thinking he had gone four miles. Lexington, when right was a distance better than any horse I ever saw run in America, four-mile heats, and I have seen all the best horses run in England for three years, and there is not a horse here that he could not beat four miles. There are horses here that might beat or race with him two miles, but none four. He could go faster at the end of four miles than most horses can a half mile. I have been training horses thirty years, and am positive that Lexington is the best race-horse I ever saw in any country. When he ran against time in New Orleans, he could have run in 7:10. When he beat Lecomte the next week he could have beaten him three hundred yards, and I doubt if you could have beaten Lexington that day. I gave him runs with such horses as Charmer, Wade Hampton, Arrow, Wild Irishman and Little Flea; none could ever make him run; the gallop was always over after three-quarters of a mile.

"In speaking of Lecomte, he was a good race-horse in any company but Lexington's, but he was like all others, no match to him. Your obedient servant,

J. B. PRYOR."

From another letter, two years after the above was written, we extract the following notice of the English horses:

"COMPTON, BERKS, ENG., Feb. 3, 1865.

"DEAR SIR—In looking over some old letters to-day, I found yours of the 25th of June, 1863, which is most interesting to me. Things in the way of racing are about the same as when you were in this country, except that the three-year-olds of last year were better in number than any season for some time still. I think Thormanby the best Derby horse I have seen. Both General Peel and Blair Athol are fine horses, but neither finish a race like Thormanby. I have seen all the best horses run here for five years, and seen them run all distances, and feel sure, without prejudice, that Lexington was superior to all horses in England or any other country, as I have seen some of the best Arabs here, and he could have beaten them all. Your obedient servant,

J. B. PRYOR."

DESCRIPTION OF LEXINGTON.

Lexington was a light blood bay, fifteen hands, three inches high, with four white feet extending over the pastern joints; his head, though not small, was clean, bony and handsome—his nostrils being large, the jawbone uncommonly wide, and the jaws wide apart, affording abundant room for a clear and well detached throttle. His bones were not particularly large, except the backbone, which was immensely so. His neck rose well from his shoulders and joined his head admirably. His shoulders were wide and well placed, particularly oblique, and rising well at the withers. His back was of medium length, coupling well back; a loin wide, slightly arched and very powerful. His body was large, round and full, being ribbed in the best possible manner, very deep through the heart, which made his legs look short. His hips were not remarkably wide, though strong. His arms were not large, and his gaskin or second thigh was peculiarly light and thin, and to our eye, was his greatest defect. His feet and legs were sound and clean, with tendons large and strong as catgut. His action was superb—bold, free, elastic and full of power. It seems to be supererogation on our part to criticise such a horse, every part seemed to have been laid with such a justness of proportion and admirable adaptation of one part to another, that all worked as easy as a patent lever watch. Lexington did not belong to any of the great lines of his family. He was not a Boston, he was not a Sarpedon, he was not a Timoleon and he was not a Sumpter. In his form the noblest and best qualities of every strain in his blood were combined to form a harmonious union. Nature seemed to have selected and drawn to itself whatever was good and great, while it rejected all those mean and more ignoble elements.

"Look! how round his straining throat
Grace and shifting beauty float!
Sinewy strength is on his reins,
And the red blood gallops through his veins—
Richer, redder, never ran
Through the boasting heart of man,
He can trace his lineage higher
Than the Bourbon dare aspire—
Douglas, Guzman or the Guelph,
Or O'Brien's blood itself.

Lexington never broke down; his legs were as clean as a colt's up to the day of his death. Shortly after his last race with Lecomte his eyes failed, and Mr. Ten Broeck sent him to Kentucky, and he made his first season of 1855 at W. F. Harper's near Midway, Ky, limited to twenty mares at $100 each, payable before the mare was served. He made the season of 1856 at the same place and upon the same terms. During the month of June, 1856, Mr. R. A. Alexander went to England to import a stallion, accompanied by Mr. Nelson Dudley, of Fayette Co., Ky. Mr. Dudley insisted on Mr. Alexander purchasing Lexington, and said to him that whatever else he bought he must not leave England until he purchased Lexington. He said he was the best race-horse in the world, and if he did not purchase him that, situated as he was, he would be a thorn in his side. Mr. A. purchased Scythian, and then, in deference to Mr. Dudley's judgment, which has been remarkably verified, he bought Lexington at $15,000 of Mr. Ten Broeck, who was then in England—$7,500 cash, the remainder if Lexington was living upon Mr. Alexander's arrival in America; if not he was to lose the $7,500 already paid. He stood at Woodburn Farm, commencing with the season of 1857 (except his temporary removal in 1865 to Illinois), down to the day of his death, Thursday, July 1, 1875.

[THE END.]

Montana Items.

Quite a number of people attended the race track yesterday to witness a match race between Sam Scott's br stallion Don L. and Lodge and Beaumont's bay stallion Bristow, the match being for $200 a side. The betting was even and considerable money changed hands, it being a local race and both horses having quite a number of friends. In the first heat they got off at second attempt, Don L. broke on the first turn and lost several lengths, but down the backstretch he made up for lost time, and at the half they were on even terms, and they trotted like a double team to the three-quarter pole, when Bristow broke and Don L. came away winning the heat in 2:51.

Second heat—Betting the same as first. They got away on even terms after scoring for some time; Don L. broke on the first turn and was a distance out at the quarter, but the driver, Frank Enos, managed to save his distance, although he had to do some good running. Time, 2:43. The race was then virtually over, as Don L. pulled up lame.

Third heat—They got away after several attempts. Don made his usual break on the first turn, and never did catch, running the entire mile, Bristow trotting very steady, coming in first. Time, 2:47. Don L. distanced for running.

Judges—Cy Mulkey, J. P. Sutton, Frank Quimby. Timer—W. B. Miller. Drivers—Sam Hanley drove Bristow; Frank Enos drove Don L.

Secretary McMasters, being the pool-seller of the day, then gave a purse of $25 for a half-mile dash, the starters being J. B. McMasters' ch g Dwarf Regent, J. P. Sutton's b m Trixy, Wilcox's gr m Laura.

They got off together, Dwarf Regent on the inside. He at once took the lead and kept it to the finish. Time, 51 seconds. Pools sold—Dwarf Regent $5, Trixy $5, and Laura $2.

Judges—Thos. F. Word, Frank Quimby, W. B. Miller. Timer—W. B. Miller. Starter—Cy Mulkey.

Salt Lake Summer Meeting.

FROM OUR SPECIAL COMMISSIONER.

The summer meeting of the Utah Driving Park Association commenced to-day at the association's track, near this city. About seventy-five of the fast ones are quartered here, and California appears in the lead in point of numbers and quality of the animals. B. C. Holly, of Vallejo, is present with a good string and looks as nonchalant and sanguine as ever.

His horses are Yolo Maid, 2:14; Valentine, 2:22; San Diego, 2:21; Vesolia, 2:29½; Pink, 2:29¾; and one or two others. As there is nothing fast enough to go with Yolo Maid, it is not probable that she will be seen in any fast work here.

Among other Californians represented are Garratt and Moody, of Chico; Sturgis & Lambert, of Eureka; Hazlett & Davis, San Francisco; E. G. Smith, of San Francisco; John Clawson, of Vallejo and F. M. Starkey, of Sacramento A. C. Brey, of Portland, Oregon, is on deck with Lady Maud.

Nearly all of these horses will go on the Montana circuit. Here Yolo Maid may meet something to bear her company. L. C. Lee 2:15, is one side wheeler that will probably be seen there and is said to be doing some good work. If he meets the great California mare there, and they are both in shape, people may look out for some fast time.

The track was in good condition for the first day's sport, the weather fair, and attendance small.

Mr. Holly's mare Pink, was picked up for a winner in the 2:30 trot, but evidently because bettors thought that "By" would have nothing that couldn't win. She was sent for all there was in her, but the clip was a little too fast for her on this track. I. Jay S. had to work hard for this victory.

This ended the summer meeting of the Association, and some good races were witnessed. The Association lost over $1,000 on the meeting, and certainly did not meet with much encouragement in their efforts to furnish good sport.

Rearing Foals.

In the great majority of cases the foal is reared solely on its mother's milk for a period ranging from four to six months. Unless exceptional circumstances have arisen—unless, for some cause or other, the mare becomes an inefficient or unkindly nurse—it will rarely happen that the mother and offspring require special aid or interference until weaning-time arrives.

Occasionally it does happen that a mare, most likely in cases of the first foal, will not admit the youngster to the udder. The cause of this may be nervousness or ill-temper, and as a rule a little kindly coaxing will do all that is required. Let the mare see that you mean no harm to her or her foal; speak gently to her; give her a drink of milk-warm guel and a mouthful of sweet hay; leave the two together for a quarter of an hour, and if she should once begin to lick the foal there will be little fear of her objecting to its sucking. If you find still that she is not licking the foal, sprinkle a little flour over its back, and contrive gently to bring the presence of the flour under her notice.

Try hard with coaxing before resorting to other measures. A mare in such circumstances is inclined to be suspicious, and will watch your conduct very closely and with wonderful intelligence. Kindliness is a valuable attribute in the attendant upon broodmares. In cases such as has been indicated there is ample scope for the exercise of both virtues. In nine cases out of ten these will successfully accomplish the object.

But if it should unfortunately happen that by gently coaxing the mother can not be induced to admit the foal to the teat, other measure of the firmer kind must be resorted to—still taking care that in all measures, however drastic, calmness and good temper are displayed. Fussiness and irritability should never be witnessed in the foaling-box. The mare would quickly detect such behavior, and would become the less tractable in consequence. Be kind but firm with the mare, giving her clearly to understand that while you will not abuse her you mean to make her submit to your will. Depend upon it she will not be slow to read your meaning. The intelligence of horses is wonderful. We would often be more successful than we are in the management of contrary animals if we treat them more rationally than we do, and paid more respect to their intelligence and sensibility. In a very special sense these remarks apply in the foaling-box.

Sometimes when coaxing has failed confinement of the two in a dark, loose box will be sufficient to bring mother and foal into friendly relationship. If this, again, should fail, hold the mare, and allow the foal to suck. If the mare is vicious, she may attempt to kick the foal. In that case hold up her near forefoot; and if she is persistently obstinate and mischievous, it may be necessary to put the twitch on her nose, and perhaps administer a little sharp chastisement with the whip, taking care that no harm comes to the foal in the excitement. These extreme measures will very seldom be necessary, and should never be resorted to until all the more gentle efforts have been tried in vain.

Admit the foal to the udder five or six times a day, and each time, before resorting to harsh measures, do your very best to induce her to let it suck willingly. Most likely two days of such treatment will bring the mare to a sense of her duty. In rare cases of obstinacy the interference may have to be continued for a whole week.

The foal will often be very awkward in its first efforts to suck. Do not attemp to assist or direct it. Keep the mare quiet and let the youngster feel its way itself. The instincts of nature will be its best teacher, and it will soon learn how to proceed. The mare's udder may be hard and the teats dry. If so, rub the udder with the hand and draw away a little milk, leaving the teats moist, so as to lead on the foal in its first attempt to suck.

Inflammation sometimes occurs in the udder of a mare being sucked. The udder is found to be hard and hot to the touch, and evidently painful to the mare Foment the udder with warm bran-water, rub gently, and draw away a little milk at frequent intervals. It may be necessary to remove the foal for a few days and give the mare a dose of physic. Do not give medicine unless the foal is taken away from the mare for a time. A change of diet and low feeding for a few days may give relief. In a bad case, lose no time in calling in a veterinary surgeon.—British Farming World.

Old Turf Heroes.

In a recent issue of the Inter-Ocean, A. F. Aldridge thus describes how many of the old heads of the turf are finishing their days:

"This old horse was one of the crack racers in his day."

The horse referred to was doing duty between the shafts of a wagon that carries passengers along the boulevard on Long Island. He did his work well, and tried just as honestly to earn his oats as he did when he was well cared for by some rich turfman, and won applause from the patrons of the race-course by winning for them large sums of money.

So this is the future for the splendid animals that win fortunes for their owners. While they have speed, can run well and win fame and money, nothing is too good for them. As soon, though, as they become too old to race, lose their speed or break down, they must go. Their owners, for whom they have done so much, get rid of them to make room for more champions, and they often descend to the very lowest grades. What becomes of all the race-horses? This is a question often asked by the thousands who visit the tracks of this country. The stallions are invariably sent to the stud, where they are well taken care of for the remainder of their days. The geldings often have a hard time of it. Some become saddle-horses, and right good ones, too, they often make. Some are broken to harness, and are used in all the vehicles that a horse can pull. Some of the mightiest performers on the turf are to-day doing the humblest work a horse can be put to. A few of the rich owners, though, seem to have appreciated the faithful work done by these noble animals, and are letting them live quietly for the remainder of their lives.

CHECKMATE PULLING A STAGE.

Every turfman has heard of Checkmate. Every one is fond of singing his praises still, and many are often heard to say: "We have no Checkmate on the turf now." Very few of those who saw him win the Saratoga Cup would recognize the old hero now. Then his coat shone like glass. He was in good health, strong and hearty. He looked like the race-horse he was, and seemed proud of his own speed and stamina. Now he looks tired and jaded. His coat is rough and dusty. He is used by a Kentuckian to draw a stage between two Kentucky villages, and on race days he draws the coach on to Churchill Downs, the scene of his early victories. On such days he seems to remember the days of his glory, and a little of the old fire will flash in his eyes. Checkmate is a native of Kentucky. His sire was Glen Athol and his dam Full Cry. He was foaled in 1875, and first bore the colors of J. T. Williams to victory. Later on he was bought by the Dwyer Bros., and was one of the horses that made their name famous on the turf. During three years of his career on the turf he won $32,000 in stakes and purses, and it is safe to say he won more than $350,000 for his backers during his career. Among the horses that he has beaten are George McCullough, Freeland, Ferida, Bootjack, Monitor, and the mighty Hindoo.

BOOTJACK'S ODD CAREER.

Bootjack has had a career unequalled by any other thoroughbred. He was one of the gamest horses that ever won a race. He has defeated all the fastest horses on the turf and won a fortune for his owners. Bootjack was by Bonnie Scotland, dam Sparrowgrass. He was foaled in 1878, was first raced in Milton Young's colors, but later on was purchased by the Dwyer Bros., and won large sums of money for them. He won forty-nine races before he was six years old. They were worth $33,965, and the money won in bets was probably ten times that amount. Some of the races that went to his credit were the Cash Handicap, Ohio Derby, Belle Meade, Burnett House, Great American Stallion and Mapolia Stakes, and among the horses that had to succumb to his speed were Checkmate, General Monroe, Ada Glenn, Giroflà, and Churchill, all speedy ones. When he broke down, Brown Dick, the colored trainer, broke him to harness and used him to draw a buggy. Last year he trained him again, and he started in a three-quarter-mile dash race at Gravesend. He came in last, but received much more applause than the winner. Dick then sold him, and now he is being used as a saddle and driving horse by a Kentucky gentleman who admired the old fellow in his palmiest days.

DRAKE CARTER'S HARD LUCK.

Drake Carter, the highest-priced gelding, is now a saddle-horse. He was owned by Green Morris, who sold him to Pierre Lorillard for $17,500 as a three-year-old. Drake Carter is by Ten Broeck, dam Platina. He was one of the best distance horses the country ever saw, and beat such good ones as General Monroe, Levant, Bluegrass Belle, Fosteral, Ella Warfield, Compensation and Bu-hwacker. He has the record for three miles, 5:24, which he made at Sheepshead Bay, on September 6, 1886. When Mr. Lorillard retired from the turf Drake Carter was sold to a Mr. Smith, of Toronto. He was then used as a saddle-horse. Last year he changed hands. His new owner would not let the old hero rest, and had him put in training again. He was started at a hunt meeting, and the idol of Green Morris, Pierre Lorillard, and hundreds of turfmen was beaten by a field of sorry nags.

BALD-FACED MONITOR RESTING.

"Old Bald-Face wins again," used often to be the cry at the races a few years ago. Old Bald-Face was George L. Lorillard's horse Monitor, a game and speedy son of Glenelg whose white face used to be seen in the van no matter what company he was in or how fast the pace was. Mrs. George L. Lorillard is determined that the old fellow shall never know want, and with that end in view she has a specially prepared paddock at the Locusts, her farm near Eatontown, N. J., where he may roam at will. Frequently he will go to one end of the paddock, throw up his heels and gallop to the other end like a two-year-old, as remembering his early days. Monitor has a best record for two and one-eighth mile, running at that distance, at Baltimore, on Oct. 20, 1880, in 3:44½. He had no superior in his day over a distance of ground. Monitor's case was an exception to the general rule. He is remembered in his old days for the fame and fortune he won when in his prime.

FREELAND IN A BUGGY.

Twenty thousand persons journeyed down to Long Branch and to Brighton Beach three years ago to see the races between Ed. Corrigan's gelding Freeland and the Dwyer Bros.' Miss Woodford. Freeland won two races and Miss Woodford one. Freeland was by Longfellow, dam Belle Knight. He was foaled in 1879, and won thousands of dollars for Ed. Corrigan. Two years ago he broke down, and after trying to patch him up for some time Corrigan decided to use him in his buggy. The old horse is entered in a steeplechase stake to be decided at the West Side Park, Chicago, so Corrigan is evidently determined to try him again over the sticks.

OTHER NOTED ONES.

Apollo, the winner of the sensational American Derby in 1883, beating the Dwyer Bros.' Runnymede, the favorite of the race in the betting, is now used as a saddle-horse in South Carolina. This is the horse that got Captain Sam Brown, the owner of the sensational Troubadour, into such trouble, through his alleged intimations of crookedness on the part of the Dwyer Bros. Apollo is owned by Dr. Hughes, who used to ride him every day. He was one of the best hunters in the State.

Barnum, one of the best of Bonnie Scotland's get, and the only one now on the turf, is as lithe and as active as of yore, and, although he has lost much of his speed, he occasionally wins a good race. He has participated in more races than any other thoroughbred, but has about run to the end of his active career now, and will soon be doing duty between the shafts. Six years ago Barnum won the Louisville Cup. Two years ago he ran a dead-heat with Miss Woodford for the Coney Island Cup. He has beaten some of the most noted horses on the turf, and has proved a veritable gold mine for his owner, H. J. Woodford. In fact, he has often been called "Woodford's gold mine."

Hickory Jim is another wonderful gelding, whose performances entitle him to mention. He has been running in the vicinity of New York for more than ten years, and was taken there from the West. He is said to be twenty years old, and is still able to win races, often beating some very fast youngsters. This is phenomenal, as thoroughbreds rarely race after six or seven years. It looks as though he would race to the end of his life. He deserves a rest now, surely.

When Luke Blackburn was winning all the races in which he was entered, the Dwyer Bros. purchased a full brother to Luke. They named him Joe Blackburn. He was by Bonnie Scotland, dam Nevada, and he cost $6,500. They started him in several races but he never won one, and, finally, in disgust they gave him away. He is now drawing a buggy at Long Branch.

Speculation, one of the most famous steeplechasers ever seen in this country, is another unfortunate. His sire was Daniel Boone, dam Lizzie Stodghill—good breeding that. He won fame and money over the sticks, but is now drawing a cart about the streets of Brooklyn. His owner peddles cigars.

Blenheim, a very speedy racer, by Billet, dam Keno, cost the Dwyer Bros. $3,500 as a yearling. He won some good stakes and purses. Now he is used as a saddle-horse by Miss Dougan, the daughter of Toni Dougan, of Brooklyn Jockey Club Hotel fame.

Hassan, a fine-looking colt by King Ban, dam Haz'em, foaled in 1880, and owned by Walker & Co., was at one time a great favorite for the Kentucky Derby. Now he is pulling a harrow over a race-track where other thoroughbreds are trying to win fame and money.

Bull's-Eye, by Lisbon, dam Target, was once owned by the Hon. S. Sandys. He beat Mr. Pierre Lorillard's fast mare Aranza in a mile race at Sheepshead Bay. Since then he has had a hard time. He has at times been half-starved, then he has been used in a buggy and as a saddle-horse, and now he is to be trained again to try and win more money for his owner.

Old Crickmore is another famous old gelding. He was good over almost any distance of ground. His greatest race was for the Coney Island Cup, run at Sheepshead Bay. The distance was three miles, and he beat the great Hindoo in very fast time. Crickmore is now on ex-Governor Oden Bowie's farm, in Maryland.

Rory O'More, another old-timer and a very good steeplechaser, by Dickens, dam Annie Arundel, is now drawing a butcher's cart in Brooklyn.

Benton, a first-class two-year-old, and the favorite for the Withers Stake four years ago, is doing duty as a park hack.

Shelby Barnes, by Reform or Alarm, dam Emily Fuller, was formerly owned by the father of Jockey Barnes. Young Barnes claimed he was swindled out of the horse. Shelby Barnes was a very good sprinter and a good plater. He is now in Illinois, and draws a buggy for his owner.

Poet, by Longfellow, dam Jenny McKinney, was a fast sprinter, owned by Alfred Lakeland. He has been broken to harness, and has developed good speed between the shafts.

Old Monogram has developed a very good trotter. It is said he can go in a 2:40 gait. Monogram was owned by R. C. Pate. He is by Buckden, dam Monomania. A few years ago he won the Distillers' Stake, and was immediately made a hot favorite for the Suburban. He was beaten, though.

Lelex is another good one that has had a varied career. He was very fast a few years ago and was then retired. He was sold to a manager of a circus and did service in the ring. Two years ago he was trained again by Dan Honig, and has won some very good races.

Trouble, the greatest steeplechaser of the age, has appeared on the stage. He is used as a saddle-horse.

Fellowplay, a very fast sprinter, owned by Green Morris, and the conqueror of every fast horse on the turf a few years ago, is now in a public hack.—[The Horseman.

The Wealth of California.

To the pioneers who take rank among the argonauts, the change which has come over this golden and most favored land since the days of '49 is not less notable in industrial aspects than it is in the various other degrees through which California has advanced fo distinguishment and wealth and material grandeur, or has undergone mutations in endowments of lavish Nature, the equal or equivalent of which no other country of all the world has ever possessed. The virgin gold, in unprecedented rich deposits, has been digged from its beds of centuries and cast about the habitable globe with a profusion in the general distribution which has enriched the universe. It has awakened enterprise, spurred energies, enabled colossal undertakings, caused the spanning of the continent to the rapid transportation by sail, given creation and impulse to the cutting of isthmus ligatures to facilitate the commerce and travel of the world, and by an expansiveness of phenomenal success to incalculable ends, wrought from hitherto informed sources, through the agencies of electricity and the mystery-hidden powers of Nature, brought these to the subserviency of man by the potency of scientific discoveries in conjunction with material mechanical inventions competent to master the difficulties which had in all past ages been considered insuperable obstructions to the might of intellect in obtaining domination of the resources which overcome distance and render space as a unit in the supreme reckoning The gold of California was the vast and immeasurable motive power which produced this extraordinary quickening of human intelligence; this unprecedented vitality in the flow and pulsation of every vein and artery in the practical movements of peoples to a higher sphere in the world's activities and to broader, grander, more enriching and more beneficent results in the comprehensive progress of every people of every clime.

It is remarkable that the region from whence this unlocking process has come had been for more than a century comparatively an unexplored and unknown land, although peopled by an imigration which was contented with the wild and easy-going pursuits of primitive pastoral pursuits, devoted to the faith of their fathers, and happy in the possessions they held upon the coast, unmindful of the treasures hidden beneath the soil, and caring nothing to investigate the richness of the soil itself in the production of the necessities of life which husbanday reveals and rewards. Its gold at last was its moving power. This attracted to it the attention of the world, excited the cupidity of the mere hunters for gold, incited the ambition of others who needed gold as the fulcrum by which to move to the aggrandizement of their designs, and populated California with the most adventuresome and the livelist of every country and race.

This early immigration founded the unexampled condition of a land of adult population—mostly of men, hardy, adventurous, of indomitable character. The California of their imagination and description was no more than a region of wilderness and desert, with only its wealth of gold to make it endurable. Their object was to "make their pile" and return to their homes in distant countries to enjoy it. Habitation and residence wrought very different opinions and conclusions. As they remained and located, new and better ideas dawned and grew. It was neither a wilderness nor a desert; above all else it was favored with a climate beyond compare to any, even from the sunny South or to any who had experienced the delights of Italian skies. Colonel Fremont had written of it, after exploration, that the honey bee would not survive the flight across the Rocky Mountains. California now outranks in its pure quality the honey of Palestine. It was believed that the land was unfitted to the uses of farming, and for years the pioneers imported their breadstuffs and provisions and fruits. The early Catholic missions produced their thrifty and excellent vineyards and olives and other varieties, but these were regarded as exceptional. The interior was held as arid and not arable. Necessity is the mother of invention, and so is it the father of exertion and the prompter to experiment. As the gold diggings diminished in product, the nobler pursuits of agriculture were followed. The results are before the world. California is alone in the belt which wears the belt of championship, and has the joy and pride and profit in not only the luxuriance and superabundance of her cereal crops from which to supply the world, in her surpassing vineyards and her matchless fruits, and in her edible vegatable products, of the temperate zone, but she excels in the marketable citric products of the lower zone, and has the Atlantic as her best customer for these, while Europe every year grows more in favor of her wines, and before her as augmenting stable markets are the ports of South America, of the Pacific, of Australia and of Asia. This traffic is illimitable as it is profitable. California holds the supreme position.

The fortune of the early gold hunters is changed to the possession of the agriculturist. From the consequence of the gold, as the broadest and most enticing in advertising the State to the world, has come the surer and more satisfactory and enduring wealth which is in lands and their productiveness, with the pride of their acknowledged excellence to the cheer, until now, without extravagance of claim, it can be said that California is the cynosure of the globe.

There is another pursuit still to add to this great measure of praise and congratulation. California is becoming distinguished for the superiority in horses of best breeds and mettle. In the pioneer period the Spanish horses of California were remarkable for their speed and endurance, their easy gait and fine qualities not possessed by the average of horses of the other side of the continent. The celebrated Pico horse which ran the great race for $10,000 at San Jose in 1850 against the Hudspeth colt and was beaten by better skilled handling, was proof of the speed quality, and the extraordinary performance of the horse which Fremont rode from Los Angeles to Sutter's Fort—over 600 miles—in 1847, in eight days, is sufficient testimony to establish the endurance.

It is believed that the early California horse had the blood of the splendid Barbary horses imported by the Spanish nobles, some of which had been brought to California by the early cavaliers who came as representatives of the Crown. At all events they differed in quality from the native horses, in essential points, and were of uncommon toughness to withstand the fatigue of long journeys. These horses have nearly disappeared, however, before the influx of the American horses that were brought across the plains in early gold hunting days and since.

Shrewd and observant horsemen observed that the horses brought to this coast from the States across the Rocky Mountains improved in quality. The climate and soil of this State were more conducive to the animal in every respect. There the horse attained nearest perfection. Only a few engaged in bringing very choice, nearly thoroughbred, and costly horses from Kentucky in the early days of California. John Walsh, Nathan Coombs, Theodore Winters, and others, engaged in the good work. Their efforts were inadequately rewarded. Ill-fortune and death intervened in some cases. Walsh died on one of the most favorable expeditions at the out-set of any while returning across the plains, and some of his best selections succumbed to the fatigues of the tedious journey. But these were, in some respects, in advance of the times. Rifleman, Belmont, Norfolk, Lodi, and some others have in their progeny demonstrated the benefits which have succeeded. Since their time, the accumulation and distribution of great wealth—the consequence of the California gold discovery—has enabled others to engage in the business.

But the great impetus given to live stock breeding in California can be assigned to a period embraced in the last twenty years. Governor Stanford started with his magnificent Palo Alto, since supplemented by the Vina Farm. Mr. Hagin, Mr. Corbett, Mr. Rose, Mr. Baldwin, all wealthy men, have greatly added to the enterprise. In the State are many breeding farms of note and merit. The Breeder and Sportsman has made worthy mention of them all. More particular mention is not neglected here, but simply omitted through momentary want of remembrance of names and places. The main point is adhered to. These breeders and their breeding farms have won for California another and gratifying place in the niches which the world allots to excellence and celebrity in the department of the Turf. Greatly as the Stste has advanced in agriculture, industry and wealth, California has already equally advanced in the renown of her horses, and the promise is of the brightest for the future. California bred horses, sons and daughters of the noted sires and dams of thoroughbred famous lines of England and Kentucky, the pick of the racing and trotting studs and stables, are yearly sent to the East for sale, and they command the highest prices from experienced horsemen. It is another instance of the wonderful progression of California from the condition of the dependent to that of the master quality—to better supply the market from which it originally drew for its needs and luxuries.

The industry is within the means of the average California farmer to embrace and profit. It is all in the breeding The owner of an ordinary farm can breed upon it the colt which may astonish the Turf in performance, and make the fortune of his breeder. The opportunities are in the State, within the means of farmers, and need only to be taken at advantage. There is scarcely a limit to the price the greatest speed will command. Up to $100 000 has already been offered and refused for a trotter. Vanderbilt could have sold Maud S. for that sum Mr. Corbett refused $75,000 for his Guy Wilkes. Within the month offers of $65,000 and $80,000 have been refused in the East for noted trotters fresh in surpassing records. Bell Boy sold for $51,000 at two years old. Several instances of sales all the way from $30,000 to $50,000 can be cited. The careful farmer has it within his ability to become the owner of a colt of high value. The California farmer is especially favored in this respect. The gold is always ready for the purchase. The colt or horse will bring it to him. It is all in the breeding.

Horses Around Los Alamos and Santa Barbara.

Although Los Alamos is in Santa Barbara, still it is a long hot drive to get there from here. You leave Santa Barbara at 7 A. M., and arrive in Los Alamos the next morning. You take the stagecoach—a real old-time stagecoach, drawn by six, and you travel the first day fifty miles. The road is picturesque, the mountain scenery being very grand. When you reach the top of the mountain, about three thousand feet higher, you have a beautiful sight of Santa Barbara Valley and the grand Pacific. Going down on the other side your eyes meet grand scenes. After ten hours' ride you arrive at Los Olivos, the terminus of the Narrow Gauge that runs to Port Harford and San Luis Obispo. At Los Olivos there is a comfortable hotel, managed by a jovial, large-hearted, robust gentleman, who is always striving to please his customers.

You remain at Los Olivos over night, and in the morning to take the Narrow Guage, and in three-quarters of an hour you are landed at Los Alamos. There we were met by J. M. Rochin, a man who is fonder of equine sports than almost any one. Some twelve years ago Mr. Rochin bought two stallions, Neury and Brilliant. He gave for the stallions a band of California mares and geldings. By Neury he has many fine mares, but by Brilliant very few. Mr. Rochin entertained us royally, and took us over the ranch, showing us eight or nine hundred head of stock and beef cattle. He had his man drive his broodmares and fillies into a small corral, and well repaid were we for our long ride, for he has some handsome fillies and colts.

The first mare that attracted my eyes was Asparia by Henry, dam Mary Ellis. She has a suckling colt by Antioch, he by A. W. Richmond out of Monte Belle. Next came a yearling by Antioch, first dam Lola Montes, she by Henry; second dam Lady Belmont, she by Alexander's Belmont. This is as handsome a yearling as I want to see, and I am sure that we will hear good reports of him next year. We noted next a yearling filly by Antioch, dam by Brilliant, he by Young Morril, he by imported Morril. The breeding of this filly is excellent. There were too many yearlings and sucklings for me to numerate. They are a fine lot, and Mr. Rochin is justly proud of his young ones.

Before I go any further I want to say that in my last letter I said that Mr. Rochin's sorrel gelding Don Ramon was by Almont. His stallion's name is Antioch and not Almont, as I had been informed. Antioch is a beautiful brown horse, with an open, square gait, and is liable to trot very fast if he is handled properly. Mr. Rochin will not prepare him for a record till next year.

We were taken to the stables and shown some fine geldings and fillies that are being prepared for the fall races. We were shown the only stallion Mr. Rochin has by Henry. Henry's pedigree is too well known for me to repeat; it is all explained when you say that Henry was by Lexington, dam Hobire, she by imported Glencoe. This sorrel stallion is six years old and makes half-miles and three-quarters very rapidly. His dam is Lady Belmont. We were then shown one of the handsomest two-year-old filly I have ever seen; she knows no other gait than trot; she carries her head very high, and is full of life; she is called California Girl, and is by Antioch, first dam Asparia. Asparia was trained two months, and trotted quarters handily in forty seconds.

We also saw a beautiful bay three-year-old called Altunita by Altoona, he by Almont. Altoona's dam was Teresa B. The dam of the handsome filly Altunita is Lola Montes, she by Henry.

Mr. Gillett is driving for Mr. Rochin, and he appears to be a careful trainer. The colts that he handles are all in fine trim, and he says are improving every day. The mile track at Los Alamos was made this summer, and although heavy now it can be made a fast track. The homestretch is very fast, as there is a perceptible down grade. I was told that a six-year-old gelding called Baby ran a quarter in 22½ seconds on July 4th last. We are confident that Mr. Rochin will have horses this fall that will make a good showing. Next year he will have at least sixteen youngsters in training and we will hear good reports of them. Santa Barbara county will be proud of Antioch's colts, and we hope that he will reign as king of the harem for years to come. In the afternoon we left Los Alamos for Los Olivos. There we remained over night, and the next day we were in Santa Barbara. We drove in a tri-color conveyance furnished by Mr. Rochin. The drive was a most enjoyable one.

Our track here at Santa Barbara is fast filling up with fine horses as the fall races approach. Last week several youngsters came to be prepared for the races. I have never seen a horse improve as rapidly as Rosewall. He looks all over a trotter now, and acts like one. This grey stallion is by A. W. Richmond, dam Mileta by Creighton. Last year Rosewall trotted in 2:32, but he was a mixed gaited horse and he labored too much to make a fast one. When Gus Walters took him I told him that the horse was going wrong. I raised Rosewall and when he was sixteen months old, with no training, he could trot in 3:10. He had a beautiful open gait and was the handiest breaker that I had ever seen. Gus Walters has been working hard on him, and to-day Rosewall has an open square gait, and is sure to trot very fast, for his propelling powers are immense, and he is as game a stallion as ever trotted on a track. I am delighted to see this stallion in so fine a condition. He will surely trot in twenty and next year low down in the teens. He is owned by Assemblyman C. A. Starke of this county.

Another horse that attracted my attention at the track is a two-year-old by Altoona. He is a bright bay, has beautiful shoulders, as strong a back as ever held a horse together, and the cleanest, best-shaped hind legs I ever saw. This colt will pace fast enough to take in the Eastern Circuit next year. He reminds me of Arrow. He paces just like him, and I think will equal Arrow's best time. J. N. Johnson of Santa Barbara is the owner of this handsome two-year-old.

The runners on the track are doing well. Othello, bay stallion thoroughbred, by Hock Hocking, 1st dam Sunday by Monday, is an elegant and speedy runner. Hock Hocking is by Ringmaster out of Young Fashion, she by imported Monarch. This Othello is being trained by F. Menchuca, and is owned by Harris of Los Alamos. Othello's trainer has also a brown three-year-old filly by Wildidle, 1st dam Mary Wade by Woodburn; 2nd dam Viola by imported St. George; 3rd dam Lucy by Lexington. He has also a two-year-old filly by Wildidle, 1st dam Phoebe Hall, she by Joe Daniels and out of Mary Wade.

J. M. Hunter of Montecito has a gray three-year-old filly in training. She looks as though she could run a half and three-quarters very fast. She is by Accident, he by Monday, 1st dam Maggie Barnes, she by Alexander Barnes and out of Evadua.

George C. Sherman has a black yearling, four white feet, that will show his heels to many a two-year-old next year. He calls him Midnight. He is by Accident; dam of Accident was by Norfolk. Midnight's dam is by Henry, 2nd dam by Rifleman.

C. E. Sherman has a good looking stallion, Hambletonian Prince by Old Judge, he by Sawyer's Hambletonian, he by Whipple's. First dam by Rifleman.

N. A. Corrubias has on the track a two-year-old runner that exercises his half mile in 49½. He calls him Gambo, he by Wildidle, first dam Dotty Dimple, record half mile, 48¾. Dotty Dimple by Ben Wade. T. R. More.

Santa Barbara, July 29, 1889.

Age for Castrating Colts.

Dr. Liautard, in Animal Castration, says a period between eighteen months and two years is generally preferred for horses, though according to authorities, even a much later date may be chosen, some British veterinarians being accustomed to operate as early as ten days from birth. It is immaterial, however, at what precise time the operation may be performed since it is a conceded point that the earlier it is done the better.

When it is possible, choose the season most favorable for the operation, and for securing the best chances for recovery; the spring or the early stage of the fall are those to which the operator should give the preference, provided the atmospheric temperature is moderate and not susceptible to sudden variations. It is to be remembered that at some periods of the year, without any known or apparent cause, a tendency appears in wounds to take on gangrenous or septicemic complications, which are not so generally observed in the mild weather of spring or early fall. Another essential condition which surgeons will do well to consider, is the general health of the subject, as in all cases of surgical interference any diseased tendency already existing (perhaps latent) in the patient, such as an anæmic condition, a gourdy predisposition or typhoid susceptibility, are likely to give rise to the development of serious and perhaps fatal sequelæ to the operation.

Grim's Gossip.

Isaac Murphy can now ride about 115 lbs.

The race track at Quincy has been greatly improved and horsemen there are loud in praises of the management.

R. W. Thomas, who trained the Santa Anita stable last year, has a small string at West Side track, Chicago.

Charles Wood has sold all his racing stock and it is rumored has serious intentions of coming to this country. He will, of course, not be allowed to ride or race.

Pete Brandow worked his pacer Racquet two heats on Tuesday, the first in 2:28 and the second in 2:26, cleverly.

There will be a stallion trotting race at the Petaluma today, the occasion being the opening of the new Steet car line.

It is currently reported that Direct, 2:23, will be placed in the stud next season, and his sire, Director, 2:17, will then be given an opportunity to lower his present record.

Jim L., 2:20¼, has already shown at Santa Rosa that he can easily beat his record. In the early part of this week he readily trotted a mile in 2:18¼.

Last Sunday Hickok drove Mr. Lathrop's pacer a mile in 2:19, the first half in 1:06. Hickok afterwards said he should like to match him against any pacer at present in the State for $5,000 a side, or more.

Mr. Thomas Rochford, of Visalia, has arrived at the Petaluma track with a string of trotters, the mostly admired being Free Trade by Princeps, dam Dawn by Belmont; second dam Midnight by Pilot Jr.

Secretary Baldwin, of the Fresno Association, notifies me that the only two entries received for the $20,000 purse were the nominations of E J. Baldwin and R. Porter Ashe.

Tom Williams this week purchased from Palo Alto Stock Farm a chestnut yearling filly by Flood, dam Glendew. She is a full sister to Geoffrey and the celebrated Guenn.

A. T. Hatch, the well-known fruit and wine grower, has at the Pleasanton track a stallion called Lenmar, by Admar out of a Gladiator mare, and judging from the glowing accounts I have had of him he should readily obtain a record well inside 2:25 this year.

Dr. Lathom says that the two-year-old filly by Dexter Prince, dam by Mambrino Wilkes, which he purchased for Senator Hearst, will be a nailer. He is on the lookout for a few more of that stamp.

Hankins and Corrigan have joined hands together. Fancy the Chicago stable and the West Side Park in partnership. I wonder what a man would draw to this pair, if he tried to fill.

The pacing stallion Brown Hal lowered the pacing stallion record at Cleveland on Wednesday last. The former "best time" was 2:13, but on this occasion half a second was knocked off, the time being 2:12½.

Keating & Lee's grey gelding Sensation has not as yet proven his ability to cope with the horses on the Eastern circuit. In the 2:21 class at Detroit he made a very poor showing, but he is improving every day.

George Taylor will undoubtedly ride for Mr. Pierre Lorillard next year. With McLaughlin to train and Taylor to ride, the famous cherry and black ought to be in the van pretty often next season.

W. M. Murry, of Sacramento, Cal., has sold to David Wilde, Kansas City, Mo., the chestnut gelding Beppo, three-year-old by Joe Hooker, dam Bell, and the bay gelding Ecarte, threee-year-old by Flood, dam Fanny Lewis, by Buckden. Price private.

Garrison, at Mr. Belmont's request, has given up riding at the Beach, and with the exception of the coterie who are in the swim, he won't be missed.

My genial young friend, Will G. Hay, of the Saginaw Driving Association, paid me a pleasant visit this week. Like all others who have enjoyed this salubrious climate, he had to return. He is just in time to attend the circuit meetings.

Next Monday the Rose string will arrive at Napa preparatory to beginning the summer campaign. The following comprise the outfit: Alcazar, Reverie, Dubec, Mista, Thor and Moco, a six-year-old maiden by Pasha.

Katie S., the black three-year-old daughter of Director and Alpha Medium, seems to have recovered from the attack of distemper, and though rather erratic at present, showed under favorable handling last Tuesday better than a 30 gait and good trotting, too.

If rumor is correct, Mr. Winters has left orders with his trainer to sell off all the thoroughbreds except El Rio Rey, if any decent price can be obtained for them. He has also left instruction that the great Norfolk—Marion colt, must not be allowed to start on any heavy track.

The horse-loving community at Oroville have had the race track, near that town, placed in shape for trotting, and almost every afternoon Amos Howard, L. H. Mead, Dick DeLancie, Major Biggs Jr., and many others can be seen exercising their speedy trotters.

The largest winners at the Chicago meeting for the first twenty five days, were Montana Stable (Noah Armstrong) $16,072, Theodore Winters $11,080 and the Chicago Stable $10,185. The Maltese Villa Stable, got away with $1,815. D. J. McCarty & Bro. $1,015, while the Hearst stable corraled the insignificent sum of $500.

Mr. George Haughton has left for Buenos Ayres with Dante, Hark, Belisarius II, Inguuder, and several other well-known performers on the English turf. Teddy Martin, the well-know light weight, will go with the stable. As I have said before, there is a ton of money for a good racehorse—first-class, not second—in Buenos Ayres.

It has been whispered around for several weeks that Andy McDowell has been driving his horses so fast that all of them would be broken down by the time that the racing season opened. But Andy has played cunning on the boys, and his stable is fit to trot for a man's life.

George McConnell of the McConnell station, has sold to Wilber Smith of Sacramento, a three-year-old filly by Sidney, dam a Chieftain mare, for $1,000.

How the owners have been figuring around within the past week trying to place their horses to the most advantage for the forthcoming meetings. The entries are all in now for a majority of the circuits, and within a few days it will be possible to determine whether judicious selections have been made or not.

The BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN will be represented at every meeting in the State of which we have any knowledge. Our aim will be to furnish correct accounts of every race that takes place in California.

Last Tuesday Mr. Dietz and several friends visited the Oakland track to see how Ringwood, the four-year-old son of Sidney, was going on, and at his owner's (Mr. Dietz') request he was given a couple of slow miles, about 2:28, and then sent right out, making the journey in 2:24.

Dan McCarty is making things hum at Fleetwood. Last week he drove Bedford in 2:28¾ and 2:25, St. David in 2:25½, Jim Farrell in 2:27¼, Kitty Wilkes in 2:28¾, and wound up by driving Hidalgo in 2:25½ and repeating in 2:17¼.

We have received official information from the Secretary of the Fresno Fair Association that the $20,000 running race has been declared off. The Directors are very likely to offer several good purses for thoroughbreds at the meeting, which will take the place of the two mile and repeat, although it is a sad disappointment to many that the great race has fallen through.

It is not often that one sees an artist like Goldsmith behind a runner in a trial, but last Wednesday he returned Buster's compliment and drove his runner with Mr. Valensin's Simmicolon. Buster in the heat, which was trotted in 2:29, drove the middle half in 1:09.

I had a very courteous visit several days ago from Mr. Renck, proprietor of the Turf, issued at Fresno, Cal. It is always pleasant to meet those who are working for the best interests of the turf, and it is to be hoped that Bro. Renck will keep on at the good work.

A. Woodland paper credits Mr. Salisbury with trying to buy Mr. Woodard's fast pacing mare Belle Button, for the sum of $5,000, Mr. S. says he wants to see what the mare can do on the circuit before he makes up his mind to purchase her. Belle is moving very fast, it being no trick for her to beat 2:20.

While the trotters are attracting so much attention the followers of the bang tail division must not forget that on August 1st the entries for the fall and spring meetings of the Pacific Coast Blood Horse Association will close with Secretary Culver at this office. Read the advertisement and prepare to make your entries.

Senator Hearst, who is enjoying life at the Hollywood, Long Branch, says that he believes that the only good jockeys are negroes and Irishmen. The negro, he says, is naturally a horseman. Put him astride a horse and in riding a race he doesn't know what fear is. The Irishman is all heart and soul, and if he does know what fear is his enthusiasm carries him to the front before he has had time to calculate the chances. And so Hearst says, "Give me an Irishman or a nigger every time, and I don't care much which comes first."

The Board of Directors of the Calaveras and Tuolumne Agricultural Fair Association met last Saturday in Sonora, and decided to hold their fair in Tuolumne County. J. H. Shine was elected Chairman; W. G. Jones, Secretary; and W. Dozier, Treasurer. A committee of five, viz, D. R. Oliver, L. Honey, O. Dolling, T. C. Birney and J. A. Goodwin, were appointed to select suitable grounds, and report on the same at the next meeting, on August 3rd, in Sonora.

Last Tuesday, at the Bay District Track, "Buster" drove Mr. Valensin's crack Habibi, the brown yearling filly by Valensin, 2·23, dam Ivy (sister to Shamrock, 2:25), grand dam Fern Leaf, dam of Gold Leaf, 2:15, pacer, three years old, several quarters at a nice gait; the last quarter worked by the speedy youngster was handily covered in 38 seconds, despite a break at the drawgate.

The misunderstanding existing between Mr. G. R. Buchanan, trainer, and Mr. D. J. McCarthy, owner, of the racehorse Sorrento, has ended in Buchanan's turning over the horses in the stable to their owner, says the Sportsman. Mr. Buchanan has long contended against racing Sorrento in his present condition, and as McCarthy declined to accept his advice, he concluded to resign rather than be held responsible by the public at large for the the very poor showing made by Sorrento in his recent races, he having fallen away completely from his usual form.

Some months ago Mr. Trestrail, of Victoria, Australia, came to this State with a lot of Clydesdale horses, which he disposed of at advantageous figures. On his return he took back six trotting stallions to sell to the Antipodians who fancy American stock, but the authorities refused to allow him to land his consignment at Sydney because he had not taken with him a clean bill of health for the horses before leaving San Francisco. The latest account says he had taken the stock by boat on to Melbourne, hoping that an entry might be effected there.

It would be very interesting to know how many persons stop at Dickey's on Saturdays and Sundays to refresh the inner man. A few days ago while resting from the effects of a long ride on the road, I watched carriage after carriage stop at the popular resort, and the Colonel had a pleasant word for each of the new comers, as he welcomed them on the broad platform surrounding the house. The wines, liquors and cigars are of the best, and it is a hard matter to beat the breakfast, luncheons and dinners procurable at the wayside hotel, corner of 6th avenue and D street. Horsemen especially, all call, for the genial proprietor is a perfect encyclopedia of equine knowledge, and can "talk horse" by the hour.

I desire to call attention to the advertisement of Calvin H. Frew, Esq., in this issue. The gentleman offers two standard bred youngsters for sale, a bargain. The first is Agnes Frew, sixteen months old, by Woodlake, he by Woodford's Mambrino. Woodlake's dam was Hager, she by Alexander's Abdallah. Hager's dam was by Downing's Bay Messenger The sire of Agnes Frew is Gay by John Bright, he by Goldsmith's Volunteer, sire of St. Julien, 2:11¼ and 27 others in the 2:30 list. The second colt is a foal only four months old, out of Gay; the sire is Alert by Atherton. The price at which these colts can be bought places them within the reach of almost every one.

Mr. Corbitt says that he has three of the get of Le Grand that will be in the list before the fall of 1890.

Does any one know how fast Mr. Dietz's pacer Longworth can go? A well posted horseman informed me this week that he will surely touch 2:15 before the leaves fade.

By Holly's entry in the first race at Salt Lake City fell by the wayside, and the players of the pool-box mourn for that which they have not.

Next week we will publish a short account of Bell Alta, about which there has been so many inquiries of late.

The State Fair number of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN will be the greatest literary treat for horsemen ever published. It will also be elegantly illustrated, and what proofs have already been received show that the pictures will surpass anything ever before attempted.

All horse owners and trainers visiting San Francisco are cordially invited to make our offices their headquarters. Letters and telegrams sent in care of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN will be promptly delivered.

"Knap" McCarthy has received an offer from Charlie McCormick, of Omaha, of $10,000 for the brown stallion Rajah. "Knap" wired McCormick in reply, stating that $12,000 would cause a change of ownership.

Dewey & Co., the publishers, have issued a very comprehensive work on "California Fruits," from the pen of Prof. Edward J. Wickson. The book was received too late for a review this week, but it will have due attention paid it in the near future.

Some persons wonder why it is that such accurate information regarding English events appear in these columns from time to time, but that is easily understood when the fact is known that a cousin of the late Fred Archer is in the employ of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN.

Mr. Marvin, Palo Alto's celebrated Superintendent, arrived at the Bay District Track last Wednesday with ten head of trotters, viz.: Del Mar (Electioneer—Sontag Dixie), and Pedlar, both two-year-old Electioneers; Sunol, 2:18 and Colma (Electioneer—Sontag Mohawk), three-year-olds; Palo Alto, 2:20¼, Ansel, 2:20, Express, 2:29½, Emeline, 2:27½, Arol and Lorita by Piedmont. They all look well, Sunol being as handsome as ever, while Palo Alto, who will go in the 2:20 class, seemed in very good trim. The stable will go from the Bay District to Napa.

Monroe Chief was foaled in 1870, and in 1880 obtained a record of 2:18½. McDowell is now working the grand old horse at the Bay District track, and if he stands up will start him in the free for all at the State Fair. When Mr. Salisbury sent Monroe Chief down to San Luis Obispo for stud purposes, Andy went with him and on the local track, which then was rough and very slow, drove him a quarter in 33 seconds. The local talent were very credulous, so the adept driver repeated in exactly the same time, several provincial watches making it less.

The special match race to-day between Frank Burke's Wanda and G. Valensin's Simmocolon should be a great attraction, as the horses are very evenly matched. The Menlo Park folks feel confident of winning, and the backers of the Pleasanton stable think that the new importation cannot lose. If Simmocolon makes a heat inside of 2:30 W. H. Wilson, of Cynthiana, Ky., will present Mr. Valensin with a handsome new sulky; whereas, if Wanda wins, Mr. Burke will be presented with an elegant gold watch by the owner of the dam of Wanda. It will be a great race.

Last Wednesday Mr. Corbitt and Johnny Goldsmith appeared at the Bay District track. When the track had dried a little Johnny handled the ribbons behind Sol Wilkes in a couple of trial heats. In the first heat Buster drove a runner with him. The quarter was passed in 37½, the half in :14¾, and the full mile in 2:29½. In the second Andy McDowell took the pole with Hazel Kirke, 2:30, Wilkes next and the runner outside. The quarter was made in 39, the half in 1:16, the three-quarters in 1:52, and the full mile in 2:30½. Had the gelding shown a better gait, Mr. Corbitt would have bought him, but as it is, he will probably stay with Brandow.

Wonders will never cease. Record after record is lowered and the end is yet afar off. Truly this promises to be a year of surprises, and already there have been several. The wonderful Axtell at Cleveland on Thursday last trotted against time for a purse of $2,500 and won it handily, making the circuit in the unprecedented time of 2:14¾, for a three-year-old. There is a strong probability from this, that before long, Maxey Cobb, with his 2:13¼ will be one of the "has beens." On the same day and at the same meeting, Guy was sent to beat his record of 2:12, and readily negotiated the distance in 2:10¾, the time of quarters being :32½, 1:05½, 1:38½, and 2:10¾. Jack, the largest money winner of last year, also reduced his time from 2:19½ to 2:15¾.

As Knap McCarthy's horses were about to be shipped from St. Paul an attachment was placed on Sir Archy, and he was left behind. It was a contemptible trick on the part of Mr. Thurston, as the horse has been there for two weeks, and the attachment could have been served without waiting until the last minute. As near as can be learned, the facts are about as follows: Two years ago Mr. Thurston placed the horse in the hands of John Doud, and authorized him to sell him for a stated price. Doud sold him, and Thurston got the purchase money. The horse was then considered no good. Mr. Thurston attached him at Detroit last season, and McCarthy gave a bond, with D. J. Campan as surety. When the case was called in the courts at Detroit, Mr. Thurston failed to appear, and the case was thrown out. It looks as if Thurston was trying to annoy the owners of the horse. McCarthy says if there is any law in this country he will make Thurston pay dearly for his funny business.

Valensin Stock Farm.

BY GRIM.

It was a source of much disappointment some weeks ago that I was unable to pay a long promised visit to Pleasanton, as the stories I had heard of the stock farms in that favored region were more on the order of the stories told in the Arabian Nights than that appertaining to the prosy news heard usually from the ordinary breeding establishments. Yearlings that could beat "thirty," two-year-olds that were prospective record breakers, a three-year-old that may in all probability win the Spirit stake of 1889, and four-year-olds that could beat Manzanita's record—all this and much more has been wafted on the winds from the luxurious valley in which is situated the Pleasanton stock farm and also the Valensin stock farm. My able assistant gave such glowing accounts of the location, grasses, climate, water, etc., on returning from Mr. Salisbury's that I was tempted to accept a long standing invitation from Mr. G. Valensin, and partake of his hospitality for a few days, and, at the same time, examine his stallions and brood-mares, the offspring of which have made his name famous from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

For many years the Valensin breeding farm was in Sacramento County, the present place being of less than two years' growth. In that short time a large hay field has been transposed from the ordinary home of the farmer into a perfect paradise, if a great horse haven may be so termed. The hundred and seventy acres are divided into ten fair-sized paddocks, with one large receptacle for hay placed between each two fields, the benefit of this being that where there are ten or a dozen mares in each enclosure there is liable to be much less trouble between the high-bred madams when the grass is short and they have to feed from the large ricks.

During the service season the matrons are divided around the different fields, each in turn being taken to the covering corral. When one of them refuses she is placed in a field close at hand, from where can be seen the other mares as they are brought in to pay their respects to the kings of the harem. In this way it is a very easy matter to tell when service is required by those who have already refused; on the contrary, when service has been accepted the mares are sent to the more remote paddocks until their turn once more arrives.

The place has been well fenced, excellent stables erected, with all the modern improvements, and additions are being constantly made. It is the intention of the proprietor to make this farm second to none in the country, and from the present appearance it will not take long to occupy that exalted position. There are many of the breeders throughout the United States who follow closely on certain blood lines, and feel it a sacrilege to deviate from the one beaten path, but it will be seen from an examination of the pedigrees of the mares at the Valensin Stock Farm that all the choice lines of the country are to be found here. On his return from the California combination sale in New York last spring Mr. Valensin paid a visit to Kentucky and procured quite a number of very fashionable fillies, bringing in new blood to mix with that of the great Sidney. The motto of the farm is, "We breed what the public want," the study being to please the prospective purchasers. It is a recognized fact that Livermore Valley hay is preferable to almost any raised in the State, and as the farm is not large enough to grow what is required, the entire acerage is kept for pasture, while hay is procured from the surrounding country.

The residential quarters are situated in a small grove of trees, the pathways, of which there are many, being lined with exquisite flowerbeds, which lend a charm and perfume to the surroundings that cannot be surpassed anywhere. I have often heard my host spoken of as a good entertainer, but no idea can be had of his hospitality until one has stretched legs under his mahogany. From a gastronomical point of view, commend me to the viands prepared for the guest at the Valensin Stock Farm, for there is always at hand some palatable dainty to tempt the most pronounced epicure. But there, we did not pay this visit to discuss savory dishes, but rather to let the world know what will appear in full in the forthcoming catalogue of this now celebrated breeding establishment.

Before starting on the mares, however, it will not be out of place to state that there is also a finely finished, three quarter mile track, where the young ones receive their initial work, and where the elders are put through the preparatory stages prior to a campaign. The turns are thrown up according to the very latest methods and from the most approved plans, in addition to which, the ground is of such a character, that it is extremely doubtful if there be a track of its size to be found in the entire country that can beat it for speed.

It may be surmised that attention was first paid to Sidney, of whom so much has been said and written. It seems almost superfluous to say that he is by Santa Claus 2:17¼ dam Sweetness 2:21¼, by Volunteer 55. Although Sidney has demonstrated his ability to pace fast, there are but very few sires who can show better trotting lineage, he being inbred three times to Hambletonian 10, through Volunteer, Strathmore and Edward Everett; once to Mambrino Chief 11, through Ericsson, and we also find the Harry Clay 45, cross, through the grandam of Sweetness. As a transmitter of speed he has not an equal at his age, being only eight years old. Notwithstanding his extreme youth, already there stand to his credit Adonis, 2:14¼, Gold Leaf, 2:15, Memo (trial), 2:20½, Sister V., who was sold last week for $8,000 on showing a 2:23 trial; St. Nicholas, three-year old trial after stud season 2:27¼; Ringwood, who is reeling off miles almost every day at the Oakland track in 2:25 and better; Longworth is also touching the same notch in exercise, and there are any quantity of youngsters that can show extraordinary work at both the trot and pace, two of the yearlings being especially worthy of mention, one owned by Mr. Valensin and the other by the Waters Stock Farm of Genoa Junction, Wis. It is confidently asserted that either of them can beat Norlaine's record, and I have it on the authority of Mr. Havey that the one he is driving, (property of Waters Stock Farm) can most positively lower 2:31½, bar accident. Fleet, who secured a yearling record of 2:36, is another of the promising ones, and although not acting kindly in her work at present, still it is presumed that before the end of the season she will be ready to show the wonderful speed for which she is noted.

Valensin, 2:23, by Crown Point, 2:24, dam Nellie Lambert, by John Nelson 187, is another of the noted stallions domiciled at the farm, whose performances are well known to all readers of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN. Owing to the accumulation of stock, this consistent performer will in all probability be taken to the New York salesroom in the spring of 1890, when the usual yearly sale occurs. Shamrock, 2:25, by Buccaneer, 2656, dam Fern Leaf, was at the Bay District track, where he is undergoing preparation to try and reduce his record, so consequently was not seen.

While in the East lately Mr. Valensin purchased the four-year-old Simmocolon by Simmons, 2:28, dam Colon, by Strathmore, 2nd dam Coral by Clark Chief 89, 3rd dam Cassia by Cassius M. Clay, Jr., 22. This well bred prince of royal blood has been transported to his new home, and shown such speed that he has also been sent to the Bay District track, where he will meet Wanda, a daughter of Eros, in a special match race to-day. He spins off miles at a 2:25 clip, which proves that he will prove a powerful factor in future, in the destinies of the Valensin Stock Farm.

Of the brood mares there are 49 all told, four of which are farmed. The following is a full list of the dainty damsels that grace this celebrated place:—

Maud R., ch m, foaled 1875, by Whipple's Hambletonian, dam by Geo. M. Patchen Jr. She has no foal this year, but has been bred to Simmocolon.

Lightfoot, b m, foaled 1870, by Flaxtail, dam Fanny Fern, by Irwin's Tuckahoe. She has a foal by Sidney, a big, fine, sturdy fellow, and has been bred to Simmocolon. Fanny Fern is the dam of Pride, yearling record 2:42½; two-year-old record 2:33. She is also the dam of Pearl, 2:30½. Lightfoot is a full sister to Fernleaf.

Cassneer, b m, foaled 1884, by Buccaneer, dam Miss Casserly, by Eugene Casserly. She has a nice filly foal by Sidney, and has been bred back.

Fernleaf, b m, foaled 1873, by Flaxtail, dam Fanny Fern, is a great producer, being the dam of Gold Leaf, 2:15 (third heat); Shamrock, three-year-old record 2:25; Ivy, three-year-old record 2:31½; Thistle, at two years old, half mile, 1:11; Rose Leaf, two-year-old, trial, 2:?5. She has at her side a magnificent bay horse colt by Sidney, a well put up youngster that should bring a large price from those who want foals from producing sires and dams.

Towhead, ch m foaled 1887, by Echo, dam s. t. b. thoroughbred. This mare is the dam of St. Nicholas, trial 2:27. She has lost her foal this year, and has been bred to Sidney.

Argona, b m foaled 1883, is by Algona, dam by Kentucky Prince, second dam by Goldsmith's Volunteer. She had no foal this year, but has been bred to Simmocolon.

Ivy, is a dark brown mare, foaled '82, by Buccaneer, dam Ferntail, by Flaxtail. She is the dam of a very fast yearling, who within a few weeks has shown a half mile in 1:18. Ivy has a foal by Sidney, and this year was bred to Simmocolon.

Santa Rita, brown filly, foaled 1886, by Sidney, dam Buccaneer, 2nd dam by Gen. McClellan. She was bred this year for the first time, to the cover of Simmocolon.

Sybil, br f, foaled 1886, by Sidney, dam Maud R. by Whipple's Hambletonian. As a two-year-old, she was given a quarter in 36 seconds. She has also been bred to Simmocolon.

Sultana, is a grey mare, foaled 1880, by Del Sur, dam Madame Ferguson by Stormy John. Madame Ferguson is the dam of Sir Guy 2:28½. The foal of this year lived but a short time, and she was bred to Simmocolon.

Jenny O. Jones, b m, foaled 1880, by Hubbard, dam s t b by General Taylor. Jenny has a likely looking foal at foot by Sidney, and was bred back this season.

Lurline, ch m foaled 1881, by Bell Alta, dam by Langford, 2nd dam by Belmont. As a three-year-old Lurline made 2;44 in a trial. She has been bred to Simmocolon.

Clara C. b m by Don Victor, dam by a son of Belmont, has a record of 2:38½. She had no foal this year, but has been bred to Sidney.

Variation is a ch f, foaled 1887, by Allandorf, dam Variety by Orange Blossom, 2nd dam by Middletown, he by Hambletonian 10. This is a remarkably fine looking filly, and is one of the lot purchased from Dr. Herr, of Lexington. She has been bred to Sidney.

Alice C., b f, foaled 1887, by Wilkes Boy 2:24½, dam Primrose, by Mambrino King, 2nd dam Dolly Varden, by Consternation. Alice C. has also been bred to Sidney.

The next on the list is an unnamed filly by Red Wilkes 1749, dam by Mambrino Time, 2nd dam by Green Mountain Morgan, 3rd dam by Cripple's Hambletonian. This handsome young filly has been bred to Sidney.

Florence Wilkes, b f, foaled 1886, by Red Wilkes, dam by Curtis' Hambletonian, 2nd dam by Pilot, Jr. She has also received the embraces of Sidney.

Mattie Strathmore, ch m, foaled 1882, by Strathmore, dam by Alexander's Norman, 2nd dam by Mambrino Chief. This is a particularly good-looking mare, and if appearances are not deceptive this will be a great brood-mare. She has been bred to Sidney.

Ellen Tomlinson, br m, foaled 1885, by Dictator, dam by Mambrino Patchen, 2nd dam by Mount Sovereign, 3rd dam by Mark Time, 4th dam by Hunt's Commodere. This mare was sent to Sidney.

Mary, b m, foaled 1884, by Buccaneer, dam Towhead by Echo. The yearling filly out of Mary was sold at the last New York sale for $3,000. She has been bred to Sidney.

Venus, ch m, foaled 1875, by Capt. Webster, dam by Shenendoah 926. As the dam of Adonis, Venus naturally has somewhat of a reputation, and she well deserves it, for there are but few dams that can show a three-year-old with a record of 2:14¼. She had no foal this spring, but has been bred to Sidney.

Faustina, br m, foaled 1884, by Crown Point, 2:24, dam Dell Foster, by A. W. Richmond; 2nd dam by Geo. M. Patchen Jr. Faustina is the dam of the fast yearling by Sidney, owned by the Waters Stock Farm, of Genoa Junction, Wis. She was bred this year to Sidney.

Miss Roy, blk m, foaled 1884, by Buccaneer, dam, the dam of Allan Roy. She has been bred to Sidney.

Madge, br m, foaled 1884, by Princeton, dam Lightfoot. She also has been bred to the premier stallion.

Maud V. is a brown mare, foaled 1884, by Buccaneer, dam Maud R. by Whipple's Hambletonian. This elegant matron has a foal by Sidney and was bred back.

Nettie Lambert, a chestnut mare is one of the producers who has established a name for herself. Foaled in 1873, by John Nelson, dam by Fisherman, she has given birth to Valensin 2:23, and also to Sister V., the $8,000 mare who has no record. Nettie has been mated to Sidney.

Highland Lass, blk m, foaled 1884, is by Buccaneer, dam by Arthurton. She has a fine foal by Sidney and was bred the same way this year. The yearling of Highland Lass is a pretty fast one, for she not only begets speed, but when scarcely twelve months old herself, trotted a quarter in 41 seconds.

Flight, dark brown mare, foaled 1879, record 2:29, by Buccaneer, dam Prairie Bird by Flaxtail. She has a magnificent foal by Sidney and was bred to him again. Flight is the dam of Fleet, yearling record 2:35; Matilda V., trial 2:35, and of Linda, that was recently sold in Chicago by D. J. McCarty for $5,000.

Flirt is the next on the list to claim attention, as she is also a producer. She is by Buccaneer, dam Nahaske Belle (dam of Fawn, 2:30½) by Flaxtail. Flirt is the dam of Memo, trial as a three-year-old 2:20½; George V., who showed a trial at two years old of 2:35, and Muscadine, a speedy yearling, capable of putting in quarters in 40 seconds.

Miss Casserly, ch m, by Eugene Casserly, dam by Whipple's Hambletonian, has the merit of giving great individuality to her foals, so much so, that Robert Bonner gave $3,000 for one of them lately at auction, and remarked after she had been knocked down to him, that he was extremely fortunate in getting her for such a price, as he would willingly have gone to $10,000 for such a filly. Miss Casserly at present has a foal by Sidney and was bred again to him.

Young Highland Mary is a dark brown, by Arthurton, dam by David Hill. This is the dam of Sidney Smith, the property of Mr. Shultz, of Parkville, who reports the youngster very fast. Mary has been bred to Sidney.

Rose Leaf, b m, foaled 1883, by Buccaneer, dam Fernleaf, has one of the best filly foals of the year at her side, by Sidney. The little maiden is a perfect beauty, and if she carries out her present promise, will be one of the best ever raised by Mr. Valensin. She has been bred back.

Juno, b m, foaled 1884, by Buccaneer, dam Venus (the dam of Adonis). The wonderful pacing blood of the old mare is plainly seen in a foal which Juno has at foot. The youngster has plenty of bone and muscle and is of such proportions that it will take a lot of work to break him down. As Sidney was the sire of this little marvel, Juno was bred back.

Dell Foster, br m foaled 1876, by A. W. Richmond, dam by Geo. M. Patchen Jr. Dell has a foal by her side by Sidney, and was bred again to him this year.

Crown Point Maid, b m foaled 1882, by Crown Point, dam by Overland; 2d dam by Geo. M. Patchen Jr. She also has a foal by Sidney.

Surprise, br m, foaled 1882, by Abbottsford, dam by young Kentucky Hunter has a nice horse colt at her side by Sidney and again received his embrace this spring.

Dagmar is a chestnut mare, foaled 1875, by Whipple's Hambletonian, dam the Ralston Mare, has been bred to Sidney.

Belle Grand, ch f, foaled 1887, by Le Grand, dam by Arthurton, has shown a half mile in 1:16 and gone the full course in 2:38. She also has been bred to Sidney.

Hometta, ch m, foaled 1882, is by Abderdeen, dam Kentucky Central, (who as a four-year-old got a record of 2:31). This is a well put up brood mare, and should make her mark as a producer of speed. She was sent this year to the cover of Sidney.

Maye, b m foaled 1882, by Newland's Hambletonian, her dam being a full sister to Bell Alta. Her foal of this year died, but she was sent again to Sidney.

Beauty, 2:32½, blk m by Ethan Allen Jr., has been bred to the premier stud.

Gitania, b m, foaled 1883, by Crown Point, dam by Crighton. This mare is the dam of a colt sold to Mr. Van Gordon which is claimed to be very fast. She is in foal to Sidney.

Lady Hannah, ch m foaled 1882, by Arthurton, dam by Langford. Lady Hannah is the dam of a two-year-old, owned by Andy McDoweil, that can show a quarter in 35 seconds. She is in foal to Sidney.

Oak Grove Belle, ch m, foaled 1878, is by Arthurton, dam Henrietta (trial 2:21) by Bell Alta, 2nd dam by Peacock. She has a good foal by Sidney, and is again in foal to him.

Belle Patterson is a rather ancient matron, but still looks well. She is by Belmont, dam by Hiatoga. Belle is the dam of Vengeance (2:31½ to cart), and also of Pauline, 2:34, and Dom Pedro, 2:36.

The mares farmed this year are Patti by Nutwood, Centennial Belle by Woodburn, a Mambrino Wilkes mare and a good looking daughter of the Grand Moor.

After the inspection of the mares a visit was paid to the Pleasanton stock farm, owned by Mr. Salisbury. At the request of Mr. Valensin, many of the horses were brought out, the stallion Director drawing favorable comment from all present. As all the campaign horses had been removed to the Bay District Track, we lost the chance of seeing them, but were amply repaid for the ride with what was shown us. An early morning start from the Valensin farm enables us to catch the 7 o'clock train at Pleasanton, and at 9 we are once more at the office, ready for a week's business and much benefited by the Pleasanton trip.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 28, 1889.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—Once more I ask for a little space in your valuable paper, as I have read and heard the different ideas upon the present standard-bred animals. Now I would like to give my opinion of the standard, of its good and bad qualities. I would say that the standard is here to stay. It makes little differerence whether it meets or pleases the views of individual breeders or not; it is necessary to have some line of demarcation between stock that is trotting bred, and stock that is not, and of course, every breeder of any experience knows the advantage of breeding in the standard. There are a great many farmers and young breeders, that are engaged in the business, that do not fully understand the matter, and it is for their benefit I now write. A stallion or mare that is standard-bred is worth at least double and in many instances three times as much as a stallion or mare equally as well bred in other respects, but not standard-bred. In many parts of the country you cannot sell a stallion for breeding purposes at all unless he is standard-bred. If therefore you are breeding for the market it is evident that you must breed the goods that will meet the demands that the buyers want when they go to the market. By breeding to a horse not within the standard, you breed something which the buyers do not want, instead of breeding what they do want. This is not precisely the way to make money when you breed to a non-standard stallion, no matter how good you may regard his pedigree. You do not advance one step toward improvement for the benefit of the farmer or the young breeder. When a stallion colt is foaled, there is no more improvement in his breeding, but you can take a mare, a thoroughbred, and improve and breed her up to the standard. Let me illustrate this for a moment. Say you have a mare by Belmont, (Williamson's) Rifleman (a son of imp. Glenco) or Norfolk, Joe Daniels, Hubbard, Vandel, Bonny Scotland, Grey Eagle, American Eclipse, and other thoroughbred blood; that is a good foundation, and mixes well with the trotting family.

Breed her to a stallion like Sidney, Memo, Steinway, Electioneer, Mountain Boy, and co-breed the filly produce of this to a standard horse; the issue, if a female, is a standard mare; if a male, it is, of course, only fit for a gelding. The filly thus produced, if bred to another standard horse, will produce a standard horse. Now say that the above gelding trots in 2:23¼, and the next horse or filly the dam has is standard, the same case, should the thoroughbr mare be bred to Electioneer, Memo or Sidney, and her produce gain a record of 2:29¾, the produce, male or female, will then be standard on merit. In breeding to non-standard horses you are at rest, remaining stationary, while the world is moving on, and you get left, and you will see in time you are moving backwards; in breeding to a standard horse out of a producing dam or grandam, you are keeping up with the times, and you will be a member of the royal families. Now you see a stallion bred, say like this, James, record 2:22, by Red Wilkes, 1st dam by Robert McGregor; 2nd dam by Happy Medium. Now this is a standard bred horse, and some would say, "I will breed my mare to him." Now, for me, I would sooner breed my mare to a horse that is bred the same way, if he could show me a good 2:40 gait, good shoulders and stifle action. If his dam or grandam is a producer of uniform speed, this horse will produce more of speed than the former horse with his record of 2:22 and breeding, and his dam or grandam never produced but himself with speed. I would put a brood mare trotter to James, record of 2:22, but I would not buy or breed to a stallion (full brother to James) unless James' brother showed that he himself was a trotter of merit. I remember when Palo Alto came out in his two-year-old form and trotted a trial in 2:23. I have heard horsemen say, "that is the horse to breed to," and asked me how I would like to breed to him. "Not until he goes on a little farther and shows me that he comes up to the standard, and his dam proves a uniform producer of speed." Some of the horsemen would say, "You are prejudiced," and want to put the hard gloves on with me, just because I did not think as they did. Now, I would breed to him. "Why?" Because his dam has produced two others that have been out and performed the great act by trotting in 2:23 and 2:29¾, and he now represents two grand brood mares in his veins.

Now take Ansel, record 2:20, by Electioneer. He is standard, and I like his breeding, his dam being by Lexington. Now I would rather pay $300 for his services if his dam had produced one or two others that have beat 2:30, than pay $100 for his services at the present time; and if he had all this he would have been sold last winter, if his dam had produced other speed beside himself. Oh, how I would like a mare, sister to him for a brood mare. She would be standard and bred to a standard horse. The produce would be standard, and the kind that would do for a poor man to take to market. (The same with Axtell, three-year-old record 2:15½). I have been asked how much Axtell was worth. My answer was $30,000 if sound, and $75,000 if his dam or grandam was a producer of another with a record of 2:20 or better. I don't want breeding, or record alone, for a stock horse. Out of a producing dam or grandam is the kind I want, and then the record will not hurt. You will hear some say when they see a mare trot in 2:25 or so, or a mare that has been trotting for years, "Oh, how I would like her for a brood mare." She is not up to the standard, only bred on one side, and a record of 2:15 or 2:16. Now let this mare or these two mares be out of a mare that has produced other ones with records then the chances are good to get something that you can buy when you go to the market. But sometimes in a persons life you will see some of the old speedy turf mares produce speed, but it is very rare, however the next generation may do better. If we would do as some say, that is, not breed to anything without record, we would not have a Dexter, Goldsmith Maid, St. Julien, Guy, Maud S., Jay-Eye-See, Sunol, Axtell, but all these are standard bred and from speed producing families that breed and train on. Now, dear reader, you must not look back over the poor opportunity that I have had and ask, as you will be asked, "What has the writer ever done toward producing the speedy animal?" I have done little towards doing good, and my time has yet to come, and time tells. Although my results may continue to be moderate, you must not do as I have done, or perhaps may be compelled to do, but do as I say. This will be the best way for you to judge, the best way for your own, and for the interests of this great State. Adding all the time to the value of your stock and vastly increasing the possibilities of its value if you are breeding for the market or otherwise. You will not be deceived into breeding to the non-standard stallion by a showy appearance or good gait, or both combined. If the stud groom or owner tells you that his horse will trot next year better than 2:30, or that he will have a colt that will beat 2:30 next year, and that the horse will be standard next year, just tell him that you will wait until this happens, before you breed to him, for it may never occur, his horse may break a leg before he or his colts beat 2:30; while on the other hand he may not have the speed capacity to trot in 2:30, nor yet the colts that he expects to beat 2:30 with. You are taking chances enough by breeding to a horse that is standard and out of producing dams and with records, without breeding to a stallion without either record, standard, or out of producing dams. But when the non-standard horse beats 2:30, or his dams, or he himself has produced two trotters with records of 2:30 or better, then it will be safe to breed to him, and unless he comes up to the standard it is safer to let him alone, and breed to a horse that is standard, and breeds into speed producing lines, for you will find it impossible to get syrup out of vinegar. Yours

Choice Dogs Imported.

C. E. Page of this city received a pair of Irish fox-hounds yesterday, says the Stockton Independent of Wednesday last. They came direct from Cardiff, Wales, on a sailing vessel. They were sent by General W. H. Kirby, of the British army, to his nephew, Martin Kirby, of Mariposa county. The dogs are very ordinary looking, about medium size, with clean cut heads, sleek hair, white with black and tan patches. The male dog is a very friendly animal, but his mate is unfriendly to strangers. Though they are light of build they are very tenacious and pugnacious in disposition, and are said to be more than matches for coyotes. Mr. Kirby is engaged in raising Angora goats, which are greatly ravaged by wolves, and he will soon as possible raise a pack of terriers to kill the animals. His place is about 100 miles from Stockton, and Mr. Page will take the dogs to him on his next trip. A fine Scotch terrier which was sent to Mr. Page, failed to arrive, having been confiscated, probably by some of the ship's crew on the voyage.

[The Independent probably intended to say fox-terriers, not fox-hounds. One would think terriers rather small to cope with coyotes.—KEN. ED.]

Mr. F. B. Norton, of this city, recently received from Rockton, Wis., a five year old pointer bitch, of which he will send a full description next week.

Mr. De Mott writes that five of the Harold—Miss Druid litter of English setters, whelping of which is noted in the kennel news, have died, leaving five fine dog pups of the litter alive, all of which are in good condition.

Several inquiries for good collies have come to this office recently from this city and two from Los Angeles. Those having such animals might well advise us in relation to them.

Mr. J. M. Bassford Jr., writes: "Lets camp out at the next field trial, it beats all hotels." We hope others will indicate their preferences as to the meeting.

Mr. Robert Bruce, of the firm of Balfour, Guthrie & Co., city, recently imported from England, via the clipper ship Langdale, Capt. J. McAllister, a very fine skye terrier bitch, correct in size, color and coat.

The California Kennels are well stocked at present with young English setters, their brood bitches, Janet, Enid, Sunlit, Miss Druid and Sweetheart having presented thirty-eight youngsters during May, June and July, twenty-four being dogs. In breeding none can be better, and if possible we would own one of the Loadstone-Sweetheart litter, and think it cheap at a hundred dollars.

The parents of Mr. Henry Wormington, whose departure for England is noted elsewhere, have lived in Worcester, the father for more than eighty-five years and the mother for about as long. Mr. Wormington, Sr., has always been a devoted sportsman, and in his seventy-eighth year was good for five out of six partridges on the wing. A farmer, and living upon the farm cultivated by his father, the old man is a type of the hale hearty class of men which best represents England.

Judge C. N. Post writes from Sacramento that he finds inexpressible relief in having most of his English setters away from home at Mr. De Motts kennels. The dogs are better in health and there is less likelihood of fatality among them, because they have ample room for exercise, as well as a more suitable climate for the puppies than that of Sacramento.

Mr. Will Kittle recently presented to Mr. Will Golcher, a handsome Cocker spaniel puppy out of old Gift, that embodies about as much beauty and sense as can be imagined. If the dogs lives another good pointer man will likely drift in his affection, and divide his sport between pointers and cockers.

Mr. Henry Wormington of this city, a notable greyhound fancier and coursing man, leaves on Thursday next, together with his younger daughter, Miss Alice, for a few months visit to Worcestershire, Eng, that city being his objective point. Mr. Wormington has resided in California for seven years, and in that time has drawn around him a large circle of warm friends, who will be pleased to hear from him while away through the columns of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN.

That sterling old pointer Beautiful Queen, owned by Joe Bassford, was recently bred to Mr. Wm. Schreiber's Mountain Boy, and about July 18th whelped three bitch puppies. Mr. Bassford was away at the time and on returning missed Queen, and on looking for her she was found hidden in the brush near the house with her pups, two of which were dead. The loss of the puppies is to be regretted. The breeding of Queen to Mountain Boy was done in the hope of getting superior hunting dogs. Neither Queen nor Mountain Boy are ideal bench show animals, but both have good noses, lots of bird sense and plenty of quality. It is to be hoped that the breeding will be repeated.

Mr. D. A. Leonard, through whose endeavors the field trialers at Bakersfield are furnished with horses and wagons each year, called at this office on Tuesday last, full of interesting stories about the recent fire there. Mr. Leonard states that the new Arlington Hotel will be ready for guests by December 1st, and there will be no lack of accommodations for the sportsmen in January. Mr. Leonard was fortunate in losing nothing by the fire, although it began just across a street from his residence. Ed. Lechner sent word by Leonard that he was still on deck and ready for all comers. The Knights of the Trigger will soon be rehabilitated, and within a year things will have resumed their prosperous tenor.

Several exhibitors at the last bench show of the Pacific Kennel Club have written to ascertain when the accounts of the show will be adjusted and prizes paid. If any prizes are unpaid, it must be because the winners were overlooked. As we understand it, the club office was kept open for a week or more to enable winners to call and receive their winnings. The monthly meeting of the club occurs next week, and at that time all matters relative to the show will be canvassed. If those who have not yet had their winnings will write immediately to the Secretary, Jas. E. Watson, Box 1838, San Francisco, it will facilitate business.

An opportunity was afforded the other day to see the pointer bitch Wanda, owned by Mr. G. H. T. Jackson of this city, and which won third in light weight bitches at the P. K. C. show in May. Wanda has very much improved in coat and brightness of color since the show, and is a very fine-looking pointer. She shows particularly good quality, is of a broody stamp, and should produce first-raters, if crossed with a rather rangy and biggish dog. Even her head seems much finer since the bitch has been improved in condition and coat. She needs a lot of exercise to keep her right, and should be run in the next all-aged stake of the Pacific Coast Field Trial Club.

A prominent sportsman of Saginaw City, Mr. W. G. Hay, who was in San Francisco in April last, returned for a few days during the week. He reports his dogs to be in good condition, and will run two youngsters in the Pacific Coast Field trials Derby of January, '91. If more Eastern sportsmen could know the sport in store for them if they could attend our field trials there would certainly be a good representation of them each year. January shooting east of the Mississippi is rather raw work. Here it is done under most delightful conditions of temperature and weather. Mr. Hay met Mr. Harvey McMurchy in Syracuse, N. Y., a few weeks ago, and was shown through the gun factory of Mr. L. C. Smith. He describes the plant as a very extensive and perfectly appointed one, and is quite enthusiastic about the line of finished guns shown him. Mr. McMurchy was the same genial, courteous man at home that he is always found to be when on his business trips.

Mr. Eugene J. Roy (San Francisco) claims the name Shaun Rhue for an Irish Red setter dog, whelped May 18, 1889, by Nat Glencho (Glencho-Maid)—Red Fanny (Smutt-Magg). Bred by J. C. Nattrass, Seattle.

On Wednesday morning last, at 6 o'clock A. M., a police officer of Sergeant Flander's watch in the Western Addition, called at the house of Mr. William Schreiber, with the statement that a dog answering the description of the lost pointer Nestor had been seen in the sand hills toward Black Point. Mr. Schreiber immediately dressed and set out in search of the animal, and the story as he tells it is decidedly interesting. Blocks after blocks of unimproved land, covered with poison oak and lupin were traversed, and a good many dogs evidently strays, discovered, but only after several hours of hard climbing about among the sand dunes did Mr. Schrieber ley eyes upon Nestor. The dog had made a lair in a sheltered spot and his condition indicated access to food from some source. He was very shy and was caught with difficulty. Examination after he was caught showed that one of the toes of a forefoot had been broken. Mr. Schreiber was pleased, as well he might be, at regaining his grand little pointer. A finer, more level mover we do not remember to have seen, and at the last field trials Joe Bassford expressed the belief that Nestor was the best moving pointer he had ever seen.

ATHLETICS.

Athletic Sports and Other Pastimes.

Edited by Arphippus.

SUMMARY.

The new training grounds of the California Amateur Athletic Club at Harbor View are about finished, and the work at the Olympic Club's new grounds is progressing rapidly, so that in a very short space of time the out-door athletes will have no cause to grumble about the want of some place to train. Below, under their respective headings, will be found the doings of the athletes, wheelmen, swimmers, etc.

RUNNERS, WALKERS, JUMPERS, ETC.

The swimming race on July 26th, for a purse of $250, at Crescent Beach near Boston, between John A. Leavitt and Thomas McClosky, was won by Leavitt. Time, 13 minutes and 10 seconds.

On the same day at Boston at the Irish National games, J. Fitzpatrick broke the world's record in a running high jump, clearing 6 feet 4¾ inches.

At a meeting of the Executive Committee of the Amateur Athletic Union held at New York on July 26th, a committee of three was appointed to confer with the National Association in regard to amalgamating that Association with the Athletic Union. W. C. Dohm's half-mile record of 1:55¼, and the ten-second record for 100 yards made by L. Carey and V. E. Schifferstein were accepted.

McArthur, Hill and Cooley will start from scratch in the mile run on September 9th, and as the three men are so evenly matched it would be exceedingly hard to conjecture which one of the trio will come in first.

It is expected that there will be a large field of competitors in the walk, and Jarvis will need to train hard to capture first place, as, doubtless, owing to his good performance at the late champion games, he will be heavily handicapped.

Peter W. McGlade will probably represent the U. A. C. in some of the short distance races.

The out-door members of the C. A. A. C. think that a trainer should be present daily at the Harbor View grounds to rub them down after exercising, and to give them pointers as to how they should train.

Whelan is one of the most promising runners in the C. A. A. C., and should give a good account of himself at the initial games of the club

A. W. Foster of the same club is keeping himself in good trim, and it would not surprise us to hear of his breaking the hurdle record at the championship games of the C. A. A. C.

Rumor has it that the U. A. C. will produce another "dark horse" on Admission Day Judging from the present state of affairs, the O. A. C. will hardly have a chance to hang the championship penant for '90 in their "trophy hall."

E. C. Sachs, the promising young runner of the C. A. A. C. is suffering from a sprained knee, and will not be able to train for the members' handicap meeting next month.

On Sunday last, at the Oakland race track, Henry Audefred, an Oakland amateur runner, defeated C. L. Morrow, a professional runner from Nevada County, in a match race of one hundred yards, for $20 a side Time, 11½ seconds. Being dissatisfied at the result, Morrow again challenged his man to run him a race of one hundred and fifty yards, for a similar stake. The Oakland boy took up the defy, and again defeated the professional. Time, 16¼ seconds. It is claimed that over $500 was lost on the defeated runner.

A match race of one hundred yards between two professional runners was decided at Santa Rosa on last Sunday. The time given by the timekeeper was 9¾ seconds. This was a good guess, and we think the timekeeper could make a fortune in the East. His watch must be a dandy.

The track at the new grounds of the O. A. C. will be at least three seconds faster than the track at the Fourteenth and Center street grounds, Oakland. This is good news for the athletes, and several records will certainly go under on September 9th.

"A San Francisco correspondent informs us that J. Jarvis of Liverpool, at one time champion of England, won the one mile walking race at the championship sports in connection with the Pacific Coast Amateur Athletic Association, on the 30th ult. Jarvis led all the way, and won by nearly 200 yards in 11 minutes 11 3-5 seconds. In a private letter Jarvis states that the track, being composed of soil and sand, is of a slow nature, and that he can travel as fast as ever."

Jarvis evidently forgot to state that neither of the local champions were in condition and that if they had been he would not have won by 200 inches. However, he will find to his surprise that he will not have such an easy thing in the next walk.

THE WHEELMEN.

A bicycle tournament will take place at Grass Valley on the 22nd of August. Several of the local riders will take part in the proceedings.

Fred C. Clift of the Alameda Scorchers has already started in to train, and feels confident of winning a few "Grass Valley" medals.

The local wheelmen are all busy preparing for coming events.

Charley Fonda is still suffering from the effects of the accident he met with at Stockton on the 4th, and the doctor tells him that it will be dangerous for him to race again, owing to the fracture of his knee-cap.

Unless the San Francisco and Oakland wheelmen take more interest in the proposed meeting at San Jose on September 9th, the affair will probably fall through.

R. H. Holroyd expects to capture the next novice's race. If he attends strictly to training his chance of success is very good.

IN THE SURF.

For the past couple of weeks the weather has been anything but warm, and in consequence the surf-bathing establishments were only poorly patronized.

The Crystal and Palace baths are doing a big business just at present.

The managers of these two bath houses should make new rules forbidding bathers from diving off the galleries. The water in the tanks is entirely too shallow to admit of high divi g.

A young lady well known in society, indulges daily in a dip at the Shelter Cove Baths. She generally swims out to the buoy, anchored an eighth of a mile from shore.

The Alameda baths were well patronized last Sunday. At the Terrace baths an unusually large number of people watched the frolics of the swimmers.

AT THE OARS.

Several amateur crews put out from Tiburon and Sausalito on Sunday last. The oarsmen all seem to like these places for a nice smooth spin, the water, inshore, is generally calm and even.

A good many of the crews belonging to the Ariel Rowing Club were out on the bay on Sunday.

The Station B, Post Office crew took their usual Sunday spin. This crew consists of John Larkey, Lewis Nunan, L. Anger, Henry Tarek and Eugene Flanders (captain).

The South Ends have not yet given up the cup won by the Ariels last 4th of July.

It is thought that the Society of California Pioneers will offer a valuable trophy for competition amongst the different clubs on Admission Day.

CLUB JOTTINGS.

The Pacific Athletic Club will hold its next exhibition on August 15th. An interesting programme will be arranged for that occasion.

Now that there are so many "cross country" teams in the field, it would be a capital idea to have them all come together and hold a "cross country" championship.

The G. G A. C. athletes will have the privilege of training at the Bay District track for the present. The managers of the club have been unable to find grounds nearer town.

The membership of the California Crib Club is now over a thousand.

Inside of a couple of years the P. C. A. A. A. will be one of the strongest athletic organizations in America.

The Directors of the P. A. C. wishes it to be understood that no brutal prize fights will be tolerated within their rooms. The club was started for the purpose of upholding manly sports, both in and out-door.

An effort to start an Irish Athletic Club in this city will be made in the near future. Only native born Irishmen will be eligible to membership. There are any amount of native born Irish athletes in San Francisco, and a first-class club will no doubt be organized.

In order to defray some of the expenses of building new training grounds, the O. A. C. will hold an in-door tournament within a couple of months. The tournament will last two days. We would recommend that the Mechanic's Pavilion be hired for the occasion. On the first night a handicap athletic meeting could be held, and such games as running, walking, jumping, etc., would constitute a good programme; the different winners to receive certificates instead of medals. On the second evening a programme of boxing, wrestling, etc., could be given. A handsome sum would be realized from such exhibitions, and the public would receive full value for their money.

The Pacific Athletic Club field team held its first cross-country run on the 28th of July at Fruitvale. The run was enjoyed to its full extent by the many members of the club. The boys started from Fruitvale and ended the run at Mr. T. Clipper's ranch, where that gentleman received them in truly sporting style. It is rumored that Pop Benjamin, the genial Secretary of the Club, who is training on the quiet on account of his avoirdupois of 265 pounds, did not show up in the run, but was seen tugging towards the summit of Tamalpias. The heat was extreme, and at the last accounts it is claimed that he had melted. His many friends would like to know if he is still training under the watchful eye of his mentor "Old Joe," if so, it is thought that he will challenge Teddy Culin at even weights. The contest would be a great one.

The Atheneum Athletic Club will not place a team in the field on Admission Day, as some of their best men are at present back East.

Mr. C. Giry, president of the club and the first organizer of it, is one of the most successful and energetic sporting men of this city and it is due to his great efforts that the Pacific Athletic Club has grown to such an extent.

He has organized a club totally unlike other ones, and has by his kindness and sociability among the members, gained a host of friends whom we hope will stand by their young president and by the flag of one of the best institutions formed.

He is known among the athletes of this city, as one of the cleverest and most scientific boxers, and it is hoped that his pupils will show up in good form in coming tournaments.

All that we wish is success to the Pacific Athletic Club and to Mr. C. Giry.

The Pacific Athletic Club will hold its monthly exhibition on Thursday, August 15, 1889, at the Club rooms, 1630 Market street. It will be one of the best ever witnessed on this coast. The programme is as follows:

FOUR ROUND BOUTS.

Neal Sullivan vs. Joe Hesketh.
McCormack vs. W. Kennedy.
P. Curry vs. Stone.
Palmer vs. Edgar.

HIGH JUMPING.

C. C. Johnson and Phil. Moody.

COLLAR AND ELBOW WRESTLING.

Professor W. Figerald and pupil.
M. Figerald is teacher of the club.

Four round settos between two midgets for the Shadow-Weight Championship.

The main feature of the evening will be a scientific contest between Charles Ell of the Pacific Athletic Club and Weston for the bantam-weight of the Pacific Coast.

Exercises will begin at 7:30 o'clock.

C. GIRY, President.

MISCELLANEOUS.

W. H. Taylor, Jr., of the California Lawn Tennis Club, who recently won the championship of the Pacific Coast at Hotel del Monte, Monterey, Cal., is seriously thinking of entering for the championship at Newport, to see how his game will bear comparison with the Eastern cracks. Last fall he defeated C. A. Chase of Chicago, in this city. As Mr. Chase was not in his best form then it would not be fair to judge from that.

The committee who have charge of the new training grounds of the O. A. C. should not forget to have a band stand erected on some part of the grounds, where it will not obstruct the view of the audience.

The good old game of foot-ball seems to have been neglected of late by our local athletes. It is indeed a great pity that this very interesting pastime should be allowed to rest in oblivion, as a good game is always watched with great interest by the audience. With so many promising athletic organizations in our midst it is to be hoped that the game will be revived during the coming season.

We do not see why the P. C. A. A. A. does not try to induce the leading societies of this city to follow the example of the Eastern socities by having a regular programme of games at their annual picnics. Such an improvement would most assuredly tend to excite more interest in picnics and a much better crowd of people would patronize them.

Hand ball seems to be all the craze now a days amongst the members of the O. A. C. The ball court in the gymnasium seldom if ever gets a rest. The ball fiends may be seen practicing there morning and evening.

A handball court will be erected in the new exhibition hall of the C. A. C. soon.

Mr. E. Tilley, who will be remembered by Olympics as one of the "sticklers" at the Cornish wrestling tournament a year ago, is in San Francisco, doing the elegant as gracefully as a two hundred and thirty pounder can do it. He says he could wrestle as well as ever if he could only train off a hundred pounds or so of too, too solid flesh.

ROD.

Bay fishing on Sunday last was not as good as on the former Sunday, still some good catches were made.

For smelt fishing the water was rather a little too muddy, and the wharf anglers were disappointed in their expectations.

At California City, Angel Island, Alcatraz and Kershaws Point only a few catches were made, but the fish that were caught were all large.

Some very large green codfish have recently been captured at Lime Point. The best fishing in this neighborhood may be had in the vicinity of the fog whistle. Here fish weighing as much as twenty pounds have been hooked from time to time, but the tides prevent a good many people from going there.

Judge James W. Bicknell.

One of the most genuine anglers known to us was Judge Bicknell who died in Stanislaus County, on June 27th last. He was ripe in years and experience, being a learned man in the books, and a wise one. Few lives are more varied than his, and few men preserve to seventy-six, the purity of their very youthful days as did the kindly old friend, whose death brings vividly to mind all his many gentle virtues. A Tennesseean by birth, the Judge was a veteran of the Mexican War, coming to California after the close of that episode. He mined for a time as did almost all others, but, not being lustful for gain, and possessing the implicit confidence of his fellow citizens, in 1854, he was put into public office where he remained pretty much all of the rest of his life, passing from a County Clerkship to the place of County Judge, which he filled with eminent ability, and absolute integrity.

When he put off the ermine a few years ago, he settled down to pass his remaining days in peace and sunshine, and no clearer title to esteem could be held than will be accorded him when it is said that his home in Redwood City was a place visited and revisited by those who knew him, with ever increasing love for its cordial occupant.

Shooting was beyond Judge Bicknell's strength, but he could wet a line and did so on many days of each fishing season. The fishing in the lakes near Redwood was open to time, and he also made trips to Weber where his experiences were of the rarest. Fly fishing, while he admired it and owned a superb outfit, very soon fatigued him, but he would sit for hours with a sunken fly tipped with bait and pull out goodly bass and trout.

We remember being with him one day on a lake not far from San Francisco. Beside the Judge were two noted anglers, John M. Adams and Ramon E. Wilson, both of whom loved the old man with a love born of appreciation of his goodnesses. The anglers could do nothing with the fly and finally all settled down to bait. The day was hot, the claret superior, the party drowsily dangling baited hooks over the side of a punt

Suddenly the Judge's rod bobbed sharply into the lake, but without discomposing the veteran. A twitch and the hook was firmly seated; then deliberate reeling began, when the reel fell from its fastening. Any other but Judge Bicknell would have given vent to strong talk and excitement, but the Judge simply remarked; "Ramon, just pick up my reel, won't you?" and sat unmoved while the request was complied with, although a cross fire of vehement advice from Adams and the scribe was poured, that should have rattled any living man.

The Judge was glad when he killed a good fish, but never regretted losing one, and what more can be said for an angler. His name will be preserved in fishing annals as long as the "Bicknell Fly" is used. The fly was originated on the trip mentioned, each of the party suggesting some part of it, and it is an attractive lure where ever a darkish fly is indicated. With its wings af Ibis, claret body, black head and tail, it is a pretty fly.

The pity is that Judge Bicknell could not have lived longer in the land he honored.

Wanted.

Anyone having a copy of Volume 2 of Wallace's Register for Sale, can find a purchaser by communicating with this office.

Marysville.

On the 10th of the present month entries will close with Secretary Eckert for the September meeting at Marysville. This old city of the plains has long enjoyed an enviable reputation for the successful gatherings held there each year, and in all probability there will be no exception to the rule this season. There is always an hospitable welcome extended to the visitors attending, the officers of the society invariably using every endeavor to make the guests feel comfortable.

Horsemen who are in the habit of attending the annual circuit, and have experienced the cordial greetings of the Marysvilleans, will enter on the 10th, so that a full entry list may be looked for.

The Ione Meeting.

Several weeks ago the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN ventured the prediction that there would be a larger number of running horses at Ione than at any other meeting in the State except Sacramento. That the prophecy will be fulfilled is evident from the very liberal entry list, which is advertised in the proper column. The Directors of the Sacramento and Amador Agricultural Society had noticed that the thoroughbreds were not given much prominence in the various meetings shortly to be held. So when they issued their programme the majority of the purses were offered for runners. As a natural consequence the "blood horse men" from all over the State have made entries for the Ione meeting, and there is every prospect that the Association will this year make a greater success than ever before. The pool selling has been allotted to Al Leach, who will look after the wants of the betting fraternity in his usual happy manner. President Gregory and Secretary Le Grave are taking care that the track is in proper order for the contests, and those who attend the Ione meeting are sure to witness grand sport.

Our State Fair Edition.

As will be seen by advertisement, the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN will be issued on September 14th, in a style never before attempted by any paper on the Pacific Coast, and it is confidently believed that it will surpass any like publication, ever issued in the United States. It is now an assured fact that California is the greatest horse breeding State in the union, the amount of money annually brought into circulation here, through the selling of fine stock to outside parties, being greatly in excess of that sent to any other State for like purchases. Recognizing this, and knowing that the horsemen of the coast are fully alive to the fact, that this paper is the medium through which the interests of their class are constantly kept before the public, we have plunged into the stream of competition with the more pretentious Eastern journals and boldly assert that there has never been an issue of any horse paper that will compare with the State Fair edition of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN.

As may be readily understood, the extra cost will be enormous in comparison with the ordinary running expenses, but we have not hesitated on that score, for tangible assurances are coming by each mail that breeders and advertisers are willing to assist us in this stupendous undertaking. We have not restricted ourselves to any given number of pages, for at the present time it is impossible to say how many there will be. Every prominent writer of note on the Pacific Slope has, or will be invited to send in original articles on subjects that will be of interest to each breeder or owner of horses.

The illustrations will be under the immediate supervision of Mr. E. Wyttenbach, the premier artist of California, who stands without a peer in the delineation of horses and cattle, and it may be stated here that several of them will be lithographed in colors, giving an effect that must be seen to be appreciated.

In addition to our already large circulation, an extra edition of ten thousand copies will be printed and judiciously circulated for the benefit of our advertising patrons. Taking into consideration the advantages to be derived by advertisers in this special number, the rates are amazingly low, and those desiring space should apply at once, so that we may properly classify them before it becomes too late.

Owners of horses who desire to have pictures in this invaluable edition, will receive rates on application at the office. It is not our intention to make a single penny profit out of this great publication, but we will simply charge the actual cost for whatever the expenses may be. Those who have cuts of horses inserted will receive three hundred extra copies to mail to their friends and acquaintances, or, on a list being prepared and sent to us, we will mail them free of postage to any part of the country.

We have no timidity in presenting this prospectus to our patrons, for they should see at once how beneficial it is to their interests to assist us in carrying the project to a successful conclusion. We would, however, impress on the minds of all who are desirous of taking advantage of this opportunity to write at once, as there is no time to be lost in preparing the lithographs, and it is essential that each person should be satisfied with the "counterfeit presentments" before they are sent to press. Time will also be required to write up the homes of the horses, as that will add greatly to the desired effect. It will be seen therefore that whatever is done must be done quickly, as there is no time to lose.

The Pacific Coast Trotting Association.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—Our Board is in favor of an organization such as you propose, viz., Pacific Coast Trotting Association, providing the rulings of the National and American Associations are respected; but if members suspended from those associations are admitted without being honorably reinstated, the proposed new association will be a disgrace to our Coast. Yours respectfully,

M. PRITCHARD, Pres. Sierra Valley Agricultural Ass'n.
E. DANFORTH, Secretary.

Salinas Notes.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—Nothing having appeared recently in your most excellent paper to indicate that there is such a place as Salinas or that one of the best tracks in the State is located here, is the moving cause for this intrusion upon your time and space. Our fair grounds, known locally as Sherwood Park, are just a convenient distance from Salinas City, and the arrangements as to grand stand, judges' stand, stable room, etc., are equal to the best at any of the tracks in the State. To add to the comfort of the great number usually attending our annual meetings the Directors of the Association for this the 7th district last week appointed a committee consisting of Directors Jas. B. Iverson, H. S. Ball and D. G. McLean to have a new grand stand erected in time for the fair, Oct. 8th to 12th inclusive.

At the track these fine mornings there is much activity, and some interesting brushes and close finishes may be witnessed almost every day. The track is kept in the finest possible condition by the lessee, James Dwain, who is a thorough horseman and clever little gentleman. He has in his care quite a list of trotters, among which are Charles S., by Albert W., the property of a Mr. Slowberg of San Francisco. This young stallion is very mixed gaited, but has quite a turn of speed.

Iverson's Mambrino Boy, b g, 5 years old, by Carr's Mambrino, dam by Vermont, 322, is a promising young horse, and does his miles very handily in :20, and quarters and halves faster.

Thenerkauf's chestnut gelding, 4 years, by Carr's Gen. Lee, he by Vermont 322, is a green horse, but can go close to the charmed figure. He stands over 16 hands, and has a remarkably easy way of going, Smeltzer's Billy Baxter, b g, 6 years, by Tom Vernon, dam untraced, gained a record of 2:41 last year in the sixth and final heat of a race. He is a large horse, a fine roadster, and has shown quarters in :36½. Thomas Baxter, a full brother to Billy Baxter, is a handsome dapple grey stallion, and though just put into training shows quarters at better than a three-minute gait.

Perhaps the most admired, as she is certainly the most aristocratic looking animal at the track, is Kilburn's Aunty Wilkes, a yearling seal brown filly by Guy Wilkes, dam by Speculation. She is just being broken, and moves and looks very much like her noted sire.

Jesse D. Carr's bay colt Gabilan, 2 years, by Ansel, dam Gabilan Maid, a full sister to Lady Ellen, 2:29½, is a large handsome colt, and while not yet showing any great speed, has a perfect gait, and should some day move very fast.

Wm. Vanderhurst's chestnut gelding Robert Lee, 5 years, by Kingston, dam Mamie by Carr's Mambrino, and his full brother Victor, 2 years old, are moving along well and take kindly to their work.

Gonzales' bay filly, 2 years, by Junio, is a large, rangy animal, and from present appearances, with her pure gait and easy way of going, will soon be moving fast, as she can already show quarters in :40.

Alfred G., the property of Iverson and Vanderhurst, is a two year old, and as pretty a mover as one would wish to see. He is entered in the two-year old district trotting stake.

Tholcke's Johnny Schmoker, brown gelding, 2 years, by Kingston, dam by Bull Pup, and B. V. Sargent's sorrel gelding, 3 years, by Jim Mulvenna, are green but handsome colts. The foregoing are all in charge of James Dwain.

Alex. Sweeton has in his care Altoona by Almont, who has made a big season in the stud here, having to turn away many mares. This proud son of the great Almont and Theresa

B., is the sire of Allo and Flora G., both in the 30 class. He is as spry as a colt and as handsome as a picture. Mr. Sweeton has just bought P. McCartney's half interest in Flora G., 2:29¼, by Altoona, dam by Conway's Patchen, and she is moving along pretty briskly. Last Sunday he sent her three heats in 2:35, 31½ and 27; pretty good considering that she foaled late and has been short of work. Her black filly by Mul Vorhees is being raised by hand and is a natural born little trotter.

Next week I shall have something to say of the strings of Pat McCartney and James A. Harris, now in training at this track. M. J. S.

SALINAS, July 31, 1889.

At the Home of Victor.

I paid a visit several days ago to the Indian Valley Breeding farm situated near Crescent Mills in Indian Valley, Plumas County. The valley contains about 25,000 acres of arable land, through which flows the East branch of the North Fork of the Feather river. The attitude is about 4,500 feet above the level of the sea, and the soil is richer than any I ever saw anywhere. There is an abundance of fine timothy hay, oats, and rich red clover, and orchards are plentiful, the fruit grown in the valley, being superior to any grown in the northern section of the State.

The farm contains 238 acres, thoroughly watered and drained, and is owned by George A. Dougherty, better known on the circuit as Old Hayseed. It is on this place that the trotting monarch of the mountains reigns, he who captured Butte and Nevada, and gave to the Sacramentians an intimation that he would eventually add the Capital to his already wide domain. I refer to the trotting wonder, Victor, 2:22¼. On the farm proper there are no buildings, and Victor has to occupy a stall on an adjoining ranch. There is on the farm a good half-mile track, and it is here that the stallion and the balance of the stable are exercised. Victor was sired by Echo, 1st dam by Woodburn, 2nd dam by American Boy, Jr. (Surely this is a mistake; we have the 2nd dam as by Ashland.—ED.) He was foaled about 1878, and passed through many hands until he was bought by Mr. Dougherty. Since he passed into the hands of the latter his record was obtained at Sacramento last year, the same time being made at Susanville later in the season.

Sparkle is a bay mare five years old, 15.2½ hands high, with long, strong hips, good stifles and splendid legs and feet. She is rather lengthy, and would be considered badly coupled by many, but is one of the improving kind, as she was defeated when a two-year-old in 3:03, but as a three-year-old she gained a record of 2:41 at Reno, and was given a trial at Susanville in 2:39. This fall she will be sent to do her best, and it is confidently believed that the mare will get a low mark. She is by Prompter, dam Starlight by Edwin Forrest.

We now come to a gelding by Victor, known as B. B. B. He is now three years old. As a yearling he trotted in 3:23, but can beat that all to pieces now.

I also saw a nice brown filly by Victor, dam by Gen. Reno, who can travel better than a three-minute gait, and also a full sister to the above which is a little beauty.

Mr. Dogherty has also a yearling and a sucking colt, both bays, by Victor out of Laura S., who is by a grand son of Speculation.

The next one shown me is Mountain King, one year old, by Victoria, dam Sparkle by Prompter. When first foaled he took after the Blue Bulls and paced—in fact, I have it on authority that while still a suckling he paced a mile by the side of his mother in 3:45. As he grew older, it seems he became ashamed of the side wheel business and turned to trotting, and now he is as pure gaited as possible.

A full sister to Mountain King is considered the gem of the collection by all who have visited the farm. She has only just been weaned, but shows an aptitude in trotting that is really marvelous in one so young. She can show a clean pair of heels to any of her age on the place, and there are few yearlings who can touch her in speed.

The last one to claim attention was a bay suckling filly by Victor, dam by Gen. Reno, who is a sturdy, well muscled little lady, that promises well.

The horses at this place are handled differently than at any other breeding farm I have ever seen, so in my next letter I shall give you a description of how Mr. Dougherty manages his trotters. POMPEY.

Col. Harry I. Thornton's Thoroughbreds.

A BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN representative in Sacramento having a little spare time on his hands went down to the old Stanford stables on F Street (between 16th and 17th streets) to see the horses educated there by Hanger Jones. Their owner is Col. Harry Thornton, one of our most scientific and at the same time educated breeders in California. The Colonel has spared neither time nor money in procuring good stallions to cross with his invaluable mares, his entire ambition being to have the very best and most fashionable blood in the land, both English and Australian, and we hope his efforts will be successful; and I am sure they will, for he has at the head of his racing stable as trainer a very steady and experienced man. Jones, although young, has been in the business a long while, having served a long apprenticeship with Captain Moore, of Crab Orchard, Kentucky, and also as under-trainer to J. B. Haggin, at Rancho Del Paso.

I will give your readers a list of the horses in training, with their breeding. First, I will head the list with that grand race mare Norcola; her performances are so well known to the public that there is no necessity to go minutely into them, for they are so numerous it would take more space than we can spare in this issue, suffice it to say that we think she was the best mare we ever saw as a three-year-old, and are in doubt if there is on the American turf to-day a race-horse who can show her his heels after they have gone one and one-quarter miles when in condition, for a majority of her races go to show that she is one of the best long distance race mares on the turf.

The next is Joe Hoge, a three-year old chestnut colt by Joe Hooker, dam Viola R.; he performed very favorably during last spring, and his trainer thinks well of him for the fall races.

The third on the list is Reata, a chestnut filly two years old by Milner, dam Marin: she has improved in appearance since the spring, and I think if nothing occurs to retard her progress she will be in the front rank this fall. Then we looked at a colt two years old who has what should be a very fashionable cross for speed and endurance, being by Grinstead, dam Sunlit by Monday, grandam Lilly R. by Longfellow, and a strong game pedigree behind that. He is of the Volante type, and if he is as good as the big little un, he will enhance the value of the blood. Among the yearlings are some which should prove fliers, the first is a brown colt by Darebin, dam Bavaria, and the selection was well made, for his breeding is unexceptional, and everyone at the Haggin sale said that he was the fac-simile of Darebin, and with age he should make a nailer. Why not name him Hungarian, Austrian, Ludivis or Archduke?

The next looked at is a bay or brown filly by John Happy, dam Glad Eyes. She is a very pretty thing and if she does not race she is bound to make a grand brood mare, and it is more for that purpose that her owner purchased her. Another very pretty filly by John Happy out of Jongleuse. She is like her sire, racy-looking all over. We then interviewed a brown filly by Darebin, dam Kitten by imp. Eclipse, a perfect beauty and for breeding there is nothing finer on the American continent.

There is also a very pretty bay filly by Hyder Ali, dam Sabrina by Norfolk; this filly ought to race as her sire is one of the leading stallions this year, having sired that great three-year-old Spokane, winner of the Kentucky and Great American Derbys while Norfolk had the best three-year-old last year and the crack two-year-old (El Rio Rey) this year. Race? why she can't help it if looks and breeding are any criterion. A chestnut colt by Milner out of Nanny Hubbard by Hubbard and out of Demirep, the dam of that good race horse Duke of Monday was shown, the colt was purchased by James Garland (Big Jim) and Hanger Jones and I hope the new partners will be successful in their purchase; he is a very fine type of a game speedy horse and barring accidents he will be heard from later.

Last but by no means least, is a very fine looking brown yearling filly by Darebin, out of the fast mare Carrie C., by Monday out of Annette by Lexington, and therefore she has two very close crosses of the Lexington. Every one knows that Lexington blood is invaluable, and the produce of Carrie C. has shown great promise already, for had it not been for Sobrante's accident in the race a year ago, he would have most assuredly beaten Surinam at the Blood Horse meeting. Hereafter I hope to give a full and explicit account of the Colonel's ranch and brood mares when time and opportunity offer.

Can any of your readers give the name of the party who brought Lady Allen from the East about fourteen years ago? She was at the Reno track for some time.

We have received the following information regarding Silverheels from a resident of Woodland, Yolo County:

One Silverheels, owned by Parker of Sacramento, a fine roadster, stood at several stands in Yolo county, and has left many fine representatives. He was by Col. Singleton's Silverheels, the premium roadster among many exhibited at the St. Louis Fair many years ago, Singleton had a hobby that he could invent a fast breed of trotters by mixing Morgan, Hambletonian and Vermont trotters with Kentucky thoroughbreds.

Another Silverheels was the one you mention by Hutton's Bulwer out of a Rob Roy mare. Bulwer a son of Gray Eagle and full brother of Lola Montez.

The next regular meeting of the Bay City Wheelmen will be held at the club rooms, on Van Ness Avenue, on Monday evening next, Aug. 5th.

To-morrow several of the members will join in a picnic run to San Mateo County.

Riders who intend going on the trip are requested to assemble at the corner of 21st and Mission Sts., at 8 A. M. sharp.

The Oak Leaf Wheelmen will be the guests of the Bay City Wheelmen on this occasion.

IN THE SURF.

This afternoon, at 4 o'clock, Prof. Jack Williams, of Montreal, Canada, and Ed Pinckham, of California, will swim a match race of 100 yards for a purse of $500 at the Terrace Baths, Alameda. Pinckham is in good condition, and should easily defeat the Canadian.

If all accounts are true in the last race at the Mormon home, a job was put up whereby the talent would get a little sure money. It was a novely race, and the principal backers of the job discovered that the novelty lay in the fact that two of the owners put their heads together and ran the race out on the knowing ones, causing much weeping and wailing and gnashing of teeth. It was the biter bitten.

BILLIARDS.

Monday eve, 29th, the members of the San Francisco Verein had a genuine treat. Mr. Steinhart, the champion billiardist of the club, was challenged by Mr. Mandlebaum, for the honors, wine and etc. It proved a very exciting contest 200 up. Mr. M. led by 38 points at 150. At 180 the score was even, when through two miscues Mr. M. suffered defeat by nine points, something like $1,000 changed hands on the occasion.

The McCleery method of billiard playing is the title of a very interesting work on the Scientific Pastime, now in the hands of the publisher, to be out in thirty days.

Schaffer's room in Chicago, continues to be the headquarters of those who enjoy a good game. Jake arranges matches between both amateurs and experts at intervals. The consequence are the bar receipts don't fall off any.

A match at San Jose is talked of for a good sized purse. McCleery allowing Ben Saylor 25 per cent. in points. How times do change matters. Three years ago, Saylor gave Mc 300 in 1500 points and won handily. Now he don't seem anxious to tackle him even with a quarter of the game given him.

Answers to Correspondents.

Schaffer's average was 333⅓—3 ball game, 1000 points up. Slosson made 45. Carter won first prize at Chicago, Dec. 7, 1888—13 inch balk line. CLENDENYONE.

THE GUN.

Sunday last was a good day for local experts with the rifle. Messrs. Will S. Kittle and Ed. Bosqui drove to Olema on Saturday evening, and on Sunday morning turned their hounds down on Point Reyes, soon killing a fine hundred and twenty pound buck, which was divided among their friends when it reached the city.

On the same day Mr. J. E. Lucas killed a good buck near his place back of San Rafael.

Mr. Hamilton Dobbin favored us by calling the other day. He is one of the old-time sportsmen, having shot on the Millbrae marshes with Mr. Clark, Harvey White, John Kerrigan, E. S. Culver, and all that coterie of good men who have practically ceased to shoot, more's the pity. The army of retired veterans grows apace, and with their retirement goes much of the spirit which kept interest at heat.

Deer are plenty about the forks of Cache Creek, but it is very hot in that region and hard to keep meat sweet for any length of time.

Mr. Joe Bassford, Jr., of Vacaville, has just returned from a week's camping in Capell Valley with his own family and the families of two friends. The party killed four deer and had trout and doves enough, which means a good deal to those who know what Joe considers "enough."

Springfield Notes.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:— The members of Major Frost's rifle team who went to Europe from this city are doing some extraordinary shooting in the team matches. In a recent match Lieutenant S. S. Bumstead of this city, who is I. R. P. for the Second Regiment Infantry, M. N. M., made the phenomenal total of 100 out of a possible 105 at 200, 500 and 600 yards. This score, we believe, has never been equalled in a team match. The other members from this city are doing well, although one or two are not shooting quite as strong as was expected of them. There is a great desire among Eastern militia men for an international match next year with the Government arms. In case of a match, some of the fine military rifle shots of the Pacific will certainly obtain places. The writer is of the opinion that the Pacific Coast contains better military rifle shots than any other part of the country. Take, for instance, the Carson City Guard as a team. There is no team from any company or regiment who can beat them. The Rod and Gun Rifle Club of this city are laying out a 500, 600 and 800 yard range.

The Springfield Gun Club held a two-days' tournament, which was well attended, and was a big success, the club netting over $200 for the treasury.

It is proposed on the return of the Mass. rifle team from England to banquet the local members of the team. The following table may interest some of the Pacific Coast riflemen. The totals for the five matches which were shot at 200, 500 and 600 yards, seven shots each:

SPRINGFIELD, MASS., July 24, 1889. C.

Unlucky Hunters.

This morning two bold hunters started forth in quest of deer. They were comfortably situated in a nice open cart, both had repeating rifles and confidently expected to kill enough venison and bear to last through the rest of the warm season. We suppress their names because they have kept the affair a secret from their most intimate friends all day, and we do not wish to "give them away" as it was by mere accident that we learn of the result of their expedition. And for the further reason that one is a pastor of the South Methodist Church, and the other a prominent patent stone layer of this town, and we respect both gentlemen very highly.

Arriving at the thicket they proceeded very slowly as it was as yet hardly light and they did not wish to frighten away any small lions that might be lying on the out-skirts of the forest. Suddenly a very large bear or something else made a slight noise near them, the horse jumped to one side overturning the cart and spilling the occupants.

When they arose and took an inventory they found that the patent stone man was considerably bruised about the face, but the preacher had escape uninjured. The horse continued on his journey, but he did not go slow. When found a half hour later the harness and cart were everlastingly disfigured, but the horse was "still in the ring."

The hunt, however, was not to be given up. The horse was secured, the cart wired up and the morning pleasantly spent in bagging a jack-rabbit and a cottontail.—Woodland Democrat.

[The Democrat man is playing against a strong combine. The "patent stone layer" can so cheaply and would probably so gladly provide even a gaudy headstone and the sport loving parson—heaven preserve him and all his ilk—would doubtless enjoy administering the last rites, to the graceless wag.—FIELD ED.]

Southern California Tournament.

The third contest for the Selby medal emblematic of the championship of Southern California, at artificial targets, was shot off at Colton a few days ago. The day was very warm and the scores were in consequence lower than usual. Mr. A. W. Bruner of Colton kindly sends the following full particulars in which appear the names of shooters, the marks at which they shot, the gauges and makes of guns used, and the ammunition chosen, together with the scores at both singles and pairs. The match was at 25 single Blue Rock targets and 25 pairs. Chamberlin rules.

Joe Bassford's Story.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—It is frightfully hot, but I had so much fun a few days ago that I can't help writing you a short account of a little hunting trip. On the 10th of July we started for Capelle Valley. "We" means Beech Bassford and wife and daughter, Chas. Reams and wife, Miss Ida Bassford, Abe Bassford, Bennie Reams, Master Percy Garvey, myself and family.

We stopped at the ranch of Beech and George Bassford for lunch, arriving just in time. Good calculator I am, you well know, about grub time. Well, we had father's large three-seated carriage and two very small mules to pull it, but when we got them under way after lunch it was a go, and we never stopped them until Jack Rainey's comfortable home in Capelle Valley was reached. Of course everybody has to stop and have a chat with Jack Rainey, particularly if the visitor has got a rifle or a hound with him.

After spending about an hour very pleasantly, we got Pete and Dick, I mean the mules, under way again, and headed them for Mr. Galbreath's ranch, about three miles away through the beautiful Capelle Valley. We met with a warm reception, Mrs. Galbreath telling us to make ourselves at home and help ourselves to anything we saw that was not chained down. Even the three hounds greeted us with that welcome that only a fox-hound can give. We pitched our camp beside a beautiful stream of water coming right out of the mountain, as pure and cold as it ever gets to be. But at its best, don't you know, water needs just a little "wisk' in it. I believe you do know that; seems to me you learned it at the last field trial, or was it the one before, at which you experimented with rectified water on Linville and caused him to make that brilliant oration about field trial handlers and things in general. Well, we had the "wisk." Beech soon arrived with the grub wagon. We put up the tent for the ladies, and the rest of us, except Abe and Bennie, took old Mother Earth for our couch and the open air for our cover-lid. Abe and Bennie played smart as they thought, and climbed on to a large stack of hay for their bed. After all the beds had been attended to and the camp made snug, the ladies had supper ready. Another drink of that cold water and accompanying corrective and then we ate, and it was astonishing to see how much those ladies could eat.

Next morning, at 4 o'clock, we were up and had coffee. Beech went down to call Abe and Bennie to breakfast, and, behold! about a ton of hay had slid off the top of the stack. Abe and Bennie slid off with it, and never waked up. Breakfast over, we started after some venison. Everybody was well mounted but me, and I concluded rather than be the only fellow on foot I would ride Pete. Pete had been mounted once before by Bennie Reams, who could ride a comet, and Bennie said that Pete moved funny-like, and he landed about thirty feet from the mule in about a quarter of a second after he struck Pete's back. I was about to back out and go on foot, when Charlie Reams said, "Stay with him, Joe; I'll help you." So Charlie tied Pete's halter strap tight around the horn of his saddle, and I piled on. Well, Pete is small, but he grew smaller. He tied himself up in a very small knot, and then he untied himself quick-like. His tail was like a corkscrew, and I was looking for a soft place to fall. But Pete fooled us, quit his mule tricks and went all right. Well, we started nine deer, and the dogs worked first-rate. George Bassford's beagle Duffer worked finely. At 9:30 we were back to camp with two fine bucks, and the ladies were still eating. I don't know why, but there they were—eating. We stayed there just a week and did not see another deer, and, in consequence, the ladies were hungry—in fact, faint—the last two or three days. We killed plenty of doves, but doves don't go very far with ladies when they are hungry. Beech and Charlie Reams caught some very fine trout. A vegetable garden close to our camp was nearly demolished by our ladies; the vegetables fresh from the garden were fine, especially the onions, cucumbers, tomatoes and things. After a big trip of several hours, looking for deer, we concluded they were well named as they are dear. After enjoying just one week of camp life we started for home. Beech was about half a mile behind us and somewhere between Capelle and Wooden Valleys he killed two deer close to the roadside, and said the dogs ran one of them nearly into our wagon, but we would not look around, so we got home on July 17th with fresh venison, after enjoying the week intensely. I tell you ladies are pretty handy to have around a camp. They seem to be able to cook without getting sand and ashes into everything the way we do, and they seem to enjoy every bit of the camping life very much, especially the cooking. J. M. B., Jr.

Fool Chicken and Red Fish.

Written for the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN.

In the summer of 1866, I made the journey on horseback from Idaho City, Boise Basin, to Lewiston, at the confluence of the Snake and Clearwater rivers, Northern Idaho—a distance of over three hundred miles, which occupied twelve days. Accompanying me was an expert mountain man—guide, hunter, cook and skilled in the care of horses on such expeditions. We had two saddle horses and a pack animal, and were well equipped for game of all kinds and for fishing. Our route led from Boise Basin across the high mountain divide into North Payette Valley, through the deadwood region and the three Payette lakes and mountain spurs, into Warren's diggings, and thence through Northern Idaho to Salmon, Florence, Whitehorse, Camas Prairie, Craigs Mountain, Keyser's, White's and Ford Lapwan, to the Nez Perces Ind an Reservation just above Lewiston. It is rough, wild country, of broken mountain ranges and spurs, coursed by turbulent rivers and rapid smaller streams, tributaries to the Snake or Lewis river, tortuous and treacherous in its navigation for hundred of miles. After descending the steep mountain trail from the high divide which separates Lower Payette Valley and the river from the extensive valley of the North Payette, to Packer John's camping ground, the trail through the entire length of the upper valley is comparatively level. But it is difficult and in some respects perilous. During the five days we were making the tedious ride through it, only one white man was met. Indians formerly inhabited the valley, but we saw none. In one of the streams we caught a poor quality of salmon, almost tasteless and not relishable. There were neither deer nor other coveted game, and a blue crane was the only bird we got a shot at. It was not eaten—too rank in smell and tough in flesh.

I had been told that in the valley were found a game bird known as "fool chicken" and the "red-fish of the big lakes." It was represented that the fool chicken was about the size of a pheasant and of equally fine quality for the table. They were so called because of the easy manner in which they were killed, their tameness and apparent stupidity. A fowling-piece was not needed to kill them. To go up within reach of the bird as it sat upon a bough of a low tree and knock it in the head with a stick less than ten feet long was the tame, unexciting, but effectual method of killing the fool-chicken. This was the story that had been told me of the strange bird; but besides, the story went that the fool-chicken was nearly as choice a delicacy for a feast as a partridge or a grouse. Of the red fish, it was said that it most resembled the trout in flavor. No other fish like them were to be found except in the Payette lakes, and two or three men who regularly fished for them made a comfortable living by selling their fresh catches to the miners in the different camps within a radius of fifty miles, and by salting and curing them for winter's use.

I was curious to see and take both the fool-chicken and the red fish. The accounts of the bird seemed incredible—as a mild Gordon-Cumming story—alike as to its peculiarity and its excellence in gamey quality. I was eager also to catch and try the flavor of the red-fish. The opportunity in each case soon occurred. After we made camp one evening near a small branch of good water, in the midst of a scattering of low trees, the guide came in from a short ramble and told me he had found fool-chickens. I started at once for the game. He insisted that the gun was not required; nothing

Two Standard bred Colts,

BRED BY

CALVIN H. FREW.

First.

AGNES FREW, a filly foaled April 7, 1888, at San Diego. She is of a dark chestnut color, body and legs; no white, except stripe on face. She was 15 months old July 7th, and her last monthly record of weight and height showed her to be 55 inches high, and to weigh 695 pounds, with a girth of 64½ inches, and 18½ inches around the forearm. How is that for a trotter only 15 months old? In conformation and general proportion she is admirably built, with wonderfully good hind quarters, wide hips, good cannon bones, exceptionally good hoofs, and fine flat knees. She is sound all over, a rare beauty and the best judges predict that she will show great speed and be the mother of many fast trotters. She is halter and bridle broke, and stands without tieing while being groomed.

Her pedigree is extra. She was sired by Woodlake at Paxton, Ills. He by Woodford's Mambrino. Sire's first dam was Hager; she by Alexander's Abdallah. Hager was the mother of the great Countersign. Hager's dam was by Downing's Bay Messenger. Hager's second dam was by Sir Archy. Alexander's Abdallah sired the peerless Goldsmith Maid and five others that made in better than 2:30. Also sired twelve stallions that sired eighty-six trotters in better than 2:30; also sired nineteen dams that produced twenty trotters in better than 2:30.

Gay, the dam of Agnes Frew, was sired by John Bright. He by that matchless stallion Volunteer. He is the sire of St. Julien, who is Gay's half uncle. Gay resembles him so much that strangers who were acquainted with him at first sight of Gay took her for St. Julien. Volunteer, among horsemen, has a national reputation, so needless to follow his pedigree.

Gay is a dark bright bay color; black mane, tail and legs. A powerfully built animal of great force and agility. She is fast, but was never tracked or trained. Her dam was Fashion; she by a Kentucky thoroughbred stallion. In fifty or more races Fashion took first prize or first money. She was a wonder. I owned her when I bred Gay. Fashion was bred by A. J. Reed of Irish Grove, Ill. Her dam was a high bred Hambletonian.

These statements are not guesses, but susceptible of proof, and can be relied on as a verity. I will part with her for $1,000. It is a great bargain, a rare opportunity.

Second.

I will sell said GAY'S STALLION COLT, foaled March 16, 1889, in San Diego, Cal. It is a seal brown color, with black mane and tail. On each of three feet some white, and a small spot in forehead. It has an extra good body, finely muscled up all around, closely coupled, and got a short back with fine hips. When foaled it measured 36½ inches high, at 1 month 39¾ inches high, and weiged 108 lbs. At 4 months old, 47 inches high, and weighed 340 pounds. Last month both colts have grown rapidly, and they are beauties. It was sired by Alert, he by Atherton. Alert's dam was the famous Penoda.

Price of this colt, named Atherton Jr., is $200 when weaned. Any correspondence addressed to more than the long, slender bough he had cut from a tamarack tree. I took him at his word, as he said he had killed many of the birds with that kind of weapon. Accordingly I was guided by him, stick in hand. We had only a short distance to walk. On the limb where he had discovered the bird there it still sat. As I drew near it made no sign of alarm; it seemed asleep. Instantly I struck for its head. Down tumbled the bird—fool-chicken, sure enough. It never fluttered; the single blow had been effectual. I examined it. The wings showed ample capacity for flight. The bird was about the size of an ordinary pigeon, of dull brown color, with little variation in any part, and in shape was something between a pigeon and a grouse. It was in plump condition. We soon had it ready for the camp-fire, broiled it nicely, and sat down to the expected feast. To the hungry man in the woods or plain who has not enjoyed pheasant or grouse or a fine game bird for months, and is ready to satisfy his appetite with almost anything, the fool-chicken may serve for the occasion and be rated as a game bird. I was not in that fix. The fool bird had fooled me. It was not worth the trouble of dressing or cooking. The guide apparently relished it, however, and I willingly committed the whole of it to him after the first mouthful. I would as soon think of killing the "booby" that lights upon the spanker boom of a ship at sea as to think of killing another fool-chicken for a feast. It is not in the nature of so stupid a bird to possess any game quality. I saw several more while on the journey, but I would as soon have gone hunting for a toad in the mud.

The red fish panned out very little better, as compared with trout or salmon, or any of the fine food fish. At the big Payette lake, I found the fisherman who had his station there, and he out-fitted me for the sport. It was no more animating than fishing for suckers in a slothful stream. The three lakes are contiguous, yet separate and distinct, and large—the big lake nearly a mile in length and a half mile in width, with a thick forest growth of pine and tamarack on every side, and mostly rocky walls, high and precipitious, to confine it. Miles of deadwood—the vestige of huge fires—make the approach to the lakes very difficult and exhausting. It took us a whole day to go less than nine miles—the horses entirely jaded and distressed from the slow and painful task of making their way over the fallen and charred timber, which lay as if strewed by contrary winds.

In the lakes no other kind of fish is found except the red-fish. Its peculiar hue gives it the name. In size, and form, and appearance it much resembles the porgy of Atlantic waters, and in food quality, it is very little superior to the porgy. It was palatable—as fish in the wilderness is to one—but not a dish to hanker after. At Warren's diggings I ate of the dried and salted fish, and it was as inferior to salt codfish, as the fresh red fish is to salmon.

The experience of that wild journey through Idaho further taught me the effect that hunger and circumstance have upon persons. I had been told of the delicacy of the fool chicken and of the excellence of the red fish, by men who had enjoyed feasts of fine game, birds and choice fish in cities, and doubtless they spoke agreeably to their judgment and belief. Only hunger could have so affected their taste and appetite—as men are sometimes brought to mule meat and coyote soup, to banquet on crow or gulp down alkaline water. I have never heard of any one eating the bird known in this State as the racer or road-runner, no matter how hungry; but I would as soon think of going hunting for these as going clubbing for fool chicken. It would be interesting, however, to have information of their species, as to particulars. Whether they are found elsewhere than in North Payette Valley, I have been unable to ascertain, notwithstanding that I endeavored during a residence of nearly three years in Idaho Territory, to learn more of the singular bird and its habitats; of what it fed upon, and other details. Although I saw many of them on my trip through the valley, I never saw one in flight, but invariably resting, as if roosting, and only upon the lower limbs of low trees, within easy reach for a blow with a stick in the hand of any who cared to strike. They appeared as listless as an owl in daytime, and as easy to kill. The trees in the valley were of the pinus and abies genius, lacking the tall, full growth of the southern portions of Idaho, and less bright in the evergreen quality, and vegetation of good sustenance was very rare. It is impossible that it could be a good region for game of any kind; and wild beasts were not encountered—except a coyote.

The only bear we saw was fishing in a tributary of Salmon river, in a manner I had never before witnessed. From a safe distance I watched the strange performance. The bear stood in the middle of the narrow rocky bed of the stream, with the water not above a foot deep, but very turbulent as it rushed between the bowlders on its rapid down-flow. Bruin seemed intent upon business. Down would strike the great fore paw, and with a scoop of it out came a shining salmon, landing on the grassy bank, where a scramble immediately occurred between two cubs, ravenous but playful. I was not timing the performance, but judge that the show lasted fully half an hour. We waited until the bear quit the sport and moved off before we cared to venture ahead, as the pass was narrow and the trail rocky.

A she bear with cubs, hunting for food, suggests discretion with valor in sportsmanship, and my mission at the time was neither to break a record nor to incur needless danger. Mother Bear led the way with her cubs and prey, and after the satisfied procession had moved out of sight, toward the timber on the south side of the stream, we pursued our onward way.

It would be interesting likewise to learn something definite and authoritative of the red-fish of the North Payette lakes—of the species and its habitats—if it has any other. It can never be a choice food fish, yet it comes very grateful to the miners and others in lieu of better. The salmon are scarce and of inferior quality, and the streams are very low during the mining season, by reason of the large drafts to supply the ditches. And why is the red-fish the only kind found in the lakes? Is it because they are themselves the exterminators of other species, or that none other are bred?

There is opportunity for the ichthyologist to investigate and make known his conclusions. Some amateur disciple of Agassiz, locally situated, may yet furnish the interesting information. So far as personal consideration is concerned, as to appetite and trial, I rest content in regard to the fool-chicken and the red-fish; but science has still its unfilled places for even bugs and infinitesimals, and therefore the feathered and famed singularities of North Payette Valley are entitled to descriptive notice by the votaries to the all-embracing study of Nature and her realm.

The Belle City Hay and Ensilage Cutter is now acknowledged to be the King of Cutters, because its points of merit over all others are many. The first and a very important fact is, that this machine requires one-third less power than any other, doing one-third more work in same time. Second is the Safety Attachment, making all danger to the operator impossible, as in feeding the cutter he will naturally stand by the lever seen in the different cuts. With this lever he can stop the feed rolls as quick as he can put his hand on the same, also reverse the feed by this lever and set the feed rolls revolving backwards, clearing the mouth of the cutter, should it become clogged, without using his hands in the operation. He can also make four lengths of cut with this lever.

All these changes—stopping feed rolls, reversing feed rolls, and changing length of cut—done without stopping the cutter or the power running it. We can all see how this lever attachment could be the means of saving a man's life or limb, as he has this cutter always under perfect control.

The frames are made of the best selected hard woods, firmly bolted together with long rods running through the frame, while most other feed cutters are fastened only by the cheap wood screw. The irons are all well finished; boxes for the shaftings are babbitted, and when this machine is put together, it will run as smoothly as a lathe or other machinery.

It is not necessary to bolt this cutter to the floor, it being so well balanced that it will not run all over the barn, as others do.

They are finished better than any other cutters in the world, and are strong, durable and of great capacity, running with less power than any other, and can be run at great speed with perfect safety.

OSSIDINE

KALAMAZOO, Mich., Sept. 15, 1888.

GENTLEMEN:—We have used Ossidine for the past two years and consider it invaluable for Sprung Tendons, Curbs, Ringbone and Spavins; there is nothing equals it; and for us it effected a permanent cure where firing failed, although performed by one of the most successful veterinarians on the continent. We have recommended it to others with like success, and believe it has more merit than any blister ever used.

Very respectfully yours, S. A. BROWNE & Co., Prop's.

This scientific preparation is an absolute cure for all bony or callous lumps on horses, and is a more powerful absorbent than "firing," without creating the slightest blemish. After a few applications the excrescence is so palpably reduced that even the skeptical frankly acknowledge that it is by far the most valuable outward remedy for horses ever invented.

The ONLY preparation in the world that will remove a Bone Spavin after it has become ossified.

From my experience, I most strongly recommend the use of Ossidine, and feel that it is a necessary adjunct to every stable. Yours respectfully,

The History of "Bell Alta."

Having seen a number of enquiries in regard to the pedigree and history of "Bell Alta" in your paper, and as the blood of this son of old "Belmont" courses through the veins of a number of our noted trotters, I think a short letter from one who is in a position to know all the particulars would prove of interest to many of your readers.

Bell Alta was bred by S. I. Jammison of Santa Clara County, foaled August 14, 1858. He was a beautiful bay, sixteen hands, by "Williamson's Belmont;" his dam was a dark bay mare, 16 hands, that was brought across the plains and purchased from Captain Simons of Alvisa by Mr. Jammison. This mare had the qualities of a thoroughbred, though little was known of her breeding. She was an extraordinary road animal, and could trot in three minutes to a buggy. Captain Simons, who at that time kept a warehouse at Alvisa, had on several occasions driven her from San Jose to San Francisco and return in one day, and I believe that it is to his dam that "Bell Alta" owed many of his good qualities.

Mr. Martin Mendenhall, then of Contra Costa County (now of Livermore, Alameda County), purchased the colt when eighteen months old from Mr. Jammison for $700. Mr. Mendenhall broke him late in the spring as a three-year-old, and drove him in a spring wagon until he commenced to work him for the three-year-old race he was to have in the following September. He was then hitched to a spring seat sulky, or rather a cart, weighing 150 pounds, in which he received all his work, never being hitched to a track sulky until he started in his first race at San Jose. Mr. Mendenhall had on his ranch a rudely constructed track, on which he gave his pet the preliminary lessons. He started in his first race at a District Fair in San Jose. The race was for three-year-old colts, September, 1861. There were seven entries, but only three starters. His competitors were a half brother of his by "Belmont" and a colt by "General Taylor." The three-year-old races in the olden days were two in three. He easily won both heats, the time in the last heat being just three minutes, he distancing both his opponents. Mr. Mendenhall was then offered $3,500 for him, but the offer was refused. He also took the diploma awarded for the finest stallion. I might state right here whenever exhibited he carried off first honors. On the old Willows track, San Francisco, as a four year-old, was his next race. Again did he have two contestants, and there seemed to be an understanding between the other two to down him at all hazards. There were no societies and not many rules then save what the drivers made, and a race generally resolved itself into a "go-as-you-please" contest. The late Jim Eoff, whom some people say used to drive races against the Egyptian mummies, was handling a mare by "Dave Hill" out of "Lady Vernon;" the other contestant was the somewhat famous "Spotted Colt" from Sacramento. It was a desperate contest over a rough track, and each of them had two heats to their credit. When in the seventh heat "Bell Alta" won in the fastest time of the race—2:42. He was next trotted at Pacheco, Contra Costa County, in 1864; when driven by his owner, whose weight was 205 pounds, he won the stallion race, and gained a record of 2:37. He never had received any work except what he got on his home track. He was without doubt one of the best sons of "Belmont," was pure gaited and very level headed, and if people in those days had had the knowledge of training and care of trotters that they now possess, he would be one of the equine stars of the age. "Bell Alta" never had much opportunity to distinguish himself in the stud as the mares he served were usually farm mares of very little, if any breeding. Yet he gained some distinction, having sired "Henrietta," 2:22½. Her dam was by "Peacock," a good horse, and said to be thoroughbred. Mr. Corbett afterwards secured "Henrietta," and, I believe, has some of her produce at present. Mr. Valensin has in his harem a very fine mare by "Arthurton," dam "Henrietta," that will be heard from as a broodmare.

Mr. Polhemous of Santa Clara County had a mare by "Bell Alta" called "Josephine" that was very promising, and could trot in 2:26, when she died with "epizootic." Her dam was by a half thoroughbred horse called "John Lemon." Mr. Polhemous had refused $6,000 for her. Almost any of his colts could trot a three-minute gait, and they made fine road horses, and from their sale his owner derived a large revenue. Mr. Mendenhall has but three of his get left, keeping them as broodmares. A few years ago Mr. Mendenhall disposed of him to a Mr. Sturgeon who resides at Hills Ferry, San Joaquin County, where he was destroyed at the age of thirty, as he was unable to masticate his food. Thus ended the life of a noble animal that did not have the opportunities he deserved. Yours truly, "ALTA."

Rancho Resaca.

BY GRIM.

If there is anything that adds a delicious seasoning to the pleasure one has in travelling, it is the fact that business is in no wise connected with the trip. I have just completed such a journey, and it can confidently be said that in the many years I have passed in this glorious State, there is not a single instance that memory recalls where such a pleasant time was had as that passed at Rancho Resaca.

"Remember you must leave the copy paper and pencil at home, for I want this to be a purely social call, and in no sense to be considered a matter of business."

These were the instructions when I accepted an invitation to pass a day with Col. Harry I. Thornton, at his charming country residence, situated in the ravine, over the divide from Berkeley. A more thoroughly enjoyable morning is rarely seen in San Francisco than that on which we assembled at the Market street ferry, the company consisting of the Colonel, Harry Cresswell Esq., Mr. A. Lang of Calaveras, Thos. F. Meagher, Norman Brough and your humble servant, all on pleasure bent.

A short journey brought us to Emery's station, where we alighted to change cars, and our party was reinforced by Mr. E. S. Culver, Secretary of the Blood Horse Association, who was a welcome addition to our number. On a narrow guage side track, we found in waiting a special train, which was to convey a happy lot of picnicers to Oak Grove, which is in close proximity to the Colonel's place, but an extra car, built for observation solely, had been attached to accommodate the Colonel and his guests.

As we passed through the delightful valley traversed by the California and Nevada R. R, point after point of interest was called to our attention by our host, who took especial pains, that no place worthy of mention should be passed, without receiving due recognition. Berkeley, Berryman's and Peralta Park, were speedily left behind, the magnificent hotel now being built by Samuel O'Posen Curtis, standing out in bold relief as we pass the latter place and acting as a landmark on that great plain. Off to the east of San Pablo, we make a run around the northern end of the mountain ridge and wend our way in a southerly direction until we reach Rancho Resaca, where Superintendent Swan is in waiting with vehicles to convey us to the house, but the distance is so short, that all prefer to walk, with the exception of him with the bad feet, who is forced to forego that pleasure, and must needs accept a seat in the wagon.

It is only some three hundred yards to the house, and we are soon domiciled on the front porch, viewing as pretty a landscape as can be seen anywhere in the State, and awaiting the arrival of those who are coming on foot. And now a word as to the surroundings. It is easily seen that the proprietor has an eye to the beautiful, for the front portion of the premises is laid out in gardens, the tall, massive eucalyptus trees being covered by old-fashioned ivy plants, clinging to the trunks, and adding a charm that is seldom seen in Northern homes, but can be witnessed frequently in the Sunny South or in the old-fashioned homes that one sees so frequently in England. Off to the left is a splendid orchard, the trees in which are laden down with luscious fruit, and here comes the party, headed by the Colonel, who cordially invites everyone to partake of that which may best suit his fancy. California is the land of fruit, and is so recognized throughout the Union, the Bay City being the great centre from which are shipped thousands of tons weekly to all parts of the country. Fruit can be had on every corner, and is displayed for sale in almost every other window in this great city; yet there we stood in that orchard, pulling and eating as though we had never seen pears, green gages or plums before in the whole course of our lives. And how sweet they did taste. But we are admonished that dinner will be on the table 'ere long, and room must be left forthe viands to follow. We are taken to the large and commodious stable, where the stallions are kept, Mr. Swan bringing out each of his pets in turn for inspection, the first to claim our attention being that grand race horse, Sobrante, who was cut down while in the zenith of his glory by Ed McGinnis, at the spring meeting of the Blood Horse Association last year. He will show the effect of the injury as long as he lives, but the son of Kyrle Daly and Carrie C. should make a name for himself in the stud.

It is now a number of years since first I saw Oatcake, thousands of miles from his present home, in the far off Antipodes, and yet I knew him the moment he was brought from his stall. There was the same lordly step and perfect carriage, which first caused me to examine the equine beauty in the colony of Victoria, once when he was being prepared for a race there. He is a race horse from hoof to ears, and impresses the beholder with that idea the moment he is seen. I could almost wish that there was less daylight under him, yet he is so strong and powerful that he seems to require all the length of leg he possesses. His forelegs much resemble that of the mighty Lexington, the circumference of the forearm being very deceptive, as the bone is on the small order, but the muscles and tendons are immense, showing him to be a horse of enormous power. His get are very racy looking, and it will be a surprise to me if we fail to hear from the Resaca youngsters in 1891.

In an adjoining stable we find James Madison, for as the Colonel says, "we have Clays and Washingtons, Grants and Knoxs, Clevelands and Jeffersons, why should we not have a Madison?" And there he is, a well formed son of Anteeo, 2:16¼, and Lucy Patchen by Geo. M. Patchen Jr. Large and powerful, he would command the attention of the veriest tyro in a moment, his massive make up, and easy graceful motion, being seemingly in contradistinction. He has the typical Anteeo head, and notwithstanding his immense size has not a grain of coarseness about him, and to add to his many other qualifications can show better than a "thirty" gait. In the course of a few days he will be taken to the race track at Pleasanton along with a lot of other trotters, where he will be prepared for a record.

I cannot let this occasion pass to state that I firmly believe Col. Thornton has the finest Antevolo colt in the State. He is a perfect model, and is the most handsome colt of his age that I have seen this season. Although only fifteen months old, he would attract the attention of the connoisseur in hors-flesh immediately. I have heard of many likely looking colts by this celebrated horse, but candor compels the assertion that the Rancho Resaca will bear off the palm for having the best of them all. He is as true to the trot as a needle to the pole, and if this is not the coming wonder I do not know where to look for him. He is out of Alpha Medium, a member of the well-known Happy Medium family, and is certainly a credit to both sire and dam. Of the broodmares, I want to say a good deal, but that must be reserved for another time. After enjoying a sumptuous dinner, we were escorted to the train, saying good-bye to the genial Colonel and his obliging nephew, Willie Thornton, with a twinge of regret that the parting hour had come so soon, but with the firm and abiding conviction that our host has no peer as an entertainer in th State.

A Looser's Troubles.

BY G. A. SYKES.

"It ain't no use talkin', I'm 'bout sick of the airs some folks puts on when they git a few dollars more'n other folks—an' jest becos they hev got a mare that kin trot a little."

The old farmer leaned on the rail-fence, and relieved himself of the above. I had stopped to ask him which road was the shortest way to Wayback, and as he evidently had something he was burning to tell, I stopped to hear what it was.

"Yes," he went on, "them Smiths are agoin' ahead in great style now, an' nothin' ain't good enough for 'em, but I've seen the time when old Jack Smith didn't hev no horse at all, much less one ez he could train to go in trottin' races.

"You see that house in the holler?" said the old man, pointing to a pretty little farm-house not far distant; "well, Jack Smith lives there, an' it ain't twelve months since he carried a mortgage on his place bigger'n mine, but now his darter's learnin' to play the pianny, and the old man's got a bank account.

"Long about spring, last year, Jack Smith's wife took a notion to hev city boarders, an' bein' as Jack ginerally gives his wife her own way—some folks sez he darsen't do no otherwise—he let her git the house fixed up a bit, an' advertise in the city papers. I seen what she put in the papers; it were somethin' about comfortable accommerdashuns durin' the heated term, and pooty soon the boarders begin to come. They wuz a high-toned lot, too; done nothin' but lay around and git in the way of folks that wuz busy. One of the boarders in partickler wuz a fresh kind of feller, who had somethin' to do with hoss-racin', and the fust thing he done wuz to go to Smith's stables an' look at his hosses.

"Smith had a chestnut mare that he raised himself, payin' a outragus sum fur the services of a trottin' stallion that wuz goin' through here; but Smith allus wuz a fool, anyway. Well, this hoss-racin' feller seen the mare, an' put the notion in old Jack Smith's head that she would make an everlastin' trotter if she had proper trainin' an' attention. Jack had gev the mare the name of Evangeline—Evangeline, by thunder! Sech names as Marthy an' Fanny wuz good enough fur our mares; but Smith is apt to be high-toned.

"Then there begun sech cuttin' ups an' rumpusses as I never seen before; it 'peared ter me ez if old Jack Smith wuz gettin' a leetle softenin' of the brain, for he left his farm work, an' he an' his dude boarder began makin' fools of themselves, caperin' round with that mare Evangeline. They put boots on her feet, an' patent spreaders, an' made more fuss over that mare than if she had been a thoroughbred, like that hoss Proctor Knott, that the papers talk so much of.

"By an' by I got feelin' sick to see sech fool capers; an' I up an' told Smith that the boarder wuz only workin' a game on him, to git free drivin' an' save the expense of a livery rig, but he paid no more 'tention to me than if I had never spoken; fools never listen to sense, anyway. After that I made up my mind not to say nuthin' more to him, but let him find out to his sorrow what a fool he had been.

"That ere mare trotted an' trotted, an' was entered for several meetins in the fall, an' Jack Smith bought a leetle bit of a sulky, which the boarder driv round in. I knowed very well the mares could not trot; she b'longed to old Jack Smith, and I've known him ever since I knowed anything, an' how wuz he goin' to hev a fast horse any more than other folks here.

"The fresh boarder, though he wuz good for nuthin' else, could handle the lines over the mare pooty slick, but he must hev wore his watch out timin' her like he did.

"At last the day of the fust race come, an' old Jack Smith an' all his folks went to the race meetin' expectin' to come back with their pockets bustin' with wealth. I didn't go to the race, fur I knowed as Jack would come sneakin' back lookin' like a fool, but 'long toward bed-time they come home an' Jack told me a yarn about the mare comin' in fust, an' as how he had won a bar'l of money. I didn't b'lieve him till I seen in the Podunk Screecher that Mr. J. Smith's Evangeline was fust. The horses that trotted against Evangeline wuz rather slow, I reckon, else Jack Smith wouldn't hev won no race.

"Poorty soon the mare wuz to race again' an' I went down to see the races. Evangeline came out, an' Jack sez to me: 'Bet on my mare, she goin' to win sure.' There was powerful fine horses in the race, an' I knowed as Jack Smith's mare had no more chance of winnin' than she had of flyin,' even if her name wuz Evangeline. There wuz a bay hoss entered which more'n took my fancy, an' I went an' backed him fur all I wuz worth.

"The hosses wuz started off, an' Evangeline went to the front an' led all the way round, but she jumped in the air in the last stretch, an' begun runnin' like a two-year-old steer, when my bay hoss come up like the price of coal, an, won the first heat. I tell you it made me feel pooty good, an' you'd oughter heard me whoop; I hollored for joy an' begun figurin' what I should do with the money.

"Old Jack Smith's face turned whiter'n milk, an' he looked mighty sick, fur I heard as how all the money he had in the world wuz on his mare. I didn't feel no pity for him; folks oughter know enough not ter fool their money away.

"The next heat the dude boarder, who wuz drivin' kept the mare pooty steady, an' she come in fust. Next heat she come in ahead too, an' I wuz sick of seein' the mare, and Jack Smith too.

"The bay hoss wasn't woth the oats he eat, fur he never done nothin' of any account all the afternoon, an' I'm blamed if that fresh boarder of Jack Smith's didn't win all followin' heats. The money I put on the bay horse wuz gone as complete as Charley Ross, an' Jack Smith didn't seem to keer 'bout it. I heerd though, that he won twict what would pay the mortgage on his farm.

Since then that mare has been in more races than they is days in the week, an' Smith has kep' on winnin', but I ain't been to no more races. I'm more'n sick of mares an' races, an' Smiths as well.

"There's that Smith gal poundin' the pianny now, an' I'll bet the hired gal has to do the churin' all alone.

"Good-bye stranger, ef ye're goin'; ef ye come this way again, drop in an' see me; I'm rearin' a colt which is jest goin' ter knock spots offen all the Evangelines in creation. Jack Smith ain't the only one ez kin make money outen ownin' fast hosses."—Horseman.

The Stables at Deer Lodge.

Last Saturday afternoon the racing season of 1889 began in real earnest on the Pacific Coast, the attractions being a purse for 2:30 trotters and a match race between Mr. G. Valensin's Simmocolon and Mr. Frank Burke's Wanda. The 2:30 purse was a fill-up affair, the 2:20 class failing to materialize in the entry book in requisite numbers to satisfy Secretary Hinchman. The attendance was very meager, there being hardly a corporal's guard present, figuratively speaking, and the sport did not justify more. Mr. Hinchman stated to a representative of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN that for many years the Bay District Association had opened up the circuit, and at every early meeting had lost from $1,500 to $2,500. There must be a reason for this, and one does not need to look very far for a reasonable excuse for the horsemen who do not make entries at the Bay District. There are at the present time about one hundred trotting horses at Stockton, fifty at Napa, sixty or seventy at Petaluma, and forty to fifty at Santa Rosa, not counting those at Sacramento, San Jose, Fresno, Chico and Marysville, and yet there have not been entries enough to fill but a very few of the advertised events. Talks with prominent horsemen elicit the information that at this season of the year they are afraid to take their horses from these places, where it is extremely warm, and run the chances of their getting "off" at the Bay District, where it is so cool. It seems the height of folly that the Directors should give a meeting under such circumstances as the races cannot be expected to fill, and it is only a waste of money to try and force the meetings when the public will not attend.

Among the prominent patrons of the turf who were present the following were noticed: Ariel Lathrop, W. S. Hobart, Irvin Ayres, G. Valensin, Dr. Latham, A. C. Dietz, Capt. Mathews, Wm. Dunphy, ex-Harbor Commissioner Wise, C. H. Cory, Frank H Burke, S. Gamble, T. Williams, C. C. Bemis, J. Dustin, E. J. Buckley, Mr. Kerrigan, E. Cummins, Morgan Hill, Ira Ramsdell, Cris Smith, Chas. McIver, Alex McCord, Mr. Salisbury, A. Gonzalez, Dick Mandlebaum, Harry Adler, John McKerron, A. B. and J. D. Spreckles, Morris Schmidt, T. D. Riordan and Mr. Crittenden of stable fame. The judges for the day were Colonel Strader of Lexington, Ky., Col. Fred Vaughan and Capt. Munson, the timers' places being occupied by O. A. Hickok, Charles Marvin and W. H. Bradbury. At the appointed hour the matched horses were brought out and warmed up a trifle, the colt Simmocolon showing up lame, but this did not discourage his followers, and they found it difficult to get $12 on the mare against $25 for the colt. Prior to the first heat but a few pools were sold, the majority deeming it a foregone conclusion that the lately imported Kentucky colt would win. After four attempts the word was given, and away they went, Wanda leading. On the turn Simmocolon broke, but caught quickly. Still Wanda managed to put four open lengths of daylight between herself and the colt by the time they arrived at the quarter pole At the half she must have been twenty lengths to the good, with Simmocolon acting badly. As the pair came down the home stretch Vioget, the driver of Wanda, eased up a little, yet managed to beat the colt almost a length in 2:26.

The second heat was in direct contract to the first, Simmocolon taking the lead at the start and was never headed, Vioget evidently not pushing the mare for the heat, and allowing McConnell to win as he liked in 2:29¼.

Rumors were now rife that Wanda had "quit," that she could not go a little bit, but this was only heard from those who knew not whereof they spoke, for the mare cooled out nicely, while Simmocolon was in dire distress, the strained muscles in his forearm giving him great trouble.

When the word was given for the third heat, the Valensin entry tried to make the pace, but broke on the turn, and the mare caught up to him before they reached the quarter, from there they trotted together as a double team to the half mile mile pole where both made slight breaks, the colt catching the easier of the two was soon several lengths in the lead. When the mare settled she closed the gap very quickly, and at the head of the homestretch they were on even terms again. The clip was a merry one, and too hot for the son of Simmonds, as he broke at the drawgate and Wanda won the heat in 2:29¼.

The fourth and last heat of the race brought a surprise to the spectators as Mr. Burke at the request of several gentlemen, substituted Mr. Marvin behind Wanda, whereupon Mr. Valensin had McConnell step down and out and Mr. Hickok was given the reins over the Kentuckian. This heat was simply a repetition of the others, Wanda took the lead and whenever Hickok tried to force the colt, could not keep him on his feet. Although the mare had a commanding lead when she came into the homestretch, Mr. Hickok tried to have Simmocolon do his best, and for an eighth of a mile brought him along at a 2:22 gait, but the mare proved the winner of the heat and race in 2:33½.

Luck in Racing.

It is odd to notice how luck comes in streaks, says Rapier in the London Sporting and Dramatic News. For instance, last year the Duke of Westminster won well over £18,000 in stakes; in 1886 he won well over $24,000; this year, if my memory serves me, he has scarely won a race; indeed, speak-without the book, I do not remember that he has won anything. The Duke of Beaufort was to the fore with nearly £16,000 the year before last, and this season, so far, the light blue and white hoops have never once been in front. From £16,000 in 1887 Mr. Manton dropped to just a quarter of the amount last year; and Prince Soltykoff, who won nearly £8,000 in 1886, and £9 000 last year, only mustered £932 in the year between. Still more striking is Mr. W. J. Legh, who has for years been well over £2,000, who last year won over £4,000, but in 1887 dropped to £239 15s. Mr. Abington again, won last year some £5,000, a third of his net gain in stakes the year before These are all owners who do their best to get good horses, whose studs are carried on with shrewdness, knowledge, observation, and large expenditure, who, in fact, do everything that can be done to ensure success. It will be seen that there is no royal road to victory on the Turf.

Australian Trotters.

It is not generally known perhaps that trotting is understood and trotting races liberally patronized in Australia, says Col. Edwards. There is a mile track at Elsternwick, Melbourne, under the National Trotting Association of America. A good roadster will sell in Sidney for $500 up to $1,500, according to the style and speed. There is no difficulty in disposing of trotters, although the great pastime—trotting races—has not yet grown to be a rage. There are plenty of good horses in Australia, although few persons there are skilled in training or driving trotters. All the trotting blood in Australia was originally imported from this country. The first importetion was in 1865, when three horses were sent over from California. One died a few days after landing. The other two were by Geo. M. Patchen. One is dead, but the other is still living not far from Sidney; he must be near thirty years old.

A horse named President Grant, after the General, was imported in 1860. He is still standing at Bathhurst, 140 miles from Sidney. This horse was bred by Dr. L. Herr, of Lexington, Ky., and is by Mambrino Patchen, dam Olivia. Ajax was imported about the same time as President Grant. Ajax was purchased for $2,500, and trotted a half mile after reaching Sidney in 1:10½. This horse went to Melbourne and was nearly starved. He became diseased in the feet and was destroyed. All the produce of this horse are said to be pacers. Daniel Boone, an American trotter, was imported in 1869. He is said to be by Edwin Forrest, dam by old Sir Henry, out of a Messenger mare. Daniel Boone died in 1877. He left some colts which are trotters. Boccaccio, by Woodford, dam by Gage's Logan, was imported in 1880, and in 1882 he trotted the mile track at Melbourne in 2:39¾. In September, 1881, Vermont Jr, by Vermont, went to Australia. He trotted a mile in 2:34½ in 1882.

In September, 1882, the geldings Richard, Midnight and Oliver, went from this country to New South Wales. Oliver trotted at Melbourne in 2:33¾. Midnight is now being driven on the road in and around Sidney. Subsequently there were imported Swamp Angel, 2:34½; Ella Chieftain, by Chieftain; Clara and Daisy, both by Elmo, and Violetta by Echo. After these went Commodore, 2:23, and Defiance (formerly a pacer), 2:24. About the latter part of 1882, Honesty won the champion trot at Victoria, in 2:30¾. The owner of Boccaccio imported seven mares to Victoria, the best being Sylph by Reliance. This mare trotted a mile in 2:43. In September, 1884, two road mares were imported from California, both by Speculation 928, and in foal to Bob Mason, son of Echo 362. Childe Harold 414 was imported from America. One of his colts, twenty months old showed a mile in 3:30.

There have been three shipments to New Zealand within the past eighteen months, the most noteworthy of them being Vancleve 2438, Irvington 379, Blackwood Abdallah, by Hanover, and Pinole Patchen, by Liberto Patchen, dam by Morgan Tucker. An imported bay mare called Folly was last year trotting on the Sidney track. An advertisement reads: "Merryhawk, sire of Mona, 2:55¾, by Ace of Clubs (imported) out of Blackhawk Belle, the celebrated trotting mare imported from America to England by Lord Berwick, and afterward purchased at immense cost for Australia, where she arrived with Cambridge Chief and Flying Morgan."

Developed vs. Undeveloped Sires.

Written for The Breeder and Sportsman.

That an undeveloped stallion is the inferior of a developed horse would seem an incontrovertible proposition, and it might be asked, Why attempt to demonstrate something, the truth of which nobody denies?

The fact of the case is, however, that there are many horsemen who contend that the sire without a record and without much speed is the equal of the sire with a fast record, so far as a producer of trotters is concerned. In substantiation of this valuable opinion, they cite Rysdyk's Hambletonian and Blue Bull. These two stallions are the rock upon which they stand and hurl defiance at the opposition. These two stallions are as balm of Gilead to the wounded soul.

Men of better information and somewhat deeper research add to these two the names of Harold, Dictator, Electioneer, Red Wilkes and Alexander's Belmont. None of these horses have records, and, consequently, these gentlemen have arrived at the conclusion that they were endowed with but little speed. This list is a very formidable one, and is calculated to duly impress the superficially informed with the great knowledge possessed by these gentlemen. I propose, however, to prick the bubble.

I should attempt to show that developed horses produce more uniform speed, more extreme speed, and more lasting campaigners than undeveloped sires; also, that with but two exceptions there is no instance upon record of an undeveloped stallion siring extreme speed; and in one of those instances the trotter was evidently a "sport," as none of his brothers attained any prominence. This horse which I denominate a "sport" or scratch trotter—and he was a great one—is Rarus, 2:13¼. Before going further into this subject I wish to say that a record is not a necessary adjunct to a "developed" horse, as a stallion may possess great speed and not have a record. Therefore, I class all stallions known to possess great speed as developed sires.

My reference to Rarus as a scratch trotter may awaken ill feeling in some quarter, yet I propose to prove that such is undeniably the fact. He was sired by Conklin's Abdallah, a horse of unknown breeding, his dam being Nancy Awful by Telegraph.

John Splan, the man who gave Rarus his record, and campaigned him from the Atlantic to the Pacific, has the following to say regarding the sire of Rarus and his owner.

"Away back in war times, or rather just after the Rebellion, there lived in one of the prettiest parts of Long Island and with a farm overlooking the Sound, an old gentleman named R. B. Conklin. In his younger days Mr. Conklin had been a stage-carpenter, and, in the pursuit of his trade, drifted to New York, of which city he was a resident many years. * * *

"Being an economical man, as well as an industrious one, Mr. Conklin had saved some portions of his earnings, and by the time he had reached the meridian of life was the possessor of a fine little farm at Greenport, Long Island, where he began in a modest way the raising of a few colts. During his trip to New York City Mr. Conklin had noticed in one of the markets there a big bay stallion, not a finely finished horse in any sense, but one of wonderful power and resolution, that fulfilled the menial duty of hauling a fish wagon. At this time the fame of Rysdyk's Hambletonian was just being made, and there were several of his sons that were siring numbers of fast trotters. Mr. Conklin believed from the formation of the bay stallion that drew the fish wagon, that he was a descendant of Abdallah, the sire of Rysdyk's Hambletonian, and with this fancy in his mind he bought the horse, then well advanced in years and possessed of no pleasant temper, and took him to his Long Island farm. (I wish to state parenthetically that when any man can tell a horse's breeding by his formation or by a tape line he is entitled to the most distinguished consideration, and I gaze upon him with mingled feelings of admiration and consternation.)

"Mr. Conklin had previously to this time secured a mare called Nancy Awful This mare was by a thoroughbred horse called Telegraph. * * *

"In due course of time the daughter of Telegraph was bred to the stallion called Conklin's Abdallah, and the old gentleman predicted that the produce would be the greatest trotter the world had ever seen."

In this prediction the old gentleman was certainly correct, although upon what he based his belief does not appear. That Rarus was a race horse of high order is attested by the fact that he trotted 185 heats below 2:30. He is the only first class trotter who sprung from an undeveloped sire and a horse of no speed.

I will now return to a consideration of Harold, Dictator, Electioneer. Red Wilkes and Alexander's Belmont. To this list I will add Goldsmith's Volunteer.

Harold is the sire of Maud S, 2:08¾ and twenty-one others that have beaten 2:30. He showed plenty of speed, though he has no record.

Dictator is the sire of extreme speed, as witness Jay-Eye-See, 2:10, Phallas, 2:13¾, Director, 2:17, and seventeen others that have scored records in 2:30 or better. In a private letter I received from his owner, Mayor McDowell, of Ashland, Ky., he assures me Dictator has gone quarters in 34 seconds, a 2:16 gait. The standing of Mayor McDowell precludes the possibility of this being untrue, and it is my humble judgment that if Dictator had not been a horse of phenomenal speed he would not have sired such a trio as Jay-Eye-See, Phallas and Director.

Electioneer is justly considered the greatest sire of extreme speed in youngsters that the world has ever seen. He is the sire of Manzanita 2:16, Anteeo 2:16¼, Adair 2:17¼, Lot Slocum 2:17¼, Sunol (2 years) 2.18. Wildflower (2 years) 2:21, Fred Crocker (2 years) 2:25¼, Palo Alto Belle (2 years) 2:28¼, Maiden (3 years) 2:23, Bell Boy (3 years) 2:19¼, Hindo Rose (3 years) 2:19¼. Suisun also acquired a two-year-old record of 2:30¼, and is considered by some men to be to-day among the fastest horses in the United States. Aside from the above list, Electioneer is the sire of 31 performers who have entered the "charmed circle." Since his advent to Palo Alto Farm it is authoritively stated that he could speed a 2:20 gait, and if I am not mistaken he has gone a trial mile in 2:24.

Red Wilkes is the sire of Prince Wilkes, 2:14¾, Phil Thompson 2:16¼, and seventeen others inside 2:30. He has no record. It is said that Crit. Davis drove this horse a mile better than 2:20. He is universally recognized as a great stock horse.

Alexander's Belmont was sired by Alexander's Abdallah, his dam being by Mambrino Chief. He is the sire of Nutwood, 2:18¾, Wedgewood, 2:19, and nineteen more trotters. He was a fast horse, being at one time considered the finest stallion in the Blue Grass Country. Anent his sire, Abdallah, 15, there is a bit of history not generally known. I shall digress sufficiently to give it. He is famous as the sire of Goldsmith Maid, 2:14. He was first known as Edsall's Hambletonian, but when subsequently purchased by R. A. Alexander of the celebrated Woodburn Farm, was christened by him Alexander's Abdallah. He was a valuable and highly thought of horse. On the 2nd day of February, 1865, about 6 o'clock P. M., a band of guerrillas, under one Marion, visited Woodburn and took several horses, among them Bay Chief, a son of Mambrino Chief, and Abdallah. This band encamped a few miles from Woodburn, and early the next morning were attacked by a Federal force, and most of the horses recaptured. Bay Chief was shot in several places, and shortly afterward died. Abdallah was seized by a Federal soldier, who refused to surrender him. The horse was unshod and in no condition for severe usage. Nevertheless, this soldier rode the horse fifty miles over a beastly road, and when he gave out he turned him out upon the roadside. The horse soon after contracted pneumonia and died. I would have been delighted to form one of a party to put a noose round this Federal soldier's neck and see how far I could lift him from the earth his presence disgraced.

The last stallion in this given list is Volunteer. He is known to all as a sire of game and lasting horses. He is at present the sire of 28 trotters and pacers that have succeeded in beating two minutes and thirty seconds. Some of the best known of his get are St. Julien, 2:11¼, Driver, 2:19½, Domestic, 2:20½, Bodine, 2:19¼, Alley, 2:19, Gloster, 2:17, Powers, 2:21, Sweetness, 2:21¼, Unolala, 2:22½, Amy, 2:20¼, and William H. Allen, 2:23½. This is a list of race-horses, every one, not an exception. They have all beaten 2:30 from 16 to 74 times, Sweetness filling the first place and St. Julien the second. Volunteer has no record, but was driven a mile on a half-mile track at Goshen, N. Y., in 2:36 to wagon, and was capable of much faster time.

I shall now take up a list of trotting stallions which it will be conceded embraces about all the prominent families. Foremost among these stallions is George Wilkes, 2:22. The citation of this horse alone would prove a death blow to the "undeveloped" theory. Here was a race-horse, any way hitched; to harness, to wagon, or under saddle. He has founded one of the greatest families of trotters—great in speed, gameness, and the capacity to "breed on." He produced all his trotters and sired all his trotting sons (who are in turn well known stallions) after he was well along in years. When first taken to Kentucky he was called a rat, being a small horse. The people who ridiculed him in the beginning, saw the day dawn when they were glad to do him reverence. George Wilkes is the sire of Harry Wilkes, 2:13½, Guy Wilkes, 2:15½, and 63 more trotters and pacers that have covered a mile in 2:30 or better. He has 29 sons that have produced 81 performers.

Blue Bull 75 has many times been quoted as a wonderful sire of trotters. As I have previously stated, he is one of the stallions to which the adherents of the undeveloped doctrine pin their faith. They have his name emblazoned upon their escutcheons in large letters, and when they desire to exterminate the foe, they turn its face upon them. I would be really glad to leave them one prop, but I cannot do even that. After investigating considerable correspondence relative to Blue Bull, I find that he was a phenominally fast horse at the pacing gait. This is now given up by all authorities to be the truth. Blue Bull is the sire of 53 trotters and 5 pacers. The fact of a pacing horse, with no positive trotting blood in his composition, siring only 5 pacers out of a total of 58 2:30 performers, seems to me the strangest thing with which I am acquainted. Fully one-third the trotters he sired were from mares of unknown breeding, and most of them had little breeding had it been known. This, however, did not keep this pacing horse from siring trotters with singular uniformity.

Almont 2:39¾ is one of the great sires. H. T. Helm states in his "American Trotting Horses" that he has seen Almont go a 2:20 gait. He is the sire of thirty-two trotters and two pacers.

I shall now append a list of stallions with records that have gained distinction as sires of trotters. This I will give in brief.

Whipple's Hambletonian 2:39½ has 14 trotters in the list. Daniel Lambeat 2:41 has sired 30 odd; Edward Everett 2:38 has sired 13; Happy Medium 2:32½ has placed 38 trotters in the 2:30 class; Alexander's Abdallah 2:42, has sired 6 trotters, and has 13 sons that have sired 95 trotters; Aberdeen, 2:46, has sired 16 trotters; Green Bashaw, 2:35, has sired 16; Vermont Black Hawk 2:42, has sired 4; Strader's C. M. Clay 2:35¼, sired 2; Columbus 2:35½ has sired 11; Ericsson 2:30½, 6; Gen. Benton 2:34½, 10; Gen. Knox 2:31½, 14; Dorcey's Golddust 2:43, 4; and they were race horses, i, e., Fleety Golddust 2:20, Indicator 2:23¾, Lucille Golddust 2:16¼ and Rolla Golddust 2:25. Mambrino Pilot 2:34¾ has seven in the list: The Moor 2:37, 5; Pocahontas Boy 2:31, 10; Jay Gould 2:20½, has sired 14; Ethan Allen 2:25½, has sired 6, and his sons have produced 66; Geo. M. Patchen 2:23 has sired 4; Geo. M. Patchen Jr. 2:27, 9; Gov. Sprague 2:20½, 16; Nutwood, 2:18¾, 21; Onward 2:25½, 14; Phil Sheridan 2:26½, 10; Sentinel, 2:29¾, 8; Sultan 2:24; 16, among whom is Stamboul 2:14½; Thomas Jefferson 2:23, 8; Wedgewood 2:19, 5, the star of the family being Favonia 2:15; Woodford Mambrino 2:21½, has sired 11 trotters; Winthrop Morrill 2:45, has sired 9 inside 2:30.

A striking example of great speed producing great speed, is witnessed in the stallion Sidney 2:19¾. He is in most respects, the most wonderful horse that ever lived, of his age. I have seen this horse go a quarter of a mile in 31 seconds, and a half in 1:05. He is a pacer, though bred in the stoutest of trotting lines. Everybody remembers Goldleaf and Adonis, the three-year-old pacers, who astonished the world by obtaining records last year of 2:15 and 2:14½ respectively, This horse is also the sire of Fleet, yearling record 2:36, George V. 2:57½ as a yearling, and several others with a great flight of speed, the stallion Memo being probably the most conspicuous. Now, does any man believe that these two three-year-olds would have turned out such wonders, provided their sire could not go better than 3:30? Geo. Wilkes sired some rather lively "sidewheelers" but none of them have as fast records when aged horses as Goldleaf and Adonis have as colts.

I consider it useless to extend this article further, as I have conclusively shown that in almost every instance speed comes only from speed, or from a sire whose ancestors were fast and highly bred. It can also be seen that extreme speed is transmitted, 99 times out of 100, by horses of extreme speed, and never uniformily by horses without it.

In Almont, Dictator, Happy Medium, Volunteer, Ethan Allen, Electioneer, Geo. Wilkes, Gov. Sprague, Nutwood, Woodford, Mambrino and Seeley's American Star. We have about all the fundamental trotting speed this country can produce. Five of them have fast records, and were campaigners of great merit. The other five could all trot a 2:20 gait, with one exception, and that horse showed 2:35 to the pole many years ago, when 2:35 was considered fast.

Finally, it is preferable to breed to a fast horse, if you would raise a trotter, not alone from the point of speed, but because the racing instinct possessed by the developed stallion, would pass probably to the colt, as it is my belief that acquired characteristics breed on, the same as inherent ones.

What are the dimensions of a regulation mile track?

For a mile track draw a line through an oblong center 440 yards in length setting a stake at each end. Then draw a line on either side of the first line, exactly parallel with and 440 yards from it, setting stakes at either end of them. You will then have an oblong square 440 yards long and 280 yards wide. At each end of these three lines you will now set stakes. Now then fasten a cord or wire 140 yards long to the center stake of your parallelogram, and then describe a half circle, driving stakes as often as you wish to set a fence-post. The half circle commencing at one side and extended to the other, will measure 440 yards. When the circle is made at both ends of your parallelogram you will have two straight sides that measure 440 yards each, and two circles of exactly the same length, which measured three feet from the fence will be exactly a mile. The turns should be thrown up an inch to the foot.

A Reader.

Capt. Webster is a standard horse; his number in the register is 10173; he is the sire of Freestone, 2:29. Your mare would be standard if by either Anteeo or Antevolo. Pinole Patchen has a record of 2:36, made at San Francisco November 9th, 1877.

When an animal meets the requirements of admission and is duly registered, it shall be accepted as a standard trotting-bred animal:—

FIRST.—Any stallion that has himself a record of two minutes and thirty seconds (2:30) or better, provided any of his get has a record of 2:35 or better, or provided his sire or his dam is already a standard animal.

SECOND.—Any mare or gelding that has a record of 2:30 or better.

THIRD.—Any horse that is the sire of two animals with a record of 2:30 or better.

FOURTH.—Any horse that is the sire of one animal with a record of 2:30 or better, provided he has either of the additional qualifications: (1) A record himself of 2:35 or better. (2) Is the sire of two other animals with a record of 2:35 or better. (3) Has a sire or dam that is already a standard animal.

FIFTH.—Any mare that has produced an animal with a record of 2:30 or better.

SEVENTH.—The female progeny of a standard horse when out of a mare by a standard horse.

NINTH.—Any mare that has a record of 2:35 or better, and whose sire or dam is a standard animal.

A Memorial.

Walter A. Chester has the following good thing in the current number of the Turf Field and Farm:

There is a concern in this country which makes a business of noting the death of people who are prominent in their community, preparing a memorial card and sending it to the nearest surviving relative, in the hope of obtaining an order for a number of copies to be sent to the friends of the deceased. A few days since one of these came to the Middlebury, Vt., postoffice, a heavy black card, with the following inscription upon it in gilt letters:

There is no death!
What seems so is transition.
This life of mortal breath
Is but a suburb of the life elysian,
Whose portal we call death.

IN
OF
DIED,
JULY 8, 1889.

A precious one from us has gone,
A voice we loved is still;
A place is vacant in our home,
Which never can be filled.

God in his wisdom has recalled
The boon his love had given;
And though the body moulters here,
The soul is safe in heaven.

The package was addressed to "Mrs. Daniel Lambert, Middlebury, Vt.," and no doubt was sent in good faith, the managers of the obituary mill having their minds on men, and not on horses; but as the Daniel Lambert who died July 8, left several hundred widows, the post master was at a loss to make a proper delivery, and compromised by buying the card himself. I mentioned this queer blunder to a friend whose mind is on horses, and not on men, and it reminded him that he had read in a paper a short time ago that Wilkie Collins was threatened with paralysis, and it was several days before he disabused his mind of the impression that it referred to General Howard's stock horse, and realized that the famous novelist was the unfortunate one.

The Sucker Bettor.

It is the small bettors—those who "go it blind" and "play" every race—who serve to fatten the pockets of the bookmakers. The turfmen and plungers usually form a very tough game, and while they lose heavily at times, they "make a killing" whenever they strike a good thing. If bettors could resist the temptation to play every race and wait quietly until they saw a good thing, indeed, might the bookmakers lot be an unhappy one. The temptation to gamble is so strong and the fever so high, however, that nine out of ten go after everything in sight, and about that proportion get hopelessly stranded. A favorite system of betting with those who want to lose but a small amount if luck is against them and sweep everything if fortune is favorable is to "parley" their money through the board. This is to bet a small amount on the first race, and if it wins to put the entire proceeds on the next race, and so on through the entire board. The amount which can be won in that way is astonishing if all the horses picked are the right ones, which does not occur very often. A well known speculator once picked five winners the night before the races and marked them on a slip of paper, intending to follow the plan named above, starting with $25. When he reached the track, however, he received information which led him to cast his own judgment aside, and he quit loser on the day. A friend who had been given the tip and agreed to play it as suggested, followed the original plan. When he reached the race-course he had $25. When he left it he carried away $7 000, and the original selector of the good thing went home with him $200 loser.—Horseman.

Fruit Prospects.

Written for the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN.

The season opened up rather doubtfully as to prices, both in the East and at home. This was due, in a great extent, to poor, over-ripe fruit being shipped, together with other circumstances hardly understood, as there was a light crop of our first fruit, the cherry. Prices are now better at Chicago, our main distributing point for all varieties, and the indications now are that they will probably be maintained. There may be a drop when the bulk of the pears are shipped, but it is expected that, with the facilities of both Fruit Unions, if they do not cause a conflict, which would be disastrous to both sides, the producers will reap a fair profit. Our markets are yearly extending in the East for green fruits, but what the shipper needs most'y is cheaper railroad transportation, which has been reduced from time to time as the shipments and prices demanded it, but the railroad is yet the chief gainer by a long ways on every car of fruit shipped, and the producers will have to have lower rates on both slow freight and express trains. Let them kick vigorously, as they have done in the past, show their figures and their account sales, the cost of running their orchards and vineyards. The railroad folks will see their profits and their losses, but whether they will lower the rate at once is another matter. However, it is but a question of time when it will come about. Owing to the failure of table grapes throughout the East, our grape shippers can not help but reap a rich harvest this season, especially in the New York and Boston markets. Taking it altogether, the orchardist will have a very fair season if present indications hold good.

Hints on Fruit Packing.

WRITTEN FOR THE BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN

As a starter, see that your fruit is well assorted, according to size and quality, whether it be apples, pears, peaches or plums. As a general thing, make three sorts, the first to be the largest and free from blemish; large fruit, if bruised or scabby, should not be placed in this lot or shipped at all. The second quality takes in the medium-sized, clear-skinned specimens, while the third sort consists of the smaller fruit. Large and not too scabby fruit may be placed in this lot, but bruised specimens, no matter of what size, should be thrown out altogether, to be either dried or fed to stock, but should never be shipped under any circumstances, as a few poor specimens will spoil the sale of the whole box, no matter how fine the larger portion of the fruit may be. Extremely small fruit should also be thrown out. Good looks is what sells your fruit, no matter what the quality may be. This has been proved in numbers of instances, and is being further proved as the importance of the fruit industry increases. As an example, take the Flame de Tokay grape. Why is it that it invariably brings the highest quoted price, whether in the East or at home? It's not the quality of the grape, for the Tokay is one of our most insipid and tasteless grapes in the whole catalogue. The reason is simply because it possesses a high color and is an ornament for the table, making a fine effect wherever placed, and because it is showy people will consume almost as many as a great many other varieties; but take some of the smaller and not so highly colored varieties and they bring a less price, but possess a flavor unequaled by most of the larger table grapes. It's the same with other fruits. Our popular shipping prove the Gros d'Agen has demonstrated this. The largest apples, whether they have a good flavor or not, will bring from a dollar up more per box than the average size. The coarse but showy Pound pea sells readily on account of its size, possessing, as it does, little or no taste. These examples will tend to show that the looks and not the quality of fruit will sell it to the best advantage. It's the same with dried fruit, also. Small black, sun-dried apricots are often pronounced better in flavor alongside of fine large bleached ones double the size, yet when sold will bring about one-third the price that the sulphured ones are sold at. Modes of packing vary almost as much, as the different ways of cultivating, pruning, etc. Every orchardist has his own way of packing peaches, another a particular way of shipping apricots, and all claim that theirs is the best. Now, the best way of packing is that which is done at the least expense, and which shows the fruit up in good style, enabling it to sell at the best advantage. Packing determines the price of the fruit to a greater or less extent, and it very often pays to spend a few cents extra on a box if it thereby sells for enough more, as it invariably does with good merchantable fruit. One would think that if a variety of fruit be really fine that as long as it reached market unabused, not paying any attention to its appearance in the way it is placed, that a box of equal weight, whether layered and topped off or thrown loosely in the box, should bring the same price. That is evidently what a great many of our orchardists think at any rate. Take a walk among the commission houses early in the morning, when the fruit can be seen to the best advantage. You will find that a great many of the shippers have followed the theory just mentioned—fruit loose in the boxes and baskets, in every shape, small, scabby, mixed in with large, fine-grained specimens, while there is no end of bruised fruit. Here and there you will see evidences of really neat packing, and if you could see the account sales and note the results the difference would be surprising, that which is sorted and packed bringing from twenty-five to fifty per cent more than the loose lots, which are generally taken off the merchants' hands by the peddlers and canners for whatever they will bring. Of course, there are large lots shipped daily in sixty-pound boxes, sent loose for the canners. For them it is not necessary that it be packed in any particular way, as they will only pay so much and no more for the fruit, anyway. The city fruit stores want that which looks well, so that it will set off their stands and at the same time sell readily for a good price; and they are willing to pay a higher price for such fruit, while the shipments to outside towns from this market must consist of the best. The ways of packing that are mentioned will be found the simplest and least expensive and a great deal better than no packing at all. Simply piling the fruit in a box and nailing the cover on is not the proper name for packing; it is simply slouching the work and is the poorest kind of economy. Boxes are better than baskets as a general thing, even for short shipments, and should be made as light as possible, consistent with the weight of the fruit. For pit fruits, such as apricots and plums in packing for the home market, reverse the box—that is, turn it upside down so that what would generally be taken for the bottom of the box is the top. Place a half sheet of common brown paper on the face of the box first. This prevents the dust from gathering right on the top layer. Either sort as you pack or as it is picked from the tree. Have the box in front and the fruit that you are packing on the left; then pass from the left hand to the right to form the top layer, placing the rows, turning the blush of the fruit towards what will be the top of the box; place it in reasonably tight, but do not squeeze it so that it will bruise. There is always a certain amount of spring in fruit, and this should be taken advantage of in packing, so when nearing the side of the box take your left hand and draw the whole row close up; then place the last in this space. When you take your hand away the fruit that was held back springs to its natural position, thus making the whole row perfectly tight, without bruising it at all. Continue until you have packed one layer; that is generally enough; then fill in until the fruit reaches to the tops of the sides, or slightly higher, to allow for pressure. All this time shake the box once in a while gently, then nail the cover on. The box can then be turned upside down and labeled, and, when the cover proper is taken off, shows a fine appearance, and if the fruit be carefully assorted your brand will be a guarantee that the remainder of the box is the same as the top layer. Peaches should be packed in regular layers if of any size, a four-inch or twenty-pound box to be used for two-inch peaches, and a five-inch box for those of two and a half or three inches, making two lavers to the box. This is the simplest way of packing pit fruits outside of merely throwing them loose in the box. The main thing is to have your rows regular, the blush of the fruit on top, and the box well filled, so that when it is opened the top of the fruit is not an inch or two from the top. After being handled several times it gets pretty well shaken up. Pears should be packed in fifty-pound boxes and should be packed regularly—that is, in tiers, starting by placing the top or thickest end of the pear next to the head of the box, and then having the next row of stems coming in between the necks of the first, and so on until the top of the box is reached. Keep your four, five and six tier pears separate. A four-tier pear has no business in a six tier box, and vice versa. After nailing mark the box x x if four tier and x if five tier; the six tiers require no mark at all, and will generally do if packed and topped off with one layer. The commission merchants understand these marks, but don't impose on their good nature by having four tiers on top and six tiers underneath, as they very often test the marks by opening the box on the opposite side. This protects their business and also the honest packer's brand. Apples also want to be packed in tiers and marked the same as pears, and these two fruits, if not wormy, may be marked, "No worms," with as large a stencil as you like, but see that no wormy fruit is among the lot. It often causes great confusion when a man buys a box of apples or pears labeled, "No worms," to find that the careless packer has, somehow or other, labeled the wrong box, or perhaps the marks that the larva of the codlin moth is generally told by on the apple or pear did not show plain. It takes lots of experience and good eyesight to pack a box of apples without getting any wormy specimens in the box; but this little moth is kept down more every year by the use of Paris green and London purple washes. Grapes, to look neat, should have the bunches looked over when packing, taking off all the bruised and poor grapes, using a pair of scissors for this purpose; then lay them in the box with the flat part of the bunch showing towards the top, with the stems turned out of sight toward the center. Both top and bottom should be packed this way so that when opened there will be no difference in the looks of either. Twenty and twenty-five-pound boxes are generally used for grapes.

BASE BALL.

By One Who Knows.

The California League is the subject of considerable comment among baseball "fans" just at present. There are several things that have transpired recently which are not calculated to increase the popularity of the game on this Coast and particularly in this city. In the first place, the downfall of the home team has thoroughly disgusted local enthusiasts, and they are vainly endeavoring to assign some excuse for the wretched showing of their favorites in the last six weeks. It must be admitted that there is something very singular about this team. Harris opened the season with the same men, playing them against the same players that form the other clubs of the league, and took such a lead, that all interest in the race for the pennant died out, everybody conceeding the "rag" to San Francisco. But base ball is a mystery, and no sooner does Harris go to Stockton and get the champions in trim to give Frisco a battle, when the latter goes all to pieces, and are not only mauled around by the Stocktons, but dissatisfied Sacramento and the Oakland cripples rub the noses of the Metropolitan players in the dirt. Surely there must be some reason for this downfall, and it is not because they are outclassed, for there has been no new material imported to strengthen the other clubs.

The dissensions in the Sacramento club have been fully ventilated in the daily papers, and it is unnecessary to go over them again. It is understood though, that a substantial resident of the city will take the team in hand and place ton a footing with the other clubs.

If the downfall of the San Franciscos is exciting comment, the raw deals the "up-country" teams get from Sylvester when they come to this city, are bringing forth howls of indignation. There is no city in the United States whose base ball audiences are as impartial as here; all they ask for is a square deal and may the best team win. Last week the Sacramentos got it in the neck from this ex-ball player, and this week the Stocktons have been shamefully robbed. Thursday the Oaklands were given a game by Sylvester, when the club as it stands now has no license to defeat Stockton in ten years. Nobody doubts the California League games are played on the "square," yet the people cannot help remembering when they see Sylvester decide point after point in favor of the Oaklands, and some of them dead robs, that only a few weeks ago Robinson played him in the field a couple of games, after he had been dropped by the Sacramento club, and he was appointed to the position from the team across the bay. Of course there can be nothing more than gratitude that prompts him to give everything to the Colonels.

ATHLETICS.

Athletic Sports and Other Pastimes.

Edited by Arphippus.

CLUB JOTTINGS.

The Pacific Athletic Club would desire your membership so as to organize a truly honest and legitimate amateur Athletic Club.

The objects of the Pacific Athletic Club are numerous, and after knowing them you will without doubt tender your generous assistance to organize a club having in view only athletics as they should be, and not as they are.

The first object of the club is that initiation and dues shall be expended entirely for the benefit of the club and of its members; no salaried teachers whatsoever shall be employed. Notwithstanding this, the Club has boxing, wrestling, fencing and gymnastic teachers who rank amongst the best in this city, and in the coming athletic games and tournaments the many pupils will show that we have rallied under our flag some of the best athletes known.

The Pacific Athletic Club will be composed of gentlemen of good character and standing; it will exclude from its folds all ungentlemanly persons.

The gymnasium is large and spacious, being fitted up in the latest style. Boxing, wrestling, fencing and gymnastics will be taught on Monday, Wednesday and Friday evenings.

The Club will also contain library, reading room, baths, etc., and with your aid will become one of the best and largest institutions.

The success of the Club is an assured fact. Having been organized only a month or two, it now numbers 400 members, among them being some prominent business men.

The next exhibition will take place on August 15. That you will uphold and stand by a club created for athletic sports in general and also for sociability among its members.

C. GIRY,
President Pacific Athletic Club,
1630 Market Street.

The Pacific Athletic Club has just signed T. Morrisey and J. Hesketh to fight 10 rounds on one night of the exhibition. The fight will be scientific and hard, and both men have gone into training.

At a meeting of the Board of Directors of the Golden Gate Athletic Club, held on July 30th, the initiation fee was increased to $17.50. In addition to the Gorman-Turner contest on Wednesday, August 14th, a ten round contest will take place between George Allen of Australia, and Tom McIlwain of this city.

Class nights, Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, 8 to 10 P. M.

Class afternoons, Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays, 3.30 to 5.30 P. M.

Joe McAuliffe and Pat Killen for September 11th, 1889.

J. J. JAMISON, Secretary. JOHN A. STEINBACH, President.

The amateur boxers are getting into trim for the coming tournament of the C. A. A. C. The out-door men are still improving their wind for Admission Day and the wheelmen are resting on their oars waiting for something to turn up in the shape of a tournament of race-meet. The past week was anything but a profitable one for the anglers.

Several of the leading Local athletes will make an effort in the near future to start a new athletic association. This association will have nothing what ever to do with the governing of other organizations; it's purpose will be solely to make an effort to capture the Championship pennant for 1890. Quite a number of the champions have promised to lend their assistance to the undertaking and from present indications these athletes will be successful in their efforts. Only good men with records will be admitted to membership, and as the madjority of the best athletes on the Coast are members of the Olympic Athletic Club it is only natural to suppose that the honors which this proposed organization will win will be credited to the O. A. C.

The gymnasium of the Golden Gate Athletic Club is thronged every afternoon and evening with the new members of its amateur annex.

The boxing tournament of the C. A. A. C. will be held in the club's new exhibition hall, commencing September 15th. From present indications we are led to believe that the contests will be tame, as only members of the C. A. A. C. will take part in the tournament. It is a foregone conclusion that the association clubs of the P. C. A. A. A. will forbid their members from entering any of the events. The C. A. A. C. has itself to blame. Two of its best out-door men identified themselves with the P. C. A. A. A. at the last championship meeting, and, in consequence, were expelled from the C. A. A. C. Under such circumstances, it would be very foolish to suppose for a moment that the P. C. A. A. A. would permit any of its athletes to help the C. A. A. C. out in its games. Supposing the P. C. A. A. A. did allow its members to take part in the games of the C. A. A. C., we fully believe that not one of its members would be willing to help out a faction that does not believe in its existence.

An immense crowd of people will no doubt be present at the opening of the new grounds of the O. A. C. The grounds will be arranged so as to accommodate 5,000 people, but on the opening day it is safe to say that double the number will strive to gain admission.

"An amateur athlete" suggests that the prizes for the Admission Day games be purchased before hand and exhibited in the window of some large store. We agree with the "amateur athlete" in his suggestion, and think the idea a good one, A committee should be appointed to select prizes, and these prizes should be exhibited at least a couple of weeks previous to the games, in order to afford the athletes an opportunity to see what they will be contesting for. This is the custom in the East and it should be introduced here. A distinction should be made in the quality of the prizes. For instance in the sprint races (where more than one heat has to be run) and in the long distance runs and the walking event the prizes should be more valuable than in the shot putting and jumping events.

RUNNERS, WALKERS, JUMPERS, ETC.

William Van Pelt and George Turner, two young men employed in the office of a well-known Law firm in the Nevada Block walked a match race of one mile at the Haight Street Baseball grounds on Monday afternoon. Turner took the lead at the start but was soon overtaken by Van Pelt who led until within one hundred yards of the finish when his wind gave out and his thinner opponent shot by him and won the race by twenty yards. Time 9min. 30secs, George Armburster is in strict training for the novice race on Sept. 9th. and with a little more practice in the art of starting he should certainly win one of the medals.

Captain A. H. Lean of the C. A. A. C. states that training tickets for the Harbor View Grounds are now ready and members of the club can procure them at the Secretary's office.

Several of the O. A. C. members are training at the Bay District track.

Last Sunday morning the Bay District track was fairly swarming with athletes. Runners, Walkers, Jumpers, shot-putters and even prize fighters gave exhibitions of their ability. Several impromptu races were run and a large crowd of people who were on the porch seemed to take great interest in the doings of the athletes. The scene was reminisicent of the Sunday mornings years ago when the original Golden Gate Athletic Club was in existance. Ah! those were the good old days. Poor Bob Haley and Jack Belcher and many other shining lights were in their prime then and crowds of people would assemble at the Bay District track every Sunday morning to witness the doings of the Athletes.

C. M. Yates, the pedestrian, is now turning all his attention to boxing, and his teacher has great confidence in his future success.

One of the old time heel and toe walkers, John D. Mann, left on Thursday last for Virginia, where the future he will reside. Mr. Mann is a very old member of the C. A. C. and his loss will be greatly felt on future field-days.

V. P. White is still after Kolb's scalp and it will be a great pity if the two men cannot be brought together. White has improved very much of late under the tuition of Professor Joe Acton and in him Kolb will find a foeman worthy of his steel.

Several of the Pacific Athletic Club's out-door men are getting into condition for Admission Day, and it is expected that the club will have a representative in nearly all the events.

At the summer meeting of the Detroit Amateur Athletic Club, held at Detroit on August 3d, John Owen Jr. of Detroit lowered the record for a hundred-yard dash, making it in nine and three quarter seconds. The best previous record was 10 seconds. Owens also lowered the 220-yard run, making it in twenty one and two-fifth seconds. The best previous record was 22 seconds.

Peter McIntyre and Watson are soon to run a race for a large stake. Judging from McIntyre's record in the mile run at the last games of the Scottish Thistle Club we are of the opinion that he can beat the man from Victoria. At all events the race will be very close one.

It is thought that Carpenter of the C. A. A. C. with proper training can equal Moffet's record in the running high jump.

It is to be hoped that a proper jumping place will be provided for the competitors at the next out-door meeting.

AT THE OARS.

The committee on new quarters appointed by the Ariel Rowing Club has not as yet been able to decide on a suitable location. The majority of the members are opposed to having the club house located across the Bay, and the probabilities are that some place will be selected this side.

J. J. Larkey of the Ariels is busy getting up an amateur crew which he says will "knock the stuffing" out any crew in the club.

The old boat house of the Triton swimming and boating club is to be re-modeled.

The water was rough on Sunday last and very few of the oarsmen took exercise.

The late Col. Tobin was a great lover of aquatic sports and years ago was himself a very fair oasman.

On Tuesday last William O'Connor, the champion sculler of America, was presented with a small white silk flag by Sir Charles Tupper, High Commissioner for the Dominion of Canada at London, England. The presentation took place at the office of the High Commissioner. On the flag the coat of arms of the Dominion of Canada was exquisitely painted in oils. The champion was much pleased at the present and expressed his gratitude in a very neat speech.

THE WHEELMEN.

Club run No. 20. Santa Cruz, Saturday, August 10th. Take the 2 P. M. Oakland boat.

Club run No. 21. San Leandro and Lake Chabot, Sunday, August 18th. Take the 9:15 A. M. creek route boat.

Club run No. 22. Mount Tamalpais, Sunday, August 25th. On this run members are requested to wear their old clothes, to bring their lunches, and not to bring their wheels. Take the 8 A. M. Sausalito boat. F. J. H. Manning, Captain.

A bomb has been cast into the camp of the wheelmen; their prospects have been blighted. There will be no bicycle tournament at San Jose on the 9th of September. The Directors of the Nevada County State Fair have decided not to add any bicycle events to their programme, and there will be no bicycle races at Sacramento during the California State Fair. So many disappointments must necessarily be very discouraging to the wheelmen who have been in training for some time past.

Quite a number of riders took part in the joint run of the Bay City Wheelmen and Oak Leaf Wheelmen to San Mateo on last Sunday, and the trip was a very enjoyable one.

The recent victory of Ralph Temple of Chicago in the ten mile bicycling championship race at Leicester (England) was quite a surprise to the English sports. The English will soon begin to realize that America is the land of the champions.

A. Any amateur wilfully competing at races not stated to be held and actually held under the rules of the Board, or rules approved by the Board, shall be liable to suspension from the race track for such a time as the Racing Board may determine; and amateurs are notified that to compete against any rider who has been suspended will render them liable to the same penalty.

The Racing Board will receive and pass upon all claims for records, and, if required, claimants must furnish a statement from the judges and time-keepers of the meeting, together with a sworn statement from a competent surveyor certifying the measurement of the track. The Board will enter no records in its books that is made on a board track or under cover.

C. The standard of measurement adopted by the Board requires that a track shall be measured on a line drawn not more than eighteen inches from a well-defined, fixed and continuous inner curb or pole, and no record will be allowed on a track otherwise measured.

IN THE SURF.

The swimming race at the Terrace Baths, Alameda, last Saturday afternoon, between Prof. Jack Williams, of Montreal, Canada, and Ed. Pinckham, of California, for $500 a side, was a very uninteresting affair. From the start it was plainly to be seen that the Canadian was never in the race, the California boy winning as he pleased. We have our doubts as to whether the match was a genuine one; for it seems impossible to believe that the Professor had even the smallest idea that he could defeat Pinckham. There are several swimmers on the Pacific Coast who can defeat the Canadian, but we doubt if there is a match for the Californian this side of the Rocky Mountains.

The attendance at the Crystal Baths during the week was up to the average. This is an excellent place for novices to learn swimming. An instructor is always at hand, and there is not the slightest danger of drowning.

Bathers who patronize the Shelter Cove Baths are constantly complaining about the dirty color of the water in that locality at certain hour of the day. The discoloration of the water is caused by the dumping of refuse into the Bay by the employes of the wire works close at hand. While of course the iron is not at all injurious to the system still too many persons it is very distaseful and the proprietors of the baths should make some effort to have the nuisance abated.

Grim's Gossip.

On the completion of the "big" circuit in California, the pacer Almont Patchen will be sent South, and will probably be entered throughout the Texas circuit.

All those who have entries in the Santa Rosa Colt Stake should remember that this is the day for the last payment of entrance money.

A race is in prospect at Deer Lodge, Montana, between Little Joe and Palatina, for $5,000 a side. A thousand a side has been posted as a forfeit.

The executors of the estate of the late Gen. Wm. T. Withers have determined to sell off the entire stud of Fairlawn Farm. The sale will take place in October at public auction.

On Thursday a large number of the horses which have been quartered lately at the Bay District, were sent up to Napa among them being those of G. Valensin, F. H. Burke and Dick Havey's string.

Mr. Maguire who has in training at Napa the D. M. Reavis string reports them all fit to race. There are several good ones amomg them and I expect to hear of them winning before long.

There is a rumor prevalant around sporting headquarters, that Jack Edgar has joined the Salvation Army over in Montana. If the report is true, the odds are two to one, that Jack will give his satanic majesty ten pounds and a beating.

What driver is it that is kicking because the "big five" will not allow him in the combination. From the manner in which two of the horses will shut out in the first heat last Saturday it would seem that there were enough in the "combine."

Director L. H. McIntosh of the P. C. T. H. B. A. passed several days in town this week. He reports that the stallion Arthur Wilkes has served forty mares at Ogden since his arrival there. Arther Wilkes will be sent back to the Chico farm some time this fall.

Axtell, 2:14¾, the great three-year-old, stands 15.2½ hands high, and measures the same over rump as at the withers. The day he made his record he weighed 1,050 pounds, and was regarded as fifty pounds too high in flesh. His shoes weigh five ounces forward and three ounces behind.

I have to return thanks to G. M. Robinson Esq., secretary of the Inter State Fair, to be held at Elmira, N. Y, commencing September 16th, for a complimentary ticket, and personal letter inviting me to attend their meeting. Nothing would give me greater pleasure, but a press of business on the Pacific Coast will prevent attendance.

The fixtures for the autumn meeting of the Coney Island Jockey Club include a new stake, to be called the Equinoctial, for two-year-olds, to be run again as three-year-olds in June, 1890. Its conditions are similar to those of the "Double Event," with $2,000 added to each race, and a piece of plate worth $1,000 for the owner if the same horse wins both races

G. Valensin, of Pleasanton, has purchased from Chas. Green, of San Francisco, the bay sucking colt Select by Sidney, dam Queen by Sultan; second dam Lilly Shear, (dam of Emma G. 2:26½) by Whipple's Hambletonian; third dam the old time trotting mare Alice Mandeville. Price $1,000.

A letter from Monmouth says everything there is saturated with moisture—shoes covered with mildew, and if you purchase postage stamps and put them in your pocketbook, you find they are glued tightly to the leaves. As thoroughbred horses are the denizens of a dry climate, they suffer very much from damp of this kind, and the result is that many are on the sick list.

The Palace Hotel is nightly the rendezvous of all the prominent trotting horse men, and there they fight the old battles over, and tell what they are going to win this year.

The Directors of the Fresno Association have fixed weights for the Raisin handicap as follows: Ora 103, Manzanita 100, Sir Charles 90, Mozart 108, Joe Hoge 103, Hello, 103, Laura Gardner 110, Jack Brady 110, Phantom 95, Dan Murphy 105.

Foreman—Shall I distribute the two items on the galley referring to Jay-Eye-See? One says he is able to beat the record of Maud S. and the other says he is broken down?

Editor—No; we have used them for several years past, and they will do for next season.

Well, it is over at last. The great fake race between Hamlin and the Sire Bros. was trotted at Buffalo on Thursday last, and Belle Hamlin won two heats in succession in 2:15 and 2:17½. The telegrams do not say when the return race will take place, but it may be looked for in the near future.

The Napa Directors have decided to let Gold Leaf and Almont Patchen start for the free for all pacing purse, they being the only entries. The 2:23 class will go with Direct, Grandee, Gus Wilkes and Victor. The 2:17 class will have Lillie Stanley and Dawn as competitors.

The programme book issued by the New York Club for the inaugural meeting commencing August 20th, is one of the most elaborate affairs seen in a long time. Evidently the club has determined not to be outdone by the older association, and are working hard to make success doubly sure.

California once more comes to the fore this week; the great little horse, Flood Tide proving to be the superior of such rare good ones as Come To Taw, Longstreet and others at Saratoga, while Los Angeles downed Firenzi and Eurus at Monmouth Park. Both the Baldwin and Ashe stable have been doing very well lately.

Mr. J. K. Newton has had hard luck with the horses which he took East some time ago to sell. On the day on which they were originally to be offered at public auction, the rain fell in torrents and the sale was postponed until last Saturday. A reserve price of $2,500 had been placed on each of the five, and there was not one which reached that figure, so they were all withdrawn.

The Directors of the Pacific Coast Trotting Horse Breeders Association met at the Palace Hotel on Tuesday evening to canvass the entries for the 2:30 purse and also for the free for all. The attendance was a large one and very enthusiastic, especially when it was found how well the purses had filled. There are strong grounds for the assertion that the P. C. T. H. B. meeting of 1889 will surpass anthing of the kind held in California.

Mr. Cory of San Jose is up in arms, and proposes to obtain the scalp of Mr. Lathrop's unnamed pacer. He wants it distinctly understood that he will pace Almont Patchen against the gelding, and proposes to make the match for $2,500 a side. This may determine whether the friends of the great unnamed are willing to carry out their promises and back him against anything in the State. Step up, gentlemen, and post your forfeits.

The Bay District Meeting has proved a regular fiasco. The number of entries received did not warrant the management in continuing the meeting, so every thing was declared off. The 2:40 class was to have had a go on Thursday, but there were only two of the entries prepared to start, so the secretary made the announcement that the race was "off". Mr. Deitz had his colt jogged around the track and claimed part of the entrance money, but as yet, what he claims has failed to materialize.

Another bad piece of news comes from Rosemeade. It is to the effect that Alcazar's leg has gone back on him, and the Sultan stallion will be turned out. He was worked out last Saturday, since which time the tendon of the leg has swollen very much. This bad leg, while not altogether unexpected, is to be deplored, as Senator Rose had great faith in Alcazar reducing his record three or our seconds. Dubec is not quite himself at present, but his work heretofore has been more than creditable.

The New York Jockey Club has sent to this office a quantity of entry blanks for the stake races which close August 15th. For the spring meeting of 1890, there are the Great Eclipse stake with $10,000 added, for two-year-olds; Fleetwood Stakes, with $2,000 added, for three-year-olds; Elm Stakes, with $2,000 added, for three-year-old fillies. For the fall meeting of 1890, there are the Hickory Stakes, with $10,000 added for three-year-olds. These same Stakes will also close on the 15th for the 1891 events. Any persons desirous of obtaining entry blanks can procure them at this office.

The German trotting-tracks, which are now modeled after those in this country so far as construction is concerned, are in some respects managed even better than those in America. One reform that the Germans have instituted is the charging of but two per cent entrance on first money, the result being that they get a lot of entries, there being sometimes as high as thirty-five entries in a class. Most of the races are of the dash order, and on a recent day in Berlin six events were disposed of, five of them being dashes and the other best two in three.

One night last winter dusky Bob Campbell, trainer for E. J. Baldwin, told a few friends that he had a colt called King Charles, that would in all probability win the Junior Champion Stake. When the reports came over the wire last Tuesday that Protection had won the great event, there were but few in the city that knew the winner as King Charles, yet they are one and the same. Bob wins by the victory considerably over $30,000, a nice little fortune for a poor man.

Mr. E. L. Geroux, of Baker county Oregon, has recently purchased two young, finely-bred trotters, which he will have on the turf next year, says the Rural Spirit. Vernon, b f by Reporter, son of Dictator by Rysdyk's Hambletonian, dam Star Bullock by Bullock, son of Narragansett Mambrino by Mambrino Chief; 2d dam Star of Natice by New York, son Alexander's Abdallah, by Rysdyk's Hambletonian, etc. The other one is Col. Bird, b c foaled 1888, by Autocrat, son of Havoc by Thorndale, son of Alexander's Abdallah by Hambletonian 10, dam Ema Elmo by St. Elmo, son of Alexander's Abdallah, etc.

Colonel J. D. Morrissey, of Denver, Col, the owner of L. C. Lee, remarked to a friend recently: "Let me whisper in your ear If any horse on this continent this year reduces the pacing record or comes any where near approaching the fleet Johnston, it will be L. C. Lee. Yolo Maid is undoubtedly a good pacing mare, and she is the very animal that we shall take delight in measuring strides with. Lee will no longer be permitted to pace in races with inferior horses. He must meet the best. We are not afraid of them."

The following piece of gossip is from the Los Angeles Tribune. Our readers will regret to learn that Gossiper, the symmetrical son of Simmons, is entirely off, and at the present writing it is problematical whether he will be started at any of the fair meetings this year. He showed up very poorly yesterday, but the trotter might round to with a little rest. Charley Durfee had great expectations for Gossiper, and he was certainly one of the most promising of the sensational four-year-olds that will be seen on the grand circuit in California this year. Don Tomas is reported a little under the weather. Baylis also worked Belle B, the stable companion of Atto Rex, miles in 2:30 and 2:31. John Dunn, who has charge oi Philip Glassell's Del Sur mare, drove her a mile in 2:31. Radical showed a couple of quarters in :39. This son of Pilot Medium is a candidate for the 2:30 class at the coming fair. Belle Forest was worked in 2:39.

The race between Wanda and Simmocolon was no sooner over last Saturday than rumors began flying about that Eros was not the sire of the mare, but that Fallis could claim that honor. These reports were started by irresponsible persons, perfectly ignorant of the facts, but willing to be thought "Knowalls" by those who were as ignorant as themselves. When Mr. Burke bought the filly the catalogue said, "A bay horse colt by Fallis, dam Girofle," instead of which the auctioneer put up the filly Wanda, by Eros, dam s t b by Elmo. The ages of both were alike, but the horse colt alluded to was not sold until February 28th of this year, when he was purchased by Mr. Howard Smith of Alameda County. Mr. Burke has all the affidavits necessary and also a photographic reproduction of the Stallion Service Book, all of which prove conclusively that Eros is the sire and not Fallis, as reported.

Salinas Notes.

During the past week nothing of any great importance has occurred at the Salinas track. The horses generally are doing well, the several stables being luckily exempt from any form of ailment that might interfere with their work.

In addition to the list of horses under Jas. Dwain's care, mentioned last week, there are B. V. Sargent's b m, 6 yrs., by Mountain Chief, he by Geo. M. Patchen Jr., dam a Vermont mare. She is a pacer and can show a rapid gait. J. B. Iverson's dark brown or black yearling filly by Carr's Mambrino, dam by Vermont 322; a full sister to Mambrino Boy, is just broken, and promises to make a goer.

Pat McCartney is handling R. S. R. Clayton's b s Fred Grant, 2:46. Fred Grant is a 1400-pound horse and made his record in the fifth heat of a race. He has just made a heavy season in the stud, but he rattles off quarters handily in 40. He has also John Cook's Kingdom horse, br s, 4 years, by De Groat's Starr King, a son of Oliver Cromwell, dam an Abdallah mare.

J. J. Nutting's b c, 2 yrs., by Sargent's Brown Jug, dam by Ladd's Rattler, 2nd dam Mamie Sealis, is a very handsome youngster, pure gaited, and promises to be able after awhile to keep good company.

Mr. McCartney has also a two-year-old black filly by Fred Grant, that has a fine way of going, and is a little beauty.

James H. Harris has in his stable his sorrel mare Maud H., 6 yrs., by Carr's Mambrino, dam by Dan Vorhees. Last year she got a record of 2:34. She is taking her work kindly and improving every day. Last Sunday he sent her a mile in 2:27½, doing the last half easily in 1:12½.

Wisecarver,s St. Patrick, b s, 3 yrs., a full brother to Maud H., was the winner of the two-year-old colt stakes of this district in 1887, earning a record of 2:56. He can now show a 30 gait, working a mile a few days ago in 2·34½.

Charley Allen's bay Clem, b c, 3 yrs., by De Groat's Starr King, dam by Anderson's Abdallah, won the two-year-old colt stake here last year in 2:52. I held the watch on him a few days ago, for the half in 1:17. Forty is fun for him, and from his perfect motion and immense powers, thirty seems easily within his reach before the year is out.

Mr. Allen has in Jim Harris' stable, also, a black filly, 2 years, by Erwin Davis, dam by Starr King, 2nd dam by Anderson's Abdallah. She is one of the most promising fillies ever on this track, and many fancy she has the two-year-old colt stake at our Fair in October at her mercy.

Guy Davis, br s, 3 years, by Erwin Davis, dam by George M. Patchen, Jr., is the property of Abel Watson. He has a fine way of going, quite a bit of speed, but does not take so kindly to his work as could be wished.

Perhaps the best colt ever on this track is the two-year-old brown stallion by Junio, dam by Fred Patchen, 2nd dam by Vermont, 3:22. He is a large, powerful colt, with immense driving power, fine neck and shoulders, hocks and stifles perfect for a trotter. Though just broken, he trotted a mile out last Saturday in 2:45, and can show quarters better than 40 any day. George Graves of Gonzales is the fortunate owner of this promising colt, and Harris takes a special delight in giving him his early lessons.

A. B. Jackson's b g, 3 years, by Starr King, has just been put in training, and is a fine-stepping green horse. Harris says "he will make a trotter sure."

The Kavanagh Bros. have on the track Kitty C., b m, 4 years, by Kingston, dam by Orphan Boy. As a three-year-old, this handsome mare won several races, showing speed and ability to stay. They have also a brown stallion, 3 years, a full brother to Kitty C. He is a grandly shaped colt, and looks every inch a racer. His owners expect great things of him, and his preliminary work would seem to justify their hopes.

James Dwain is handling a running filly for James Bardin. She is three years old, by Kingston, dam by young Woodburn, 2nd dam the Old Sage Hen. She is speedy, and will pay for her oats as soon as a chance is given her.

This concludes the list of horses in training here, among which there are several that will, barring accidents, enter the charmed circle and become members of the equine coteries select.

Guarantee Purse, $2,000

The Directors of the Sixth District Agricultural Association of Los Angeles, Cal., offer a guarantee purse of $2,000 to horses of the 2:20 class, to be trotted on Thursday, October 24, 1889, during the Association's tenth annual meeting.

Entrance, 10 per cent. of the purse, payable as follows: Five per cent. September 1st, to accompany nomination, and 5 per cent. October 1st, when horses are to be named. This, however, is on the supposition that enough entries are obtained to justify giving this purse.

Horses will take their record from August 1st, 1889. American Association Rules to govern.

ROD.

Anyone having a copy of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN of January 26, 1889, who does not desire to preserve it, will confer a favor by sending it to the Kennel Editor of this paper.

Mr. B. F. Jacobs, of the Herald of Trade, recently returned from a visit to the north fork of the American River, near Sailor Canyon. He found trout and deer plenty, and killed a black bear and cub. His fiishing was done with grasshoppers as bait. If he had used flies on that river and fished upstream he would have killed larger fish and more of them. One of the finest 35 pound baskets of trout we ever saw was filled on a half mile of the American, where Mr. Jacobs camped, by Mr. Joe Bassford a few years ago. The trout were killed on a jungle cock, and averaged seventeen inches in length. All were lusty, deep, strong river fish, and the angler was about exhausted by his morning's work.

At Tiburon, California City, Angel Island and other points near Tiburon hardly any fish was caught.

Three young men lost their lives at Mussel Rock while fishing on last Sunday. This deplorable occurrence should prove a warning to other anglers who are in the habit of going there to fish. We have been informed that it is a common custom for fishermen who visit Mussel Rock and other points further up the Coast to walk out to certain big rocks at low tide and remain on them until the tide rises, and surrounds them, then they begin fishing. Now this is certainly a dangerous practice and it should be stopped at once. Supposing the tide should raise just a little higher than usual, as was the case last Sunday, what chance of escape would the anglers on the rocks far out from shore have? It is no reason because a man is a good swimmer that he should take such awful chances, In a rough sea where rocks abound even the best swimmers would be unable to reach shore.

AQUATICS.

The Old Guards are Rallying.

Some of the old timers who quit the aquatic circle during the past five years are returning to the bay and once more they skim along the city front, as objects of admiration for any of the rural sports and grangers who stand in open mouthed wonderment gazing on the big ships and sights along the wharves, but when one of them saw a sculler approaching in a ten inch shell last Wednesday, his astonishment knew no bounds, and he yelled lustily for his friend Simpkins, "Cyrus, oh Cy, come here quick and see this consarned circus cuss rowing on a hop pole." "Gracious goodness," responded the excited member from Grass Valley, "Such a big fat man and so much of him hanging over the sides, why don't he wear stays?" The ex-policeman looked up at them savagely, ground his teeth, and rowed on, wondering would the verdant pair remember him in the near future, when he shall have become a lean and powerful sculler, measuring blades with the best oarsman we have here or elsewhere.

We expect to see a big corner in single racing shells at once, as all the returned prodigals were once scullers or desired to be considered as such.

First on the list is Dan Leahey, ex-champion of the Pacific Coast, with a list of unbroken victories and a five-mile record of 34:35 made in his thousand dollar match against the late Henry Hoyt, and which at that time stood as the world's record and still stands second only to Ned Hanlan's; with the advancement of science and art in shell building at the present time, the friends of Dan look for much when he gets back where the scales will balance at 170 pounds.

The next to long for blistered hands and sun-burned arms and a brush with Dan are the journalist Tom Flynn and ex-Supervisor John T. Sullivan. Both have in days gone by shone brightly in the acquatic world, Sullivan as the man who used to row in circles and never find his stake boat during his races, and Sir Tom as the man who succeeded in restraining any but heavily armored vessels from anchoring East of Mission street.

Bob Goble, who is in charge of the boat houses on Long wharf was seen to rush over to the Ariel House and seize a man by the collar who he supposed was picking the door lock. He was much surprised to find it was only Fred Smith, accompanied by two good-sized boys. Fred had one of the old-time keys. "All right," said Bob, "I'll unlock the door; they have changed the lock since you were a young fellow." Fred says he is going to make scullers of his sons, and thinks they are near enough "chips of the old block" to eventually reach where he left off—amateur champion sculler of the Pacific Coast.

Rowing men rubbed their eyes Sunday morning and wondered if it could be so when Lou White came walking down the wharf carrying a pair of mutton leg sculls in one hand and leading a good sized boy with the other. In reply to the inquiring looks of the boys he replied, "My boy, you know; going to make a sculler of him. Hope he will show up well." Lou was once a good sculler. The only trouble was he invariably joined the rear guard in all his races. "I tell you, if they ever give an old man's race in any of the future regattas, same as they do at picnics, count me in," remarked the genial Louis, as he clasped his son by his rowing trunks and set him in a shell, whispering in his ear, "Don't be afraid; Flynn capsized a hundred times and never drowned yet," and then pushed him adrift.

Henry Henchman has received a new boat from the East, and now wants to row Paine of Victoria, or anyone on the coast, barring Peterson. The chances are that either Austin Stevenson or Dan Leahey will accommodate him before long.

The match between Dean and Long is off for the present, as Dean is unable to get backing. Too bad Charley called him, or he might have got away with his big bluff.

THE GUN.

A well-known property in Lake County, consisting of 160 acres of well timbered land, a good hotel of 32 rooms, 20 small cottages and valuable mineral springs is offered for sale or exchange for vineyard or orchard or ranch property nearer the city. During the season the place affords a good income and is offered for sale or exchange because the owner cannot attend to the business. A splendid trout stream runs through the place for a quarter of a mile, which affords fine fishing, while the hills abound with large game. To lovers of angling or hunting, or to one who needs good health, this place offers superior advantages. See advertisement in this issue.

The Blue Rock Club.

The August meeting of this club will take place at Shell Point on Saturday, August 10th, at 2 P. M. Twenty-five single birds.

J. O. CADMAN, President.

From Seattle.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—Mr. J. M. Bell, of Tacoma, holder of the Globe Trophy, representing the Live Bird championship of the Northwest, having been challenged by Mr. W. A. Eberly of the same place, the contest for same took place at Tacoma, July 28th, at 25 live birds each man, 30 yards rise, both barrels. Mr. Bell won with the fine score of 24 birds to Mr. Eberly's 22. Both men used Parker guns. Mr. J. C. Nattrass, of Seattle has challenged the winner.

This medal is as fine and valuable as they make them, actual cost of same being $350, having been donated by the Globe Publishing Company of Tacoma.

Mr. G. Kellogg and Mr. Jos. McNaught, Esq., start for a chicken, quail and grouse hunt, east of the mountains, as soon as the season opens. They take Mr. Kellogg's pointer and Mr. Nattrass's Irish setter Red Fanny to find the birds with. Both being crack shots but few birds will be missed.

JAY SEE EN.

Central California Championship.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—The fifth match for the Central California Selby medal was held Saturday, Aug. 2d, at the grounds of the Vacaville Gun Club, on Lagunita Ranch, near Vacaville, and for the fifth time it was won by a member of the Vacaville Gun Club, H. A. Bassford winning it the first time, Frank Bassford the second, third and fourth and T. H. Buckingham the fifth. There were eight shooters for the medal, including Messrs. "Qugalls" and "Daisy" from San Francisco, Messrs. Summerfield and Cook from Crockett's.

As an excuse for the low scores made in the medal match, the shooters say that the weather was so extremely warm that the Blue Rocks were rendered so soft as to take the shot without breaking. In proof of this they cite the scores made in the matches shot later in the day, when it was cooler.

If Mr. "Daisy" is to be believed, the day must have been very warm, as he claims to have melted. Accompanying find complete scores of all matches:—

At 50 single Blue Rock targets and 25 pairs. For Selby medal, representing championship of Central California. Won by Mr. T. H. Buckingham, of Vacaville.

A. G. BOYCE.

The Mongolian Pheasant.

The attempt to introduce the Mongolian pheasant, now being made by the Grass Valley Sportsman's Club, makes all information relating to that bird particularly interesting, and we recently invited prominent sportsmen of Oregon to send us their opinions about the excellence of the pheasant. The replies which have come are from men who do not speak hastily nor without knowledge, and may be recorded as embodying the views of those best fitted to form an opinion in the premises.

Among those addressed was His Excellency Governor Pennoyer, who handed our queries to Mr. Job, and by him the matter was referred to Mr. C. A. Loud, captain of the Corvallis Rod and Gun Club. Mr. Loud writes:—

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—Your letter to Gov. Pennoyer was handed to me by Z. Job, President of the Corvallis Rod and Gun Club, in regard to the Mongolian pheasants. First they were planted by Judge Denny, of Portland, about seven or eight years ago. Some six pairs were put out, one pair at Knox's Buttes, about twenty miles from here, and to-day they can be seen by the thousands on every farm, and besides a large number are killed. It is estimated that 2,000 were killed near here last season; one bag of 95 by two sportsmen in a single day. They seem to stand the winter climate here, which is quite cold, often times plenty of snow and ice; their natural food is bugs, worms and all kind of grain and seed, they are found around the water at noon-day. As for gameness, I can say they are more fond of running than laying. After they get well grown they will not lie to the dog, but will run in cover of the grass, and a dog will often follow them one-quarter of a mile before they will take wing. They are a poor bird to train a pup on, as they always run. They frequent all kinds of cover, brush or stubble; they have destroyed all the quail, and it is a hard matter to find a covey of grouse now in this valley, as they kill and destroy the young grouse and drive off the old birds. They will enter a farmer's yard and drive his domestic cockrell off the place or kill him. The young pheasant is fine food for the table, but not as good as the young grouse; a little dry in a boil.

I would not advise any one, after what I have lately seen, to plant them where there are other game birds, and was thinking of sending my old friend, John K. Orr, of your city, a pair for stocking, but I now see they would soon do away with the game little quail. A few years ago there were plenty of quail in this valley, but now his lordship is nowhere to be seen.

I have some fine Llewellin pups to train, but I am afraid to trust them with the Mongolian pheasant for fear of making them unsteady. If you will pay this town a visit, I should be pleased to give you a good hunt and show you all I can about this emigrant bird. Shall be glad to show you at any time. You can publish these statements as facts.

C. A. LOUD, Field Captain
Corvallis Rod and Gun Club.

CORVALLIS, ORE., July 30, 1889.

Mr. Loud makes a discouraging showing, and we shall ge further particulars from him.

Mr. J. T. Bowditch, a leading light in the law at Ashland, Or., kindly sends these notes:

EDITOR BREEDER AND SORTSMAN:—A day or two ago Gen. McCall handed me your letter of July 16th and requested me to answer it. The Mongolian pheasant is one of the finest and most beautiful game birds that can be found in any country, but the reports about him are very conflicting. I believe, however, that all who have taken pains to inform themselves concerning the habits of these pheasants. consider them great'y slandered. They are now protected by law, as the statute of 1885 prohibits any one from killing or trapping them for the period of six years from the passage of the act; but some of them manage to find their way to the tables of those who love good things to eat in spite of this strict law, which is pretty generally enforced, and all agree that they are very delicate and finely flavored. They are very prolific and are rapidly spreading throughout the Willamette Valley, and are now found in some portions of Washington Territory. None, however have reached Southern Oregon, but the Ashland Gun Club is taking measures to have them introduced in the Rogue River Valley.

Like the prairie chicken, they haunt the grain fields at certain seasons of the year, and, of course, consume more or less grain, but the reports about their destroying the seed crops to such an extent as to make them a nuisance are, I believe, without foundation. Bills were introduced in the last two legislative sessions of our State for the purpose of repealing the law protecting them. Some of the supporters of these bills claimed that they were becoming a nuisance, but the larger number of them claimed they were plentiful enough now to permit of their being hunted in the proper seasons without any danger of exterminating them. Upon examination into the facts, however, both bills were defeated, and now leading men throughout Oregon consider them a very desirable addition to our game birds, and are about to try the experiment of introducing them into their respective sections of the State. Several pairs will be turned out here this fall, and several more in the spring (that is if the birds can be procured). Several attempts have been made in this (Jackson) county to have the domestic hen hatch and raise them as she does her own chicks, but in every instance the attempt has proved a failure. The young pheasants hatch out strong and vigorous, but their foster parent evidently does not understand their wants, so they live but a short time. Some say the reason is that the old pheasant feeds the young herself, and the hen does not understand this process; but the commonly accepted explanation is that the domestic hen does not supply suitable food for the young pheasants.

Hoping you will be successful in introducing these in Califoruia. J. T. Bowditch.

Ashland, Or., July 25, 1889.

The exceedingly entertaining letter from Mr. Bowditch places the pheasant scheme in a different light. Still another legal authority and sportsman, Mr. Geo. H. Burnett, writes as follows:—

Salem, Oregon, July 29, 1889.

Editor Brdeeer and Sportsman:—Your inquiries concerning Mongolian pheasants are at hand. They were introduced here from Japan in 1882, by Hon. O. N. Denny. The legislature of that year passed a law forbidding their destruction under penalty, hence I cannot give you any statistics as to their qualities for hunting. I have seen a goodly number of stuffed specimens, however, said to be the bodies of those which committed suicide through home sickness, by flying against telegraph wires. It is said they are fine eating, but of this I claim no personal knowledge.

They were set at large in various parts of the Willamette Valley when first introduced, and have multiplied very rapidly—so much so that farmers complain of them eating too much grain in some sections, but I doubt if this is well founded.

They, however, frequent grain fields, and prairies, and open woods. How they would act if hunted much is left to conjecture. The males are very game, sometimes fighting victoriously with the best cocks of the barnyard. I have heard that in some instances they cross, in breeding, with domestic hens. Their flight is steady—not so rapid as that of our native grouse—making them easy wing shots.

As you doubtless know, our climate in the Willamette Valley is damp and rainy in winter, and only moderately dry in summer. The natural foods for these birds are grains and grasses from the fields, and perhaps buds and seeds from the forests. The water supply is, of course, abundant.

Geo. H. Burnett.

The Secretary of the Southern Oregon State Board of Agriculture, Mr. Robert A. Miller, is most conclusive and satisfactory in his answers. He says:—

Jacksonville, Oregon, July 29, 1889.

Editor Breeder and Sportsman:—Your letter of inquiry regarding Mongolian pheasants received. We have none of these pheasants in Southern Oregon, though we have tried unsuccessfully to get them.

From having a great interest in that remarkably fine game bird I have learned somewhat of their desirability.

Though turned loose in our State but five or six years, they have multiplied to a wonderful extent, being found in the counties of Linn, Lane, Marion, Washington, Polk, Yamhill, Benton and Multonomah in great numbers.

Sportsmen in the Willamette Valley speak in the highest praise of their desirability as game birds. They are far more wary than the grouse, fly and run rapidly, permitting one shot as they fly from covers, and are gone for the day. They breed from two to three times a year. When the first brood of from eighteen to twenty chicks are hatched the male takes charge of them and another brood of from fifteen to eighteen is soon mingling with the first. If the season is propitious, another lot are hatched before winter. This accounts for their wonderful increase.

These birds were protected by Legislative enactments for five years from October 24th, 1882, and during the last Legislative Assembly it was proposed to permit them to be indiscriminately killed, but this proposition met with decided opposition.

It is a mooted question about their eating wheat or destroying grain. The general opinion is that they are a desirable acquisition to the food supply of the country.

Robert A. Miller.

A letter not bearing directly upon the question, but nevertheless full of matter of general interest, came from Mr. Henry Klippel, a Real Estate Agent and Notary Public, of Medford, Oregon, who says:

Editor Breeder and Sportsman:—Your letter concerning the "Mongolian Pheasant" was received in due course of mail. I regret that the increase of these birds has not extended as far south in Oregon as this valley of Rogue River. As I am informed they are confined to the valley of the Willamette. That they are increasing rapidly is not, I believe, doubted. The cry raised against them by non-sportsmen, that they are destructive of certain crops has, in all probability, no truth in it. They are doubtless in proportion to their size, no more destructive than quail. The law forbids shooting them. They have increased much more rapidly than the law makers anticipatad, and the cry against them is probably but a pretence to justify those who wish to shoot them.

I will add, that they do not exist in this valley. Our sport is confined to quail and grouse for field shooting, and to fly fishing for salmon which take the fly readily) salmon and brook trout. The salmon run from the sea up Rogue River and weigh from 15 to 40 pounds. Henry Klippel.

Medford, Oregon, July 19th, 1889.

California Wing Shooting Club.

The final gathering of the club for the season of '89 took place at San Bruno on Sunday last, eight members shooting and one guest, Mr. "Johns," who sometimes shoots as Mr. "J. K. O." The day was a trying one, the wind blowing strongly from the west and materially helping a strong lot of birds, which got away from the traps as though projected by gun cotton.

Several extraordinary scores were made; scores which would have been notable if made upon easy birds under favorable conditions, and which, when made at San Bruno, stamp the shooters as about peerless. Mr. C. J. Haas led, killing 40 straight out of 41, and most of them with the first barrel. He was closely followed by Mr. "Johns," who killed ten straight, missed his eleventh, and followed with thirteen clean, elegant kills, a total of twenty-three out of twenty-four. Mr. Fay killed nine of his first dozen, using the 12 Scott recently built for him; nine of the second dozen, then pulled himself together and scored twelve straight kills in the brilliant style of which he is, when he really tries, a master.

Mr. C. M. Osborn rolled up ten of each dozen in the matter-of-fact way with which he always smashes his birds. His style at the trap is precisely that in which he shoots in the field, and his record there is almost unapproachable.

Dr. Knowles dropped to nine, but his average for the season, six shoots, was ten and one sixth, which gave him third medal, Mr. Fay taking second and Mr. Haas first prize.

Sunday's scores were:

Haas, Smith, "Johns," Osborn and Norton tied on clean scores and lapped on the next match, which was similar in conditions. Messrs. Haas and "Johns" then divided first and second, and Mr. Norton took third.

Money then divided.

Appended will be found a resume of the season's work of the club, the scores of each month being given, together with the percentages. Only those who shot in all of the matches could compete for the medals. The percentages show the relative standing of the members, taking the number of birds shot at as the basis for computation. Several members did not shoot during the season, among them being Messrs. Neil Loynachan, Charles Ford, Dr. John Burnett and H. H. Briggs. The club now has twenty-one members and can send up a team of five men fit to compete with any like team in America.

Old Black Joe.

The following letter appeared in our contemporary, the London Shooting Times, July 20th, and is republished because it contains several false statements, which without correction, are likely to injure the reputation of a really good dog, the black pointer Old Black Joe, which won both the Derby and the All Aged stake at the last Pacific Coast Field Trials. Several personal aspersions directed against the kennel editor of the Breeder and Sportsman may also be found in the letter, the best and most convincing reply to which will be to show beyond cavil that the writer of the letter let go his hold upon truth to bolster up a cause that in his fatuity and ignorance he thought could be strengthened by any statement from himself. The letter is reprinted precisely as it appeared in our exchange, together with the comments by the editor of the Shooting Times, to whom we are indebted for kindliness which is fully appreciated.

The letter and comments are as follow:

(To the editor of the Shooting Times.)—Dear Sir: In your issue of March 2, 1889, page 429, there is an article headed "Watson's Turn Now," which calls for a reply from me, but until to-day I have been without the proofs asked for

In the first place you say "Watson is not getting on at all in America, somehow."

I am an Englishman by birth and expect to die one. As a boy I was taught that familiarity breeds contempt, and I am free to confess I have a profound contempt for any one who can write and publish such an article as the one referred to above, about anyone totally unknown to them.

I would like to know from what source you get your information as to whether I am getting on well in America or not.

For your information, I say that I have got on better in America than I ever did in England.

The only conclusion I can arrive at, is that the words have been put into your mouth by some sore head in San Francisco, and I suspect that some one to be Mr. H. H. Briggs, Kennel Editor, San Francisco, Breeder and Sportsman.

I am perfectly aware that he has said everything he could against "Old Black Joe," from the first time he saw him. He said to me he was coarse in the head and throaty, and to others he said he was a —— mongrel.

Mr. B. knew where I got the dog just a well as I did, because I showed him all my correspondence with Mr. W. R. Pape, Newcastle-upon-Tyne, from whom I bought the dog, as soon as I knew he was shipped.

You say, to this cautiously-worded epistle (referring to my letter to the Breeder and Sportsman) which was simply a plain statement of facts. The editor replies:—"Mr. Watson is doubtless correct in his statement as to the buying of Joe, otherwise than through William Graham, which is a matter of the slightest importance. In our remark about the buying of 'Old Black Joe,' we desire to convey the idea that Mr. Watson knew nothing as to the antecedents of the dog, his age, breeding, breeder, etc.

I emphatically assert that when Mr. Briggs wrote this he lied, and he knew it.

It is plain that Mr. B. will strain at a gnat and swallow a camel. The fact is, when I entered "Joe" in the Pacific Kennel Club Bench Show, held in April, 1888 (I send you a catalogue by the mail), I said, "Date of whelping and pedigree unknown," for the reason that Mr. Pape never gave me his exact date of whelping, or name of sire and dam, nor has he yet, but to-day I am in receipt of a letter from Mr. P., of which the following is a verbatim copy:—

Dear Sir,—The reason that I cannot give you the pedigree of my black pointer is this:—

I never show or exhibit them, therefore I have not got their names registered in the stud book.

The dog I sent (meaning "Old Black Joe") which was mate to the bitch which got lost overboard, is two years and four months old, and the last bitch I sent you is one year and ten months.

I shall be most happy to furnish you with any information which lies in my power.—I remain, dear sir, yours faithfully,

(Signed) W. R. Pape,
P. P. Geo, C. Pape.

James E. Watson, Esq., San Francisco."

I enclose you a certified copy of Mr. Pape's original letter.

The whole trouble is just this: Mr. Briggs is pulling for the setters owned by the California Kennels, and in his own words about the field trials held at Bakersfield last January, in which "Old Black Joe" won both the Derby and the All Aged Stakes, he said: "Judge Post, proprietor of kennels, feels awful sick," and I asked why. He replied "it was bad enough for all the setters to get knocked out, but when an old black dog walked over everything it made him very sick."

God help the setters if it requires a sporting paper at their back to make them any good. Give me the dog for my use that has got the sporting paper against him, but can walk round everything in the field.

The bitch referred to by Mr. Pape as being one year and ten months old, is now 111 days out from Liverpool in the same ship, the Kenilworth, which brought out "Joe" on her last voyage.

The statement I made about the age of "Joe" to the "smarty Alecs," who are such good judges of the age of a dog as to claim he was at least three years old, was that, so far as I could calculate, "Joe" was whelped in February, 1887, and Mr. Pape's letter confirms me, because writing on May 28 1889, he says is two years and four months.

June 13, 1889. 516 Sacramento Street, San Francisco.

[We publish the above with pleasure, and in reply thereto, beg to say that when we first dealt with the subject the similarity of names misled us, and that our remarks applied to another Watson—and we have already stated as much in a previous number of the Shooting Times.

This part of the question being settled, we beg to assure Mr. James E. Watson, of San Francisco, that Mr. Briggs has never written to us on the subject of "Old Black Joe." Mr. Briggs is too much of a gentleman and a sportsman to stab a man behind his back, and we can assure Mr. Watson that we would not allow ourselves to be used as tools for any such purpose. We leave that kind of thing for the other Watson to do.—Ed.]—(Shooting Times.)

[The intimation that we wrote to our fellow-editor personally about the owner of Joe is effectually killed by the editorial note, but we may be pardoned a smile, that Mr. Watson should feel that because a black dog was considered of some importance he (Watson) should also be deemed worth mention.

English men and English men undoubtedly come to America. Some come of avouched breeding, some whose performances furnish sufficient guarantee of gentle blood, and some whose performances suggest caddishness. The lack of pedigree in Old Black Joe could be over-looked if necessary because he was a good performer. Can as much be said for his quondam owner?

Mr. Watson says that we have "said everything we could against Old Black Joe from the first time we saw him." All that we have said about the dog we subjoin, and it proves beyond doubt that Mr. Watson has been guilty of falsehood. On October 8, 1887, upon the arrival of the dog, we said:

"The dog is a heavy weight of fairly good, coarse form, plain about head and throat, rather wide in brisket, well coupled, having good quarters and feet, and good stern. He came through in good condition, and looks quite fit to be entered on birds."

If that is not a fair statement about the dog, let some man other than the already convicted partisan Watson, point out the errors. One thing certainly appears, viz., that when the dog reached San Francisco in 1887, we thought him to be a year or more old, despite the claim of his owner that he was a puppy seven or eight months of age.

On January 26, 1889, we said after the field trials, where the dog was a double winner:

"First in each was won by Old Black Joe, 10057 A. K. S. B., a black pointer, supposed to have been bred by W. R. Pape at New Castle—on—Tyne, England. The dog was purchased about a year ago by Mr. Jas. E. Watson, Secretary of the Pacific Kennel Club through William Graham, of Belfast, Ireland. Mr Watson paid a long price for the dog, and should have received proper certificates of breeding, date of whelping, etc., none of which have been procurable. Old Black Joe weighs about forty-five pounds, won third in class for light-weight pointers at the P. K. C. show in April, 1888, and is a fair looking dog all over, being especially well sprung in the ribs, and showing immense thighs and second thighs, with close feet. He is the best average pointing dog ever seen in California, and probably as good as any in the world. A fairly wide and uniform ranger, covering his ground closely and with good judgment, showing fine nose and staunchness, and doing his work in free, merry, gallant style. He is a dog to be proud of, and fit to go in any company or anywhere else. He was very well broken indeed."

Later on in the same field trial report, we say:—

"Old Black Joe showed himself a wonderfully good, quick, sure and biddable dog."

At another place we said:—

"Old Black Joe, a splendid average dog, perhaps not phenomenal in any one quality, but so good in all as to make him good enough to win a world's championship. That famous son of Vandevort's Don, the pointer Richmond, has hitherto been admittedly the best field pointer ever seen, because he got out with the setters and won in company with them. The work and style of Richmond are well known to this reporter, and it is his opinion that Old Black Joe is better in every way even than the famous Richmond, than which higher praise could not be accorded."

The foregoing are even eulogistic words about Old Black Joe, and indisputably prove the utter, gratuitous falsity of Watson's statement that we did not think or speak well of the dog. On February 9th, 1889, we wrote:—

"Old Black Joe was a dog of the rarest quality in every respect. His bench form was superior and in the field he could only be beaten by a phenomenally good performer. His winning of both the Derby and All-Aged stakes at Bakersfield last month stamped him as one of the best pointing dogs alive. He met good competitors, and beat them out of hand. His pace was better than average and well maintained; in range he was wide, uniform, and covered his ground closely; he quartered well and with fine judgment; in style he was very taking, both when in motion and on point and back. He had a sure nose and a keen one, was obedient and had an excellent disposition. In short, he was in all points the fine, tasty, useful shooting dog, and one that a thousand litters may not replace."

These are not the words of one who was prejudiced against the dog, and Mr. Watson is again set upon the pillory as guilty of common mendacity.

In the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN of February 9th last we also said:

In our remark about the buying of Old Black Joe we desired to convey the idea that Mr. Watson knew nothing as to the antecedents of the dog, his age, breeding, breeder, etc. If Mr. Watson can produce any authentic evidence as to the age of Joe, it should be done because there exists a general belief that the dog is considerably older than two years. Several persons accustomed to breed and handle setters and pointers agree in discrediting Joe's right to start as a Derby dog, and one of them has even gone so far as to express a positive conviction that the dog is three years old at least. No one presumes that Mr. Watson would do anything irregular, and the mere fact that he entered Joe in the Derby is all the proof needed that he believed the dog to have been whelped on or after January 1, 1887. If Joe had not shown himself a very good dog, little interest would attach to any particulars about him; but since he has exhibited uncommonly good form the fullest information about him should be obtained and published, and it is as much to Mr. Watson's interest as to that of any other, to get proper certificates of breeding from his breeder. In April last Mr. Watson certified that he did not know the age or breeding of the dog. If he has since then received proper and necessary information about the dog, we shall be pleased to publish it.

If our remarks quoted above are not directly in the interest of pointers and pointer men we shall be glad to have their true drift pointed out. At all events they make it clear that when Mr. Watson wrote in relation to the above that we "lied and knew it," he was simply exposing himself to our proofs that the truth is not in him. Mr. Watson was, in February, 1889, presumably a man whose word could be relied upon in some matters, but, in common with others, we even then preferred to believe the evidence of our senses as to the age of Joe rather than Mr. Watson's unsupported statement, and in the utter absence of fairly satisfactory certificates, we are yet of the opinion that Old Black Joe was older than Mr. Watson represented him to be. Mr. Watson even writes that he has now no exact knowledge about Joe's date of whelping or sire or dam. Who can wonder that Watson is flouted at as a fancier, or that the "lie" is returned to him, and affixed to his inconsequent person, to remain much longer than he will be remembered by those who now see him unmasked? In the latter portion of his letter Mr. Watson lugs in the California kennels, and intimates that we have an especial interest in the welfare of that English setter breeding establishment. The personal preferences of the kennel editor of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN should not, and in fact rarely have been permitted to obtrude upon readers, but it may be said that none will smile more contemptuously at Watson,s absolutely false statement than will the owners of the kennels mentioned.

They are gentlemen who will probably not feel at all flattered and T. E Harding to join in a petition to Mr. Park, praying him to grant Houghton permission to smoke on the Whitney trip. Park sees his advantage, and is luxuriating in the offerings of his petitioners, which embrace everything but tobacco. He might relent for the nonce, and for Houghton's sake we hope he will.

They, however, frequent grain fields, and prairies, open woods. How they would act if hunted much is lef conjecture. The males are very game, sometimes fight victoriously with the best cocks of the barnyard. I h heard that in some instances they cross, in breeding, w domestic hens. Their flight is steady—not so rapid as t of our native grouse—making them easy wing shots.

As you doubtless know, our climate in the Willamette V ley is damp and rainy in winter, and only moderately dry summer. The natural foods for these birds are grains s grasses from the fields, and perhaps buds and seeds from forests. The water supply is, of course, abundant.

GEO. H. BURNETT

The Secretary of the Southern Oregon State Board of A culture, Mr. Robert A. Miller, is most conclusive and sa factory in his answers. He says:—

JACKSONVILLE, OREGON, July 29, 1889

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—Your letter of inqu regarding Mongolian pheasants received. We have none these pheasants in Southern Oregon, though we have tr unsuccessfully to get them.

From having a great interest in that remarkably fine ga bird I have learned somewhat of their desirability.

Though turned loose in our State but five or six years, t have multiplied to a wonderful extent, being found in counties of Linn, Lane, Marion, Washington, Polk, Yamh Benton and Multonomah in great numbers.

Sportsmen in the Willamette Valley speak in the high praise of their desirability as game birds. They are far m wary than the grouse, fly and run rapidly, permitting shot as they fly from covers, and are gone for the day. T breed from two to three times a year. When the first br of from eighteen to twenty chicks are hatched the male t charge of them and another brood of from fifteen to eight is soon mingling with the first. If the season is propitio another lot are hatched before winter. This accounts their wonderful increase.

These birds were protected by Legislative enactments five years from October 24th, 1882, and during the last Le lative Assembly it was proposed to permit them to be in criminately killed, but this proposition met with deci opposition.

It is a mooted question about their eating wheat or destr ing grain. The general opinion is that they are a desira acquisition to the food supply of the country.

A letter not bearing directly upon the question, but nev theless full of matter of general interest, came from H Henry Klippel, a Real Estate Agent and Notary Public,

Our State Fair Edition.

A generous public are showing substantial recognition of the energy displayed by the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN in getting up an extra State Fair edition, and from present indications the issue promises to be of very vast dimensions, as many of the prominent horses of the State have had their pictures taken for this Edition de Lux, and there are several owners still to hear from. That this will be the greatest publication ever issued on the Pacific Coast, there is no doubt, and advertisers are already recognizing this fact, if the new anncuncements daily received are any criterion to go by. Arrangements are already being perfected for the distribution of 10,000 extra copies, and they will be sent to every horse breeder of note in the United States, Canada and Australia. If there are any who desire correct representations of their horses and descriptions of farms, breeding establishments, etc., they must send in early application to this office.

The Entries.

It is with a great deal of satisfaction that we announce to our readers that at all the places where entries closed on August 1st, the patronage has been extremely liberal. Beyond a question of doubt the racing season of 1889 will far surpass in brilliancy any hitherto held in California, for while it is true that we have heard of no sensational three-year-old pacers such as electrified the country last season, still such decided improvement is reported from all quarters, that we can confidently hope for many surprises in the trotting arena. Several green ones of whom we have heard, can "knock spots" off 2:20 at least they have so shown in private, and there is every reason to think they can do so in a race. Oakland, Petaluma, Santa Rosa, Napa, Sacramento and Chico have all received abundant entries, and thus we have the assurance that there will be battles royal for the large sum offered in purses at the respective places of meeting.

A 2:22 Purse.

The 2:23 race at Oakland did not fill, and the Directors have substituted a 2:22 purse to take the place of it, and advertise to-day for entries. As all the other purses filled so well, there will be plenty of sport for those who attend, but it would be a good idea for the association to give an extra day on Monday, Sept. 9th, Admission day, to give as the special attractions the 2:22 race and free for all pacing contest. There are four entries for the pacing class, St. Patrick, Gold Leaf, Yolo Maid and Almont Patchen, and if this is given on a public holiday the attendance should be enormous, especially when backed up by a great trotting race in which there is liable to be Senator, Junio, Gus Wilkes, Direct, Grandee, Thapsin, Valentine, Homestake, Victor and others. This is a great programme, and would be the means of crowding the Oakland Park on the special day.

The Carson Meeting.

Secretary Torreyson, of the Ormsby County Agricultural Society, sends to us this week the announcement of the racing meeting which will be held under the auspices of the society, at Carson City, from October 7th to 12th inclusive.

As will be seen in the advertisement, the association offers $7,500 in purses and $2,500 in premiums. The programme is an exceedingly good one, and all classes are given an opportunity to pick up some of the plums so freely tendered. Of late years, the California contingent have managed to secure goodly slices from the rich purses hung up by outside organizations and it is not likely that this present chance will be allowed to slip, by those who are always on the lookout for good things. At the season of the year selected by the Carson Association for their meeting, Nevada is at its best and the climate thoroughly enjoyable, so that those who determine to patronize the Capital of the Silver State may rely on pleasant weather and the prospect of first-class contests.

Nevada State Fair.

The Directors of the Nevada State Fair are laboring under difficulties this year, inasmuch that the last legislature refused to allow them any bonus with which to carry on the Annual Meeting. Nothing daunted, however, by this turn of affairs, the members, individually and collectively, have determined to show the law-makers what push and perseverance can do. Theodore Winters, Esq., who has been East all summer with his stable of horses, left them in charge of his able assistant, Alf Estell, and has returned to his duty as President of the Association, determined to make the Fair of 1889 one of the most successful ever held. One of the features will be a great combination sale held on the first day of the meeting, for which entries are invited from everywhere. This presents a favorable opportunity to buy and sell, and will without doubt be carried to a gratifying conclusion alike to those who will purchase or those who offer their stock for sale. The purses offered for competition are large and well worthy of liberal patronage from this State, and as there are quite a number of rich running purses, it will be surprising if the thoroughbred division is not largely represented at Reno. The entries for this meeting will close August 15th, and we hope to hear that the generosity of the Directors has been liberally rewarded in the way of nominations.

Ione Races.

Two years ago, or rather more, there was built a good mile track beautifully situated about three-quarters of a mile from the town of Ione, in an enclosed park of 85 acres, and Amador and Sacramento counties, (the 26th Agricultural District), decided to hold their annual fair there. The third annual fair was the occasion of my visit, and after a pleasant trip on the Southern Pacific, who have made traveling so much more pleasant in that section of the country, I arrived in Ione about three o'clock on Monday afternoon, after passing through several large alfalfa fields. The flourishing little town was in an unusual state of bustle and excitement, being at this early stage of the proceedings full of strangers.

The Board of Directors, Messrs. W. P. Peck, Jackson; John McFarland, Galt; E. J. Gregory, Sacramento; Oliver Plummer, Consumnes, and F. Frates, B. Isaacs, B. A. Borden, U. S. Gregory, (President), Ione, this year decided to deviate from the general class of district fairs and give a majority of the purses for the runners, and this evidently had a very good result, for on going up to the park, which should in time be one of the prettiest in California, there were found to be race horses from all over the State, in the long row of stalls, about a hundred of which are situated there, under an avenue of grand old oaks, very useful adjuncts to a race track in hot regions, making cooling out a much easier thing than it otherwise would be. There were to be found Charley Boots, J. W. Donathan, W. L. Appleby, Matt Storn, Dan Hennessey, Frank De Poyster, P. Siebenthaler, J. Reavey, T. Boyle, Dan Dennison and others, all of whom had several horses each, while J. McCord, Worth Ober, Wilber Smith, W. M. Houser and several other prominent trotting men were also on deck. All were highly delighted with the outlook and general arrangements, the heat being not nearly as bad as had been expected. At night pools were sold down town by Al. Leach, but were not very largely patronized, the local talent prefering to fritter away their coin at the various and numerous games of chance. Pliny and McGinnis were made big favorites in their respective races in what few pools were sold.

TUESDAY.

Ione and the surrounding country did not turn out on the first day as well as they ought to have done, but there were plenty of visitors from outside towns, among whom were Percy Williams, Walsh Trahern, George and Arthur Harrison from Stockton, George Armstrong, G. W. Wilson, (President of the Capital Turf Club), Sheriff McMullan and George Bruge from Sacramento; Mr. Smith, Rohnerville, R. B. Spence, Thos. Fisher and W. Roberts from San Jose. The weather was delightful, only about 100 deg., with a nice cool breeze, and about half past one quite a sprinkling of ladies were to be seen in the grand stand, where the Sacramento Hussar band was discoursing sweet strains. The speed programme was a very good one, the five furlong for two-year-olds having five starters, and resulting in an easy win for Pliny, but the judges unfortunately got mixed in the placings, King Hooker being undoubtedly second. The mile and an eighth brought eight well known horses to the post, and was productive of a splendid contest all the way, the favorite McGinnis winning by the shortest of heads, indeed many thought G. W. won. The 2:27 class only having two would-be starters, was not trotted, a saddle horse race which was substituted drew a good deal of attention from the local talent which went wrong in the first heat and had to go back on their choice and play Harrison in the second, he winning cleverly both heats.

Running stake, for two-year-olds; $25 entrance; $10 forfeit; $200 added, of which $50 to second. Five furlongs.

Also ran E. D., Morton, and Jesse James.
Time, 1:03.

Pools sold—Pliny $15, Hooker $7, field $7. Mutuels paid $9.50.

After a long delay they were despatched with Hooker, Earl, Morton and E. D. a length and a half in front of Pliny, who was two in front of Jessie James. Hooker drew out and went round the turn two lengths in front, with Pliny closing up, again losing ground. At the head of the stretch Hooker was still leading under persuasion, while the favorite on the outside, running easy, gradually closed up, and going to the front half way down the stretch won readily by two lengths. After a hard struggle for the place Hooker passed the post a neck in front of E. D., who was a head in advance of Earl, The judges placed Earl second and E. D. fourth to the astonishment of every one.

Running, for all ages; $50 entrance; $25 forfeit; $250 added, of which $75 to second. A mile and a furlong.

Also ran Lurline, Fannie F., Wild Oats, Sid and Bessie Shannon.
Time, 1:57.

Pools sold—McGinnis $15, Bessie Shannon $8,, field $8, Wild Oats $6.

After quite a number of false starts in which Bessie Shannon was generally in front, all got away on even terms. Lurline hard ridden at once went to the front and led past the stand by two lengths, Sid last. The pace was a cracker round the turn, Storn's chestnut leading, with G. W. second, the rest close up bunched; half way up the back stretch G. W. passed Lurline who was tiring, and went round the upper turn an open length in front of Hello, with Lurline, McGinnis and Sid close up, and Wild Oats a bad last. G. W. kept up his pace and led Hello a length and a half when fairly in the straight with McGinnis coming up, a furlong from home Cook was riding the favorite, and slowly but surely catching him beat him on the post by the shortest of heads, Hello ridden out a good third four lengths off, Sid fifth and Wild Oats last.

Running race, for saddle horses; $5 entrance; $50 added. Winner takes the lot. 600 yards and repeat.

Time, 32½, 32½.

In the first heat they got off well together, and all riding hard a pretty race ensued for half the distance, when Harrison drew out winning cleverly by a length and a half. Bunchgrass three lengths behind.

In the second heat pools sold $10 each Harrison and Oak, Bunchgrass $3, but changing Harrison sold for $20, while Oak brought $8 and Bunchgrass $2. Harrison got well away from the post and romped home an easy winner by two lengths, Black Oak a good three lengths in front of Bunchgrass.

WEDNESDAY.

The local attendance was much better than on the previous day, the grandstand being almost filled with ladies, while down below a representative gathering of horsemen were collected together, amongst whom were Messrs. E. S. Culver, Secretary Blood Horse Association, J. M. La Rue, Secretary Stockton Fair, E. J. Gregory, Mayor of Sacramento, Walters from Angels, William Sailly, a prominent land owner from Ione Valley, and others. The day's racing was very good, two running races and a mixed (pace trot) race. The first race, six furlongs and repeat, upset all calculations, Alfarata, who sold for a dollar in the overnight pools, winning handily in straight heats, Welcome, the favorite, refusing to race at all, besides acting very badly at the post and delaying the start for half an hour. The nine-sixteenths was a splendid race, Susie S. being at once installed favorite, and though she had rather the worst of the send-off, she came down the home-stretch like a whirlwind, running the distance in 55 seconds, which ties the record. F. Leninger's two-year-old, Wait-a-bit, was given a trial quarter in 23¾, and then the three trotters and one pacer had the track, and despite losing one heat the race was never in doubt, for Franklin was too fast for the others all the way.

The judges were U. S. Gregory, O. Plummer and W. P. Peck. Timers, C. T. Boots and Archie Stephenson. Starter, Worth Ober.

Running Stake for all ages; $25 entrance, $10 forfeit; $200 added, of which $50 to second. Six furlongs and repeat.

Also ran Welcome, Hotspur and Kildare.

Time, 1:15½, 1:15½.

Mutuals paid $9.50 (Welcome and Field.)

Welcome sulked at the post and delayed the start for some time. Eventually they were despatched with Alfarata two lengths in front of Kildare, the rest bunched close up; going round the turn Hello and Longshot passed Kildare and closed up on the leader, but despite a vigorous challenge from both, Alfarata won cleverly, by a length from Longshot, with Hello three lengths back.

Welcome again caused a long delay. When sent off, Hotspur had a trifle the best of it, but Alfarata rushed to the fore, and went round the bend two lengths in front of Hotspur with Welcome close up, Hello fourth-coming fast. When fairly in the straight, Alfarata was two lengths in front of Hello, with Longshot third, the latter both whipping. Alfarata squeezed out a length and a half in front of Longshot, who beat Hello two lengths for the place.

Running stake for all ages, $25 entrance, $10 forfeit. $200 added, of which $50 to second. Nine-sixteenths.

After two attempts the flag fell to a fairly good start, Susie S. having two lengths the worst of it. Painkiller and White Cloud raced out head and head round the turn where White Cloud drew away from him and Susie S. closed a little two lengths behind the pinto. At the head of the stretch and after a punishing race down the straight, Susie S. won on the post by a head, Cook's finish being superb. Eve finished third, five lengths behind.

Trotting and Pacing, Purse $500; $50 entrance; mile heats three in five.

Time, 2:28¼, 2:25¼, 2:26½, 2:28¾.

Pools on first heat, Franklin $10; Thapsin $5; Field $4.

Little Doc had the pole and after scoring up twice went off at a merry pace, going round the turn two lengths in front of Franklin who was level with Eva, a length in front of Thapsin. At the quarter, Doc was two lengths in front of Franklin and two in front of Eva. Franklin was driven up now and at the half was level with the pacer and trotting steadily gradually drew away going round the upper turn and into the homestretch two lengths in front, with Doc seven ahead of Thapsin. Doc broke half way down the stretch and was pulled almost to a walk, Franklin showing up passed the wire three lengths in front of Thapsin, two in front of Eva, with Doc just inside the distance.

They scored up half a dozen times for the word, when Franklin at once went to the front, Eva breaking before the turn. Franklin led Thapsin two lengths past the quarter, but going down the backstretch the grey trotted in his old style, and was level at the half-mile pole, both trotting steadily head and head round the turn and into the homestretch, both horses were driven hard to the distance flag, where Thapsin broke, but catching readily, was only beaten three-quarters of a length, the other pair just saving their distance.

No pools were sold on the third heat. At the third attempt they were let go, and Doc breaking almost at once, Thapsin went on in front, and led Franklin two lengths all the way round the turn, up the backstretch and into the homestretch; a distance from home Franklin broke, and Thapsin won by four lengths, Franklin second, five lengths in front of Eva.

A few pools were now sold at $10 on Franklin to $7 for the field.

At the fifth score the bell was tapped. Doc who was in front broke badly, Thapsin and Franklin trotting round the turn level, three lengths in front of Eva. Up the back stretch all three trotted grandly, Eva closing, was level with Franklin at the half pole, with Thapsin only a half length behind. Half way round the turn Thapsin broke and dropped back; Franklin had a half length the best of Eva at the head of the stretch, and kept it down the homestretch to the distance pole, where Eva who had been trotting magnificently broke, but catching readily was only beaten about half a length, with Thapsin six lengths behind, and Doc who had run all the way just saving his distance.

Two Standard bred Colts,

BRED BY

CALVIN H. FREW.

First.

AGNES FREW, a filly foaled April 7, 1888, at San Diego. She is of a dark chestnut color, body and legs; no white, except stripe on face. She was 15 months old June 7th, and her last monthly record of weight and height showed her to be 55 inches high, and to weigh 695 pounds, with a girth of 62½ inches, and 18½ inches around the forearm. How is that for a trotter only 15 months old? In conformation and general proportion she is admirably built, with wonderfully good hind quarters, wide hips, good cannon bones, exceptionally good hoofs, and fine flakiness. She is sound all over, a rare beauty and the best judges predict that she will show great speed and be the mother of many fast trotters. She is halter and bridle broke, and stands without tieing while being groomed.

Her pedigree is extra. She was sired by Woodlake at Paxton, Ills. He by Woodford's Mambrino. Sire's first dam was Hager; she by Alexander's Abdallah. Hager was the mother of the great Countersign. Hager's dam was by Downing's Bay Messenger. Hager's second dam was by Sir Archy. Alexander's Abdallah sired the peerless Goldsmith Maid and five others that made in better than 2:30. Also sired twelve stallions that sired eighty-six trotters in better than 2:30; also sired nineteen dams that produced twenty trotters in better than 2:30.

Gay, the dam of Agnes Frew, was sired by John Bright. He by that matchless stallion Volunteer. He is the sire of St. Julien, who is Gay's half uncle. Gay resembles him so much that strangers who were acquainted with him at first sight of Gay took her for St. Julien. Volunteer, among horsemen, has a national reputation, so needless to follow his pedigree.

Gay is a dark bright bay color; black mane, tail and legs. A powerfully built animal of great force and agility. She is fast, but was never tracked or trained. Her dam was Fashion; she by a Kentucky thoroughbred stallion. In fifty or more races Fashion took first prize or first money. She was a wonder. I owned her when I bred Gay. Fashion was bred by A. J. Reed of Irish Grove, Ill. Her dam was a high bred Hambletonian.

These statements are not guesses, but susceptible of proof, and can be relied on as a verity. I will part with her for $1,000. It is a great bargain, a rare opportunity.

Second.

I will sell said GAY'S STALLION COLT, foaled March 16, 1889, in San Diego, Cal. It is a seal brown color, with black mane and tail. On each of three feet some white, and a small spot in forehead. It has an extra good body, finely muscled up all around, closely coupled, and got a short back, with fine hips When foaled it measured 36½ inches high, at 1 month 39½ inches high, and weiged 108 lbs. At 4 months old, 47 inches high, and weighed 340 pounds. Last month both colts have grown rapidly, and they are beauties. It was sired by Alert, he by Atherton. Alert's dam was the famous Penoda.

OSSIDINE

KALAMAZOO, Mich., Sept. 15, 1888.

GENTLEMEN:—We have used Ossidine for the past two years and consider it invaluable for Sprung Tendons, Curbs, Ringbone and Spavins; there is nothing equals it; and for us it effected a permanent cure where firing failed, although performed by one of the most successful veterinarians on the continent. We have recommended it to others with like success, and believe it has more merit than any blister ever used.

Very respectfully yours, S. A. BROWNE & Co., Prop's.

This scientific preparation is an absolute cure for all bony or callous lumps on horses, and is a more powerful absorbent than "firing," without creating the slightest blemish. After a few applications the excrescence is so palpably reduced that even the skeptical frankly acknowledge that it is by far the most valuable outward remedy for horses ever invented.

The ONLY preparation in the world that will remove a Bone Spavin after it has become ossified.

Owner of Eole, St Saviour, Eolist, etc, says: I have long used it in my stables, and find it to be all that is claimed for it in removing callous and unnatural bony growths, without leaving the slightest blemish. From my experience, I most strongly recommend the use of Ossidine, and feel that it is a necessary adjunct to every stable. Yours respectfully,

Nutwood Stock Farm.

By Grim.

There is probably no stock farm in the State of which so little is known as the one whose name heads this article. When, a few days ago, I learned for the first time that there was a farm nestled away in the Alameda Valley, where there were broodmares in great variety and a stallion or two that would be a credit to any breeding establishment in the State, the determination was taken at once to pay a visit to the favored locality and see what the stock consisted of. The train stops at Irvington, in the upper end of Alameda County, a pretty little town, with every appearance of thrift and prosperity, it being surrounded by first-class land of the very best description, the hilly ground being thickly studded with vines, while the low lands are devoted to grain, with here and there an orchard. A little more than a mile from the station is the Nutwood Stock Farm, consisting of 375 acres, the larger portion of which is used for the well-bred horses and cattle, of which there is a multiplicity. Mr. Martin Carter purchased the farm about five years ago, having already accumulated a few brood mares and a princely stallion.

The proprietor was not bound with the strong bias so frequently to be found among breeders, but selected the best of the stout trotting strains, and from a very small commencement has now a large and well equipped establishment which should prove before long one of the leading stock farms of California. When the place was bought there were no conveniences of any sort, but Mr. Carter set to work with a will, and benefitting from the experience of others, has erected stabling, corrals and paddocks than which there is no better anywhere. Each and every horse has a great roomy box-stall, and in many instances there are petitioned off from each stall small paddocks, so that the occupants can run around the enclosure or stay under cover, just as they choose.

The half-mile track built on the farm is a very fast one, and is in use almost daily, the speedy youngster taking as kindly to their work as they do to the comforts which surround them. Director, Antevolo, Nutwood, Whipple's Hambletonion, Anteeo, Steinway, Albert W., Guy Wilkes, and in fact all the best trotting blood of California is represented here, Mr. Carter having spared neither time nor money in selecting the very best. Individuality has not been lost sight of in making the grand collection, and rare good judgment has been displayed, the fine old matrons presenting no blemishes to mar their sightly appearance. California has many rare and wonderful sights to please the eye of the Eastern tourists, but I do not know of anything that is so thoroughly enjoyable as to see a fine large body of brood mares, bred in the purple, their sleek, glossy coats shining in the sun, and each one a representative of the family to which she may belong, and it is just such a sight as this that can be seen at Mr. Carter's, the grand dames showing by their looks that they appreciated the attention paid them. The leading stallion on the farm is California Nutwood, a beautiful dark chestnut, showing much of the conformation of old Nutwood, but still withal has a more stately appearance. He was oaled in 1881, is over sixteen hands high, and is the picture of a fast trotter. He has been handled but very little for speed, Mr. Miller, his trainer, being called away to attend to business on the circuit. However, there is no question whatever as to his speed, for on the half-mile track he can show better than 2:30. This taken in consideration with the fact that all of his get are powerful, well muscled, and with extremely good legs, in addition to the speed they all show, commends California Nutwood to the attention of every breeder in the State. His pedigree is as follows:

California Nutwood by Nutwood, record 2:18¾, he by Belmont, he by Alexander Abdallah, he by Rysdyk's Hambletonian. California Nutwood's dam was Fanny Patchen by Geo. M. Patchen Jr., record 2:27, he by Geo. M. Patchen, record 2:23½, he by Cassius M. Clay, he by Henry Clay; second dam Laura, was a fine large bay mare, a very fast roadster brought from Chicago by Wm. Wilson, of San Jose, and is said to have made a record of 2:35 in Chicago; pedigree not traced.

Now, let us see what we find in this pedigree. Nutwood, all things considered, has no equal, living or dead. In 1886, when only 16 years old, with limited opportunity in the stud, and only while in Kentucky had he any good mares. There we his colts sold from six weeks up to 2 years for $211,995.00, an average of $1,547.40 each, and 82 of this lot at public auction. He had a record himself of 2·18¾, and had 14 trotters and pacers in the 2:30 list when sold himself under the hammer for $22,000. He has now 24 in the 2:30 list, from 2:15 to 2:30, and the only horse that ever lived with a record under 2:20 that five of his produce have records under 2:20.

George M. Patchen, Jr., 2:27, sire of dam of California Nutwood, is sire of Wells Fargo, 2:18¾, Sam Purdy, 2:20½, Ben Ali, 2:22, and six others, from 2:21 to 2:30. He has 8 sons with 13 trotters in 2:30 or better, and 5 daughters with 4 trotters and 1 pacer in the 2:30 or better.

Here is a glorious showing of speed lines for those who study the great producing families, and as California Nutwood is also an individual of more than ordinary beauty, he will undoubtedly be one of the fashionable sires of the near future.

In an adjoining stall we find Nutwood Wilkes, a yearling stallion by Guy Wilkes, 2:15¼, dam Lida W., 2:26, by Nutwood, 2:18¾. I am not naturally of a covetous disposition, but it would suit me much better if I owned Nutwood Wilkes than to have him the property of anyone else. Oh! what a kingly little fellow he is, with splendid head, well arched neck, good round barrel, well formed quarters, and a set of legs that cannot be beat. His grandam is by Geo. M. Patchen Jr., and his great grandam was Rebel Daughter, by Williamson's Belmont. The grandsire, Geo. M. Patchen Jr., was half brother to the grandam of Stamboul, so thus we combine in this magnificent young gentleman, the blood of Wilkes, Nutwood, and that flowing in the veins of Stamboul. All hail, royally bred Nutwood Wilkes; may you live to be a credit to your owner aed also to your native State.

Long Branch is a handsome yearling by Antevolo, 2:19½, dam Zolo by Steinway, 2:25¼ (as a three year old), 2nd dam Fanny Malone (trial 2:29) by Niagara. This is another of the grand lookers, his only fault being that there is a trifle too much daylight under him, and to many there might be another fault, he looks too much like a thoroughbred, whereas, to my mind, it is an added beauty, that enhances his value, especially as he knows no other gait than trot. He is a dark bay, with black points, star and snip, left hind pastern white. He gives one the impression that he will be a tall, powerful horse when developed, and will be of the speedy sort, for he can, even at this early age, show a good gait.

Mr. Carter usually names his own horses, but there is one that the boys requested they might name, so the proprietor gave them permission, and a pretty bay suckling has been christened John L, on account of his great muscular development. The colt is by California Nutwood, the dam being Cinderella 2:35, by Whipple's Hambletonian; second dam Lady Bell by Williamson's Belmont. Lady Bell is the grandam of Emeline, owned by Senator Stanford, who lately at Sacramento made a record of 2.27½. The third dam of John L. is Post, by Lance, he by American Eclipse.

Still another handsome suckling is Rapid Transit, by Director, dam Lida W. 2:26, the dam of Nutwood Wilkes. He shows all the characteristics of his celebrated sire, and is a valuable addition to the many that already grace Nutwood Stock Farm. Having said so much about the horse colts it is only just that something should be said about the brood mares. There are so many of them, that I know Mr. Carter will pardon me in only mentioning some of them, still where there are such numbers it is extremely difficult to select those to mention for they are all deserving of notice.

On general conformation and good looks I want to give the pride of place to Lida W. by Nutwood, and the conviction is honest when I state that this is one of the best appearing mares in the State. Kind, gentle and affectionate, this old lady impressed me as being a gem among gems. She only received a record of 2:26, but one of the best known drivers in California says that she is the fastest mare he ever sat behind, and it can be readily believed, for she has the appearance of possessing great speed. At her side is a suckling colt by Director, and she was bred again this year to the same sire.

Next comes Puss, a bay filly, three years old, by California Nutwood, her dam being a fast pacing mare, of untraced pedgree.

Newark Belle, grey mare, eight years old by Nutwood 600, dam Tillie by San Bruno, he by David Hill, 2nd dam by Grey Eagle, 3rd dam by Gen. Taylor. Newark Belle has shown a mile this year, on Mr. Carter's half mile track in 2:43, and she will be sent for a record this fall.

Tillie is another of the good ones and is the dam of Newark Belle. She is grey in color, and is by San Bruno out of a Grey Eagle mare, the second dam being by Gen. Taylor. Some years ago, she was matched to trot at San Jose, and although capable of going much faster, she won the three heats easily, the best time being 2:50. Her get are all pictures of beauty, and noted for their great endurance.

Lady Whipple, as the name will indicate, is by Whipple's Hambletonian 725, dam Algerine. She is a chestnut, perfect in every respect, and should prove a good matron.

Zolo C. is still another of the handsome coterie. She is a chestnut, four years old, by California Nutwood, dam Zolo, by Steinway 2:25¼.

Nettie G. is a dark bay, five years old, by Anteeo, dam by Venture 2:27¼, 2nd dam was by Messenger, and was brought from the East by Mr. Rankin. The good stout blood lines of California Nutwood should cross exceedingly well with those of Nettie G.

Star is a bay mare, nine years old, by Nutwood, dam said to be by Goldsmith's Volunteer. Now, if there is anything provoking in a pedigree, it is the symbolic characters s t b, and the story about Star is so peculiar that it will bear repeating. J. W. Knox had two mares in Kentucky bred to Nutwood, which he offered for sale to a gentleman in San Jose. He agreed to deliver them at a certain price in California, and the offer was accepted, it being understood that one was by Goldsmith's Volunteer and the other by Hiatoga. When the mares arrived here Knox wanted to collect $38 for a feed bill, which he had incurred when he brought the mares overland. The gentleman refused to pay the demand, and Knox refused to verify the pedigrees, so that, although the mares were taken, it was not positively known which was which. The one that is the dam of Star has all the strongly-marked attributes of the great old horse, and as several attempts have been made to buy her by unknown parties, it is presumed that it is known to several how the mare is bred. Star, on personal individuality, is a remarkably well put up animal, and I expect to hear good things about her in the stud.

Zolo is a chestnut, seven years old, by Steinway, dam Fanny Malone, by Niagara. She was one of the brood mares selected by Mr. Carter to breed to Noonday, and is now in foal to that well bred stallion.

I also noticed a very handsome grey filly by Antevolo, dam Newark Belle by Nutwood. She has not received a name as yet, but will receive a suitable one before long.

There were also two fine bay fillies, both by California Nutwood, the dam of one being Nettie G., by Anteeo, while the other is out of Lew G., by Albert W.

Cinderella is a chestnut, sixteen years old, by Whipple's Hambletonian, dam Lady Bell, by Williamson's Belmont; 2nd dam Puss, by Lance. This rare, good old mare has been under the weather lately, but is now pulling through nicely. Her last foal is being brought up by hand, but shows no sign of maternal neglect, being a strong, sturdy little fellow.

Another of the lot worth more than passing mention is Annie Titus, by Echo, dam by the Tiffney mare (the dam of Gibraltar, 2:22¼). Annie Titus is seven years old, and is a handsome bay. She has had several foals, some of which are mentioned below.

Colima, ch m, seven years old, is by Whipple's Hambletonian, dam Ellen by Jack Hawkins, a son of Boston. She has a fine colt by Designer, he by Director.

Lew G., br m, five years old, is by Albert W., dam Tillie by San Bruno. This is quite a fast mare, and she has gone the route in 2:36, and that over the half-mile track, so she should be able to get into the list.

Another pair of unnamed bay fillies were by California Nutwood, the dam of one being Tillie by San Bruno, while the other is indebted for life to Kitty by Speculation.

Still another of the great unnamed is a filly three years old by Director, dam Annie Titus by Echo. On account of her personal excellence, this one was also bred to Noonday.

Kitty is a brown mare by Speculation, dam Kitty Mills by Burr's Washington; second dam Lady Almack by Almack. Kitty has already increased the number of youngsters at the farm, the last comer being a beautiful filly by California Nutwood.

Queen is one of the ancients, having passed her half score of years, but is in full vigor, and the happy possessor of a horse colt by California Nutwood. She is by Venture, 2:27¼, dam a Messenger mare.

Maggie, b f, two years old, by California Nutwood, dam Maud by the Grand Moor; second dam Cinderella by Whipple's Hambletonian; third dam Puss by Lance, he by American Eclipse.

And so I could go on for still another column, adding name after name to the list, but it will be seen that the Nutwood Stock Farm is well supplied with brood mares, and they of the best. There are several fine yearlings that should be individually mentioned, but space will not permit.

Mr. Carter also has a stock animal of some repute, named Marsabi, a Norman stallion, imported from France, February 12, 1884. Coal black, a well formed head, with small star in forehead and a rangy arched neck, high on the withers, prominent shoulders, full in the breast, closely ribbed and heavy and well coupled back, broad rump and nicely turned hip, heavy through the stifle, good clean flat leg excellent feet, a very active horse and easily handled, heavy mane and tail, 16½ hands high, weight 1800 pounds, 8 years old.

Mr. Carter has a favorite breed of cattle, and they are the Herefords, one enormous big fellow that was shown me, weighing over a ton. But all visits must come to an end, and as train time approaches, there is only a moment to look at the orchard, where the luscious plums and peaches are enticing enough to tempt any person. Now a word to those who like to visit well appointed stock farms; when you are on your travels do not forget to visit the Nutwood Stock Farm, and you will always find the latch string hanging on the outside; and there are plenty of courteous attendants to show you one of the best appointed breeding establishments in the State.

Races at Oakland.

On Friday afternoon, the 11th inst., too late for issue in the last BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN, there was a match race for $200 a side at the Oakland Trotting Park, between Chas. Thornquest's pacing mare Gerster, and Irvin Ayres's trotting mare Clara P. Notwithstanding that the race had been well advertised, and other attractions promised, the attendance was very small. The judges in the stand were Messrs. Bonner, Welsh and Hinchman, they also acting as timekeepers. The first heat was rather uneventful, Clara P. winning easy in 2:40. In the second heat the contestants seemed to awake to a sense of what was expected from them, for they started off in good shape, the quarter being reached in 36¼ seconds, the half being negotiated in 1:13¾. Just after passing the half the pacer broke badly, and it seemed impossible to stop her running while in the meantime Clara P. was trotting fairly and squarely, increasing her distance at almost every step. The balance of the heat was uninteresting, Clara P. gaining an easy heat in 2:29½. In the last half Gersta came very rapidly, but was so far in the rear when she settled that there never was a chance for her to win. The third heat was only a repetition of the others, the trotter having things all own way winning the heat and race in 2:35.

When the first heat was finished Mr. Hines brought out Lady Bess, a Mambrino Wilkes mare, to have her beat three minutes, the consideration being a suit of horse clothes, offered by the lessee of the track, if she could perform the trick. When the word was given the mare started off quietly, but had speed enough to carry her past the wire in 2:57.

Ione Races.

THURSDAY.

The weather kept good, the heat never being excessive, and the attendance was much better. One of the best races ever seen in California was witnessed on the Ione track, McGinniss, with 127 pounds up, running a slashing mile and a quarter, only beaten half a length in 2:08½. Pliny, of course, won the two-year-old race. The other race was a trot for three horses who had stood in the county last season and was the outcome of a good deal of badinage, each owner putting up $250, the winner to take the pot. Colonel by Old Reliance won easily in straight heats to the delight of the local talent who fancied him immensely. The tactics pursued were interesting, for there was not a sound horse in the trio, and Colonel had to go right out.

The judges were President U. S. Gregory, E. J. Gregory (Mayor of Sacramento) and Oliver Plummer. Timers—A. Stephenson, W. Donathan and C. T. Boots. Starter—Worth Ober.

Running stake, for two-year-olds, $25 entrance, $10 forfeit, $200 added, of which $50 to second. Six furlongs.

Also ran King Hooker.

Time, 1:16¼.

Pools sold Pliny $10; field $4; with Pliny barred, Earl $10; Hooker $7; E. D. $3.

Hooker broke away several times, while Pliny sulked for nearly half an hour. When the flag fell E. D was two lengths in front of Hooker and Pliny, with Earl last. King Hooker went right up to E. D., and the pair raced round the upper turn, with Pliny three lengths behind and Earl two further in the rear half way down the straight. In the straight Pliny challenged the leaders, and had them both beaten, when Earl, who came with a rattle, hunted him home a length behind, E. D. three lengths back, third, and Hooker two further back.

Also ran Dave Douglas, Lurline, Forester, Bessie Shannon and Hello. Pools sold—McGinnis $15, Douglas $8, Wild Oats $5, Field $13.

After several attempts Ober got them all off together. Wild Oats at once rushed to the front, passing the stand two lengths ahead of Lurline, McGinnis a length behind and Forrester last. They went round the turn and passed the half in the same order, Bessie Shannon and Mikado being close up fourth and fifth. Lurline dropped out of the race at the upper turn and Mikado closed up rapidly, and when in the straight came with a wet sail taking the lead a furlong from home, and despite McGinnis brilliant effort under whip and spur, Mikado beat him out half a length, Wild Oats three lengths behind with Forester who made up a lot of ground in the last quarter, a good fourth and Lurline last. Mr. Samuels claimed a foul which was not allowed and rightly so, for although Mikado swerved he did not interfere with McGinnis.

Time, 2:50, 2:46¼, 2:47.

First Heat—Pools, Colonel $25, Ajax $9, Wilkes $4.

Wilkes had the pole and after very little scoring, they went off well together. Ajar broke first, but catching at once was a length behind Wilkes with Colonel a length in the rear at the quarter, Colonel settled down to work and trotting well all three were level at the three-eighth pole when Wilkes broke dropping back. The other pair trotted together to the upper turn, when Colonel drew away being four lengths to the good at the three-quarter pole and with both his opponents breaking in the stretch, won readily by four lengths, Ajar five in front of Wilkes.

Second heat—pools, Colonel $20, Field $6.

After a good deal of tiresome scoring, Colonel went out in front and with Wilkes breaking badly, was three lengths in front at the quarter, Ajar same ahead of Wilkes. The rest of the distance was only exercise for Colonel, who trotted home at his leisure, passing the wire with Ajax nicely inside the distance and Wilkes who ran most of the way just in.

Third heat—No pools sold.

There was again a long and tedious scoring for the word, and when they did start, Ajax trotting well, led Colonel a neck all the way to the quarter pole, but breaking before the half was reached, was five lengths behind and breaking again on the turn, and in the home stretch, finished four lengths in front of Wilkes who just saved his distance by hard running, Colonel pulling up almost to a walk.

FRIDAY.

At half past eleven, in brilliant weather, four lady riders turned out for the equestrian tournament, and a little later three others turned up and were allowed to compete. After a good deal of cantering, galloping and walking, single, double and all together, the prizes were awarded; first, to Miss Edith Bradley, a plucky little Sacramento girl of thirteen, who handled her grey in workmanlike style; second, to Miss LeMay (also from Sacramento) on her well known bay back; Miss Plummer Cosumnes was third; Miss Sarah Isaminger fourth, riding without a saddle; Miss Lizzie Pine fifth; Miss Mabel Gibson sixth, and Mrs. Veercamp seventh. The latter rode a rough, awkward mustang with ease and grace, and evidently is, as she was said to be, hard to beat on any kind of a horse. The judges were Chris Green, Esq., Sheriff McMullan and G. W. Wilson.

In the afternoon the stand was packed with ladies, and a representative gathering of horsemen were below on the ground. The judges were President Gregory, E. J. Gregory (Sacramento) and E. S Culver (Secretary Blood Horse Association.) Timers, Archie Stephenson, C. T. Boots and Dan Dennison. Starter, Worth Ober.

The half-mile and repeat, with only two starters, was conceded a good thing for Susie S., who won the first heat easily in 0:48½, and in the second, despite Narvice's attempt at the head of the stretch when he took the rails, causing the mare (Susie) to go outside in the heavy going, she ran the last quarter in twenty-two seconds, winning cleverly at the finish.

The mile and repeat had only three to face the flag, and Welcome in the first heat (in a hood, and with ears stuffed) refusing to race; Wild Oats, the favorite, won all the way.

In the second, Welcome, running without hood or any extra ornaments, was worse than ever, Wild Oats again winning easily.

The 2:40 trot brought out four. The three-year-old (jaggers won the first heat easily, and looked as though he would distance his field, but quit badly in the stretch, the next three heats being easily won by Mary Lou, who is the second of Tom Benton's get to figure in the thirty list, and with ordinary luck she should easily lower her present record before the fall, as she was evidently not used to company, and besides had a good deal in hand in every heat.

No pools were sold on either heat. At the second attempt they were despatched head and head, and ran level round the turn and into the straight, where Cook on the inside drew out and, watching his opponent, won easily by three lengths in 0:48½.

In the second heat they again started off without any waste of time, and ran locked together to the turn, where the grey gradually drew out, and turning into the straight, just and only clear of Susie, Narvice deliberately took the rails, and Cook, having to come on the outside, sat down a furlong from home, and rode Susie hard, and with the mare answering every call and displaying a phenomenal burst of speed, was in front at the draw-gate, winning cleverly at the finish by three lengths in 48 seconds.

Time—1:44½; 1:45½.

First heat —Pools sold, Wild Oats $10, Welcome $5, Lurline $2. Lurline was rather fractious, and delayed the start, When the flag fell Wild Oats had a length the best of it, which he increased to two at the quarter. Welcome second, two in front of Lurline. Up the back stretch Lurline closed up on Welcome and went round the turn level, two lengths behind Wild Oats; the latter was running easy three lengths to the good at the three-quarter, with Lurline half a length in front of Welcome. Lurline, under persuasion, closed a little on Wild Oats, but, swerving under the whip, finished two open lengths behind him, Hitchcock having a little in reserve. Welcome was half a length behind Lurline.

Second heat.—No pools were sold. At the fourth attempt Wild Oats and Lurline cut out the pace, being level at the quarter, with Welcome two lengths behind. Lurline got her head in front and stayed there for the next quarter, when Wild Oats drew away from her, being a clear length to the good at the head of the stretch, and with Lurline ridden out, Wild Oats won handily by a length and a half. Welcome, who caught whip and spur down the straight, ran all over the course, only just saving her distance, pulling up when pursuit was useless.

Time—2:31½; 2:30; 2.30; 2:33.

First heat—Pools sold: Lou $10; Rabe $7; Field $8; and then changed Field $10; Rabe $5; Lou $5.

After scoring a short time, they were tapped off level. Rabe and Redwood broke before the turn was reached, and Jaggers, trotting right out, was eight lengths in front of Lou at the quarter, with Redwood two further back and five in front of Rabe. Jaggers increased his lead down the back stretch, and Redwood drew up to Lou, being level at the half, seven lengths in front of Rabe. Jaggers, trotting grandly, looked like shutting the two out, but, slowing down in last hundred yards, they all saved their distance, Lou finishing second two lengths in front of Redwood, three in front of Rabe (who was run hard), just inside. Time, 2:31½.

Lou broke at the start, and was five lengths behind Jaggers at the quarter, with Rabe two lengths back. Jaggers increased his lead down the back stretch to seven lengths, Lou second, five in front of Redwood, who had passed Rabe at the head of the stretch. Jaggers was seven lengths to the good and looked all over a winner, but, dying away to nothing, was easily beaten by Lou, who trotted very fast, and had she not been slowed down would have shut Rabe out. She finished five lengths in front of Jaggers, who was three in advance of Redwood, with Rabe last. Time, 2:30.

Third heat—Pools sold: Lou $10; Field $5.

After a good deal of scoring, Lou started out well, but, breaking on the turn, was a length and a half behind Jaggers at the quarter, but, trotting steadily, caught him at the three eight pole, and going was three lengths in front of the trio, all level at the half. Redwood and Rabe kept together round the turn, while Jaggers dropped back. When fairly in the stretch, Dennison drove a fast eighth, and looked like catching McCord, but his horse died away at the finish, and the mare won by two and a half lengths, Redwood just saving his distance and Jaggers palpably out, but the flag was not dropped. Time, 2:30.

A good deal of time was wasted scoring up. When tapped off Rabe left his feet, but, catching handily, was level with the mare at the quarter. Lou trotted very gamely, and gradually drew away, being a length in front at the half, and, with Rabe breaking up, was three to the good at the three-quarters, and won, pulling up by four lengths. Rabe, who left his feet at the distance poll, caught handily, finishing three lengths behind. Redwood trotted squarely all through, was just inside a shade in front of Jaggers, who ran nearly all the way and was distanced. Time, 2:33.

SATURDAY.

An extra day was given on Saturday, and though the attendance was poor, nearly everyone having left on the morning train, one of the races, the seven furlong, was worth staying for. Narvice rode a well-calculated race on Nabeau, getting up in the last few strides. The free for all trot, with three starters, turned out an easy thing for Thapsin. Franklin went rather lame, and Mr. Cropsey's mare was hardly fast enough. Thapsin's third heat was the best ever trotted on the track. In the mile Nerva had so much the best of the start, owing to the assistant flagman's slowness, that the race was over, but in any case she would probably have won, as she seemed to be in great form. Judges, Messrs. Gregory, Chris Green and Plummer. Starters, J. W. Donathan and F. De Poyster.

Pools sold, Nerva $10, Forester and Kildare $5 each, and Nerva $10. Field $5. Some of the horses were moving when the flag dropped, and the advance flag did not fall for some time. Narvice was first away, having a six-lengths lead at the turn, with Forester four behind Kildare. Forester was ridden hard all the way from the quarter to the wire, finishing two lengths behind Nerva, who won easily.

They were all sent off together by De Poyster. Painkiller at once rushing out, soon had a four lengths lead, Hello and Fanny F. second, two lengths in front of Nabeau. They ran down the back stretch in the same race, Hello leading, Fannie behind Painkiller at the head of the stretch, with Fanny a length and a half back, third Nabeau two lengths still further behind, fourth.

Hello caught the leader a furlong and a half from home, and soon had him beaten, but Narvice on Nabeau timing his finish beautifully beat him in the last half dozen strides, winning by three-quarters of a length, Fannie F. third, three lengths away, Jim Duffy last.

First heat—Pools, Franklin $10, Thapsin $5. Eva $2.

Eva had a length the worst of the start. Thapsin trotting in big from had a three lengths lead at the quarter, which he closed up and got to his wheel at the drawgate, but breaking was beaten four lengths, Eva fifty yards back.

Second heat—Pools Thapsin $10, Franklin $5, Eva 1.

Thapsin again went out at a merry clip, having a couple of lengths to the good all the way up the back stretch, Eva despite two breaks hanging close to Franklin. At the head of the homestretch, Thapsin had a three lengths lead and won easily by two lengths, Franklin second, Eva pulling up a bad third.

Third heat—No pools sold.

After a lot of time had been wasted scoring for the word, Franklin got the worst of the start, having to come round Eva after the first turn was made. At the half, Thapsin was three lengths in front, Franklin second, with Eva at his wheel. The grey slightly increased his lead round the turn and taking the middle of the track won easily by four lengths from second.

The fair wound up in good style, and Ione has every reason to be proud of its success, but when one considers that in the valley are lots of good horsemen and farmers, it is not to be wondered at. Among the prominent local horsemen present were John Walters of Altaville, who has a three-quarter race track at Angels. Mr. Walters says that a good thoroughbred sire would make a very successful season in Calaveras, as there are quite a lot of well bred mares in that section, and not a decent horse standing anywhere near. If Calaveras and Tuolumne have a fair this fall, Mr. Walters will have a week's racing immediately after at Angels. Ione Valley should have several breeding farms, for alfalfa grows luxuriantly and the nights are mild and cool. Mike Hefferan as he is locally known, besides being the constable for the district, has a very pretty little place, about 150 acres just outside the town, which if he would only sell, would make a very suitable breeding farm. W. O. Scully, one of the wealthiest and largest land owners in Amador, set his neighbors a good example by bringing his family every day to the races and taking in the Pavilion at night.

Mr. Smith, of Rohnerville, the owner of Susie S., was present all the week, looking perfectly happy. Messrs. Kelly & Samuels still have the mare leased from him, but not for any definite time.

The racing was as good as any ever witnessed in the State, several of the finishes being remarkably close, while the time made, show that for a running track, it is hard to beat. The pool-selling, ably conducted by Al Leach, gave general satisfaction. The Secretary, C. T. La Grave, was considerate and courteous to everyone, filling his many positions as well as possible when one considers that he was clerk of the scales, and also wrote up the blackboard every time; perhaps it would be as well to allow him an assistant or two next meeting. Worth Ober, the well known Sacramento trainer, gave general satisfaction as starter on the first four days, being very careful and painstaking, as he always is.

The premiums in the horse and cattle department were awarded on Thursday, and the winners afterwards paraded. The awards were:

Class I., Thoroughbred Horses—Stallion, three years old and upward, $15, Morton, S. C. Tryon, Sacramento.

In the pavilion, which was open every night, there was a great display of agricultural necessaries, grain, corn, fruits, etc.; the fruit was greatly admired, especially as there seemed to be none to be had in the town. Several well known speakers delivered addresses at different times, amongst the best known of whom were Secretary of State Hendricks, Mayor Gregory (Sacramento), De Harvey, Hon. J. C. Brusie and A. Caminetti. Dancing was indulged in on two evenings up to a late hour.

ATHLETICS.

Athletic Sports and Other Pastimes.

Edited by Arphippus.

CLUB JOTTINGS.

On September 12th a grand exhibition and Ladies night will be given by the Olympic Club, at the Grand Opera House. The programme will embrace gymnastics, boxing, fencing and wrestling. Professor J. J. Corbett will box four rounds with another notable expert in the art. The exhibition is for the benefit of the Out-Door Grounds fund, and tickets will be $1 00 for admission, reserved seats $1 50.

It is most probable that the P. A. C. will erect a building in three or four weeks which will be fitted up in the most elaborate style.

The exhibition of the Pacific Athletic Club and the Golden Gate Athletic Club were the only events of importance that took place during the past week. The new training grounds of the Olympic Athletic Club will not be ready by Admission Day, and the athletes will be compelled to keep in training a few weeks longer. The amateur boxers of the California Athletic Club are anxious to find out if they will have the championship all to themselves, as it is thought that the associate clubs of the P. C. A. A. A. will not allow their men to enter the tournament.

There will be an exhibition of the Olympic Athletic Club at the Grand Opera House on Saturday evening next, Sept. 21st. The receipts of the evening will be added to the out door grounds fund.

The lovers of athletic sports thronged the spacious gymnasium of the Pacific Athletic Club, on Thursday evening last, when its regular monthly exhibition was held. Full particulars of the different events will be given in our next issue.

The seventh annual games of the San Francisco Athletic Club will be held at Badger's Park to-morrow. In the amateur races valuable gold and silver medals will be awarded the different winners. Several of the leading athletes of the coast have signified their intention of entering the games.

The new athletic grounds of the Olympic Athletic Club will not be ready by September 9th, and the games that were to be held on that day will not take place till about October 1st. This postponement will be a disappointment to the athletes who have been in training for several weeks past, as it will compel them to continue training for six or seven weeks longer.

More than twenty athletic clubs exist in San Francisco today, but out of that number only five clubs deserve recognition as legitimate athletic clubs. Thes clubs are the Olympic, the California, the Golden Gate, the Pacific, and the Athenæum.

Now the bars at the different athletic clubs are closed up the prize-fighters will no longer find attraction in the clubrooms and the genuine athletes will be rid of their presence.

RUNNERS, WALKERS, JUMPERS, ETC.

The Bay District tracks are both in good condition for training purposes, and the runners and walkers are evidently taking advantage of the fact.

For the last week or so the boys have been training by moonlight at the Bay District track, and the people in that neighborhood are just beginning to get used to their warhoops.

Sprinter Williams, of the O. A. C., is earning quite a name for himself as a starter, and his manly form may be seen almost any evening in the pale moonlight at the Bay District track, where he instructs a large class of novices in the art of "leaving the mark" a la Schifferstein.

Captain Phil. Moodey, of the Pacific Athletic Club, and his "little picnic basket" are constant visitors at the Bay District track. The Captain is thinking about substituting a valise for the "basket," as it attracts the attention of all the "dorgs" in that vicinity, and dogs and sprinting evidently do not go hand in hand.

Champion McArthur was at the track one evening recently, taking notes. He was unable to discover any mile runners, and returned home with a light heart.

Neither Coffin nor Jarvis have as yet made their appearance in the open air, but it is thought that both men will commence to train early next week.

Schifferstein, who is at present living in San Jose, is practicing for the long and high jumps, and in the former event he is almost certain to lower the record at the next meeting. It is also thought that he will defeat Moffet, of the U. A. C., in the running high jump.

It is said that two walking events will be included on the O. A. C. programme. We think this a good idea, but we would suggest that one of the races be a sprint one, say a one hundred yards dash or a quarter of a mile; for two long distance walking races would prove very monotonous to the people of the Pacific Coast, as that kind of pastime at amateur meetings in California is still in its infancy.

We hope that all the athletes who will enter the lists for the coming outdoor tournament of the O. A. C. will make up their minds to compete, as there is nothing more distressing at an athletic meeting, than to see only one or two men get on the mark for an event for which there are probably a dozen entries.

The match race between McIntyre of this city, and Watson of Victoria, is an event of the past. The local athlete suffered defeat. The only chance McIntyre now has of getting even with the Victorian is to challenge him to run a series of three races; a half mile, a mile and three miles. Watson, of course, would again win the half mile, but we think McIntyre is speedy enough to capture the two longer events.

The athletes will be sorry to hear that the "old reliable" grounds at 14th and Center Streets, Oakland, have been demolished. Buildings are to be erected over the track on which nearly all the Pacific Coast records were made.

The U. A. C. boys are holding down their cinder path (?). The U. C. team has lately been strengthened by the addition of some good novices, and the Olympians will need to struggle harder than they did on May 30th.

Champion S. V. Cassidy is reducing his superfluous flesh in the gymnasium of the O. A. C. Next week he will begin to practice out-doors. If the new track turns out to be as fast as report says it will be, Cassidy may improve the 2:20 record.

The P. A. C. has a member that can clear nearly five and a half feet in the running high jump.

There are four walkers in New York that can walk a mile under seven minutes.

The P. A. C. will enter a "dark horse" for the shot-putting and hammer events. From all accounts he is a good one.

Hamm, the G. G. A. C. sprinter, will not compete in any games this year. Business matters will compel him to remain in the country for some time to come, where he will not have a chance to train.

THE WHEELMEN.

'Rah for Mathews. His recent record of 126 miles in a day and a half is not to be sneezed at.

Last Saturday night, several of the San Francisco Bicycle Club members took a moonlight ride out to the Cliff House, through the park. The trip was an exceedingly pleasant one. On the return home, S. B. Morse, one of the riders met with a slight, but painful accident. The moon disappeared behind a cloud for a moment, and Mr. Morse accidently ran into the ditch which caused him to take one of those historical headers. The result was a sprained wrist.

During the interval between race meets, the majority of the Bay City's cracks indulge in "straw rides." Another of those delightful night excursions will shortly take place, and the usual contingent will doubtless attend.

At the request of several of the Grass Valley wheelmen, the directors of the Nevada State Fair have decided to add one bicycle event to their programme. Neither the date nor the distance has yet been fixed.

Two or three bicycle races will probably be added to the opening day programme.

The track at the new O. A. C. grounds will be built in such a manner that the wheelmen can ride over it at full speed without the slightest danger of accident.

As most of the riders were away in the country, only a few stragglers were seen in the Park on Sunday last.

The 20th run of the San Francisco Bicycle Club on last Saturday to Santa Cruz was a success. Five of the best men in the club—H. A. Matthews, Len Owens, G. W. Laury, J. C. Spencer, and F. J. H. Manning (Captain)—took the 2 o'clock boat, and, after crossing the bay, started on their silent steeds for San Jose. This pretty little city was reached about supper-time, and the jolly riders did full justice to that meal. After resting an hour or so, they again mounted and wended their way toward Los Gatos. This portion of the journey was made by moonlight. Los Gatos was made by 9 o'clock, and the party decided to stay there for the night. The start for Santa Cruz was made early next morning, and the city by the sea was reached in time for lunch. After disporting themselves in the surf for half an hour or so, the boys were again ready to start for home. They took the last train for San Francisco, and arrived here none the worse for their long journey. This was the first run of the club to Santa Cruz, and, judging from the success of the trip, the club will give another run to that place very soon, when it is expected that double the number of members will be on hand at the start.

The irrepressible Fonda is again in the field. His leg, he says, is just as strong as ever, and he is anxiously awaiting the next meeting. We understand that the life insurance companies of this city held a private meeting at which it was decided that none of the companies will insure Fonda's life.

AT THE OARS.

Several of the Dolphin crews were seen at Tiburon on Sunday last. This is quite a pull from the city, but the boys seem to think it only "mild" exercise.

A race between two of the amateur crews of the Ariels will shortly take place. One of the crews will be in charge of J. J. Larkey, while the other one will be looked after by T. Farrell.

The proposed match race between members of the California Amateur Athletic Club and members of the Olympic Athletic Club seems to have fallen through.

On Saturday last, at Chicago, the executive committee of the national association of amateur oarsmen elected H. W. Garfield, of Albany, president; Lyman B. Clover, of Chicago, vice-president; W. H. Gibson, of Washington, Secretary, and H. K. Hincham, of Philadelphia, Treasurer.

IN THE SURF.

The warm weather is evidently fast approaching and lovers of the surf will soon be in their glory.

Several bathers were unable to obtain suits at the Shelter Cove baths last Sunday owing to the large number of people that were there.

Both the Palace and Crystal baths were crowded during the week. We were present at the latter place one evening recently, and were surprised to see so many familiar faces present.

At the Terrace baths last Sunday suits were at a premium. In fact it was almost impossible to get a look at the swimmers so great was the crowd.

The police should make some effort to stop young men and boys from swimming at the North Beach. The portion of the beach where these immodest young men go in swimming is between Powell and Taylor streets. Ladies who are compelled to pass that way are constantly complaining about the nuisance.

A well known athlete says that there is nothing more beneficial to a man in training for any kind of sport than cold salt water bathing. He says swimming in salt water improves the wind and hardens the muscles.

The old Mermaid baths at the foot of Larkin Street are gone out of existence. When the Sutter Street Cable line extend that far a new bath house will be erected on the old site.

Misses Ada and Lula Wilson are among the swimmers that go to the raft every afternoon.

The Misses Davis, of San Francisco are two of the best divers there at present, and every day they perform daring diving feats from the Neptune raft.

The soldier boys make thing lively along the beach every afternoon. There are several excellent swimmers among the crowd.

MISCELLANEOUS.

The Philadelphia cricketers have just concluded their tour through England, Ireland and Scotland. Their appearance was hailed with delight by the British but their good work was received with surprise. Truly their excellent playing is something that Americans should be proud of. Cricket is to Englishmen what base ball is to Americans, and it is almost impossible to realize that England has been beaten at her own champions and England will have to invent a new game if she desires to hold a championship.

The Standard.

[AS REVISED AND ADOPTED BY THE NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF TROTTING-HORSE BREEDERS, DECEMBER 14, 1887.]

In order to define what constitutes a trotting-bred horse and to establish a BREED of trotters on a more intelligent basis, the following rules are adopted to control admission to the records of pedigrees. When an animal meets the requirements of admission and is duly registered, it shall be accepted as a standard trotting-bred animal:—

FIRST.—Any stallion that has himself a record of two minutes and thirty seconds (2:30) or better, provided any of his get has a record of 2:35 or better, or provided his sire or his dam is already a standard animal.

SECOND.—Any mare or gelding that has a record of 2:30 or better.

THIRD. Any horse that is the sire of two animals with a record of 2:30 or better.

FOURTH.—Any horse that is the sire of one animal with a record of 2:30 or better, provided he has either of the additional qualifications: (1) A record himself of 2:35 or better. (2) Is the sire of two other animals with a record of 2:35 or better. (3) Has a sire or dam that is already a standard animal.

FIFTH.—Any mare that has produced an animal with a record of 2:30 or better.

SEVENTH.—The female progeny of a standard horse when out of a mare by a standard horse.

NINTH.—Any mare that has a record of 2:35 or better, and whose sire or dam is a standard animal.

Ayrshire.

The Duke of Portland seems fated to win all the big races in England this year. On July 19th, he won the Great Eclipse Stakes of £10,000, for three and four-year-olds, about a mile and a quarter, at Sandown Park, with his home bred bay colt Ayrshire, foaled 1885, by Hampton, dam Atalanta by Galopin, her dam Feronia by Thormanby, out of Woodbine by Stockwell, etc. Aryshire, up to and including the Eclipse Stakes, has started in fifteen races, namely, seven at two-year-old, of which he won five and was third in the others. At three years old he started six times, won four races, was third once, and unplaced once. At four years old he started twice, winning both times.

Below will be seen the races won by Ayrshire and their value:

TWO-YEAR-OLDS.

Bibury Club Home Bred Foal Stakes	£ 410
Royal Plate, at Windsor	1,826
Chesterfield Stakes, Newmarket	780
Prince of Wales Stakes, Goodwood	3,000
Champagne Stakes, Doncaster	1,050

THREE-YEAR-OLDS.

Riddlesworth Stakes, Newmarket	400
2,000 Guineas, Newmarket	3,550
Derby, Epsom	3,480
Great Foal Stakes, Newmarket	1,056

FOUR-YEAR-OLDS.

Royal Stakes, Kempton	4,5 0
Great Eclipse, Sandown	10,000

Ayrshire's winnings, coupled with those of Donovan and Semolina, without taking into consideration what his other horses have won or may win, make the Duke of Portland the largest winner ever known in one year, reaching probably £50,000.—Live Stock Journal.

The Champion and Junior Champion.

The New York Sporting World has the following about the two great races:—

Champion Day has gone! Has it settled the all important question, "Who are the champions?" The majority will say "No." The majority are perfectly right. Cayuga was defeated for the Junior Champion Stakes because of the large field, and Firenzi was defeated for the Champion, perhaps, on her merits. That Los Angeles is a grand racing mare the readers of Monday's Sporting World will have realized. Well trained as she was on Saturday to beat Eurus, Sluggard and Connemara she was, if that were possible, in better fettle yesterday when she met Firenzi and Eurus.

It wasn't a good start, neither was it a bad one, that marked the getting away of the Junior Champions. But the fact of twelve two-year olds being ranged at the quarter post to get away for over $30,000 was sufficient to insure anxiety in the minds of the starter and everybody that rode in the race. Several breaks that looked like capital starts were put to waste, and finally the flag was thrown with the lot in two divisions, of which the first was composed of Protection, Devotee, Leighton and Mr. Withers' Ecoola colt. Cayuga got well away, but in a close bunch, and Littlefield pulled him back, thinking the flag would not fall. Then with the hope of going round his field he afterward began to work. That such a hope was futile was fully shown by the running of the race, Protection never relinquishing his lead, but drawing out in the stretch and winning handily by three lengths, while Chesapeake, the second of Belmont's string, was not headed for the second place, and finished far in front of Banquet, and the others behind.

There was another disappointment for the followers of form in the Champion Stakes, although not as harrowing as that of the two-year-old race. Los Angeles' grand appearance had been commented upon on Saturday last. She has grown, filled out, and assumed all the proportions of a grand looking mare. On that account she did not lack for backers yesterday, although at all times Firenzi was a strong favorite, the bookmakers asking 5 against their 3 every time, from first to last. She seemed to be short of work, could not even reach Eurus, who gave Los Angeles all the little work she received. The California mare won easily, and Firenzi was beaten off, although, of course, Hamilton eased her up in stretch when he found further pursuit useless.

It was noticeable that after the defeat of Cayuga and Firenzi yesterday many of the wine drinkers patronized the pump which adjoins the betting place.

Not one person in a thousand who attended the Monmouth races yesterday believe that the best horse won the Junior Champion Stakes.

Director and Stockholders of a Fair Association Engaged in a Lawsuit.

A suit has been filed in the District court which has caused considerable talk in Helena. The parties to the suit are the stockholders of the Fair Association outside of the Directory, and the Board of Directors. It appears that the Board of Directors recently purchased what stock remained in the treasury and appropriated the lot amounting, to 694 shares, among themselves at the par value, $25 per share. The gentlemen outside of the directory object to this, and now appeal to the courts to ascertain by what privilege they were ignored in the disposition of the stock.

Secretary Pope stated that the transaction was conducted legally, open and above board, and produces the minutes of the trustee's meetings to account for the transaction. He states that it was decided at a meeting to make extensive improvements at the grounds and also to purchase five acres of ground lying on the east side of the fair grounds, and as this would involve a large outlay of money, steps were taken to to secure the necessary funds. The treasurer was according instructed by orders of the president, secretary and board of trustees to ascertain if any stock was left in the treasury, and if so to find purchasers for it. At a subsequent meeting the treasurer reported and stated that 640 shares remained which he sold and secured $17,350 in cash which is now in the treasury.

On the other hand the outside stockholders claim that owing to the fact that a surplus remained in the treasury such a movement was uncalled for. And besides the association had conducted its business for the past nineteen years on 306 shares of capital stock paid in, and at this time the stock is worth at least $120 share, whereas it was let go for $25 per share.

The case will prove of much interest, as leading citizens of Helena are engaged in the legal controversy, and the ablest talent will be employed on both sides.

The gentleman engaged in the suit are Daniel A. G Flowerree, Shirley C. Ashby, Chas. H. Dahler, Robt. S. Hale, Chas. Leham, Conrad Koers, W. N. Baldwin, Chas. A. Broadwater, C. Wallace Taylor, Henry Klien and Herman Gans Plaintiffs, and L. H. Aersfield, Anslem J. Davidson, Thomas C. Power, Francis Pope, Wm. A. Chessman, Benjamin H. Tantem, Wm. B. Hundley, Wm. Muth, Chas. D. Hard and Aaron Hersfield, defendants.

In the complaint appears the allegatation that the capital stock of the concern is divided into 1,000 shares of the value of $25 each. That the plaintiffs own of said stock as follows: Flowerrre 11 share; Ashby, 13; Dahler, 8; Hale, 1; Lehman, 4; Tylor. 2; Baldwin 6; Broadwater, 6; Bans & Klien 4. That at the time of the incorporation of the company 306 shares of the stock were issued to suscribers therefore and no other stock was issued until February, 1889, when the remaining 694 shares were issued in the following manner at the face value of $25 per share: A. J. Davidson, 61 shares; T. C, Power 96; Francis Pope, 93 W. A. Chessman, 71; B. H. Tantem, 64; Wm. C. Hundley, 62; Wm. Muth. 61; C D. Hard, 61; Hersfield Bros., 125. That the value of all said stock is now $120,000 as represented by real and personal property now owned by the association; that it has always been of greater value than per value and is now worth at least $120 per share.

It further alleges that on February 9, 1889, the said defendants, who are also directors of the company, resolved by unanimous vote to issue said stock and sell the same at its face value, giving as reasons therefor the contemplated improvements on a great scale of the fair grounds, whereupon the stock was sold to themselves in the manner above stated. That the money realized from the sale of such stock, viz: $17,350, was, instead of being applied to the contemplated improvements, loaned to the Merchants National Bank of Helena for six months at 6 per cent. per annum. That such a sale was unauthorized and not within the power of such directors to make; that it was made without any authority from or consultation with the plaintiff stock holders, and secretly and privately, without any notification to the public and without any effort to obtain the best price therefor and for the individual profit and advantage of the said directors, and without regard to the interests of the association or other stockholders; that such a sale was a fraud upon such association and a violation of the duties of said defendants as directors; all of which information has just come to the knowledge of these plaintiffs.—[The Horse.]

Three of a Kind.

Proctor Knott and Come to Taw discuss their Eccentric Owner.

Horses are intelligent animals, especially thoroughbreds, and it's a pity they can't talk. They almost can, and it is sometimes easy to imagine what they would say had they the power of speech. The following conversation, imagined by a writer in the Louisville Truth, is very realistic: Proctor Knott left for Chicago yesterday. Proctor was evidently in a disagreeable form of mind as he strolled through the streets on his way to the Monon depot. He was sulky, in short, sullen and morose.

"It's a d—d shame," he said fretfully to Mr. Bryant, "to take a horse to Chicago in my condition."

"Shut up, you wenced-eyed devil," replied Mr. Bryant, pleasantly. "D'ye want to stand up in the stable out yonder all summer and eat your head off?"

"You be d—d," returned Proctor. "I won enough money for you last year to pay my board for a lifetime. In the name of God how much do you expect of a horse, Sam?" and Proctor looked at Mr. Bryant with an injured air, and came to a dead stop in the street.

"Come on, now," cried Sam; "come on, you fool. Don't be stoppin' here and havin' everybody gittin' onto you and being ashamed of you. Don't be mortifyin' Come to Taw."

"I'd like to know what Come to Taw is to mortify," murmured Proctor, bitterly. "I never heard of anybody suspecting him of being anything but an old slim-necked crab."

"That's a nice way to be talkin' about your stable companion," cried Mr. Bryant reproachfully.

"I don't care a d—n," interrupted Come to Taw, airly. "I notice I beat him down at Nashville, whether I'm a crab or not."

"Beat me with that little fool jockey pulling my d—d head of," ejaculated Proctor, hotly. "That's the way you beat me."

"Why don't you hosses quit cussin'?" asked Mr. Bryant reprovingly.

"Who taught us how to cuss?" retorted Proctor, viciously.

"Yes, who taught us how?" added Come to Taw. "You are a d—d nice Sunday-school teacher to be talkin' to anybody about cussin'."

"We never would have known anything about cussin' if it hadn't been for you," supplemented the noble chestnut, bitterly. "You cuss all the time."

"Come on here now," cried Mr. Bryant peevishly. "I won't stand no more nonsense from you hosses. If you don't come I'll take a club to you," and Mr. Bryant looked so vicious that his noble pair of thoroughbreds quailed for the moment and followed him sulkily in Third street. When they reached Market, however, Proctor Knott twitched his tail nervously and came to another dead spot.

"Wha's the matter now, you sorrel pup?" asked Mr. Bryant nervously.

"I'm not going past that d—d turf exchange," answered Proctor stubbornly. I'll be d—d if I am!"

"Didn't I tell you to quit cussin'?" roared Mr. Bryant threateningly.

"Well cussin' or no cussin', I'm not going past that turf exchange," replied the noble Derby loser firmly. "If you want to take me to Chicago you can take me down Market street."

"What's the matter with the turf exchange?" cried Mr. Bryant. "You ain't too high-toned to go by there are you?"

"No," replied Proctor sadly. "I'm not high-toned. I was high-toned once, but I've got over that since I've been mixing around with you and Come to Taw. The fact is I don't want to go by the turf exchange, because I don't want to have my feelings hurt by that crowd of measly two-dollar bettors. Look at 'em sticking around there like a pack of blue-bottle flies. When one of them fellers bets thirty cents on a horse he thinks he owns him. They are waiting for me to come by now, so they can sneer at me and call me a crab. There's that old Eli Marks. He bet $2 on me in the Clark Stakes and he hasn't quit kicking yet."

"Te-he," tittered Come to Taw, "what a sensitive plant he is, to be sure."

"You are used to being called a crab," retorted Proctor hotly. "I'm not, and I don't like it."

"And I'll be d—d if you shall be either," cried Mr. Bryant beginning to grow tender. "They shan't do it. If I hear anybody callin' you a crab I'll cut his d—d throat. Come on let's go down Market street and let the old turf exchange go to the devil."

"That's the way I like to hear you talk, Sam," cried Proctor gratefully. "You're a d—d nice fellow sometimes."

"Please quit cussin'," murmured Mr. Bryant. I don't like to hear hosses cussin'."

"Rats!" titered Come to Taw, rakishly.

"I'll rat you, you d—d hay thief, if you stick your chin in any more," cried Sam fiercely.

"If you do I won't set the pace for Proctor Knott in the American Derby," retorted Come to Taw, flippantly, whereupon Mr. Bryant subsided and marched modestly on down to the depot with his equine darlings on either side of him. Here they entered a very decent sort of horse-car and Sam promptly started to take off his coat.

"For heaven's sake," cried Proctor, "you are not going to sleep in here with us, are you?"

"Can't you leave us to ourselves for the rest of the night?" supplemented Come to Taw, peevishly.

"Somebody might p'ison ye if I left you," interpolated Mr. Bryant, wisely.

"Come off," cried Proctor. Who wants to p'ison us?"

"Anybody, you d—d fool," murmured Mr. Bryant.

"Why don't you quit cussin' Sam?" interrupted Come to Taw, "If you don't I'll go lame and get somebody to buy me for a street-car mule."

"That's yer proper callin' anyway," retorted Mr. Bryant, warmly. "You ain't no racehorse. You ain't hardly worth oats."

"Sam," interupted Proctor Knott in a low, slow voice, "what will be the betting against me in that d—d Chicago Derby?"

"'Bout 6 to 1," replied Mr. Bryant.

"Then I'll tell you what I'll do, Sam," continued Proctor. "If you won't sleep with me in this car to-night I'll win that race or break my neck. I'll swear I will. I'll do anything just to keep you out of my stall for one night."

"We are getting awfully tired of being watched like a pair of d—d pussy cats," added Come to Taw, bitterly. "The way you act people would think you never owned a racehorse before."

"Please go up and sleep in the baggage car, Sam," pleaded Proctor Knott, prayerfully. "Let us go to Chicago in peace just this once, for the Lord's sake."

"I'll be d—d if I don't do it," said Mr. Bryant; and if anybody p'ison you, recollect it ain't no fault of mine."

"Thank heaven," murmured Proctor Knott, gratefully.

"When he gets out we'll sleep against the door," whispered Come to Taw, sagely. "He might want to come in again before we get to Chicago."

In the meantime Mr. Bryant had reached the baggage car.

"Them's the d—dest horses I ever seed," he remarked to the baggage master, and away they went to Chicago.

The Napa Fair.

The first day of the Napa Meeting was a grand success, the crowd large and enthusiastic, the weather perfect and the racing of the best. The directors devoted the initial day, to the bang tail division and three events were on the card. The first race called out Susie S., Mikado and Nabeau, the distance being three-quarters of a mile and repeat, the entrance $25 with $10 forfeit, the association adding $200. Susie S. was a strong favorite, the betting fraternity feeling that the performance of the mare at Ione, stamped her as being a sure winner. But there is many a slip in horse racing and it is that great uncertainty which adds so much zest to the sport. The three got off well together for the first heat, but at the turn Mikado had taken a lead which he maintained to the wire, his two competitors being unable to reach him. Time, 1:15½.

The second heat was a trifle more interesting as there was a duel between Mikado and Susie S. for the heat, Nabeau evidently being outclassed in the fast company. The pair ran as a double team from start to finish, and it was only in the last few strides that Mikado managed to snatch the victory from the mare. Time, 1:15½.

The second race of the day was a mile and repeat, there being originally four entries, but H. Reaves' Isabella and Kelly & Samuel's Welcome were scratched, leaving W. L. Appleby's Wild Oats and Wm. Boots' Nerva to contest for the money. Nerva won the first heat handily, but Wild Oats was too much for the chestnut mare, and he managed to secure the next two without any trouble. The third and last race of the day was a mile and a half dash, the starters being Kelly & Samuel's Ed. McGinnis, and Montgomery & Rea's Alfarata. McGinnis had the majority of backing, he selling for $25 to $6 on the brown horse. The race was wholly uninteresting, as the favorite took the lead and was never headed, he winning as he liked in 2:41.

Tuesday.

Judges, H. M. La Rue, Wilfred Page and L. M. James. Clerk of Scales, E S. Culver. Timers, F. Coombes, A. K. Mayhew and H. J. Agnew.

It was a highly successful day in every respect, the trotting being exceptionally good. The programme was rather too big for the day though, and although heats were sandwiched, the 2:40 class had to be postponed after four heats, it being half past seven when the fourth was trotted. The first race was the 2:30 class, with six starters. Ringwood trotted a good heat in the first, and had it not been for the accident had a great chance for the race. Atto Rex proved the winner, being a much better stayer than Express, who was very fast. Hazel Kirke, who has only been in work about six weeks, having been bred to Albert, trotted a hard game race. The district yearling brought out three youngsters, all of whom were rather green, Starlight eventually winning.

In the 2:20 class Palo Alto won in straight heats, lowering his record to 2:18 in the third, with no one near him.

The 2:40 class had four heats, all inside 2:30. Goldsmith drove Nona Y. after the first heat, but could only get second place in each heat. In the second Lookout and Leila were distanced, but the judges thinking the horse was not driven to win, started him in the next with Marvin behind him. The improvement was manifest, for in the fourth heat he won as he liked. He is said to be by Arab. Mr. Ariel Lathrop was present to see Palo Alto trot. Among other notables were Messrs. Tom Williams, G. Valensin, M. Salisbury, M. M. Estee, A. L. Whitney, J. M. La Rue, etc.

Time, 2:24½, 2:24½, 2:28, 2:26½, 2:25½. 2:26.

First Heat—Auction pools: Balkan $25, Express $18, Ringwood $10, field $10.

After scoring several times Atto Rex had the worst of the start, and with Ringwood breaking before the first turn, Balkan and J. R. cut out the pace. At the quarter they were level two lengths in front of Hazel Kirke, with Express two lengths further back, and Ringwood some distance closed up a little on the backstretch, Balkan leading by a neck, and at the half by a length. Ringwood came very fast round the turn, and at the head of the homestretch they were all close on Balkan. Ringwood looked all over a winner at the drawgate, when Dustin brought J. R. up with a rattle, beating him out a neck, Balkan three lengths back, third, Atto Rex a bad last all through. Time, 0:37, 1:13, 1:49, 2:24½.

Mutuals on the heat paid $21.70.

Second Heat—Auction pools: Balkan $20, Express $10, Ringwood $7, field $20.

Ringwood, after scoring up, turned short round, breaking the sulky wheel and running away with a one-wheeled sulky round the track; luckily he was stopped after the circuit without any injury, and was hitched up to a fresh sulky.

After scoring sixteen times they went off with J. R. in front and Ringwood breaking last. At the quarter J. R. was leading Balkan a length, and Hazel Kirke lapped on Balkan's wheel, Express two lengths back, fourth. Express passed the field in a clatter, leading J. R. a length at the half, Hazel Kirke and Balkan a length each behind. Marvin kept his lead into the straight when he left his feet, and Hazel Kirke went to the front, and though Express came very fast in the last hundred yards, Hazel won by a neck, J. R. three lengths behind Express and a length in front of Balkan, Ringwood just inside the flag. Time, 0:36, 1:12¼, 1:49, 2:24½.

Mutuals paid $19 30.

Third Heat—Ringwood was drawn. Goldsmith drove Balkan.

Auction pools: Express $30, Balkan $9, field $50.

Hazel Kirke had a little the best of the start, and soon strung out the field at the quarter, being two lengths in front of Express, who was three ahead of J. R. and Balkan, with Atto Rex two lengths further back, Balkan broke badly and dropped back. At the half Hazel Kirke was three lengths in front of Express, same distance between Atto Rex, J. R. and Balkan in the order named. All closed up a little round the turn, Hazel Kirke and Express being about a length apart at the head of the stretch, and Rex two lengths back. Rex closed up on the leaders, but breaking at the distance came too late, being beaten three quarters of a length by Hazel Kirke, who was half a length behind the winner Express. Time, 0:35, 1:12¼, 1:49, 2:23.

Mutuals paid $8.70.

Dustin, with J. R., had slightly the best of the send off, but was soon passed, Hazel Kirke and Rex who passed the quarter with a length and two lengths between them, Hazel Kirke broke very badly, and dropped back, Rex going past the half three lengths to the good, Express two in front of Hazel, who was just clear of J. R. They went round the turn in the same order, but both the leaders left their feet at the head of the stretch, and Rex catching quickest won handily by two lengths, Express second, Hazel Kirke close up third, and Balkan, who showed a phenomenal burst of speed, from the lead of the stretch to the distance pole, where he broke badly, a good fourth. Time, 0:35½, 1:12½ 0:48½, 2:25½.

Mutuals paid $8.90.

Fifth Heat—Auction pools, Express $10, whole field $30. They got off at the third attempt, Rex breaking almost at once and Marvin going out, led Hazel two lengths at the quarter, Rex a length and a half back, and J. R. same distance behind him. Express broke on the backstretch, and at the half was third, Rex leading Hazel by a length, same second and third. Rex increased his lead to three lengths when the six furlong pole was reached, with Hazel second, two lengths in front of Express who broke badly coming down the stretch, leaving Hazel Kirke to fight it out with Rex who beat her out half a length after a good struggle, J. R. third, three lengths behind the leaders with Express only a neck behind.

Mutuals paid, $6.85. Time, ;37, 1:11¼, 1:49½, 2:25½.

Auction Pools—Atto Rex $120, Whole Field $30.

Rex had a shade the best of the start and at once opened a gap, being two clear lengths in front of Hazel at the quarter, J. R. five in advance of Express who broke badly at the turn. Hazel gradually drew up to Rex catching him just after the half mile pole and then dropping back round the turn two lengths behind at the three-quarter pole, Express five lengths back. Hazel followed Rex home, beaten a length after a desperate finish, Express third, two lengths further in the rear, and J. R. well inside the distance.

Mutuals paid, $7.50.

Time, 2:21½, 2:20, 2:18.

First heat.—Auction pools, Palo Alto $40; field $20.

Victor broke twice before the quarter was reached, Palo being three lengths in front of Bay Rose and Victor, who were level two lengths in advance of Jim L. Palo Alto drew further away, and won as he liked by three lengths, with Bay Rose a neck in front of Victor, who came with a rattle the last hundred yards. Mutuals paid, $10.15. Time, :34½, 1:09¾, 1:45, 2:20.

Second heat.—Auction pools, Palo Alto $50; field $8.

They were soon tapped off and Palo Alto, breaking at the turn, was six lengths behind Jim L. at the quarter, Bay Rose being half way between them. Palo Alto closed up, and was on even terms with Bay Rose at the half, Jim L. being still three lengths to the good, and Victor ten behind the second. Palo Alto and Rose caught him at the head of the stretch and after a pretty finish the favorite won by a neck; same second and third, Bay Rose second, Jim L third, and Victor a bad last. Mutuals paid, $7.90. Time, :34, 1:09, 1:45, 2:20.

Third heat.—No betting.

With Victor and Jim L. Rose and Jim were about level all the way, and with Victor lying back until the stretch was reached, a hard race ensued for second, Jim getting it by half a length, Rose a neck in front of Victor. Mutuals paid, $5.90. Time, :35, 1:09, 1:44½, 2:18.

THE 2:40 TROT.

After a good deal of scoring Nona Y. went off in front, leading Lookout three lengths at the quarter. Lookout now settled down to business, and, trotting fast, had his nose in front at the half, Flora B., two lengths back, third. Lookout kept his lead, and with Nona and Flora both breaking in the home stretch, won easily by a length and a half, Nona second, half a length in front of Flora. Leila was a bad last. Mutuals paid, $12.70. Time, :34½, 1:11, 1:48, 2:25.

Second heat—Auction pools, Flora Belle $5; Nona Y., $15; field, $25. Goldsmith was up behind Nona Y.

At the fourth attempt the bell was tapped. Nona and Flora both left their feet before the turn, but Nona, catching handily, was two lengths in front at the quarter, Flora second, five in front of Lookout. Flora trotted in surprising form, passing Nona and having a two-lengths lead at the half, and Nona, breaking and losing ground, was seven behind her at the head of the stretch, but, splendidly handled, closed up again, and despite a skip at the drawgate, was only beaten a head by Flora, who trotted out very gamely. Belle A. was a bad third, and Lookout and Leila were outside the flag, but the judges not approving of the manner in which the horse was driven, he was turned over to Marvin and started again in the next heat. Mutuals paid, $22.45. Time, :36, 1:11½, 1:47, 2:25.

Third Heat—Auction pools: Flora Belle $20, Nona $10, field $10.

After a good deal of scoring they were despatched. Lookout broke badly before the turn was reached, and dropped back last, Nona making the pace. At the quarter she was three lengths in front of Flora B., who was same in front of Belle. Flora again made her effort in the second quarter, and passing Nona, notwithstanding a break, was three lengths to the good at the half. Lookout passed Belle B., and was ten lengths behind the leaders at the head of the stretch, where Nona left her feet, but catching quickly was up to the leader at the distance when she again broke and ran in, Flora Belle getting the heat, Nona second, Lookout twenty lengths back, third, and Belle just inside. Time, 0:35½, 1:14, 1:50, 2:26.

Fourth Heat—No pools sold, as everyone had left, it being then 7:30.

From what could be seen of the race, Nona Y. broke at the start, and Lookout and Flora went out neck and neck round the turn. Flora broke at the three-eighth pole, and Lookout went on, and with Flora breaking going round the turn, the gelding won as he pleased by four lengths, Nona Y. second, Flora Belle a good third and Belle A. just inside. Time, 2:28.

The race was then postponed until Wednesday at 12 P. M.

Wednesday.

Judges—H. M. La Rue, F. Loeber and John McCord.

Timers—F. Coombs, A. K. Mayhew and H. J. Agnew.

The unfinished trot of Tuesday was finished at once, only one heat being required, Flora Belle winning easily. The two-year-old race with two starters proved an easy thing, for Palo Alto's Del Mar who trotted the second heat in 2:30, giving Electioneer one more in the thirty list. The 2:25 pacing was a hard race all through. Creole proved his gameness and stamina, for he was driven out for every heat being second in the third and fourth heats and winning the other three, the second in 2:20. A good mare for the game little son of Prompter, although entered in Mr. Salisbury's name, he is still the property of the well known Sacramento breeder, Mr. Snyder. The Direct—Victor race was generally conceded a sure thing for Direct but after a severe talking to by the judges, Doherty behind Victor forced him out in 2:19¼ in the second heat, and 2:21¾ in the third. Mr. Valensin's Fleet, two years old by Sidney, dam Flight, was driven to beat her record and in the second heat trotted in grand style without a break in 2:24. Buster received $50 for his able handling of the peerless black. The trotting district three-year-old was postponed until Thursday.

Mr. A. C. Dietz had a continuation of his bad luck, his four-year-old pacer Longworth being so sick after the first heat that the judges allowed him to be withdrawn.

The 2:40 trot was finished in one heat. They were sent off in short order and Nona Y. breaking before the turn, Lookout cut out the pace being five lengths in front of Flora Belle, and Nona Y. at the quarter. And Nona again breaking dropped back five lengths behind Flora, who trotted fast being head and head with Lookout half way round the upper turn, when Lookout broke badly leaving Flora to win as she liked by ten lengths, Lookout beating Nona a length for second place, with Belle a bad last. Time, :35, 1:12, 1:49½, 2:26½.

Delmar broke badly before the bend, dropping back ten lengths when the quarter was reached and at the half in 1:17 was still further behind, but Lorena breaking badly going round the turn was only a length in front at the head of the stretch and breaking again Marvin went past winning easily by fifty yards. Time, 2:34¾.

Second Heat—Marvin nodded for the word a length behind, and went round the turn level, but leaving his feet past the quarter, lost two lengths, which he regained at the half and carried Lorena to a disastrous break, Delmar being ten lengths in front when she caught, and though she closed up a good bit, she broke again in the homestretch, losing by a distance. First Heat—Auction pools: Belle Button $30, Creole $10, Longworth $7, field $8.

After a good deal of scoring Creole and Longworth went out, the latter breaking, dropped back, and Creole led to the quarter when Longworth caught him, and both stayed together past the half in 1:07½, and three-quarters 1:44½, Button ten lengths back, third, two lengths in front of Racquet. Longworth broke half way down the straight, and Creole won easily by three lengths, Belle Button a bad third, a length in front of Racquet. Time, 2:24½.

Longworth was withdrawn after last heat.

Racquet had a little the worst of the start, and Creole pacing nicely was a neck in front of Button at the quarter. At the half in 1:11, Creole was still a good neck in front, and pacing together they were about even at the head of the stretch, and after a hard race all down the straight, Creole won by a head, Belle Button second, fifty yards in front of Racquet. Time, 2:20.

Third Heat—Auction pools: Belle Button $25, Creole $29, field $10.

Fourth Heat—Auction Pools, Belle Button, $25, Creole — They were got off at the second attempt, Button setting the pace round the turn to the quarter in 34 seconds. Creole, who was close up, drew level at the three-eighth pole ten lengths in front of Racquet. At the half in 1:07, Creole was a length in front of Button, who was eight in front of Racquet. Button broke badly and dropped back on the turn, while Racquet gradually closed and, with Creole breaking in the stretch, passed him and won easily in three lengths. Belle Button just saving her distance and Edwin F. shut out. Time, 2:20½. Mutuals paid $13.50.

Fifth Heat—Auction Pools, Field, $290, Creole, $62 50, Belle Button, $37.50.

They were despatched at the third time of asking to a beautiful start. Creole at once drawing out led Racquet a length round the turn, which he increased to two at the three furlong pole. Racquet closed up, being only three-quarters of a length behind at the half in 1:14½, and after a grand race all the rest of the way, Creole, staying the best, won by a length and a half, Belle Button just inside. Pleasanton Stock Farm Co.'s Direct, br s, Director—Echora ..... A. McDowell	1	1	1
G. A. Doherty's Victor, b s, Echo, by Woodburn ..... Doherty	2	2	2

First heat.—Auction pools, a dollar to twenty-five was the best offer.

At the first time of asking they were tapped off. Direct, having the pole, drew out, and with McDowell watching Victor, they trotted the whole circuit within about two lengths of one another, Direct winning by half a length. Time, 2:29¼.

Second heat. Doherty, who had been called into the stand and warned to drive his horse out, went off at once, and despite his hitching and skiving all round the turn, was only two lengths behind at the quarter, which he had slightly decreased at the half in 1:09½, and sticking right at McDowell's wheel, drove him out at top speed to the drawgate. Victor broke, but catching cleverly, gained by it if anything, being only beaten a head in 2:19¼.

Third heat.—One pool was sold, $20 to $6.

They again went off without much scoring, and Victor, who was skiving all round the turn, but never losing, was at Direct's heels at the quarter, and level with him at the half, in 1:11. Direct, going right out, was only three-quarters of a length in front at the head of the stretch, and both horses were driven hard down the straight. Victor, again making a good break at the drawgate, was only beaten a length and a half. Time, 2:21¾.

American Trotters in France.

American trotters are still winning in France, according to the following from the Paris correspondent of the Spirit of the Times. The Prix de St. Maude, international, to harness, 2,000 francs, for stallions, mares and geldings of all countries, 4 years and over, to a two or four wheel vehicle; former winners of an international prize of 2,000 francs to carry 10 kilos, under the saddle cloth; distance, 6,000 meters (3 miles and a furlong).

Four competitors were entered, two by our indefatigable Mr. A. E. Terry, Milton and Misty Morning; one by Mariahall stables, the gelding Watt, and the fourth of no account, by a driver of the same worth. Well, Misty was scratched, so that Milton and Watt were the only serious competitors. Watt; driven by Meechen, takes the lead, followed by Milton, in Dickerman's masterly hands.

The third, Conquerant, is shut out at once. At the hill Milton leads, and half a mile further Watt indulges in a break down the hill, for he is a very sore horse, just as Captain George was in the saddle race. Meechen settles him and goes for Milton, about ten yards separating them. On the second turn, after passing the grand stand, Milton increased his lead, and is nobly trotting along in spite of his 22 pounds overweight, when he makes a slight break. But Dickerman is there, settles him, and sends him along.

At the last turn on the homestretch he tries another break, but has hardly time to know it when he settles again. Watt goes for him and breaks badly; in fact, he was unsteady the whole of the race, and gave young Meechen lots of trouble to keep him straight. But next year we may look for better things from the gelding after he has been acclimated and learned French and German as well as to avoid the asperities of rough European tracks. Here is the time:

Quarter Horses of Thirty Years Ago.

I have read many interesting reminiscences of old time traveling sports who went through the country with fast quarter and three-eighth horses, and I have seen several of these races. Here dwells an old-time sport, "Don Miguel' he is called, who tells of many races that he witnessed here and in Los Angeles, as both centers were famous for the fine Arabian horses that roamed over the fertile hills and canyons. I have heard so often of two great races that were run here, that the other day I started out for information, and the first man I met who could tell me of an interesting race was Edward Arrellanes, son of John Arrellanes, who owned the horse that ran in these races in 1861.

Don Miguel gave me the following account: "It was in the month of June. I was at Dos Pueblos" (a large ranch owned by the late Nicholas A. Den, on which grazed four or five thousand head of cattle). "We had been," he proceeded, having a great cattle gathering or rodeo, and there were fifty of us vaqueros on the ranch. I tell you we had horses that understood their business. We could lasso the wildest steer of the band and get off our horse, leaving the riata firmly tied around the pommel of the saddle, which would hold the steer while he made fierce plunges at the horse, but the well-trained horse easily avoided him. I remember distinctly once that Don Pedro Ortega made a wager with your father that he could take a wild two-year-old heifer and hold her firmly to the ground without a lasso of any kind. We selected a heifer, posted her out, and she started at full speed towards the hills. Don Pedro started after her on his well-trained horse and soon over-took her, caught her by the tail, and sent her rolling, and ere she stopped rolling Don Pedro was on foot and caught the tail of the heifer, and placing it between her legs, held her on her back till your father was satisfied that Don Pedro had won the wager."

"But tell me of the race you were going to relate," I said, and he continued: "Well, we were at the old Dos Pueblo's ranch house. We had finished our work and were running races in front of the house. The sun was about an hour high when two emigrant wagons arrived, as we called them, and the strangers camped under some immense sycamore trees by a beautiful stream of never-failing water. I went to their camp. I was riding a horse I called Aceituna. I thought that no horse had a license to beat him three hundred yards. At the stream was one of the strangers watering a little black mare. We exchanged salutations, and he invited me to his camp. We talked horse until I proposed to have a race. They were loath to make a match, but I finally persuaded them to run their black mare against my invincible. I put up all the money I had, fifty dollars, and my companions bet what money they had with them. I thought we had a walk-over, for the little mare looked as though she had tried to drink the stream dry. We measured the distance, three hundred yards. A man who must have weighed one hundred and fifty pounds, mounted the little mare, and in less time than it takes me to tell it, the race was run, and we were badly beaten. The little mare ran right away from our fast quarter horse. By the gods I was paralyzed! I thought our horse must be sick, and that he would surely die."

I was determined to get the best of these sharp Yankees, so in the evening I saddled Aceituna and rode into Santa Barbara, a distance of eighteen miles, in an hour and a half. I went straight to the barn of the wealthy aristocrat, Señor Arrellanes, and I posted him on these emmigrants, and advised him to match his renowned Piojo against any horse they brought, distance one thousand yards. The next day the strangers arrived and camped near what is now called Burton's Mound. I called upon them and they began to talk horse immediately. I opened fire upon them, and they treated from behind their barracks, taking it all in, and were unwilling to match my horse. Finally one of them said that they had a horse that could run two or three hundred yards fast, but that he was too lame to run. I was shown the horse. He was a tall, long-legged black gelding that walked lame. I noticed the man who led him kept one of his hands on his blistered shoulder. The stranger remarked that if his horse got over his lameness they might make a race. I worked hard to get them to make a match, but they consulted, demured, procrastinated, and only left hopes of a race.

I was going away disgusted, when one of them spoke up, and said he would like to see my horse, and that if we gave them time he might run us a race. "I might go you once for a flyer," he remarked, "if our horse gets any better." I made an appointment for the next day. Early in the morning Arrellanes and I went to their camp. I rode Piojo. He was very fleshy and looked as though it would take months to reduce him to a proper condition. The strangers looked him over attentively. Senor Arrellanes remarked to me aside that the stranger's horse was too lean and surely no good. "He is too clumsy to run," he said. We told the Yankees we would give them three weeks if they would make the race for fifteen hundred dollars a side, half down and the rest the day before the race. They at last consented, and we made the match. We went home jubilant. I was telling Piojo all the way home what a walk-over he would have and how I would have an opportunity so soon to get back full pay for what I had lost. Our horse was very fat, but he worked well in his training. I was with the horse all the time. I slept with him for I feared lest these strangers should attempt to poison him.

The day before the race was to take place, the strangers came to us and offered us five hundred dollars to postpone the race for another month. We of course refused. In the afternoon the money was all put up and the conditions accepted by both sides. The next afternoon we went to the grounds. One thousand yards had been measured where the principle residences are now built. Every body was there, on horse back or on foot, for at that time there was only three carriages in the county, and remember that Ventura county was then included in Santa Barbara county. We felt confident that we had the race won, barring accidents. I avowed to myself, I shall now have a pound of flesh from off your bosom, nearest your heart. The course was measured; each one selected a inecatori (judge), and they stood at the end of the course where was stretched a long hair rope. The horse that got his front feet on the rope first was awarded the race. The starter went to give them the word go, which was invariably Santiago. The stranger who rode the lame, black gelding took off his pantaloons, and with drawsers that looked as though they had not been washed for months, he mounted his racer. The horses made several attempts to get off, and when they did start the lame one had the best of it, but our horse caught up with him and they came down at a terrific rate of speed, and both horses came in at once. Everybody yelled "draw," "draw," "dead heat!" The black horse pulled up very lame. The strangers wanted one more week. We had a long consultation. We felt so confident, that without any hesitancy we profered to run the race out again in two weeks if they would double the bet, which they consented to do after a powerful demur was argued. We argued that our horse was still carrying too much flesh, and that in two weeks he could win the race easily, as he had started two lengths behind and still overtook his opponent, while their horse was too lame to be trained.

The two weeks soon passed and the day for the second great event came. Everybody within sixty miles of our city came to witness the race, and nine-tenths of them came to put up their fifty dollar gold pieces on our horse, and those who had no money bet their horses and saddles. I had borrowed all the money I could get on my credit. The Senoritas were out to witness the great race dressed in their rich silk dresses and their shoulders crowned with antique reboses; rare lace mantillas covering their heads. The wealthy Dela Guerra's were mounted on handsome steeds, saddled since morning, a custom then in fashion, and many Senoritas were on horseback. The excitement at the racecourse increased as the hour of starting neared. The horses are called, and they are led up all covered, and when they are stripped, the eyes of all fall upon the black gelding, with the blistered shoulder, that is nervous and prancing around, showing no signs of lameness. The same man who had ridden him in the first race, took off the same pantaloons, and had on the same pair of drawers. I don't believe that they were washable. At any rate he rode with them on. He had no saddle nor a rope around the horse's waist as they then used to ride in a race. The word is given and all held their breath. O, my! how that horse ran! Why he ran right away from our horse and was not stopped till he got into camp. Talk about your Cyclones sweeping every thing before them and of your Johnstown floods swallowing up all the country; why, these four strangers with their large overburdened wagons and large clumsy horses swept everything before them. We all went broke. Since that day I have steered clear of emigrant wagons and strangers who are loth to make a race with a horse that can fain lameness. Since that day I became a trainer of game cocks. Why, once I took to Los Angeles fifteen game cocks and ten straight matches, and I made the famous sport, and the wealthiest Spaniard of Southern California say that he had enough. If you want to hear of the famous race between the Dela Guerras, of Santa Barbara and the Machados and Sepulvedos of Los Angeles, ask O. M. Covarrubias, who was then the greatest jockey of California. The white horse of the Dela Guerras was tampered with the day of the race, and the Santa Barbara sports were the victims of treachery.

Even in those days trainers and jockeys sold themselves. You see that bay horse hitched in that Chinaman's delivery wagon? He beat the famous Belfast in a six hundred yard race. Belfast was owned by M. A. Covarrubias and his brother O M. The Italians bet every cent they could get. They mortgaged their houses to bet on the race. All this was known before the race, and it was rumored that Belfast's jockey was secured. But Nick had such confidence in the rider—he was Nick's cousin—that he heeded not, and the day of the race he was confident of success. Well, you have heard of the shameful result. Belfast was beaten disgracefully. In 1859 there was a race betwe n a horse called Orquilla, owned by Nicho'as A. Den and a horse called Alasanito for one thousand apples. The Dos Pueblos orchard had begun to bear fruit, still apples were sold at the rate of ten cents apiece. Mr Den lost the race, but as he had the only orchard bearing apples he paid the wager with little loss. Quarter horses of forty years ago could run a quarter in twenty-two seconds and a thousand yards in fifty one seconds. You are incredulous, but I tell you that the horses of those days were faster than the horses of to-day. You know well that we would saddle a horse at sunrise and ride one hundred miles that day, and when we got there we dismounted, "cinched" the horse well, and led him around for fifteen or twenty minutes, then unsaddled and turned him out in the hills, and the next day the horse was ready to return. I tell you that horses thirty years ago could stand more than those of to-day.

The track here is livelier every day. Gus Walters received two new horses, one fine shaped trotter from Los Alamos called Herperion, owned by Underhill of New York City, and a beautiful bay gelding called Diamond, owned by Hiram Pierce of this city. Diamond is a well-bred, fine-gaited gelding that I saw trot a quarter in forty-five seconds, drawing a heavy Concord buggy with two in.

The grand Prix de Paris was, of course, the big event at Paris last Sunday. The attendance was possibly bigger than any ever seen on that ground at any previous race meeting; and the result without doubt, the biggest surprise ever experienced in connection with this event. The winner turned up in Vasistas, who was scarcely mentioned in the betting and who started friendless at 100 to 1.

THE KENNEL.

Dog owners are requested to send for publication the earliest possible notices of whelps, sales, names claimed, presentations and deaths in their kennels, in all instances writing plainly names of sire and dam and of grandparents, colors, dates and breed.

Mr. J. B. Martin, at 1157 Folsom St., San Francisco, offers for sale, through the advertising columns, some splendidly bred, evenly marked fox terriers, at a most moderate price. The stock is well known to him and he assures us they will make game dog and good ratters.

Mr. Frank L. Wilson, who superintends the foxhound kennel, owned by Mr. D. M. Murphy, near Gilroy, writes this week of the whelping of a litter crossed between one of the fine pure foxhounds of the kennel, and the blood hound bitch recently brought from England. The cross will be noted with interest and we shall be very pleased to learn from Mr. Wilson about the type of the puppies and their quality.

Whelps.

Mr. D. M. Murphy's (Coyote Kennels, Gilroy) imp. blood-hound bitch Venus, whelped Aug. 2, 1889, eight, five bitches, to owners English foxhound Roderick (by Landlord —).

Elcho Kennel's (A. B. Truman, San Francisco,) Irish red setter champion Lady Elcho T. (Elcho—Noreen), whelped July 31, 1889, nine, three dogs, to owner's champion Mike T. (Nemo—Nida).

Mr. G. W. Bassford's (Suisun) pointer Blossom (Glen R—Josie Bow) whelped, August 8, 1889, fifteen, eight dogs, by Scout Croxteth (Croxteth—Frank) five white and liver, ten white and lemon.

Mr. George Bassford's beautiful Blossom is doing her share in replenishing the earth with pointers. If memory serves well, her litter of fifteen, noted elsewhere, is the second of that size which she has produced.

Grim's Gossip.

The trotting mare Polly, that is creating such a sensation in Europe, was bred by Jay Ladne, of Luverne, Minn.

The Dwyers lost a big pot of money on the champion. They back Firenzi very heavily thinking it was sure money.

The Dwyer Bros., are always on the lookout for good things. They have offered $7,500 for the young horse Reclara.

Mayor L. U. Shippee of Stockton, has lost through the carelessness of a hunter, a valuable colt which was worth $1,000.

And now comes the news that the Bard is almost himself again and there is a strong probability that he well meet Firenzi before the Monmouth races close.

Well, Andy McDowell has had to take Direct out of the 2:20 class, and he is none too well pleased. Victor may make some more of them leave the same class.

It now looks as if Elmendorf stood a good chance of heading the list of winning sires this year with Prince Charlie, a position it has frequently attained with Virgil and Glenelg.

Charley Havens has a good pacer in Racquet, and Pete Brandow was the happiest man in Napa when he came back to weigh and found the figures 2:20½ looking him in the face.

The talent must have lost a nice sum on the 2:25 pacing race at Napa. Creole was a long shot, yet won easily. Belle Button will yet make her mark before the season closes.

Owing to the mysterious and unaccountable manner in which postal matters are run on this coast, our reports from Napa about the Thursday racing did not reach this office in time for the present issue.

Mr. Corbitt sends his compliments to Mr. Williams, of Independence, Iowa, and says that Axtell will have to lower 2:14¾, for Lillian Wilkes is just on edge, and is after the record.

The Directors of the Napa Fair are in high feather. On Thursday they had money enough on hand to pay all expenses, with the balance of the week to make a trifle and pay off a part of their indebtedness.

Directa will win a race, and that before long. I may be wrong, but there was surely a chance to win the District three-year-old race on Thursday last with the filly.

About three hundred persons left San Francisco for Napa on Thursday morning to witness the contest between Sunol and Lillian Wilkes. The disappointment was great when the discovery was made that the Palo Alto entry would not start.

Johnny Goldsmith, you are a trump. Any man who can take a three-year-old mare, which never started in a race before, and walk over for a purse in 2:18, is a master at his profession. Mr. Goldsmith I tip my hat to you.

Records without number have been made this week. Hazel Kirk drops to 2:24, Express reaches 2:23, Atto Rex 2:25, Palo Alto 2:18, Direct 2:29½, Flora Bell 2:25, Fleet 2:24, Lookout 2:25, Racquet 2:20½, Creole 2:20, J. R. 2:24½, Del Mar 2:30, Lillian Wilkes 2:18.

Col. Simmons says that the New York Jockey Club will make an effort to have Salvator, Proctor Knott and Spokane meet in a special sweepstakes on their course. They should be ridden by maiden jockeys at catch weights.

Palto Alto is full up of "running foolishness," but still he has managed to lower his record to 2:18. There are scores of persons who would be willing to lay aside their prejudices in breeding if they could get a 2:18 trotter.

All the daily papers have had reporters at the Napa races, but the only correct account will be found in our columns this week. Reporting a race is a peculiar branch of newspaper work, and it is not to exceed one in a thousand that can give proper details of an equine contest.

A match has been made between Kelly and Samuels on behalf of their horse, Ed McGinnis, and G. W. Trahern, with Rettie B. for $500 a side, the distance to be a mile. The race will be run at Sacramento during fair week. McGinnis carries 120 and Rettie B. 110 pounds.

Princess Wilkes, one of the California fillies that was sold at auction in New York city last winter, died last week at the Parkville farm from inflammation of the bowels. She was by Guy Wilkes, 2:15½, dam Woodford Queen by Almont, and represented strains of blood that have proven themselves winners.

It is understood that Bob Campbell made jockey Barnes a present of $3,000, when the latter won the Junior Champion Stakes with Protection. Bob is very popular among his associates and this last act of his will go far to prove that his heart is as big as a wheelbarrow.

George Doherty has turned up at the opening of the circuit with Victor, and demonstrated that the old son of Echo has still a lot of go in him. He upset many a calculation last year, and may prove a thorn in the side of the talent before he leaves the circuit this year, I do not believe that even "Hay Seed" knows how fast his horse really is.

Don Jose is doing very good work at Monmouth, and evidently receiving a preparation for a race next week. The Californian looks well, and did his last mile and a quarter inside 2:16. El Rio Rey, which is the pride of Winters stable, gallops three-quarther in 1:19 as if the work was nothing but the commonest exercise. Of the two-year-old horses in the stable Barrett is the most advanced.

The Monmouth Park management has openeh a new stake to be called the Comparative Stakes to be run in 1892 by the three-years-olds and four-year-olds, mile and a quarter $2,500 added. It will be worth about $15,000 and is designed to be of the same nature as the great Eclipse Stake at Sandown Park, London.

Our special commissioner at Ione, reported last week, that the Judges had made a mistake in placing Hubert Earle second, instead of King Hooker, on the first day of the meeting. Donathan was given second money, but on the Directors discovering the mistake, they also gave Mr. Siebenthaler. $50 following in the footsteps of the Westside Park Association.

We have heard of jockeys who have their valets, their broughams, their hunters and their racers, but so far yachting has been out of their line. The two Barretts, however, if report be true, intend to launch a yacht, which is at present in Thompson's slips at Boston. Who wouldn't be a jockey?

For the information of those who often wonder what becomes of our well-known racehorses, it may not be out of place here to refer to the case of Cockney Boy, who ran in the Derby of 1870. On Tuesday, Mr. Henry King was fined 40s. and 12s. 6d. costs, at the Hammersmith Police Court, for cruelty to a horse in working him in an unfit condition. The unfortunate animal was none other than the well-known racer above referred to.

As was expected from his recent form, Donovan won the Prince of Wales' Stakes at Ascot, despite the full penalty, in a very easy fashion, and thereby made an extremely useful addition to the total value of his winnings, which now stands at £39,962 15s. He is the first English bred colt who has achieved this with a full penalty. Semolina, who won the thirty-second Bi-Annual Stakes on the same day, has now credited her owner with £4,605 8s. F. Barrett rode both these winners on Tuesday.

Marcus Daly, or rather, his secretary, has made a mistake in entering Lord Byron in the 2:30 class, for the horse made a record of 2:29 at Butte City, Montana, on August 10th, last year. However, that there may be no unnecessary delay or inconvenience when the horse comes to the post, we have sent to the secretary of the Racing Association to find out if the record was a correct one.

The committee appointed to report on suitable grounds for an Agricultural Park near Colton, met last Wednesday at the Board of Trade Rooms and reported favorably on the Ralph Track which lies between San Bernardino and Colton. The track consists of 91 acres beautifully situated, plenty of good water, and a soil that will take but very little work and money to make a track second to none in the State. This is a move in the right direction. The Capital Stock will be $50,000.

I had a very pleasant call this week from Richard Gird of the Chino Ranch, who reports his stock doing well. It is almost too soon to hear results from the great southern breeding establishment, but next season will find it represented in all the rich stakes and prepared to hold its own with the oldest places. In the course of a few weeks this great ranch will be visited by a BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN Commissioner, who will give our readers a fine sketch of this mammouth breeding farm.

A capital tale, illustrating the cheek of some of our fashionable jockeys, is told by "Rapier" in last week's Sporting and Dramatic News. The day before the French steeplechase a telegram was received by the steward of one of the Dover-Calais boats requesting that a cabin should be reserved for "Lord Robert Scott." When the Dover train arrived the jockey in question strutted on board, and asked if a cabin had been reserved for "Lord Robert Scott." On being answered in the affirmative, the jockey replied, "Then show me to it," and the steward, bowing and scraping with true British toadyism, conducted his soidisant lordship to his cabin.

No man could get more speed from a horse than Murphy, says the Tnrf, Field and Farm. Probably his greatest fault as a driver was his lack of Fabian tactics. His policy was always to win in straight heats; his disposition would not allow him to throw even a heat. Such was his high sense of honor that he was never, of late years, approached with a proposition to fix a race. On the contrary, it was ever a settled fact that Murphy's entry would win if it could, and frequently, when he was behind a good horse that the entire field was not certain of beating, the combination would be made for Murphy to win, and this without consulting Murphy.

Axtell, 2:14¾, and Allerton, 2:19, the phenomenal Northern-bred three-year-olds, are now at Washington Park track, in preparation for their engagements at the Northwestern Breeder's meeting at that track on August 19 to 24. C. W. Williams, of Independence, Iowa, the owner, breeder, trainer and driver of these two wonderful youngsters, favored the Horseman with a call on Tuesday. In answer to a question as the numerous large offers he is reported to have received for Axtell he said: "Well, those I have seen in the papers have been in the main correct, but I have received no offer from the principals, all propositions to me having come through agents; and as I have no thought or idea of selling I never looked into the matter. I wouldn't take $100,000 for him to-day. Why should I sell? He will earn me $50 000 next year in service fees at $1,000, I am already in receipt of many applications. One breeder in Kentucky desires to secure service for ten. I shall not take him to Boston to start in the National Stallion Stake, as I do not care to make so long a journey with him, in view of the engagements he has in the West. Yes, Allerton is the best three-year-old I ever drove in a race, and I wouldn't take $50,000 for him."

During the past four months or more, several Eastern papers have been in the habit of copying articles from the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN, without giving credit, and it has become very annoying to see the same article in reputable journals with credit given to the pilferers. I set a little trap a short time ago, through the assistance of an old friend of mine, lately returned from India, Mr. R. Kiplin, he writing me an account of an imaginary race, and which was called the Broken-link Handicap. In the story, Mr. Kiplin told about Brunt the jockey, and said of him: "He began his career by riding jump races in Melbourne, where a few Stewarts want lynching, and was one of the jockeys who came through the awful butchery—perhaps you will recollect it—of the Maribyrnong Plate. The walls were colonial ramparts—logs of jarrah spiked into masonery—with wings as strong as church buttresses. Once in his stride, a horse had to jump or fall. He couldn't run out. In the Maribyrnong Plate, twelve horses were jammed at the second wall. "Red Hat," leading, fell this side, and threw out "The Gled," and the ruck came up behind, and the space between wing and wing was one struggling, screaming, kicking shambles. Four jockeys were taken out dead; three were very badly hurt and Brunt was among the three". Well, the Canadian Sportsman copied the article in its entirety without giving credit, so I will now state for the information of Doddering Dodds that the Maribyrnong Plate is a two year old flat race, and there are no "colonial ramparts" for the youngsters to jump over at the V. R. C. spring meeting. I wonder if the "colonial pirate" will ever learn to be honest.

Mr. E. F. Smith, of the State Fair Association, sends the following list of those who have paid up in the various trotting stakes. In the four-year-old Trotting Stakes final payment has been made on the following:—

A Remarkable Mare.

Col. Edwards in a recent article says: Week before last Miss Russell, the dam of Maud S., foaled a bay filly by Electioneer, at Woodburn farm. It is the seventeenth foal dropped by Miss Russell. Miss Russell has been bred to King Wilkes. At the great St. Louis fair three years ago one of the most interesting of the exhibits was the dam of Maud S. At that time Miss Russell was on her way to the Pacific Coast to be bred to the famous Electioneer. She was then twenty-one years old, but remarkably well preserved, showing none of the marks of age. It was said of this mare at the time she was shipped that her owner, Mr. Alexander, took great risk in sending the mare such a great distance at her time of life. The risk of life was not only great, but the risk of life and successful production was much greater. If she lived to produce a foal by Electioneer she would be twenty-three years old when the foal dropped. On the question of old mares producing, statistics were produced in order to show that the chances of Miss Russel being fruitful at her age were exceedingly slim. With the statistics as a basis and English experience as illustrating, the future was calculated upon in this wise: They were eighty-three chances out of 1,000 that Miss Russell would produce a foal in 1888, and forty-nine chances out of one thousand that she would produce another in 1889. The year following—1890—the chances were against her as one thousand to 22. The argument then concluded with an opinion that American experiences would beat the English in longevity and fruitfulness of brood mares, but in the case of Miss Russell, with the change of climate, herbage, water, etc., included, she had no advantage over English mares. With the odds of one thousand to eighty-three against her, the prospects of an Electioneer colt in 1888 were not very encouraging. The colt has arrived, however, and with the chances reduced to twenty-two out of a thousand in 1890, there will be another, barring accidents to the herself. If she lived to produce to King Wilkes she will be twenty-five year old when the foal is dropped. Statistics show that only twenty-two mares out of one thousand are productive at the age of twenty five. It is affirmed that the English mare Virgo produced to Sumpter at the age of thirty-four.

Febris Pyogenica—Strangles.

From time immemorial this disease has been known by the term "strangles," probably on account of the difficulty of respiration, and other symptoms resembling those of choking and strangulation. Although animals are liable to be afflicted at all times of life, it is more truly a disease affecting young horses, and is more prevalent in the summer and autumn than at other periods of the year. Strangles has been divided into two varieties, the benign or regular, in which there are purulent accumulations in the connective tissue of the submaxillary space, and the malignant or bastard, consisting in the formation of multiple or successive abscesses in various parts of the body. The benign form seldom extends beyond a period of fourteen days, and generally terminates favorably; but the malignant form may be of one or two months' duration, and the animal may die of various complications.

When animals are very young, or are subjected to malhygienic conditions and other debilitating influences, the disease generally assumes a virulent form, and often proves fatal. The premonitory symptoms of the benign form are those of mild catarrh, accompanied by simple continued fever. The animal is dull, and has a cough; there is sorness of the throat, with difficulty of swallowing and respiration, and disinclination for food. There may be a slight discharge from the nose, and frothy saliva from the mouth. In a short time a swelling may be observed in the submaxillary space, which may occupy the whole of the space between the branches of the lower jaw or it may exist at one side only, and it is either circumscribed or diffused.

The swelling gradually enlarges, becomes more painful to the touch, and ultimately pus may be detected by fluctuation, which, on evacuation, is followed by subsidence of the swelling and amelioration of the symptoms. In the malignant form the fever is more severe, but the most frequent form of irregularity and complication is where the local inflammatory action and pus formation occur in connection with the gland-structures, most frequently of the parotid and lymph glands at the inferior part of the neck, and less frequently of the inguinal and messenteric glands. When the abscess occurs in connection with the glands of the abdomen and chest, the symptoms will vary in accordance with the structures involved.

For the treatment of the disease, the animal must be placed under sanitary conditions, and in mild cases such salines as sulphate of soda or magnesia, and nitrate or chlorate of potash allowed in the drinking water. When the swelling in the submaxillary region become evident, poultices or warm-water fomentations are useful in hastening the formation of pus, and when the abcess is fully matured it will, either by softening and rupture of the cutaneous tissues, discharging itself, or if thought preferable, it may be opened, and the parts kept as clean as possible with an antiseptic dressing. If there is any danger of asphyxia the operation of tracheotomy may have to be performed.—London Farmer.

ROWING.

"London, Eng., July 15, 1889.

The following articles have been signed: Articles of agreement entered into this day between Henry Ernest Searle, of Clarence River, New South Wales, and William O'Connor of Toronto, Canada, to row a straightaway scullers' race from Putney Bridge to the ship at Mortlake, each man to row under the center span of Hammersmith Bridge, on Monday, Sept. 9, 1889, in best and best boats for the sum of £500 a side and the championship of the world. The two men to be in their boats ready to start at 1:15 P M, (viz., one hour and fifteen minutes before high water) from two skiffs moored at Putney Bridge, 25 yards apart. The men to toss for choice of stations. The race to be rowed according to such of the new Thames National Rules as are applicable, cutters being allowed to accompany the race, but they must be kept behind the sternmost man from start to finish. The start by mutual consent, but if not off within fifteen minutes of the time fixed, the referee to start the men by signal or otherwise. The final deposit of £100 a side has already been made good with the editor of the Sportsman, London, and the second deposit of £200 a side is hereby made good this Monday evening in the hands of the Sportsman's representative, Mr. W. E. Fuller, on behalf of the editor of that newspaper; and the final deposit of £200 aside to be made good on Thursday, Sept. 5, 1889, between 8 and 9 P. M., at the Star and Garter, Putney. The editor of the Sportsman, London, is hereby appointed final stockholder, the referee to be chosen at the time of the final deposit, but in the event of the parties not agreeing, the stakeholder, Mr. Jas. Hastie, and Mr. W. J. Innes jointly to appoint one; also a distance judge. The referee shall have entire jurisdiction over the race from start to finish, and his decision shall be final and subject to no appeal at law or otherwise. Either party failing comply with any of these conditions, shall forfeit all money down in the hands of the stakeholder. In the event of a dense fog or excessively rough water either rendering rowing dangerous, the referee is hereby empowered to postpone the race from day to day. Signed, H. E. Searle and W. O'Connor. Witness, Daniel Carter and Fred. W. Mossup.

THE GUN.

Fourth Match for the Southern California Championship.

Editor Breeder and Sportsman:—I enclose our fourth shoot for the Selby Medal held at San Bernardino, Aug. 4th. The day was very warm, 110 degrees in the shade, hence the poor scores, in our double bird shooting, bird after bird being picked up with four and five shot holes through them. Knight, of San Bernardino, won the medal. The Breeder and Sportsman of July 27th, came to hand, giving a good report of the last shoot. I have been taking the Breeder and Sportsman for the last year through our news stand and like the paper very much, and am glad to see that it is improving every day. I understand you have charge of the State Meeting at San Jose in October. If so, about what date will the meeting take place, and I would like to ask what ground trap you intend using in the live bird contests. Our friend, Mr. Chick, of San Diego, is the inventor of a very fine ground trap and is anxious to introduce them. I have shot from a great many ground traps and consider this the best I have ever used. Maj. Kellogg has shot from them. Ask him what he thinks of them, and if you can so arrange to use them, I am quite sure they will give entire satisfaction. I am going to try and get up to the State shoot. Send programmes as soon as they are out.

The scores at our recent match were:

At 50 single Blue Rock Targets and 25 pairs. For a medal presented by the Selby Smelting and Lead Company.

Two Standard bred Colts,

BRED BY

CALVIN H. FREW.

First.

AGNES FREW, a filly foaled April 7, 1888, at San Diego. She is of a dark chestnut color, body and legs; no white, except stripe on face. She was 16 months old Aug. 7th, and her last monthly record of weight and height showed her to be 55 inches high, and to weigh 787 pounds, with a girth of 6¾ inches, and 18½ inches around the forearm. How is that for a trotter only 16 months old? In conformation and general proportion she is admirably built, with wonderfully good hind quarters, wide hips, good cannon bones, exceptionally good hoofs, and fine flat knees. She is sound all over, a rare beauty, and the best judges predict that she will show great speed and be the mother of many fast trotters She is halter and bridle broke, and stands without tieing while being groomed.

Her pedigree is extra. She was sired by Woodlake at Paxton, Ills. He by Woodford's Mambrino. Sire's first dam was Hager; she by Alexander's Abdallah. Hager was the mother of the great Countersign. Hager's dam was by Downing's Bay Messenger. Hager's second dam was by Sir Archy. Alexander' Abdallah sired the peerless Goldsmith Maid and five others that made in better than 2:30. Also sired twelve stallions that sired eighty-six trotters in better than 2:30; also sired nineteen dams that produced twenty trotters in better than 2:30.

Gay, the dam of Agnes Frew, was sired by John Bright. He by that matchless stallion Volunteer. He is the sire of St. Julien, who is Gay's half uncle. Gay resembles him so much that strangers who were acquainted with him at first sight of Gay took her for St. Julien. Volunteer, among horsemen, has a national reputation, so needless to follow his pedigree.

Gay is a dark bright bay color; black mane, tail and legs. A powerfully built animal of great force and agility. She is fast, but was never tracked or trained. Her dam was Fashion; she by a Kentucky thoroughbred stallion. In fifty or more races Fashion took first prize or first money. She was a wonder. I owned her when I bred Gay. Fashion was bred by A. J. Reed of Irish Grove, Ill. Her dam was a high bred Hambletonian.

These statements are not guess s, but susceptible of proof, and can be relied on as a verity. I will part with her for $1,000. It is a great bargain, a rare opportunity.

Second.

I will sell said GAY'S STALLION COLT, foaled March 16, 1889, in San Diego, Cal. It is a seal brown color, with black mane and tail. On each of three feet some white, and a small spot in forehead. It has an extra good body, finely muscled up all around, closely coupled, and got a short back, with fine hips. When foaled it measured 36½ inches high, at 1 month 39½ inches high, and weiged 108 lbs. At 4 months old, 47 inches high, and weighed 340 pounds. Last month both colts have grown rapidly, and they are beauties. It was sired by Alert, he by Atherton. Alert's dam was the famous Penoda.

Price of this colt, named Atherton Jr., is $200 when weaned. Any correspondence addressed to

For particulars, address,

BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN,

313 Bush Street, S. F.

In Full Blast.

The circuit can be said to have started in real earnest, and the faces usually seen around the horsemen's headquarters are missing for the time being. The boys are all out on the road for glory and money, but more especially the latter, with a slight inclination for a goodly slice of the former. With what unction stories will be told during the coming winter of how the 2:20 stallion race was won, or how the 3:00 class was won by a dark horse that none of them could beat, and if there is another "Hayseed" comes to the fore how proud the man will be who has a Sensation in reserve to down him! The reports from Napa are very encouraging, and there is a prospect of large attendance all through the circuit. The programmes are far superior to any heretofore issued, the purses aggregate more, the entries are excellent, and the reports from the various stables as to the condition of the flyers desire nothing further to be wished. The BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN will have full and correct accounts of all the contests, having able representatives to furnish reliable reports. The cattle departments will be attended to in a manner never before attempted; in fact, our readers may rely on all the news that will be of interest to them.

Free for all Stallion Purse.

But a few weeks ago we mentioned that in all probability there would a free for all stallion purse offered by one of the Associations, and that there would be in all likelihood six entries including Sable Wilkes. At the time we did not know that Mr. Corbitt had thrown his great young stallion out of training, but have since mentioned the fact in the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN, so that any association who might offer a large purse would not be misled, thinking they could get Sable Wilkes as a great drawing card. However, the secretary of the Stockton Association sends us word that the Directors have authorized him to advertise for entries for a free for all stallion race (Stamboul barred.) the purse to be $1,000, divided into four moneys. Here is an opportunity for the great crack-a-jacks to meet and settle the question of supremacy. On every race track in the State where horses are trained, arguments are constantly arising as to the relative merits of respective sires. In Stockton Steve Whipple has a large following, while at Petaluma Dawn is considered by many invincible. At the Bay District lately, Bay Rose has had many admirers, and Direct is thought well off. Palo Alto and Ansel are also known to be speedy. Ringwood may possibly prove his ability to travel with such company, and fast time is reported for Atto Rex, the San Deigo stallion. Before the time of entry comes around there should be a goodly number ready to enter the lists, and battle for the purse, so generously offered by the Stockton folks.

Fairlawn Stock.

We are pained to announce that the splendid breeding establishment, Fairlawn farm, near Lexington, Ky., will be broken up, notwithstanding the notice already given, that young Mr. Withers would still carry on the business. The following letter speaks for itself.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN;—It is with deepest regret I announce the breaki g up of Fairlawn Stock Farm, an establishment that fifteen years of study and constant labor on the part of my father, secured a reputation for honesty and fair dealing, second to none that ever existed. Not a single colt did the proprietor ever train and not a single cent did he ever spend to induce others to train the produce of his stallions. No other owner of a prominent stallion ever compelled him to carry such a handicap. Nevertheless the equals of Almont, Happy Medium and Aberdeen, can be counted on the fingers of one hand. There is to-day as much undeveloped speed at Fairlawn as was ever on one farm, and I firmly believe that of the 250 head to be sold, 125 could be put in the 2:30 list. The sale will be about the middle of October, and every animal will be sold, without any reserve whatever.

Game Conservation.

The activity now being shown by the Fish Commission should meet ene.getic response from the sportsmen of the State. In the absence of a well established and strong public sentiment favoring the enforcement of the game and fish laws, the commission is practically powerless. The deputies can, it is true, make arrests, secure evidence and drag offenders before justices, but when arraigned it is almost impossible to secure convictions for the reason that the prosecutions are nesessarily made in outlying districts where a few votes one way or another mean success or failure to the candidates for the elective offices. There seems to be but one remedy—to so attract general attention to the intent of game laws as to enlighten the average citizen—to impress upon his mind the desirability of game and game fish, the danger of extermination which was never so menacing as now, and the efficacy of observance of the provisions of law in maintaining the supply.

The public press has already done much in this behalf, and may be relied upon to continue its efforts, but the duty of disseminating the information mentioned does not by any means rest with the press alone. Sportsmen also should feel most positive interest in furnishing the public with facts which make for sportsmanly interests. The Fish Commission is ready to prosecute any and all offenders brought to notice, when the evidence presented justifies a hope for a conviction, but in the very nature of the case violations of the game laws are more likely to be seen by sportsmen than by others, and they should feel bound to furnish the fullest data to the proper officers whenever infractions come to their knowledge. The bare statement that unseasonable game has been destroyed is of little value. Time, place, witnesses, and all other information must be imparted, even though at cost of personal friendships. When it is known that every poacher will be arrested with reasonable prospect of conviction, poaching will soon cease.

S. R., of Woodland, says Hutton's Bulwer was a full brother to Lola Montez. That is a mistake. My father (the late James Moore of Yolo County) brought Sir Bulwer and Ada Byron (name changed to Lola Montez) across the plains to California in 1852, and Sir Bulwer was only half brother to Lola Montez, both Grey Eagles. Sir Bulwer was sold to J. M. Harbin, of Yolo County, now of Durango. My father bought Sir Bulwer and Lola Montez from Col. Lee Howard, and they were Kentucky horses. Respectfully,

SUSIE B. MOORE WOLFSKILL.

Can you, or any subscriber, inform me of the whereabouts of the stallion Effingham, formerly owned by the late ex-Mayor Bryant, and then kept at his ranch back of Oakland, near the Fish Ranch. He is supposed to be in Santa Clara County. Effingham was by Speculation (by Rysdyk's Hambletonian) out of the thoroughbred California Belmont mare Jib.

Answer.—When we last heard of Effingham he was in the neighborhood of San Jose. Probably some reader can give the desired information.

J. H. STEINER.

Some few months ago an unsuspecting friend bought a fine old mare from a Long Island horseman. Here is the extraordinary pedigree which accompained the new purchase: "Daisy, grey mare sired by Heron (by imp. Lexington); dam by Hoagland's Grey Messenger, she by imp. Bonnie Scotland. I bought this mare from Larry Kane." It is a question whether in the history of the trotting horse there can be found anything more original than this.

Short Stories.

Grave and Gay: Epigrammatic and Otherwise—Now Seasonable.

Whenever you attend a horserace always come away and confidentially tell some friend that so and so "pulled" his horse and that the race was a job! Although the contest may be for a harness only, with no betting on either horse, don't forget to say the race was a fraud. This statement causes your friend to look upon you as a superior being of great perception and profundity.

If you should attend your local fair, and witness a race between an old campaigner—we will call him "Bege," record 2:17½—and two other young and speedy horses, who are out for their first season; should the old campaigner fail to win, and the fastest heat made by the others be not better than 2:23½, know that you are the innocent and unwilling victim of a bold frand. It may be that the old campaigner made his record of 2:17½ seven or eight years ago; nevetheless he should trot better than 2:20, of course, even now. There is of course a question whether or not a horse should duplicate his record every time he trots a race, but the preponderence of evidence would seem to show that he should! You have the satisfaction at least of wearing an incredulous smile during the farcical contest, and after "Bege" gets beaten, tell your friend that "that bay horse has a record of 2:17½"—and then smile!

If "Bege" could only talk! He might say, "Seven years ago I was a great young horse. I was the sensation of the year. Admirers blocked round my stall door, and gazed respectfully at me. Grooms watched me night and day, and my every want was supplied. I remember the victorious conquests I made in my class that year. I suffered defeat but once, and then only after a hard and weary race. I strived to do all I could, and was pleased when I heard my driver say 'Bege is an honest horse, he'll do all he knows how.' I remember having him say 'Bege's record will place him in hot company next season: when next season came I found out what he meant. My races were long and severe, and for the first time I felt the sting of the lash. Sometimes I won, and sometimes I lost, but someway during my second season I did not feel like I did the day I made my mile in 2:17½. How the men shouted and the ladies waved their handkerchiefs from the balcony! My third year was not very fortunate. I heard my driver say, 'Bege has got a leg.' I always knew I had more than one leg. I knew that for a long time one leg hurt me, some days more than others. Now in this my seventh year of following the circuit I seldom am first, sometimes second, and often third. I try hard, very hard, but my rivals seem to never tire, and they are too fast for me. From a career on the principal tracks, before many thousands of people, I have gradually come down to trotting races in country places and reviled and cursed by ignorant men, who do not understand my infirmities, for not finishing ahead of younger and fresher horses. I have even been subjected to the indignity of having my sure driver taken away from me and a stronger placed in my sulky, because I could not go fast enough. Nobody understands me but Tom. We have talks sometimes, Tom and I. The other day he said, "this is your last season, old man, trying to win a piece of the money, you shall rest after this year, and I was very glad".

There is a great deal of foolish talk about a horse "quitting;" I mean a very fast horse. Take for instance a horse capable of doing a half mile in 1:05 or 1:06, and a quarter in 31 seconds. I saw a horse do that this last year. But he could not go a mile much better than 2:20. Consequently most everybody said "he's a rank quitter!" True, he did stop some when within 40 yards of the wire. But did you ever consider that where a horse has such a flight of speed that enables him to go a half mile at the trot or pace in 1:05, that the strain on that horse is bound to be great? and while many horses can to go the half mile pole in 1:05 or 1:06, they can't finish the mile in 2:10 or 2:11. It would be wonderful if they could. During the season of 1888 I saw three three-year-old pacers, all capable of beating 2:15. Yet if some time during the season's races, one of these colts failed to finish a mile within three or four seconds of their best record, many men shouted "quitter," "soft-hearted," "not quite game enough," and other such expressions. They seem to forget that five years ago such a performance by colts of that ago would have been received with unbounded astonishment and wonder, and the tale would have been heralded far and wide as a sort of modern edition of Baron Munchausen! In this day and age it seems to attract but slight attention. I saw this same season a two-year old trotter go a mile in 2:18! A few hollow yells were given by men who seemed to think it rather of an onerous duty, and that was all! I presume that if next season a yearling should trot in 2:20 it would evoke little surprise or enthusiasm—while if he trotted seven-eighths of the mile at a 2:20 gait, and "stopped" a trifle in the last furlong there would be men who would stigmatize the little fellow as a quitter. I always feel like telling these men that before they find fault they should try and breed one as good. They would probably quit before the colt did.

If you hear a man say, "that is a fine gaited horse; nice open gait," meaning a long gaited horse, with spreading action behind, one that passes outside his forelegs ten or twelve inches with his hind feet, you may be sure that man don't know what constitutes a perfect gait. The big long gaited horses with dwelling action never trot very fast. It is a hard matter for any of them to beat 2:30. When it comes to 2:20, 2:18 or 2:16 they are entirely worthless. I have studied the Trotting Register and Underhill's descriptive 2:30 or better trotters, and I find no account of any of them going much faster then 2:30, and seldom that fast. On the other hand a short, very rapid gaited horse is equally faulty.

The horse that is gaited straight ahead, i. e., whose hind feet follow his fore feet, and who seems to "roll up" his gait under him is the perfect gaited horse for a race horse. A very fast horse must have a rapid action, otherwise he wouldn't be fast. The gait of Harry Wilkes 2:13½, Jay-Eye-See 2:10, Patron 2:14¼, Arab 2:15, and a few others of their claass, is smooth, rapid, and without waste action.

In reference to the oft mentioned fact "that God placed barefooted horses upon the earth, and man is foolish to tamper with his handiwork." I have this to say: Many horses can go barefooted on the road an almost indefinite time, and others cannot! The exceeding fineness of texture in some horses feet enables them to stand wear and tear on the road without getting tenderfooted. Other horses have naturally a brittle or cheesy hoof and no amount of endeavor would make them go barefooted without flinching for any length of time. It is true that the longer a horse goes barefooted the tougher the hoof becomes and the more vigorous the growth. Yet it is undeniable that there are many horses that could never be brought to such perfection of fact that they could travel indefinitely, day after day without shoeing.

I was once confronted with the expression that "God placed barefooted horses upon earth and man is foolish to tamper with his handiwork." I replied that when God had created the equine race none of them could trot a mile in 2:20 or run a mile in 1:40, and that it had required many years of "tampering" by man to bring this result about.

Blinders is a theme that has convulsed the soul of many a man. Some good men have "gone wrong under the hat" while arguing upon it. On this subject much is written that is erroneous Many persons hold opinions in relation to this question that are positive and unyielding and when driven to the wall by unanswerable arguments are silent, though doubtless of the same opinion still. I have heard men say that all horses should be driven in an open bridle; others that no horse should be driven without blinders. The most tenacious, however, in their preconceived convictions are the theorists who advocate no blinds. These men talk their belief everywhere and at all times, and you can't change them one jot or tittle If they see a good-looking horse go by they will probably remark, "If that was my horse I'd pull those blinds off the first thing."

If a colt is broken without blinders there is no danger when an open bridle is used. But if a horse is broken with blinders and driven that way for several years, and then suddenly hitched up with an open bridle, you are always liable to accident, and it may prove of a very serious character. I know of no surer method of getting hurt than to hitch up a fine feeling horse in an open bridle when he has always been driven with blinders—at least, without considerable preparation beforehand.

"One man's meat is another man's poison" is a homely and uncouth saying. It is, however, quite true, not only in reference to mankind, but to the animal kingdom as well.

One horse can be driven without blinders with perfect safety, though perhaps not used to it; another could not be so driven, and could not be taught to drive that way without danger.

One horse, though perhaps nervous and excitable, will learn after a time to go fairly well in an open bridle, and being naturally kindly disposed, could be driven thus without danger.

Another may go just like him for a month or more and then some day kick the buggy to pieces. This would arise from the second horse becoming suddenly frightened and losing his head. All horses are not as "level-headed" as they might be, with advantage to themselves and owners.

Again, a horse may act good and drive well without blinders, yet be a most uncomfortable horse on the road because he jumps every time you raise your hands or make a move to touch the whip; and if you are driving him to the pole you cannot tap the other horse with the lines without scaring him badly.

Some times an open bridle can be worked on a horse to great advantage. This in my experience has been exemplified in two instances. The first is where a horse driven single is scored just enough to make him a free driver, whereas, with blinders he is a trifle "dogy." The second is when a horse is driven to the pole. Some horses "drive up" better in an open bridle, when hooked double.

No rule, suitable to all cases could by any possibillty be formulated. Every man must be his own judge of the adaptability of either method.

In concluding this subject, I must say that as far as "appearances" go, very few horses can wear an open bridle advantageously. A handsome horse with a very fine head, a slender ear, and a good move, looks well in an open bridle, while a horse with a head a trifle too large, or with a Roman nose and big ears, looks badly without blinders. Were I to break and train 1,000 colts, I would certainly teach every one to go without blinders, and then they could be driven with safety either way.

It would seem that Mr. C. W. Williams, of Iowa, has things about his own way. Axtell not only trots in 2:14¾ at three years, but Allerton, (3 yrs.,) comes out in a field of old horses and after a hard race makes a record of 2:20½, which he lowers to 2:19, a few days afterward. Good judges say Allerton is sure to trot in 2:16, before the snow flies. Lucky Mr. Williams. Bred three mares to different stallions, four years ago, and Axtell and Allerton are two of the colts. Many men have spent a barrel of money in the effort to achieve his success, and have totally failed. His bed of roses is at times pierced with the subble point of a thorn, however. Not long since some gentleman in the Chicago Horseman felt it incumbent upon him to give Mr. Williams a little advice. This advice was offered just after Axtell trotted to a three-year-old record of 2:21¾, and previous to his trotting in 2:15½. The gentleman advised Mr. Williams to not trot Axtell too many hard miles; to not let the gladsome throng see his great colt move too much, and to not be drawn from the even tenor of his way by the applause of spectators. He also suggested that Axtell be placed in the hands of a professional trainer and prepared for a fast mile. After Axtell went a mile in 2:14¾, I think the gentleman was sorry he said anything. When a man can carry a two-year-old 3,000 miles, trot him on half-mile tracks, in the mud and rain, and finish the season with a record of 2:23 for his colt, it is pretty safe to let that man alone, even if he is considered an amateur driver. It is a safe proposition to assert that Mr. Williams third colt, by Onward, will beat 2:30 next year. If he don't Mr. Williams will be in hard luck. I delight, however, in any man's good fortune, and I am sure Mr. Williams deserves his. He must certainly have been one of those people born under a lucky star, as 'tis often said of very fortunate people. I would respectfully dedicate the following chaste selections to Mr. Williams, and suggest that he learn to sing it. The air is from the "jingle song," in "Happy Hottentots."

I am a man from Iowa, from Iowa,
And Williams is my name.
My heart is ever light and gay, light and gay,
For Axtell made my fame.
Dontcherknow he's quite a horse, quite a horse,
For all I've to do is to say when, say when;
And my soul would fill with remorse,
If he didn't beat 2:10.

I also have another horse, another hor e,
Allerton is his name, his name;
Don't forget him—he's the boss, he's the boss;
That's Just what I claim.
He's smooth and easy, very fast, very fast;
To adore him he's only to be seen, to be seen;
Courageous, steady, a mile out he can last,
I'm sure he can beat 2:15.

If the above doggerel meets Mr. William's eye, he will not consider me much of a poet, I am thinking; yet why should I care? It has always been the perogative of genius to go unappreciated, and wherein am I greater than Ignacious Donnely's "Bacon?"

I recall another man from Iowa, who was not lucky. This man had a horse that was a fair performer at Wayback Junction and upon other tracks in the bushes, and the old man became imbued with the idea that the coarse brush was beneath his dignity, and that he was wasting golden opportunities by remaining longer in the timber. Accordingly he packed his grip, and accompanied by a runner and a bull dog, he started for one of the "big meetings" many miles from his home. He entered his horse in a mile dash, and as it was a good betting race, the old man "went into the box" many times. Being satisfied at last, he took up a good position in the sun, with his chin resting upon a post, where he could see the race to advantage. Against his entry were some crack race horses. After a couple of breakaways they got off to an even start. The old man was thinking what he should do with his winnings—for he never doubted that his horse would win—when the starting bell rang. To the quarter his horse was up with the others, but from there on he gradually fell back, or, to speak more correctly, the others left him, until, when they all closed up on entering the stretch, his horse was one hundred yards behind, and when they finished he was one hundred and fifty back.

The old man gazed upon the spectacle as one in a dream, and never moved until the judges rendered their decision, which wound up by declaring his horse distanced. He walked out upon the track in front of the judges' stand and said: "Judges, can a granger from Iowa say something?"

Being accorded the privilege, he continued:

"I come here with a hoss and a bull dog. I started the hoss in this here race, and thought to win my share of the dust. I made a big mistake; I should have started the dog!"

I hear there is a trotter in this State that is confidently expected to beat 2:12 this season. It is not Stamboul, either. I think his owner over-rates him a little; still he is very fast, and if he was able to trot every quarter nearly as fast as he can go one-quarter, 2:12 would be an easy thing for him.

Sale of Kentucky Durhams.

At intervals we have mentioned the superior Durham cattle owned and bred by Messrs. Prewitt & Goff and have learned from cattle experts that our enconiums are well justified. It is therefore with especial pleasure that we call attention to the sale of Durhams, at Sacramento, which will take place on Sept. 18th and 19th next, which is advertised in another column. Cattle owners will do well to write to Messrs. Prewitt & Goff, Capitol Hotel, Sacramento, for particulars.

AQUATICS.

The next great aquatic event will be the O'Connor-Searl match for the world's championship over the Thames course, England, September 8th. It will undoubtedly arouse greater public interest than any similar event that has taken place in years, and in point of speculation will far eclipse any rowing race that has ever taken place. There are thousands of pounds of Australian money to be placed on the Antipodian, and it is judged from present indications that Searl will also be a big favorite with rowing men on the Thames, and that means also with the English almost to a man. In this country, especially Canada and California, O'Connor will be a hot choice, but from the performance of both men, there should be no odds, providing both men row up to the starting line in equally good condition.

Replying to a letter from a friend in this city, an ex-champion, who is now in England, says of Searl:

"He is big enough for anything, with some to spare; a physique, the beau ideal of a sculler; he is a great, good-natured fellow, always smiling, and never an ill word about or short reply for any one. He requires more work than anyone I ever saw, and the speed he drives his boat is simply marvelous; he rows twice each day, altogether about fourteen miles, and does about the same distance in his walks. He has the most deceptive style of rowing of anyone I ever saw, and you must row alongside of him to get the true idea of what a wonderful and original style he has; in catching his water he doesn't slide so far forward as either O'Connor, Hanlan or Laycock, but as he comes up on his slide, he seems to drop his shoulder points forward, bend his body downward slightly, and his great long muscular arms shoot out suddenly straight as sticks way beyond his toes, and with a quick grab he buries his blades in the water and immediately begins to slide, squaring his shoulders and straightening his back at the same time. Just before he finishes his slide he begins to use his arms, and at the finish of his stroke he seems to ease up, and as he takes his oars from the water, which he does so quickly and neatly as to hardly raise a ripple on the water, he is sitting perfectly erect, and as his sculls leave the water he is starting back for another grab. He rows with something of the old vim and dash that I have seen Charley Courtney show years ago in his practice, being very powerful and supple as a cat. He brings his sculls to him with such a graceful ease that would indicate he wasn't putting an ounce of strength on, but, although they come back with more speed than any sculler I ever saw, there is no jar or stopping perceptible to his boat, either in the finish or recovery of his stroke. 'He takes enough work to use up an ordinary man, and yet I have never heard him say he was tired,' remarked his trainer to me this morning.

Of course, as you know, I was, and am still, an O'Connor man in sympathy, but my money will be on the tow-headed boy from Australia September 8th, and if the Canadian shows him the way from Putney to Mort lake, I will swim back to America. I will send you a few lines before the race."

There is nothing new in way of match making among the rowers. Leander Stevenson wants to row James Jackson of Vallejo for $100 a side, but Jackson hangs fire.

Hotel San Pedro,

The famous Sanchez mansion in San Pedro Valley has been remodeled, and additions made, transforming it into a fully appointed modern hotel. Twenty elegant furnished rooms are available. The table is unexceptionable, poultry, cream, fish and game being supplied from adjacent ranches. The personal attention of the proprietor is constantly given, and scrupulous regard for the comfort and pleasure of guests exercised.

Two salmon trout lakes with boats are controlled. Bath houses on the finest sea beach of the Coast are attached to the hotel. The best quail and rabbit shooting, and brook fishing for trout are found all about the place.

Hotel San Pedro is reached by taking train to Colma on the coast division of the Southern Pacific Company, thence by the hotel conveyance, over eight miles of picturesque mountain road, within sight of the Pacific Ocean. SACRAMENTO.

We will sell over one hundred head of FIRST CLASS REGISTERED SHORT-HORNED CATTLE. They are nearly all bred and thoroughly acclimated, having been pastured without any grain near Sacramento since January last. We feel justified in saying that for individual merit of the number, these cattle are rarely equalled, and have been considered by competent judges to be the best lot ever offered for sale on this coast. Will positively be sold without reserve.

OSSIDINE

KALAMAZOO, Mich., Sept. 15, 1888.

GENTLEMEN:—We have used Ossidine for the past two years and consider it invaluable for Sprung Tendons, Curbs, Ringbone and Spavins; there is nothing equals it; and for us it effected a permanent cure where firing failed, although performed by one of the most successful veterinarians on the continent. We have recommended it to others with like success, and believe it has more merit than any blister ever used.

Very respectfully yours, S. A. BROWNE & Co., Prop's.

This scientific preparation is an absolute cure for all bony or callous lumps on horses, and is a more powerful absorbent than "firing," without creating the slightest blemish. After a few applications the excrescence is so palpably reduced that even the skeptical frankly acknowledge that it is by far the most valuable outward remedy for horses ever invented.

The ONLY preparation in the world that will remove a Bone Spavin after it has become ossified.

Price $3.00 per Large Bottle,

Owner of Eole, St Saviour, Eolist, etc., says: I have long used it in my stables, and find it to be all that is claimed for it in removing callous and unnatural bony growths, without leaving the slightest blemish. From my experience, I most strongly recommend the use of Ossidine, and feel that it is a necessary adjunct to every stable. Yours respectfully,

Never before were 100 live pigeons killed straightly in a similar match under same conditions, until the L. C. SMITH GUN was made and did it. THURSDAY.

At half past ten a large and brilliant gathering congregated on the grand stand and lined both sides of the track to see the Equestrian Tournament, limited to the district. Nine ladies turned out. In the preliminary exercise Miss Mollie Bottorff, who was riding an unruly pinto with only a saddle cloth, narrowly escaped serious injuries. The sursingle turned, and with the horse bolting, the fair rider had all she could do to cling on until the horse was pluckily stopped, just passed the stand, by Mr. Reams. The lady was given a remount, a different horse this time, and saddle, and joined the other competitors shortly afterwards. The exhibition of riding was of the usual kind, trotting, cantering, singly, in pairs, etc. The first prize, a saddle and riding habit, was awarded to Miss Evelyn Packard, who, in a blue habit, rode her black cob in very good style. The second prize, $40, was given to Miss Clara Durbin, who was dressed in irreproachably style and managed her graceful brown horse with ease. The third prize, $30, was taken by Miss Mollie Bottorff, who showed up very well after her change of horse, her seat and hands being nearly perfection. She, like the winner of the second prize, was turned out in true Rotten Row style. The fourth prize, $20, was given to Mrs. Deweese, who rode her big chestnut, emblazoned with the legend "Daily Report" on the saddle cloth, in workmanlike style. Mrs. McFarland was the winner of $10. The other four equestrians, Misses Loyce Beagles, Clara Bowman, Maggie Dobinson and Mrs. Charles Coldwell, were awarded extra prizas. Miss Bowman, who was very quietly dressed in a green habit, with a tall black hat, a la mode, on a good-looking bay, was perhaps deserving of more notice than she received, for her horse came nearer being a ladie's hack than most of them, while she handled him with ease and confidence. The judges were Monroe Salisbury, Esq., E. A. Leake and P. J. A. Linigan.

In the afternoon the fair was continued, the programme being a strong one. The feature of the day would have been the Lilian Wilkes and Sunol race for the three-year-old stake; but as Sunol had not been feeding well it was not deemed advisable to trot her so early in the season, as it is hoped she will lower the three-year-old record before the close of the year. She was, however, exhibited on the track, and moved down the stretch a couple of times at three-quarter speed, to give the public, many of whom came specially to see her, a chance to look at one of the many phenomenal Palo Alto trotters. Goldsmith gave the public a grand treat, driving Lilian Wilkes, after a slow heat, a mile in 2:18; the handsome daughter of Guy Wilkes moving with ease and regularity, looked as though she could have gone much faster, and when one considers that the shapely daughter of Guy was never hitched up before last fall there is every indication of her leading even Sunol a merry pace in the fall.

The free-for-all pacing also fell through, owing to an injury received by Almont Patchen on the cars on his way up; he was unable to start. The programme, nevertheless, gave general satisfaction. The first race, the postponed district three-year-old, had six starters. Directa, the black daughter of Director, looked as though she had a mortgage on the race at one time, and could certainly have obtained a record better than thirty but in a five heat race all but she and Washington were distanced, Keepsake being shut out in the final. Washington proved himself a staunch game colt, and although hardly possessed of as much speed as Directa, he can keep his pace up longer. I do not infer that she is not game, for in five heats she was never worse than second, and probably lack of condition told on her.

The 2:27 was one of the biggest betting races of the week, Belle B. and Temple being made equal favorites. After the first heat Belle was made a hot favorite, and though beaten in the second heat, was made a still better favorite in the third. In the fourth, Alpheus was backed fairly as second choice. Johnny Goldsmith was up behind him in the preceding heat when he showed great improvement, being only beaten a head. Temple was favorite, but Alphaeus won readily, Hellman judiciously laying up the heat. The fifth heat decided the race, Temple, a big favorite, winning easily in 2:25, the best time in the race.

In the special, Don Tomas was made favorite and justified the confidence reposed in him by winning, but had it not been for Wilkes' accident, he would have had a hard race. As it was Wilkes was withdrawn, after the third heat in which he cut his quarter very badly on the backstretch, and then finished a hard game race-beaten a head. Dustin's luck is something worse than bad, Maggie E. and Patchen got injured in the ears and then Gus tore his quarter, when right in the race. McDowell got up behind Argent in the fourth heat and woke him up, taking the heat cleverly in 2:25, but was easily beaten in the final. The judges were P. A. Finnigan, John McCord and E. Topham. Timers same as previous days.

District Trotting Race, for Three year-olds.

First Heat.—Auction pools, Directa $25; Oakville Maid $7; Washington $12; field $8. They were sent off at the second attempt, Directa cutting out the pace. At the quarter she was a length in front of Washington, who was three in advance of the Maid, Captor a bad last. Directa kept a length in front of Washington all the way up the back stretch and round the turn, the Maid closing up to within a length and a half of Washington. Directa and Washington had a slashing race down the straight, Washington getting up and making a dead heat with Directa, who left her feet fifteen yards from the wire and ran under with the Maid four lengths back, Keepsake and Del Rey saving their distance, but Captor was shut out. The heat was given to Washington, on account of Directa running. Time, :38, 1:17, 1:56, 2:32¾. Mutuals paid $46.60.

Second Heat—Auction pools, Directa $25; Washington $20; Maid $10; field $7. Del Rey was very slow, delaying the start for a long time. When they were tapped off Washington led, but breaking on the turn, let Directa in. She went up, however, before the quarter, which the Maid passed five lengths in front of her, the rest all breaking two or three lengths back. Directa closed on the Maid, being two lengths behind at the half, and coming fast caught her round the turn, but going up again dropped back until in the home stretch, when she rapidly overhauled the leader, and going on won readily by ten lengths, Keepsake finishing second, ten in front of Washington. Time, :38½, 1:17½, 1:57¾, 2:35¼. Mutuals paid, $10.85.

Third Heat—Auction pools: Directa $30, Washington $9, Field $6.

They were soon sent off, Directa going out in front with Washington on her wheel. He skipped on the turn, but did not lose anything, and hung right at her to the three-furlong pole, when she slowly but surely drew away, being three lengths to the good at the half and five at the head of the stretch. Washington closed up to within three lengths of her at the drawgate, but breaking fifty yards from the finish, was easily beaten by Directa, who slowed up five lengths in front. Keepsake was a bad third, and the other two distanced. Time, 0:38, 1:15½, 1:55, 2:31½. Mutuals paid $7.75.

They were sent away at the second attempt, and Directa trotting steadily, led Washington a length round the turn, with Keepsake jumping and running three lengths behind. The black filly trotted on, gaining another length when the half was reached, two in front of Washington, who gradually closed up, being at her neck all the way round the turn, and with both driven hard down the straight Directa was carried off her feet fifty yards from the wire, losing by a length, Keepsake a long way behind. Time, 0:38, 1:16½, 1:56¼, 2:33. Mutuals paid $16.60.

Fifth Heat—After scoring five or six times, at the owner's request, Vail was substituted behind Keepsake, and the trio were tapped off the next time. Directa broke up on the turn and Washington went to the front, leading three lengths at the quarter, Keepsake four further back, third. McDowell gradually closed up on Washington, being a quarter of a length behind at the half, but breaking on the turn lost two lengths, which she at once made up, being nearly level at the head of the stretch, but breaking twice in the straight the last time, when nearly level, twenty yards from the wire, was beaten a length by Washington, who finished very steadily; Keepsake was shut out. Time, 0:39¼, 1:17½, 1:56½, 2:34¾.

Mutuals paid $6.30.

After two easy miles with Lillian Wilkes in 2:31 and 2:32, Johnny Goldsmith had his runner brought out, and nodding for the word went very smoothly, the first quarter in 34 seconds, the half in 1:08¼, the three-quarters in 1:43½, and the full mile in 2:18. The three-year-old trotted on like an old-timer, never showing the slightest trace of breaking, and going within herself all the way.

2:27 Class—Trotting.

They were soon sent off easily, Temple and Gracie both breaking before the bend; Belle now had a good lead, and trotting rapidly was ten lengths in front of Alphæus at the quarter; Gracie caught the latter, and with him breaking, she went on in pursuit of Belle, who led six lengths at the half; Gracie closed up going round the turn, four lengths behind at the three-quarter pole, and trotting steadily, was still nearer at the draw-gate when she broke badly, Belle winning easily by four lengths, Alphæus two in front of Gracie, and Temple nicely inside the flag. Time, 0:36, 1:16, 1:55, 2:31¾.

Second Heat—Auction pools: Belle $30, Temple $14, Gracie $7, Alphæus $6.

When they were tapped off at the first score, Alphæus broke badly, running all round the turn five lengths behind Belle, who at the quarter was six lengths in front of Alphæus, now trotting steadily, five in front of Temple; they all closed a little up the backstretch, going round the turn with two lengths between each of them in the same order, viz., Belle, Alphæus, Temple and Gracie. Down the stretch the three first named were about level, and being all driven hard, Belle was the first to crack, going up at the drawgate, but catching handily was only beaten two lengths, Temple finishing first, a neck in front of Alphæus; Gracie was seven lengths behind Belle. Time, 0:37, 1:16½, 1:55½, 2:30½.

Third Heat—Auction pools: Belle $30, Temple $13, Gracie $10, Alphæus $6

In this heat Goldsmith drove Alphæus, and at the second score they were let go with Alphæus a little behind; he and Belle both broke before the turn, and Temple passed the quarter a length and a half in front of Gracie, who was six in front of the last pair. Gracie now broke, dropping back last, and Temple was two lengths in front of Belle at the half, with Alphæus two and a half further back; they closed up on Temple, going round the turn with a length between each of the leading trio, Gracie away behind. Belle broke at the head of the stretch, leaving Alphæus to fight it out with Temple, and splendidly driven by Goldsmith; he kept his feet down the stretch, being only beaten a head by Temple, excellently handled by Hellman, Belle B. twelve lengths off, third, and Gracie away back. Time, 0:37, 1:14¼, 1:52, 2:26¾.

Mutuals paid $13 60.

Fourth Heat—They scored up some time for the word, and when they got it Alphaeus left his feet and dropped back, but Temple, breaking badly round the turn, Belle went to the front, being five lengths to the good at the quarter, Alphaeus second, ten in front of the others. Alphaeus gradually closed on Belle, getting to her head at the three-quarter pole, and, carrying her to a break, took the lead, winning easily by five lengths. Belle, hitching and skiving all down the stretch, was second; Temple and Gracie, some distance away, third and fourth. Time, 0:37, 1:15, 1:51¾, 2:27½.

Fifth Heat—Auction pools: Temple $45, Alphaeus $15, Field $4. The quartette got the word the third time, with Belle B. a shade to the good. At the quarter she was a length in front of Temple; Alphasus, who broke on the turn, was then four lengths further back; Temple closed up, catching Belle at the three-eighth pole, and, going away, was four lengths in front at the half, and went round the turn and into the straight with the same distance to her advantage. Alphaeus caught Belle at the top of the back stretch, but, breaking, dropped back again, until in the homestretch, where he passed Belle, but could not get up to Temple, who won heat and race cleverly by two lengths, Belle eight lengths behind, third, just clear of Gracie. Time, 0:36, 1:12¼, 1:49, 2:25. Mutuals $9.25.

Special Trotting Race.

First Heat.—Auction pools, Don Tomas $40; Wilkes, $31; Argent $19. They were sent away the second time of asking, with Wilkes gradually drawing out, and he was one and a half lengths in front at the quarter, Don Tomas second; both were hard at work all the way round the turn, Tomas closing up, and trotting head and head down the stretch, Dustin just landing Wilkes in front by a half length, Argent a bad third. Time, 2:27½.

Secoad Heat.—Wilkes and Don Tomas started out together and trotted like a double team all the way to the three-quarters, when Don Tomas had his head in front and after a punishing race down the stretch won by a neck, Argent third. Time, 2:24¼.

Third Heat—Auction pools: Don Tomas $35, Field $10. Don Thomas and Wilkes at once left Argent, who broke on the turn, dropping back four lengths. The leaders were neck and neck to the half, where Don Tomas drew out a length, but Wilkes closed up again, being on even terms at the head of the stretch. A severe punishing race ensued. Wilkes, catching the whip hard, was beaten a head, after a game struggle, Argent third, having closed up a good bit in the homestretch. Wilkes tore his boot off on the back stretch, cutting his quarter badly, and was allowed to be withdrawn. Time, 2:26½. Mutuals paid $6 60.

Fourth Heat—No pools. McDowell drove Argent this heat, and the pair scored up five times before getting the word, Bayliss nodding when a length behind, but passed Argent before the turn, being a length in front half way round. McDowell sent Argent up to him, and after a tight struggle drew away, being a length in front at the half in 1:11¾. The advantage was kept to the head of the stretch, when Tomas closed, but after a hard race was beaten a length. Time, 2:25. Mutuals paid $11.30.

Fifth Heat—Auction pools: Tomas $30. Argent $12. Argent went away half a length in front, making a pretty skip on the turn, and was two lengths in front at the quarter, the favorite closing gradually. On the back stretch they were level, and Argent, breaking badly, dropped back three lengths, and though driven hard all down the stretch was not able to reach Don Tomas, who won as he pleased in 2:27.

FIFTH DAY—FRIDAY.

The judges of the day were Dr. Latham, E. Topham and J. McCord, while the timers were those that had occupied the same position on the previous day.

After the stock parade was through and luncheon over, it was time to commence racing. There was quite an average attendance—especially good for Friday. The first race for district stallions, 2:40 class, brought out five starters, Guide by Director, winning in straight heats, the first in 2:29, and last in 2:30, putting another for Director in the 2:30 class. The great black, although he only has two at present in, will, before the season is over, have quite a number inside the circle if they have average luck. In the second heat Ned Locke, when in front, fell on the track, choked down. After the heat was over he got up, and luckily, neither driver or horse were much worse for the tumble. Marvin was up behind Daly, a son of Gen. Benton, and drove him a much better heat than he had gone before, though he was not quite fast enough for Guide

The 2:50 trot was won in straight heats by Lorita, another for Piedmont in the thirty class, and well down, too, for the last heat was readily made without a skip or break in 2:22½. In the second heat she certainly did some tall running, and Goldsmith was quite justified in complaining to the judges, for she was not losing anything, and generally gaining. Marvin handled her beautifully at least, never allowing her to leave her feet. Mr. Dietz's Ringwood was withdrawn after the first heat, being troubled with the same ailment that Longworth was earlier in the week. Two veterinaries (Drs. Klench and Bowhill) examined him, and in their opinion he had been dosed with morphine. There is no clue as to who had committed the dastardly act. The two-year-old district trot was an easy thing for Frank B., a son of Coligny. The special was postponed, after Patch Allen had one heat and Nina D. two, Lucy Abbott withdrawn lame.

2:40 Class, District Stallions.

First heat.—Auction Pools—Ned Locke, $40; Guide, $21; field, $20. They were sent off, after scoring up a few times, withDaly and Sur Del in front. Daly trotting rapidly was four lengths in front of Sur Del at the quarter, with Guida two lengths back. Sur Del broke badly dropping back while Guide closed a little on Daly, being three lengths behind at the half in 1:13. Daly and Guide broke on the turn, and with Daly pulled up almost to a standstill, and Guide catching rapidly, the race was all over, Guide leading seven lengths at the head of the stretch, Sur Del second, half a length in front of Locke. Sur Del broke in the stretch, and Ned Locke finished second, two lengths behind Guide. Clay Duke was a moderate third, the other two just saving their distance. Time, 2:29.

Mutuals paid $29 65.

Second Heat.—Auction pools, Ned Locke, $80; Guide, $32; field, $20. The last pool sold was Locke, $50 to the whole field $10. They were let go at the fourth attempt, Guide cutting out the work at a merry clip, with Locke a length behind. The first quarter was reeled off in 36 seconds, and the half in 1:16, Locke being half a length behind and Daly a length further in the rear; fifty yards further on Locke fell on the track, choked down, leaving Daly to contest the heat with Guide, but he found the pace too hot, and broke on the turn, falling to the rear, while Guide jogged home fifteen lengths in front of Clay Duke; Sur Del was a very bad third, and Daly ran a good bit to save his distance; Ned Locke was distanced. Time, 2:33. Mutuals paid, $17.65.

Third Heat.—Auction pools, Guide $50; field $10. At this point Marvin got up behind Daly, and with very little delay they were turned loose, Guide and Daly going out together round the turn, Duke breaking. At the quarter, the time being thirty-six seconds, they were head and head, ten lengths in front of Duke. Guide, shortly after, broke and dropped back before the half was reached, but settling down trotted in good style, getting the lead again at the head of the stretch, where Daly broke and Guide came on, and although Daly came fast he could never get up to the leader, who won with a little in hand by two lengths. Duke, who broke in the stretch, jumping and fighting the bit like a bull, was a bad third. Time, 2:30. Mutuals paid, $8 20.

2:50 Class, Trotting.

First Heat.—Auction pools, Hazel Wilkes, $30; Lorita, $24; Wanda, $20; Ringwood, $16. After scoring up about a dozen times they received the word. Ringwood and Wanda both broke badly before the quarter was reached. Lorita leading Wilkes a length around the turn and a length and a half up the back stretch, passed the half in 1:13½; both broke on the turn. Lorita, catching cleverly, was two open lengths in front when Wilkes caught. Half way down the stretch Lorita again made a handy break, while Wilkes, who trotted well, left her feet forty yards from the wire, and Lorita drew away, winning by five lengths, Wanda a bad third, two lengths in front of Ringwood. Time, 2:26½. Mutuals paid, $22.30.

Second Heat.—Auction pools, Hazel Wilkes $30: Lorita $25; Ringwood $16; Wanda $16. By permission of the judges Ringwood was withdrawn, as he was a very sick horse. The trio received the word very soon, Lorita drawing out a length round the turn, and passed the quarter in 35 seconds, with the other two level; at the half, in 1:11¼, Lorita was two lengths in front of Wanda, one in advance of Wilkes; Lorita went up before the turn, but did not lose by it, and led Wanda a length at the head of the stretch, Wilkes close up. After a hard race Lorita broke at the drawgate again, losing nothing, and winning by two lengths, Wilkes second, four in front of Wanda. Goldsmith complained about Lorita running too much on her breaks, but the heat was given to Lorita. Time, 2:23½. Mutuals paid, $15.70.

Third Heat—Auction pools: Lorita $30, Wilkes $11, Wanda $6. Lorita went fast from the score, going round the turn a length in front of Wanda, who was the same in front of Wilkes. When clear around Wanda had closed up to Lorita's neck, Wilkes still two lengths back. Lorita again drew away, passing the half in 1:10, with two lengths separating her from Wanda, who was two clear of Wilkes. The latter closed up level with Wanda at the turn, and the latter breaking, Wilkes chased Lorita home, never getting nearer than a length, finishing three lengths behind Lorita. Wanda well inside the flag. Time, 2.22¾. Mutuals paid $9 40.

Two-year-old District Race.

First Heat—No pools sold. The word was given at the second attempt. Frank B. was a length in front going round the turn, and increased it to two at the half. Maud closed up all the way around the turn, being on Frank's wheel at the head of the stretch, and with both going steadily, was level at the draw-gate, showing a shade in front to within twenty yards from the wire when she broke, and was beaten a length and a half. Time, 2:46¾.

Mutuals paid $6.30.

Second Heat—Frank had a length the best of it at the turn, and gradually drew out, passing the half two open lengths in front, and keeping up the speed, won cleverly by three lengths. Time, 2:44¼.

Special Trotting Race.

First Heat—There was a good deal of time wasted in scoring. When the bell tapped Patch Allen went to the front, rounding the turn a length in front of Baywood, with Nina three lengths behind. Patch Allen trotting steadily, increased his lead up the backstretch, being two lengths in front of Baywood, four clear of Nina. At the half, in 1:17, Baywood broke on the turn, dropping out of the heat, and Goldsmith gradually closed on, the leader looking all over a winner, but Buster drove Patch Allen a grand race, and carrying Nina to a break three lengths from the wire, won by a head; rest away behind. Time, 2:31¼.

Mutuals paid $40.35.

Second heat.—Auction Pools—Patch Allen, $20, Nina, $9, field, $7, later Nina $20, Allen $15, field $13. There was again a great deal of scoring. Allen and Nina went out in front head and head on the turn. Allen broke before the quarter was reached, and lost his chance for the heat, Nina leading Baywood a length to the quarter. Bay drew up on even terms at the half in 1:15¾, Big Jim three lengths back. Going round the upper turn there was only daylight between Nina, Baywood and Jim, Baywood broke in the stretch, and Jim passed him getting up to Nina, and in a slashing finish left his feet three lengths from the wire, being beaten a length. Baywood third, with Abbott and Patch Allen bringing up the rear. Time, 2:27¾.

Third heat.—Auction Pools—Nina $25, Patch Allen $6, field $10. Lucy Abbott was allowed to be withdrawn on account of lameness, as she had run a nail in her foot. After scoring a half a dozen times Big Jim lost a shoe, which was replaced on the track, and they got away the first time of asking. Jim and Baywood both broke before the turn was reached, and Patch Allen showed the way to the quarter, with Nina three lengths behind, Baywood and Jim ten lengths further back. Nina and Allen broke, but the mare catching handily passed him, leading past the half in 1:14¼, by two lengths, Allen seven lengths in front of Jim. Allen broke round the upper turn, and Jim quickened up, gained a lot of ground, getting on even terms, but again breaking about thirty yards from the wire ran wide. Nina being placed first, and Jim second, with Allen third. Time, 2:32¼.

Mutuals paid $9 20.

It was now too late to start them for another heat, so the race was postponed until the next day at 12:30.

SATURDAY—LAST DAY.

The last day of the fair was one of the most successful of the meeting in every respect. Goldleaf, the Pleasanton crack pacer, for a special purse, lowered her previous record of 2:15, obtained last year as a three-year-old, to 2:11¼. After three slow heats between other races, McDowell brought her out for a record, and with Buster driving a runner alongside, the daughter of Sidney and Fernleaf went out for all she was worth. Buster was about two lengths behind. The mare went round the turn in thirty-one seconds, and slowing up a trifle in the deep going, passed the half in 1:04, and the upper turn to the three-quarters in 1:38½, Andy having pulled her back a little. But when in the stretch he called Buster up with the runner, and pushed her right along, waking her up with the whip, the last quarter being paced in 32¾. Mile 2:11¼.

This, of course, lowers the four-year-old pacing record previously held by Arrow, and considering the time of year is somewhat phenomenal, for the track does not favor the time at all the fourth eighth being somewhat slow. Mr. Salisbury the owner, Mr. Valensin, owner of Sidney and Andy McDowell who handled her are all to be congratulated on the success she achieved. The unfinished trot was easily won by Nina D., who obtained a record of 2:26½. She was sent to breed to Guy Wilkes by Dan De Noyelles, and Goldsmith handled her to give her a record, which he has done at the first attempt. Patch Allen was very lame.

Lillie Stanley and Dawn evoked the greatest enthusiasm, the mare winning cleverly in the first two heats, and taking the last easily. The mutuals paid $19 on the last heat. Evidently some one thought they knew something, and got left. The district 2:30 class was closely contested in every heat, Orin Hickok taking first money with Redwood, and Guerne second with Alfred S. both Anteeo's the former getting a record of 2:25 in he fifth heat, and the latter 2:31½ in the first. The local trot was easily won by Alex Button Jr., in slow time, each of the others taking a heat. The 2:30 pacing which occurred early in the programme was fought out by three pacers, Cora C. being distanced in the first heat, Ryder won the first heat in 2:20½ Button the next in 2:20, and the last two in 2:27 and 2:28.

Baywood was withdrawn lame. They were sent off at the second attempt, Nina D. and Allen going out in front, but Nina breaking on the turn, Allen drew away a length in front, increasing it to two at the quarter in 0:36; Nina settled down, and trotting steadily passed Allen, leading two lengths at the half in 1:13¾, Allen two in front of Jim; the latter passed Allen on the turn and closed up on Nina, being a length behind. At the head of the stretch Nina broke, running well for awhile, and then catching trotted steadily; Allen broke and fell to the rear, while Jim went very steady to within fifty yards of the wire when he broke, running under the wire a length in front of Nina. Nina was given the heat, and Jim put back to second position. Time, 2:26½.

Mutuals paid $7.35.

District 2:30 Class—Pacing.

First Heat—Auction pools: Belle Button $50, field $17.

They got off together, Mr Newton's entry developing a great amount of speed, as he reached the quarter in 34½ seconds, Button being second and J. H. third, four lengths behind the leader, with Cora C. out-paced from the start; Ryder retained his advantage past the half in 1:09, Cora C. dropping further back Ryder led round the turn and slightly increased his lead, winning readily by four lengths from Belle, Cora C. run hard in the straight, but even then was outside the flag. Time, 2:20½.

Mutuals paid $7.70.

Second Heat—Auction pools: Button $40, field $30.

At the second attempt they went off, Button and Ryder going level round the turn. At the quarter, in 34 seconds, Button was half a length in front of the pair who were level; Button drew away from them, leading three lengths past the half in 1:08¼. Round the turn Ryder passed J. H. a length and a half, separating first and second, and second and third. Ryder closed up, and nicely handled by Buster, came with a rush at the finish, but was beaten out a head, J. H. a bad last. Time, 2:20.

Mutuals paid $6.85.

Third Heat—Auction pools: Button $50, field $110.

After scoring twice, J. H. lost a shoe, and when replaced they were sent off at the second attempt. Ryder broke before the turn, and again just before turning into the backstretch, dropping away back. At the quarter Belle was leading by three lengths, J. H. second, ten in front of the tail-ender. J H. broke and fell back to Rider, the pair being twelve lengths behind Belle at the half in 1:11, who went on easily, winning from Ryder by half a distance, J. H. just inside, the latter having lost a shoe on the backstretch. Time, 2:27.

Mutuals paid $10 35.

They were sent off at the second scoring, Rider and J. H. breaking badly; Belle went right along, passing the quarter fifty yards in front. Rider again broke, and Belle increased her lead, drawing away at will. When in the stretch she was slowed up, going under the wire in almost a walk, Rider forty yards back dead lame, having sprung a tendon in his foreleg, and J. H. just inside the flag. Time, 2:28.

2:17 Class Trotting.

First Heat—Auction pools: Lillie Stanley $30, Dawn $21. Dawn had the pole, and at the second attempt they went off, drawing clear round the turn, passing the quarter in 33¼, three lengths in front, and, going up the back stretch, maintained his advantage. The mare closed to within a length at the three-quarters, and was almost level at the drawgate but breaking fell back, and then trotting fast outfooted the stallion, and was half a length in front, when she broke, running under the wire a length in tropt, Stanley first, Dawn second. Time, 0:33¼, 1:09, 1:44¾, 2:19¼. Mutuals paid $10.50

Second Heat—Auction pools: Stanley $30, Dawn $12. Stanley went away rapidly, being five lengths in front at the quarter. Dawn drew up slowly, getting to within two lengths of the mare at the half, and was only a length behind at the head of the stretch, with both driving hard. Stanley outfinished the horse, winning a game heat. Time, 0:35, 1:13, 1:50, 2:23. Mutuals paid $17.40.

Third Heat—At the first attempt they went out, Stanley leading a length and a half at the quarter pole. Dawn reduced it to half a length at the half, and stayed there to the stretch, getting almost to her head at the drawgate, when she drew away, again winning by two lengths. Time, 0:34¾, 1:11¼, 1:47, 2:20¼. Mutuals paid $19.

District, 2:30 Class, Trotting.

First Heat.—Auction pools, Look Out $25; Redwood $20; Alfred G. $30; field $10. After a long and tedious scoring they went out pretty evenly. Flora B., breaking first, left Alfred lying on the rails, but he also broke on the turn, and Look Out passed him leading four lengths at the quarter, Flora second, three in front of Alfred G. Flora drew up to Look Out, being nearly level at the half, and six lengths in front of Alfred, who was a length in front of Redwood. Look Out broke on the upper turn, losing three lengths, but closed up to within a length of Flora at the head of the stretch, Alfred third, a length back, three in front of Redwood; Look Out fell back again and Redwood closed up. After a hard finish between the three leaders Alfred G. won by a head, Redwood a head in front of Flora B., who stood a severe whipping. Time, 2:31½. Mutuals paid, $16 75.

Second Heat.—Auction pools, Alfred $50; Redwood $48; Look Out $15; field $11. After scoring twice they were given the word, with Look Out three lengths behind when the quarter was reached. Flora was a length in front of Nona Y., three in front of Look Out, who broke, losing a couple of lengths, and at the half in 1:13. Flora had increased her lead to three lengths, and the balance all strung out. At the head of the stretch Nona and Look Out had closed up to Flora and passed her at once, but Nona, breaking, ran hard, with Look Out trotting fast, and passing, looked all over a winner, when Nona came fast, running and trotting, beating him a head, Flora B. third. Look Out was given the heat. Time, 2:27¾. Mutuals paid, $40.70.

Third Heat.—Auction pools, Look Out $30, Alfred G. $20; Redwood $12; field $5. Look Out and Nona were tapped off an open length in front; Nona drew out, but breaking round the turn, was half a length behind Look Out at the quarter. Look Out drew still further away, passing the half three lengths in front of Nona, who was four in front of Redwood. Look Out broke on the upper turn, and Nona passed him, followed by Redwood and Alfred G. Redwood rapidly closed on Nona, and trotting all the way down the stretch, with her hopping and skipping, with a good run now and again, passed under the wire a head in front of Nona, running, Alfred G., who broke at the distance, third. Time, 2:24½. Mutuals paid, $18 75.

Fourth Heat—Auction pools: Redwood $25, Alfred $12, Lookout $8, Field $5. Goldsmith got up behind Lookout for this heat, and they were let go the first time to a bad start, Redwood and Nona showing in front; Redwood led a length round the turn, and Nona breaking dropped back, Lookout taking second place a length behind Redwood and one in front of Nona. At the half Nona had drawn up to Lookout, a length behind Redwood, and, all closing up, a pretty race was witnessed down the straight between Redwood and Alfred G., who had come fast on the turn and was level at the drawgate, but Redwood beat him out in a tight finish by three-quarters of a length, Nona Y. a bad third. Lookout, last, was pulled up. Flora was not out on time, and was ruled out. Time, 2:27½. Mutuals paid $7.75.

Fifth Heat—Auction pools: Redwood $30, Field $13. Dustin drove Lookout in this heat. Again they went away the first time of scoring, Redwood leading round the turn, Nona second. Alfred G. came fast, passing them both before the quarter was reached, where he led two lengths. Redwood closed up to within half a length at the half in 1:12½ and stayed there until the drawgate, when Alfred G. drew away a little, but, breaking thirty yards from the finish, was beaten two lengths. Redwood first, Alfred G. second, Nona Y. a bad third, and Lookout last all the way. Time, 2:25. Mutuals paid, $8.75.

First Heat—They went off at the second attempt very slowly, the grey breaking on the turn, and Button drawing away led her ten lengths at the quarter. She broke again, and was passed by Prince, but soon repassed him, and went in hot pursuit of Button, reducing his lead to five lengths at the half, and catching him on the turn, carried him to a break, and drawing away won by a length, Button finishing strongly, but going up twenty yards from the wire, Prince a bad third. Time, 2:50¾.

Second Heat—They went out pretty evenly round the turn, being head and head. At the quarter the grey was just clear, at the half Button second, and closing up passed the mare on the turn, winning easily by thirty yards, Prince was last. Time, 2:42.

Third Heat—Prince went out in front, and with the other two breaking on the turn, went right away from them, winning easily by 30 yards, the grey tired out a distance from home. Time, 2:40.

Fourth Heat—Prince Wilkes and Button went off in front, Prince half a length ahead to the quarter, where Button broke, losing ten lengths, but gradually closed up, getting on even terms. At the head of the stretch Prince broke, Button winning by fifty yards, the mare a distance out, but distance was waived. Time, 2:25¾.

The prizes in the stock department were announced. Messrs. G. Valensin, E. B. Gifford and R. Murphy judged standard trotters.

Among the winners were Alcona, sire of Flora Belle, Clay Duke, etc., Grandissimo, brother to Grandee, Old Dolly Mac Mahon, as fresh and lively as ever, with a black Director filly at foot which should enhance the old mare's reputation.

Roadsters and carriage horses were judged by Messrs. A. J. Brown, M. J. Rollins, and T. Smith. Two good looking saddle horses were bracketed, the bay being exceptionally good, about 15.2 hands high, good shoulders and back, in fact a handy looking, heavy weight hack.

Draft horses, general purpose and mules were passed on by Messrs. S. Sperry, T. C. Snider and J. Edge. The winner of the stallion class was a useful looking, thick set, short-legged bay Shire horse, with good, hairy legs, and sound feet; the rest of the entire horses were too light and shelly.

Cattle were judged by J. Hoyt Ebernethey and P. B. Graham. They were not as a whole good, the Holstein bull being probably the best on the ground, and he should have been better behind. Several of the Shorthorns were too much like the Kerry breed. The Jerseys were a very fair sample, one of the cows in particular being good. Sheep and pigs were judged by L. Newcumner, Y. Brunent and J. J. McIntyre. Premiums were awarded as follows:

The poultry awards were numerous, and the show of game and other varieties excellent. In the pavilion there was a grand display of wines, fruits, etc. When the fair closed on Saturday evening everyone was satisfied or more than satisfied, for success was manifest, and success such as has hardly ever been achieved in California. Napa is going in for fairs, this being the second on the present track, which is as good as any in the State or States, as the many records beaten and made on it at this meeting show: Gold Leaf (4). 2:11¼; Lilian Wilkes (3), 2:18; Direct (4), 2:19¼; Fleet (2), 2:24; Palo Alto, 2:18; Hazel Kirk, 2:24½; J. R. (3), 2:24½; Express, 2:25; Atto Rex, 2:25; Look Out, 2:25; Flora Belle, 2:26; Emma Temple, 2:25; Nina D., 2:26½; Redwood, 2:24¼; Tom Ryder, 2:20½; Belle Button, 2:20; Guide, 2:29; Lorita, 2:22¾, etc. After having made such a brilliant success, the Directors, who are young and energetic, should not rest on their oars, but keep persevering, and perhaps next year they may have even greater success.

The Directors, all of whom worked hard for the meeting, were ably assisted by E. S. Culver, Secretary Blood Horse Association, who managed the scales and books for the Society, officiating as clerk of the course in his inimitable manner, while the Secretary, Mr. Conkling, seemed to be in the right place whenever wanted, working like a Trojan.

The Deer Lodge Fair and racing association was organized in 1886, this being the third year it has provided entertainment for lovers of horse flesh and racing in Deer Lodge Co. It owes its organization to such men as S. E. Larabie, John Bielenberg, N. J. Bielenberg, Wm. B. Miller, Samuel Scott, Jas. B. McMasters, W. N. Aylesworth, C. D. Joslyn and others.

Deer Lodge is a very attractive town of about 2,000 population. The races opened Aug. 7th, with a large and enthusiastic attendance. About ninety runners and trotters were stationed at the track ready for the bell to tap, California being well represented. Among them such good ones as Yolo Maid, Valentine, Jou Jou, Laura Gardner, Cyclone, Jack Brady, Guido, Moses B., Lida Ferguson and others.

The association this year belongs to the American Trotting Association, and is in the circuit of Montana, Idaho, Washton Territory and Oregon.

J. B. McMaster has been the secretary of the association since its inception, and upon his shoulders has fallen most of the arduous duties incident to that office, and the successful carrying out of the projects of the association. But nobly has he born them; he superintended the erection of all the stables and buildings and the complete overhauling of the track. During the races, Mr. McMaster is always busy looking after the vast machinery of a race day. He has always been ably assisted with good and faithful work from John Bielenberg, whose heart is rapped up in the cause, and who desires, above all, to see good, square, honest racing on the track.

This year Mr. McMasters has an able and expert assistant in the person of Mr. D. P. O'Connor, of Butte, who was clerk of the course. E P. Goble, of Deer Lodge, and A. L. Slone, of Missoula, gentlemen of firmness and square dealings, assisted by some member of the Association, have been the continuous judges for the week, and gave great satisfaction.

The first race on the programme was a dash of 600 yards. The entries were Bob Wade, Sleepy Dick, Sunday, Bogus, and May Queen. Wade sold favorite. After ten breaks the flag fell, Wade a trifle in the lead. Wade led well into the stretch, where Sunday came up, and after a driving finish, Sunday won by the shortest of heads. Time, 31½ seconds.

Next came the three minute class. Maud Singleton, Sister V., Hailstorm, Procrastination, and Alice answered the bell, Sister V. being favorite. After five scores they got the word, Maud in the lead. At the quarter she still led by two lengths to the stretch, where Sister came up, but could not head Maud, she winning by half a length. Time, 2:37½.

The second heat was a repetition of the first, Maud in front all the journey. Time, 2:35½.

When they were called out for the third heat the judges substituted Byran for Penman. They got off on even terms, and it was a neck and neck race. Right at the wire Maud broke, Sister winning by a neck. Time, 2:35½.

In the fourth heat Sister V. led by three lengths at the quarter, at the half by eight, and won jogging by three lengths. Time, 2:35.

The excitement was now intense when the contestants came out for the fifth heat. Sister V. broke on the turn and stood still, Maud getting a lead of ten lengths, but when Sister recovered she trotted very fast, and was on even terms with Maud at the half, but broke again, in consequence of which Maud went on and was never headed, winning by two lengths. Time, 2:37½.

The Oro Fino Stake, ⅝ of a mile, only had three starters. Gold Bar was a hot favorite, but was never in it. Carrie Lee took the lead as the flag fell, and won as she pleased. Time, 1:05½.

SECOND DAY.

Attendance much larger. First race, one-half mile dash. The starters were Roly Boly, Half Moon, Bingo, Trixy and Red Bird. They were at the post for fully an hour, much to the disgust of the crowd. At the start Bingo made the pace, but turning into the stretch fell back, and Roly Boly went to the front, followed by Half Moon; Roly Boly won by two lengths, Half Moon second, Bingo third. Time, 1:03.

The starters for the 2:24 class, trotting, were Wanita, Col. Bradshaw, Bishop Hero, Harry Velox, Palatina and Fantasia. Bradshaw drew the pole; he got a good send-off, and led the party to the wire, followed by Wanita, Harry Velox, Palatina and Fantasie; Bishop Hero was distanced. Time, 2:23½.

Although Bradshaw won the heat, Wanita sold favorite. She took the lead at the start and was never headed, winning by a length, Velox second, Palatina third. Time, 2:26.

In the third heat McCoy took the seat, instead of Jeffries, behind Fantasia. Wanita again took the lead, and led them by three lengths to the wire, Fantasia second, Velox third, Bradshaw fourth; Palatina made a stand-still break on the first turn and was distanced. Time, 2:27.

In the fourth heat Wanita led at the quarter, followed by Velox, Bradshaw third. Down the backstretch Bradshaw passed Velox, and was only a length behind Wanita at the three-quarters. Bradshaw gained on Wanita in the stretch, forced her to a break, and won the heat by half a length, Velox third. Time, 2:23¾.

The fifth and last heat was won by Wanita, Fantasia second, Velox third, Bradshaw distanced. Time, 2:28.

Next came a special running race, dash of a one-half mile. The entries were Sunday, Cyclone and Kittie Van.

Sunday was favorite, and satisfied his backers by leading from post to wire, Kittie Van second, Cyclone third. Time, 0:48½.

Next on the programme was the Hotel Stakes or Derby, 1½ miles. There were only two starters, Jubilee and X. There was no betting, as Jubilee, the crack two-year-old of last year, was a sure thing. He took the lead at the start and ran in the lead all the way from five to six lengths and won galloping. Time, 2:42½.

Now came the 2:45 trotters. The starters were Evening Star, Deer Lodge Girl, Harry M., Sleepy Dick and Young Ranchero. They got a good send off, Deer Lodge Girl leading to the one-half, at which point she made a bad break. Evening Star who was second went to the front near the wire but Ranchero came with a rush and won by half a length, Harry M. third, the Girl fourth and Dick fifth. Time, 2:43.

Second Heat—They scored eight times for this heat Young Ranchero took the lead and was never headed, winning easily. Time, 2:39½.

Third Heat—With Ranchero at the pole they started again for the money. On the first turn Ranchero broke and Dick took first place which he held to the stretch, where Star came up and beat him to the wire, Ranchero third, Harry M. and Deer Lodge Girl distanced. Time, 2:37¾.

Fourth heat. Dick took the lead from the tap of the bell, and won easily. Time, 2:41½, upon which the race was postponed till Friday.

FRIDAY, AUG. 9TH.

Postponed 2:45 race, 5th heat.

Evening Star went out from the word, and was never headed; Ranchero second, Dick third. Time, 2:36½.

Sixth heat. This was a surprise to the talent, as Dick forged ahead and won with ease in 2:36½.

Seventh heat. Young Ranchero wound up the race by winning this heat; Dick second, and Evening Star third. Time, 2:35.

In the half mile and repeat race the following were the starters: Jou Jou, Daniel B. and Smoothwire. Daniel B. won the first heat in :49, Jou Jou winning the next two in :49½ and :49½. Smoothwire pulled up lame after the second heat, and was withdrawn.

2:32 class; trotting. The starters were Alta, Bob Cole, Lady Maxim and Melrose. Alta sold favorite for $20; Cole $9; Melrose and Maxim $4 each. Maxim took the lead and was first at the quarter, Melrose second; at the three-quarters Melrose and Cole were on even terms with Maxim. Melrose raced with Alta, who came from the rear, the former winning by a length from Alta, Lady Maxim third. Time, 2:30.

Second Heat—Maxim and Alta had the best of the send off and led head and head around the turn, when Cole came up very fast and at the one-half was on even terms with Maxim who led down the backstretch. Maxim led at the three-quarters, Alta second and finished Lady Maxim first, Alta second, Melrose third. Time. 2:32.

Third Heat—Pools sold: Melrose 60, Alta 35, Field $20. Again the talent were surprised, Lady Maxim going to the front and winning, Alta second, Melrose third. Time, 2:27½.

Fourth Heat—Melrose took the lead and won from Alta, Lady Maxim third, Cole distanced. Time, 2:27½.

Melrose took the lead at the tap of the bell and was never in danger, winning in 2:27½, Alta second.

Fifth Heat—Lady repeated the performance of Melrose in the last heat and won the heat and race. Time, 2:32½.

For the third race, 1½ running, the starters were Gardner, Nevada, Little Phil, Repetta, Kittie Van and Keveena. Nevada sold choice and won in a galop, Keveena second, Gardner third. Time, 2:15.

The fourth race, Free-for-all trotters was declared off as it did not fill.

SATURDAY, AUGUST 10TH.

The last day of the meeting was opened with a running dash of 440 yards, the entries being Cyclone, Jim Miller, Bob Wade and Nettie S. Nettie S. got off about a length the best and won by a neck from Bob Wade, Cyclone third, Jim Miller fourth. Time, 22½. The next race was a three-quarter handicap—Jack Brady, 110 pounds, E Davis; Warpeek, 112, H. R. Baker; Diavola, 110, W. J. Johnson; J. M. R., 105, R. W. Donaca; Sir Ladd, 105, J. R. Ross; Roly Boly, 105, J. C. C. Thornton. Roly Boly sold first choice, bringing $50, Brady $12, Diavolo $12, J. M. R. $10, Sir Ladd $2, and Warpeek $5. It was a fighting race between Brady and Diavolo, the latter winning it by a nose. Time, 1:15½.

The special pacing race produced Clatawa, Independent, Frank and Beattie.

First Heat—Beattie broke on the turn and fell back. Frank and Clatawa paced on even terms to the head of the stretch, where Beattie came up, and it was anybody's race home, Beattie winning. All ran under the string. Time, 2:34½.

Second Heat—Beattie broke at the word, and was distanced. Frank could not keep the clip up as Clatawa carried him off his feet, Clatawa winning this as he did the next two. Times, 2:30½, 2:31¾ and 2:36.

Breeding Farms of Oregon.

Written For the Breeder and Sportsman.

It was in the broad and wild Territory of Oregon that American horses from the States and Territories of the West—as the nomenclature of the several divisions or sections of the United States passed current at that period—were first brought to the Pacific Coast. California was still a province of Mexico, inhabited by the native Indian tribes, by Mexicans and those of mixed blood, and by the few prominent families, either natives of old Spain or their descendants, who preserved the dignity, the State, and the punctillious pride of the proud and chivalric conquerors of the shores, from Castile, from Ensenada, from fair Andalusie, and from the chosen portions of the land to which is maintained the honor and glory of the discoveries of Columbus, the primitive settlement of the American continent by peoples of the Caucasian race. Some of these had brought from Spain the famous Barbs of high breeding and noble form, and there were besides the graded stock descended from the finer breeds which Cortez had brought to Mexico, which had, in the course of three centuries, more and more deteriorated by commingling with the native species—Indian ponies and mustangs.

The American adventurers to California, during the period of Mexican rule and Spanish jurisdiction, were trappers or sailors. They brought no American horses, no American cattle. The native breeds of California, of Spanish and Indian stock, were better adapted to the uses of the coast, and and were rated at comparatively little value. It was the same with cattle, and only the wild and intractible Spanish breed, slaughtered for their hides and tallow, roamed the few peopled valleys and unpeopled plains. It was not until the great emigration dating from the discovery of gold, subsquent to the conquest and purchase of California, from the States and Territories of the West, mainly from Missouri and Kentucky, from Tennessee and Illinois, from Indiana and from Iowa, that the emigration flowed into California by the tedious and perilous routes across the wilderness of plains and mountains that American horses were introduced into California, and, with them, American cattle.

Oregon Territory was better favored in that early period. As early as 1840 the flow of emigration from the States and Territories across the Continent began. It ceaselessly flowed each succeeding year, swelling every year, by train and trail, until the advent of steamships and the opening of Isthmus routes, and at length the railways overland, facilitated and accommodated the eager thousands who were inspired by the sentiment of the eloquent Berkeley to seek the star of empire in the farthest West, on American soil, their own by right of discovery and earliest occupation.

These hardy and intrepid pioneers brought with them good and sound American horses and cattle. They were mainly from the States of the far West of their generation, from the rich Territories which have since been admitted to statehood, and now comprise the great feeders of the world in staple products of a generous soil. From the live stock which they brought have sprung the average good grades still found in Oregon and the adjacent Territories carved from it, now themselves in the process of complete and sturdy statehood—Washington, Idaho and Montana. California received its first acquisitions from the same good source.

The gold mines of California gave this favored State a fame and an impetus beyond the fertile resources of Oregon to attract the guest of emigration. Oregon rested through a decade in comparative inactivity, with slow progress and neglected opportunities. The surpassing enterprise and wealth of California have wrought the marvellous advancement which astonishes the world and delights every dweller in the State. As a people accumulate riches they seek luxuries and cultivate superior methods in everything which adds pleasure to mankind.

The desire for fine horses, for superior stock of all kinds most useful in the domestic uses, is innate in mankind, as they progress in the more enlightened methods of life, and are enabled to gratify their tastes for the beautiful and the useful. The possession of the horse, the noblest of the domestic animals, is a delight to the superior man. Grand instances of this attribute and of its gratification are now to the praise of the possessors and to the renown of California. The breeding farms of the State are the splendid attestation. The names of Palo Alto, Rancho del Paso, San Mateo, Santa Anita, Rosemead, Pleasanton and other noted breeding farms, are added to the records of California's distinguishment in all that is of excellence. The famed Blue Grass region of Kentucky divides its laurels with these farms of California. Turf performances are the proofs, and the higher breeding is the promise of greater advancement. California is convincing the world that she is the better breeder of thoroughbreds, the superior of every land in the production of the noblest animal for every purpose.

Oregon has been less favored, and the conditions of her people has not been to equal advancement with California. Attempts have been made to the purpose, and a few have measurably succeeded. More than thirty years ago, W. C. Myer, of Ashland, in Jackson County, embarked in the enterprise of importing horses from Europe. Turf sports were then neither adequately encouraged nor promising of profit. Mr. Myers accordingly directed his efforts to the breeding of good horses for farmers and for draught uses. Speed was not so much the consideration as strength and endurance. He has confined his enterprise mainly to the importation and breeding of the English Clydesdales and the French Normans and Percherons. Of late years he has more favored the Percherons, as the better breed for farms and for all work. Jersey cattle is another of his favorites in that line of stock. He has prospered, and is everywhere recognized as a fair, square, honorable dealer, whose guarantee is beyond question.

Robert E. Bybee, of Portland, is conspicuous as the breeder of thoroughbred and superior graded running horses in Oregon. He is the son of a pioneer from Kentucky, James Bybee, a veteran breeder and able trainer, a turfman by birth and breeding and a careful manager. His son, Robert, has selected several of his fine stallions and brood mares from the most noted farms of California. Every year at the spring and fall meetings throughout Oregon and Washington, his entries create attraction and their performances show the advantage of blood and skilled training. His efforts and methods are in line with true sporting.

The largest and best-equipped breeding farm in Oregon is owned by J. V. B. Delashmutt, Mayor of Portland, a prominent banker of that city, and one of the wealthy citizens. He was bred to farming and stock raising in Polk County, and has good practical knowledge of live stock, especially of horses. His judgment in selection is of high order, and he appreciates the importance of having the best that money can purchase for his stud. His breeding farm in Washington County, a few miles from Portland, is a magnificent tract of nearly two thousand acres, splendidly timbered, with grand meadow and pasture lands, and abundant flowing streams and natural springs. His stables and paddocks are of the latest approved models. He devotes intelligent personal supervision to every essential detail. He is fond of fine horses, and careful as to their keeping. Mayor Delashmutt's enterprise will serve as an example to other wealthy men in Oregon in the breeding of horses. He is in the complete vigor of early prime, of uncommon energy, prominent in safe mining enterprises, active in public works, a leader in community matters, and bears an enviable reputation in finance and business.

A few years ago, another citizen of Portland, Mr. S. S. Reed, one of the pioneers in Columbia river navigation, now among the wealthiest of the coast, and growing richer every year by sagacious investments in the mines of Idado and Eastern Washington, engaged in the business of live stock breeding, on his broad estate in Washington County. He had good success so long as he continued in it; but his greater interests required that he should abandon his breeding fame. Mayor Delashmutt has succeeded to the greater future accomplishment.

Who is the Sire of Wanda?

Editor Breeder and Sportsman:—In your issue of August 10th, I noticed a short article on the breeding of Wanda, who gained a record of 2:26 in a match race with Simmocolon at the Bay District track August 5th. You stated that Mr. Burke, her owner, has conclusive evidence she was sired by Eros. Now I think I can produce all the evidence necessary to prove that she was sired by Fallis, 2:23. Wanda was bought by Mr. Burke at H. W. Seale's sale, November 17, 1886. There were only three yearlings in the catalogue: The first was Sweetness, bay filly (now called Wanda by Mr. Burke), sired by Fallis, dam Girofle by Elmo; the second was a sorrel gelding by Elmo, dam Ida May Jr., and the other a bay gelding by Elmo, dam Lady Comstock. There was only one by Eros in the catalogue, and that was a weanling horse colt called Iris, dam Jennie by Elmo, so Mr. Burke is surely mistaken when he says there was a horse colt the age of Wanda by Fallis, or that there was a filly of any age by Eros. At the San Jose Fair in 1887, I met Mr. Burke, and he remarked that he thought Fallis was going to be a great sire, as the filly he bought at Mr. Seales sale could then show a 2:40 gait. I was very much surprised last fall when informed by reliable parties, who know all about her breeding, that Mr. Burke was then claiming her by Eros.

I believe in giving credit where it is due, and if Mr. Burke can prove the catalogue and all the other evidence I have is incorrect, Eros must be the sire, otherwise Fallis will have the honor of being the first son of Electioneer to produce a 2:30 trotter.

Hoping to have the breeding of Wanda correctly established, I am Respectfully, Sacramento, Cal., August 18, '89 F. P. Lowell.

SANTA ROSA.

By Our Special Commissioner.

SANTA ROSA, August 20, 1889.—The Sonoma County Agricultural Park Association's Fair opened to-day. The weather is all that can be desired, and the track is fast. The attendance is not what the excellence of the programme would warrant, but the crowds are usually poor first days. Every stall at the track has an occupant, and they are all race horses. The association has no State aid, as is the case with he other districts, and, in consequence, there are no exhibits at the Pavilion and no stock or poultry premiums. It is racing, pure and simple, and good racing at that. Everything seen at Napa is here, and the majority of the horses are in good condition. The trip over from Napa was made by special train, and not a single horse was injured. There is just stable room enough to accommodate the crowd.

It was 2 o'clock this afternoon when Messrs. J. N. Bailhache, Isaac De Turk and F. W. Loeber, who occupied the judges' stand, rang the bell for the opening of the meeting, and to call up the horses for the first race, a mile and repeat in which R. B. Cockrill's Daisy D., and W. L Appleby's Mikado were the starters.

Hitchcock was up on Mikado with 112 pounds and Taylor rode Daisy D., with 110 pounds. It was a foregone conclusion for Mikado, the mare seeming to be too much in flesh to do anything, and in the pools the horse went at $30 to $8 for the mare. In the first heat the mare went off well and ran a neck in the lead to the half when Mikado went to the front and won as he pleased in 1:44½. The second heat was a repetition of the first, and Mikado galloped in an easy winner in 1:48½.

The 2:20 Class, Trotting.

First Heat.—The 2:20 class trot was one of the most sensational races of the season thus far, and it required seven hard heats to decide it. The starters were J. A. Linscot's ch s Jim L., J. N. Ayres' br s Bay Rose, G. A. Dougherty's br s Victor, and E. B. Gifford's blk g Don Tomas. C. Roderiguez, Orrin Hickok, G. A. Dougherty and George Bayliss were the respective drivers. Bay Rose started a hot favorite, bringing in the auctions $30 to $9 for Victor and $10 for the field. The Bay Rose men were very confident. In the first heat they were sent off to a rambling start, and Bay Rose led the lot into the turn, but half way around he broke, and Don Tomas and Jim L. passed up to the front, Victor trailing behind Bay Rose, and not apparently out for the heat. Up the back stretch it was Jim L. first, Don Tomas a length back, Bay Rose in third place, and Victor behind him a length. At the half Jim L. still had his lead, Don Tomas and Bay Rose trotting neck and neck in second place. These positions were hardly altered until they got well into the straight, then Bay Rose and Tomas made bids for the lead. They caught Jim L. half way down from the three-quarter post, and the three came home at a hot pace. Jim L. went up when inside the drawgate, and Don Tomas lost his feet at almost the same instant. Bay Rose forged ahead and went under the wire in a jog in 2:21, Don Tomas getting second, Jim L. third, and Victor finishing a poor fourth.

Second Heat—Bay Rose was thought to have it all his own way, and he brought $55 in the pools against $10 for Victor and $9 for the field. In the second heat Bay Rose, Don Tomas and Jim L. went almost together to the quarter, Victor waiting in the rear. The backstretch did not alter their positions very much, and the half found Bay Rose barely a length in front, Tomas second and Jim L a short length behind, third. They came around the turn and into the straight in this order. Then came a fight for the heat, ending in Tomas forcing Bay Rose and Jim L. to a break when within thirty yards from the wire, and winning the heat in 2:21, Jim L. getting second and Bay Rose third place. Victor had not yet been heard from.

Third Heat—They scored eight times for the third heat, and Doherty was fined $5 for failing to come up. When they got off Victor left his feet at the word, but caught again quickly, and they went around the lower turn with Jim L. first, Tomas second, Bay Rose third and Victor a length behind him. This was the order at the quarter, but Bay Rose went up to second place on the backstretch, and at the half Jim L. had a three lengths lead, with Bay Rose a length in front of Tomas, and he two lengths to the good of Victor. Victor took third place on the lower turn, and they got into the straight in one, two, three order. Then for the first time Victor made for the front, and forced the leader, Jim L., to a hot pace, but the hayseed broke twice and failed to get up to Jim L., the chestnut, with Bay Rose hanging on to his wheel and under the whip, came in a bare winner in 2:20, Bay Rose getting second and Victor finishing third, close up to them. Bay Rose broke under the wire.

Fourth Heat—Pools sold before the last heat at $25 for Bay Rose and $12 for the field, but after it the horse and field went at about even money.

The fourth heat fell to Don Tomas. Jim L. went off in the lead with the others bunched behind him, and he stayed in front until well into the straight, when he broke. Don Tomas was at the wheel and forged ahead, taking the heat in 2:23. Bay Rose and Victor had a close fight for second place. Right at the wire Bay Rose broke, and Victor got it. Jim L. finished fourth.

Fifth Heat—Bay Rose brought $6 to $25 for the field after the last heat, and a lot of his friends were hedging. When they came out Andy McDowell was behind Victor, and he was greeted with cheers. Don Tomas went off first, with Victor in second place a length away, Jim L. third and Bay Rose last. These positions were held to the middle of the backstretch, where Victor took the lead. He was never headed, and won in a jog, Don Tomas a poor second, Jim L. third. Time, 2:22.

Sixth and Seventh Heats—Thenceforth it was all Victor. Everything else was dead tired, while he looked ready to go all day. He was worth $40 in the pools, with Don Tomas selling at $12 and the field $6. The sixth and seventh heats were duplicates so far as the leader was concerned. He went to the front at the start and held it to the finish, taking the sixth heat in 2:24¾ and the seventh in 2:25½. He was roundly cheered at the end.

The 2:30 class trot produced no surprises. It simply demonstrated an already apparent fact that Atto Rex is a good horse. The starters in the event were Salisbury's b m Margaret S., Gifford's b s Atto Rex, Ayers' br s Balkan, and Dustin's b g J. R. Neither Margaret S. nor Balkan were in condition, both having tender feet, and J. R. showed up lame in the last heat. Atto Rex was such a favorite that he sold for $25 against $8 for the Field, and there was little betting. The first heat was contested by J. R. and Margaret S., the latter leading to the drawgate, where she quit, and J. R. won in a jog. The three succeeding heats were easily taken by Atto Rex, J. R. being the only one to give him any trouble.

Messrs. Harvey W. Peck, Henry Baker and A. McFadyen, did the timing for the day.

WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 21.

The weather was splendid; a cool breeze tempering the sun's rays, and rendering heavy clothing measurably comfortable. The track was harder and just a bit faster than on the opening day. The attendance was also better.

The programme opened with a three-quarter dash for two-year-olds with Kelly and Samuels' br c Pliny, the same owners' b f Adelaide, R. B. Cockrill's blk c Captain Al, and W. L. Appleby's b c King David as starters. The gelding Pliny was, of course, the favorite and sold for $25 to $6 for the field, with few short end takers. Pliny carried 107 pounds with Ward up, King David 110 with Hitchcock up, Captain Al 110 with Taylor up, and Adelaide was weighted at 107, but Cook could not get lower than 111½ and she carried that weight. R. C. Underhill gave them the flag to a good send off, King David dashing away in front, Pliny in second place and the other two back. Pliny got the lead at the half post and was never headed, winning in a canter in 1:16½, King David second, Captain Al third, with Adelaide at his flank.

District Two-year-olds—Trotting.

First Heat—The District stakes for two-year olds was the second event, and was quickly decided. Four young aspirants—Wilfred Page's b f Leoline, driven by Hickok, Guy E. Grosse's b s Anteeop, driven by J. Lawrence, R. Murphy's b f Maud Dee, driven by McDowell, and W. T. Bartlett's b c Frank B., driven by H. Giddings—came out to contest. They were a handsome-looking quartette as they began scoring, and the race was of much interest to the local people. Of the original eight entries Anteeo sired three, and two of these started, but in point of speed they were nowhere as compared with Bartlett's Frank B. by Coligny, a far less famous sire. The colt was a hot first choice, bringing $30, Maud Dee being taken as the next best thing at $8, and Leoline and Anteeop going in the field at $9. The public confidence in Frank B. was not misplaced. He took a length on the upper turn, trotting smoothly and well in hand, and held his place to the wire, finishing in a jog to prevent the distancing of Leoline, who had made a tangled break at the half, from which she never recovered. Maud Dee got second place and Anteeop third. Time, 2:45½. Leoline was distanced.

The second heat fell to Frank B. in the same manner as the first. Maud Dee and Anteeop had a fight all around for second place, but Anteeop got it, Maud losing her feet at the head of the straight. Time, 2:46½. The second money was divided between Anteeop and Maud Dee.

District Three-Year-Olds—Trotting.

First Heat—The District Stake, for three-year-olds, was the next thing, and from a racing point was a good deal more interesting than the preceding events. A. J. Zane's g c Captor, driven by S. Sperry; E. Boyle's b c Charley Miller, driven by the owner; L. H. Bogg's b f Keepsake, driven by J. Gray; J. W. Martin's ch c Del Rey, driven by the owner, and F. W. Loeber's b f Directa, driven by McDowell, were the starters. Electra was put in the favorite's place as soon as the pools were opened, and sold for $25 to $7 for the field. She went off in the first heat with a good lead, but she was not going level, and at the turn she broke. Captor was in second place, and when they got to the quarter post he passed her. She hung on to his wheel to the lower turn, where she broke again, and Del Rey passed to second place. In this order they came down the straight, Captor winning easily in 2:34, Del Rey getting second, Directa close up for third, Keepsake a poor fourth and Charley Miller fifth, and just inside the distance post. He made a bad break at the start, and never recovered.

Second Heat—Directa brought $30 and the field $13 after the heat. When they got the word for the second heat she went off and took the lead at the quarter, Del Rey trotting at her wheel. Up the backstretch she drew away from the crowd and won as she pleased, Keepsake coming second, Del Rey third, and Captor fourth. Charley Miller made another of his breaks and was distanced. Time, 2:34½.

Third Heat.—Keepsake was the only one who could stay near the favorite, and she gave her a warm heat in the third, staying right at her heels all around, and near on the wire turn showing in front. Directa took the heat by a length in 2:34½, Keepsake again getting second, Captor a poor third, and Del Rey a poorer fourth.

Fourth Heat.—In the fourth and last heat both Keepsake and Captor tried to catch the favorite, and both came near doing it. At the half she was a length in front of Captor, and he seemed to be going strong, but in the lower turn he broke and was not in it any more. The favorite came in and won handily in 2:35½, Keepsake second six lengths back, Captor behind and Del Rey fourth.

"The pacers do to bet on," remarked a horseman when the starters were rung out for the 2:25 class. He was right. The race was the betting event of the day, and for the first time since the meeting began Whitehead was real busy. The bell brought out T. H. Griffin's b g Edwin C. driven by the owner; G. W. Woodward's br m Belle Button, driven by Goldsmith; C. I. Haven's blk g Racquet, driven by Brandow; A. Boucher's b g J. H., driven by White, and A. C. Dietz' b s Longworth, driven by W. Johnson. As was the case at Napa, Belle Button started favorite at $25, Racquet going at $5, and the field at $6. Belle's friends backed her heavily, and it was looked upon as a sure thing, but it was a sure thing which didn't come off. In the first heat Belle and Racquet were the only ones to make a showing. Belle took the lead, and Racquet followed a length behind, Longworth leading the crowd behind. They went this way to the three-quarters and into the straight. Half way down the straight Racquet attempted to collar the leader, but broke, and gave second place to Longworth. Belle Button finished five lengths in front of Longworth, second. Racquet got third, Edwin C. fourth and J. H. fifth. J. H. finished in fourth place, but was set back for running. Time, 2:23½.

The second heat also fell to Belle Button. She went to the front at the start, and was never headed. Longworth and Racquet fought it out for second place, and Longworth got it by two lengths, Edwin C. finishing fourth. J. H. made a series of breaks, and was distanced. Time, 2:22.

Third Heat—At this stage it seemed such a sure thing for Belle Button that the pool-boxes were closed and the clerks ready to go home. When the horses came out Marvin was behind Racquet. They got to the wire and went off, with Belle Button in front and Racquet second. At the quarter Belle led the gelding by a length, Edwin C. third, four lengths back. Racquet hung on to Belle's wheel down the backstretch, and on the lower turn collared and passed her amid the cheers of the crowd. Goldsmith sent the mare along for all she was worth, but he couldn't catch the leader, and Racquet took the heat in a jog in 2:23½, Belle finishing second five lengths back; Edwin C. got third and Longworth fourth place. The latter made a losing break in the upper turn which put him out of the heat.

Third Heat—Whitehead was just two minutes in getting the pool-box open, and there was a rush for him. Belle Button opened at $25 to $14 for the field, but Belle's friends began to hedge, and in a few minutes the field was favorite at $30 to $25 for Belle. The heat killed Belle, and the knowing ones knew she was gone. She and Racquet went off side by side in the next heat, Longworth close up. On the turn Longworth went to the front.

At the quarter it was Longworth, Belle Button and Racquet a length apart. Going into the backstretch Racquet passed Belle and she quit altogether. When Longworth and Racquet got to the half, a length apart, the mare was ten lengths behind. Racquet passed Longworth on the lower turn, and came on home and won as he pleased in 2:22¾. Longworth was back about eight lengths, and both Edwin C. and Belle were distanced, the latter badly so. Belle went all to pieces, and even Johnny Goldsmith couldn't shake her together. She acted so strangely that many believed she had been dosed, and freely expressed their opinion.

The Fifth Heat had only Racquet and Longworth as starters, and though the latter took the lead and held it half way round the backstretch, Marvin sent Racquet along from that point and won easily in 2:25. Racquet got first, third and fourth money, and Longworth second.

Santa Rosa Gossip.

And now for Petaluma!

The circuit is but two weeks old, and already the cry of "drugged horses" has been raised.

The Belle Button crowd had a hard time playing for even when they saw the mare give up and quit.

Pliny seems to acknowledge but one superior among the two-year-olds. That is the unbeaten Racine.

Andy McDowell has taken charge of Dietz's two four-year-olds, Ringwood and Longworth, and will handle them for the remainder of the season

Att Taylor has been engaged to ride for the season by Bruce Cockrell. The stable has adopted a blue jacket and cap and white sash as its colors.

There were two starters in the 2:25 class pace bred exactly like Yolo Maid. Alexander Button, their sire, is at the track, and attracts considerable attention.

Loeber's filly Directa is the largest Director I have ever seen. She has something of the old horse's gait, and presents a handsome appearance, in harness or out.

Walter Maben and the Rose boys are here with the big Alcazar yearling, a two-year-old by the same sire, and the horse Dubec. They have no entries at the meeeting.

Doherty says he will give Victor a record of 2:18 before the season is over. The old horse has sired four fillies for his owner, two of which are out of mares by General Reno. They are said to be good-looking and speedy.

Bay Rose was not himself in the 2:20 race. He was looked upon as a sure thing before the race, and the talent backed him heavily, but he seemed to go all to pieces in the second heat, and Hickok knew then that accident only could give him the race.

Andy McDowell's popularity as a driver was evidenced the other day when he came out behind Victor. He received an ovation, which he acknowledged by lifting his white cap. At the end of each heat he was cheered, and when he landed the horse under the wire, a winner, a dozen rushed forward to congratulate him.

Jim S. follows the example set by the fast ones at Napa and lowers his record from 2:20½ to 2:20. He has a tremendous flight of speed, and I doubt if there is any horse of his class on the coast that can overhaul him on the straight if he will only keep his feet. He needs a driver who can set him down quickly, and then he will be a formidable starter in the 2:20 races of the circuit.

Don Tomas, the Del Sur gelding, has always been termed a quitter, but I have seen him go in two hard seven-heat races and he stayed game all through. In the 2:20 class Tuesday, the company was too fast for him, but in two hot finishes he was put to the limit of his speed from the three-quarters home yet he trotted like a machine under the whip and with horses losing their feet all around him.

Kelly & Samuels purchased on the 15th inst., from the Rancho del Paso, two yearlings. One, which they have named Lisette, is a chestnut filly by Hyder Ali out of Kate Fletcher, by Harry O'Fallon, and the other, Wildair, is a chestnut colt by Kyrle Daly out of Lima, by Enquirer. Both are said to be racy looking animals. They are still at the Rancho del Paso.

If you want a row on your hands just say something derogatory to Anteeo to a man of this district. He is the sire above all others to a large number of admirers, and his get are numerous in this county. It was a hard hit to local pride when Frank B., by the comparatively unknown Coligny, beat the pets so easily, and there was a lot of inquiry about the stallion. It may be stated that Coligny hails from Suisun, and is a full brother to Gibralter.

Of course last week's performances of the fast ones is the chief topic now among the horsemen. Gold Leaf is getting a large share of the honors for her 2:11¼. I was talking with Andy McDowell the other night, and asked him if he thought he could beat Ariel Lathrop's Wilkes—Lucy pacer, about which so much has been said lately. His answer was pointed: "I'll bet $1000 to $750, that the filly can beat him." The admirers of the unknown have a splendid chance to get a long desired match if they still want it now.

"Put that hayseed horse Victor in proper hands, and there is no telling what he would do," said a horseman to me the day the brown stallion won the 2:20 class. Victor is a good horse, a very good horse, and those who go against him are becoming more and more convinced of the fact every time he comes out upon the track. He is a perpetual surprise, and some people are looking for him to surprise somebody at Petaluma. He will have to meet Palo Alto there, and it is the general opinion that if he is right he will give Palo Alto the warmest race of his life.

Ariel Lathrop came up Thursday to see the Palo Alto young ones go, and he handed me the following telegram from Maysville, Ky., signed by E. A. Tipton: "Norval won to day, Wednesday, in straight heats. Time, 2:21½." It is not known what horses the sire of Norlaine had against him. His performance was something of a surprise to the Palo Alto people. Before he went wrong as a three-year-old he showed a trial in private in 2:27, but when his hind leg gave out Marvin never thought he would trot again. In his race Wednesday nothing better than 25 or 26 was expected of him. His performance adds another to the great Electioneer's list. Norval, it will be remembered, was sold to Col. Pepper of Lexington, last spring.

In the fourth heat of the 2:25 class pace, Edwin C. was declared distanced. There was no judge at the distance post, and a large portion of the crowd said the horse was well inside. A considerable turmoil was raised, and a formal protest was made against the decision, but the judges in the stand read the National rules applying to the case and adhered to their decision, saying they did so because they thought they were right, and they would do the right thing in spite of opposition. There was much dissatisfaction and growling over the affair, though the majority sided with the judges. From the press-stand the horse seemed to be inside the post. Griffin wanted to draw his horse before the first heat on account of a slight lameness, but the judges would not allow it.

The meeting has brought horsemen and admirers of horses from all over the State. Besides the regular and never-failing attendants whom we never miss, there are quite a number of familiar faces. H. M. Devoy, one of the directors of the Eureka Jockey Club, is here, and P. H. Quinn, superintendent of the Eureka track, is with him. Wyman Murphy, of Humboldt County, formerly one of the owners of Anteeo, Ben Hill, of El Cajon, San Diego County, Charles Cockrill, from Soledad, Billy Napier, Tony Schwere, Fred Alivso, W. W. Mendenhall and J. H. Neal, all of Pleasanton, J. W. Martin, of Yolo, the owner of Clay Duke, G. W. Woodard, of Yolo, owner of Alexander Button, and R. H. Newton, of Woodland, one of the old-time directors of the State Agricultural Society, are some of the people one meets in a stroll about the stables.

Charles Marvin is one of the men about the track, who has nothing to do but look on, and in his quiet way, pass his comments upon the horses. He has no entries here, and is simply taking care of Sunol, and the two-year-old Peddlar. Sunol is not right. When she failed to go the other day at Napa, the reason was ascribed to sex troubles, but that is not all, and it may be, that the great filly may not be seen in a race this season. Marvin said to me, that he would not start her until she is right, if he had to scratch her altogether. It is just barely possible that she may appear at Oakland, and if she is not in shape there, she will probably be taken home, and the entire Palo Alto stable with her. Palo Alto is at Petaluma. He will start there. Marvin walked him out after his race at Napa, and says he shows no signs of weakness, and will be ready to do good work at Petaluma

Jimmy Dustin has the longest face around the stables just now. He is playing in the hardest kind of luck, and out of the trio of fast ones with which he started from the winter quarters at Oakland, J. R. is the only one fit to go in a race. Maggie E. threw out a spavin in one of her trials at Oakland, and though at first she did not seem to be in a bad way, she grew worse on the trip to Napa, and was last week declared unfit for racing. She was scratched in all her engagements, and has been sent to Santa Clara County. She will race no more this year. Almont Patchen, the last of the trio, is standing in his stable covered with hot poultices. He had a severe wrench in the right hip, from being thrown down in the car while on the way to Napa, and for a time it was thought he would race no more this season; but he was examined Tuesday by two competent veterinarians, and they agree that he may be able to start in ten days. Oakland will probably see him first. The vets say his injuries do not go further than a muscular soreness resulting from his fall in the car.

The woods are full of horses. In a tour of the stables here I find any number of likely looking animals in the hands of local trainers. These horses are away above the average of the country, and deserve some notice by the horse world. Mart Rollins, one of the old timers, has eight. He takes especial pride in a pair of Alexander Buttons, which he drives as a team. He also has G. & M., a full brother to Alfred G. a promising three-year-old belonging to Guerne & Murphy, a three-year-old Anteeo the property of T. J. Ludwig; Eva G. 2, by the same sire out of a Nutwood mare, the property of Mr. Guerne; a three-year old Anteeo filly out of a thoroughbred mare, the property of T. J. Ludwig; and the filly Maud Dee by Anteeo out of a Nutwood mare, which can go in 2:40. William McGraw, the driver who brought out Lillie Stanley, has the b h Lookout said to be by Arab, the b h Silas Skinner by Alcona, and four Anteeo colts belonging to I. De Turk. James Laughlin, another one of the pioneers, has five Anteeos which he is handling, with a good prospect of getting something fast out of the lot. John Lawrence has the horse Ned Lock by Antelope, by Nutwood, and a promising four-year-old filly by Anteeo, dam a Whipple's Hambletonian mare, the property of A. Seagelton. Captain Guy E. Grosse has a fine looking stable consisting of Anteeop, 2, by Anteeo, dam a Hambletonian mare, Sunset, a four-year-old bred in the same way, and a three-year-old filly with the same percentage. Bruce Cockrill trained his string of bang tails here. The lot consists of Mark L, 2, by Ironclad, Daisy D. by Wheatley—Black Marie, Captain L, 2, by Kingston—Black Maria, a yearly filly, Acclaim, by three Cheers—Rosette, the property of George Kennedy, Pacheco's yearling colt Ignacio, by Three Cheers—Dairy Maid, and a six-year-old mare by Wheatley, out of Black Maria.

Latest from Santa Rosa.

THURSDAY, AUGUST 22.

The third day of the meeting saw a still larger crowd in attendance, and a more decided local interest in the races. The weather was fair and very warm, and the track fast.

The opening event was a five-eighths dash, free-for-all, with Appleby's b m Alfarata 3, ridden by Hitchcock; W. S. Neal's b m Daisy Neal, ridden by D. Pulver; G. Pacheco's ch m Julia P. A., ridden by Kenneally; and Kelly & Samuels' b m Susie S, ridden by Cook. In the pools Susie S. sold for $30, Alfarata being second choice at $10, and the field going begging at $2. There was a long delay, but they were finally sent away to a good start, Alfarata taking the lead, closely followed by Susie S, Julia P, and Daisy Neal seesawing in third place. Alfarata led to the head of the straight, when Susie S. came up and ran neck and neck with her to the drawgate, and then drew away half a length, and won easily by that distance. Alfarata second, and Julia P. a poor third. Daisy had quit at the head of the straight. Time, 1:02.

District Two-Year-Old Trotting.

First Heat.—The two-year-old free-for-all trot had but two starters, Palo Alto's b c Pedlar, driven by Marvin, and B. E. Harris' b f Lorena driven by McConnell. The Electioneer colt was the favorite in the pools, selling at $25 against $4 for his competitor when they were sent off for the first heat Lorena broke at the wire and Pedlar led around the turn but broke again at the quarter and was passed by the filly. He again got the lead before reaching the half, but in the lower turn broke again and Lorena passed to the front once more. The colt could not collar her and she won by six lengths in 2:38. She could have made the heat much faster but Buster held her up when he saw that he had the colt beaten.

Second Heat.—When they were sent off in the second heat Pedlar took the lead on the turn, but near the quarter he broke, and the filly took a long lead. At the half she was six lengths the better of time, but the colt trotted fast in the turn and gained considerably. In the straight Pedlar came fast, but broke when right at Lorena's wheel, and she won the heat and race. Time for the last heat, 2:33½.

Race No. 3 was a trot for the 2:27 class for a purse of $600. George Bayliss named Bell B. O. A. Hickok, Gracie S., and Emma Temple. Temple brought $30 against $11 for the field. Bell B. had the pole and took the lead Gracie S. was second till the quarter, when she broke and Temple passed her. At the half-mile post Bell led, with Temple lapped and Gracie S. back in the dust. Coming down the stretch Bell held her own in good shape and won the heat. Time, 2:28¼.

Bell and Emma Temple were sent off on an even start for the second heat. Bell opened a gap at the quarter post, with Temple second and Gracie S. last. Coming down the stretch it was hard to tell which had the best of the heat. Temple broke when near the wire, and a yell went up from the short-enders who had bought the field at $5 against $30 for Temple. Gracie S. also broke. They came in the following order: Bell G., Temple, Gracie. Time 2:28½.

Temple still remained the favorite at $25 against $10 for the field. Temple's driver was changed for Goldsmith. Bell led as usual at the quarter, Temple second and Gracie third. At the half-mile post their positions remained the same, but Temple was gaining. Temple caught Bell at the three-quarter post and took the lead down the stretch, Bell a close second. Bell broke several times and fell back, Temple winning the heat. Time, 2:28.

No. 4. trotting, for three-year-olds, was sandwiched between the third and fourth heats of race No. 3. Margaret S. and Colma were the starters. Margaret won the heat. Time, 2:25½.

Temple took the lead in the fourth heat and held it all the way round, with Bell B. second and Gracie S. third. Time 2:28½.

Margaret S. took the second heat in the three-year old class with ease. Time 2:25¼.

Emma Temple took the lead in the fifth heat in the race for the 2:27 class and held it all the way round. Temple took first money, Bell B. second money and Gracie third money. Time 2:27.

The Willows Meeting.

There is every prospect of a successful, though small, meeting at the annual fair, the third held here. The track is very handily situated, close to the railroad, and within a hundred yards of the town. Had it not been for conflicting with Redding and Grass Valley, quite a number of well-known horses would have been here. The Directors changed their date once to avoid the latter, but they afterwards changed, and, of course, will spoil both meetings to a certain extent. It is intended to form a Northern Circuit before next year, six having already promised to go in—Chico, Marysville, Willows, Red Bluff, Redding and Grass Valley—and they should be very successful, as they propose winding up in time for the State Fair. A good deal of disappointment has been caused by Creole, Thapsin and Norton's not coming, but owing to the latter, otherwise known as Jack the Ripper, going lame at Sacramento last week, Wilbur Smith would not come. Had he turned up, a special purse would have been given, for he and Creole, who was taken from Napa to Sacramento, and was ready to come.

Among the runners already here are Johnny Gray, Sir Charles, Isabella, Joker (Hooker—dam by Hercules), and Juanita (Ironclad—Mamie). The trotters are numerous, William Billups having three, a good-looking three-year-old stallion by Tilton Almont, with a running cross. Mr. Billups was formerly the owner of Almont Patchen and other well-known performers. He is at present on the lookout for a good stallion to mate with the many Tilton Almonts round Colusa. W. W. Marshall has several entries. W. R. Merrill has Belle A., who started at Napa, and several others. J. B. Thornier, Chico, has a nice five-year-old black pacing mare by Frank Tolman, dam by Belmont, and a number of others are already here. The track is in very good shape, and the weather not nearly as hot as usual, while the mosquitos are as thick as the sure thing—men.

TUESDAY.

Judges—J. R. Troxel, N. Brough and A. A. Jackson. Timers—F. G. Crawford and J. Adams. Starter—W. R Merrill.

On the opening day there was only a slim attendance, although it was very fair for a beginning. The programme was correspondingly short, consisting of a six furlong and repeat, and a district 3-minute trotting race. In the former Johnny Gray was a hot favorite, and won as he liked. In the trot all three were by Tilton Almont (Mr. Billup's horse). Stranger, who is a four-year-old, showed fairly well against his older opponents in the first heat, but afterwards fell back, the race being easily won by Belle A., who competed unsuccessfully at Napa. In between heats the local band and pool-sellers kept the spectators interested, the former particularly so; it is one of the best in the northern district, being justly celebrated.

Six Furlongs and Repeat—Running.

First Heat—Auction pools: Johnny Gray $10, field $6.

They were turned loose at the second attempt, with Johnny Gray an open length in front, which he kept to the head of the stretch, the other two running head and head. When fairly in the straight Sir Charles and Joker were both ridden hard, but it was no use, for Johnny Gray won by two open lengths under a strong pull, Sir Charles beating the three-year-old, who was rather lame, by three lengths for second place. Time, 1:18.

Second Heat—It was now generally conceded a certainty for Gray, only a few pools being sold at $10 Gray, to the field $2. The flag was dropped the first time they came up, Joker having a little worst of it. Gray, starting rapidly, was soon two lengths in front of Sir Charles, who was three clear of Joker; the latter closed up to Sir Charles round the turn, the pair being about two lengths behind Gray, who won in a big gallop by that distance, Joker dropping back three lengths behind Sir Charles. Time, 1:17¾.

First Heat—Auction pools: Belle A. $10, Field $4. They were tapped off at the third attempt. Belle A., who was on the outside, went to the front, taking the pole on the turn. Peart broke shortly after leaving the score and dropped back. Belle A. led Stranger two lengths all the way to the distance port, both going very steadily up to there, but, with Stranger breaking, Belle won easily by two lengths, pulling up, Peart thirty yards behind Stranger. Time, 2.36¾.

Second Heat—Auction pools: Belle A. $10, Field $3. When they received the word Belle A. set the pace, rounding the turn a length in front, and Peart, again breaking, fell back six lengths behind Stranger. Peart gradually closed the gap, being three lengths behind Stranger at the head of the stretch, Belle A. leading easily at the drawgate. Stranger broke badly, and Peart passed him, finishing three lengths behind Belle A.. and seven in front of Stranger. Time, 2:39½.

Third Heat—No pools sold. They went away at the second attempt, Belle A. leading Stranger a length and a half round the turn. At the quarter pole Stranger broke badly, dropping back fifty or sixty yards, the other two trotting steadily. Belle A. won as she pleased by two lengths from Peart, Stranger fifty yards back. Time, 2:42.

WEDNESDAY.

Judges—J. G. Troxell, N. Brough and W. W. Marshall. Timers—A. A. Jackson and W. Lambert. Starter—W. R. Merrill.

The weather was still warm, but in the afternoon a cool invigorating breeze sprung up and induced a much-larger gathering to assemble on the course. The programme consisted of a half-mile and repeat three-year-old trot, and a three furlong repeat. The half mile resulted in a surprise, for Johnny Gray was deemed a certainty, but Juanita, a good looking bay mare by Ironclad, won both heats quite cleverly. A good deal of money changed hands on the result, over five hundred being put up outside the pool-box The trot was an easy thing for the mare, who won as she pleased.

The three furlongs was easily won in the end by a son of Jim Douglas, but after the first heat it looked as though

Birdie would win. Douglas just made a dead heat in the second, and after running the distance, owing to not watching the flags, the mare was jumped out, while the horse, who is a big, strong customer about 16 2, came back well, romping in.

First Heat—Auction pools: Gray $10, Juanita $6, Isabella $1. At the third attempt the flag fell to a good start, Juanita on the rails and Gray on the outside drew away from Isabella, Gray having his head in front on the turn, but Juanita hugging the rails well round the turn was a trifle in front in the stretch, and with Howson riding hard the mare won cleverly by a length, Isabella a bad third, out-paced from the start. Time, 0:49¾.

Second Heat—Auction pools: Juanita $10, Gray $6, Isabella $1. They were let go at the second attempt, Juanita having a length the best of the start, and in a pretty race all the way round the turn, Jaunita again keeping close to the rails, and Gray, who ran wide, was readily beaten three-quarters of a length by Juanita. Isabella just saved her distance. Time, 0:51.

First Heat—Auction pools: Annie E. $10, Tart $7.

They were despatched at the second attempt, Annie taking the pole before the turn was reached, and trotting steadily led four lengths at the quarter when Tart broke, dropping still further back, Annie E. winning in a jog by ten lengths. Time, 2:51½.

Second Heat—Auction pools: Annie E. $15, Tart $3. The pair were sent off at the first attempt. Annie broke before the turn, dropping back five lengths. Up the backstretch she closed to within a length, while round the turn she collared Tart, carrying him to a break, and going on, won easily by five lengths. Time, 2:55½.

Third Heat—No pools sold. The pair were let go at the first attempt, Annie leading a length at the turn, and with Tart breaking, went on winning as she liked by fifty yards. Time, 2:52½.

First Heat.—Auction pools, Douglass $10, field $8. After several false starts the flag dropped with Birdie by a shade the best of the start, and being quick on her legs she was soon two lengths in front, and making the running all the way won handily by a length, Dutchman second two lengths in front of Alice D., who was a length ahead of Douglass. Time, :37½.

Second Heat.—Auction pools, Birdie $10, field $7. A very good start was effected at the second attempt. The Dutchman was a neck in front at the head of the stretch; half way down the straight Birdie drew out, looking an easy winner, when Douglass came with a rush and in a tight finish made a dead heat three lengths in front of Alice D., half a length in advance of Dutchman. Time, :38.

Third Heat—Auction pools, Douglass $10, Birdie $7. The pair had a false start, running the full distance in :38½, Douglass a neck in front; when they were started again the mare had a length the best of it, but was soon passed by Douglass, who won as he liked by twenty yards. Time, :41¾.

Fourth Heat.—They were sent off at the second attempt, Douglass going out in front and winning all the way, passing the post twenty-four yards in front. Time, :40.

ATHLETICS.

Athletic Sports and Other Pastimes.

Edited by Arphippus.

SUMMARY.

The past week has been a dull one in athletic circles, and there are no events of any importance to chronicle. The athletes are somewhat disappointed over the fact that the Olympic grounds will not be ready by Admission Day, hence the opening out-door meeting must necessarily be postponed until Thanksgiving Day. The young athletes of the California Amateur Athletic Club are growing rather impatient at the long delay of the Directors of the club in making prepations for the opening of the new training grounds at Harbor View. The amateur boxers are also grumbling at the medals offered for competition in the coming tournament, and some of them are of the opinion that the C. A. C. is as well able to offer good medals as the Olympic.

RUNNERS, WALKERS, JUMPERS, ETC.

The gymnasium of the California Athletic Club at present reminds one of an ancient arsenal. Some of the strange machines that have lately been erected resemble battering rams and other ancient war-engines. A full descriptive catalogue of these apparatuses should be supplied to the members of the club, that they may not have to stand and gaze and wonder what it is.

ATHLETIC EXHIBITION—A NIGHT'S FUN AT THE PACIFIC ATHLETIC CLUB.

The ten round contest between Charley Ell and Billy Weston did not come off, owing to the fact that the former had received some slight injuries while training a week previous. When the President of the club announced this fact the audience immediately subscribed $25 for the disabled boxer. An unknown young man volunteered to don the mittens with Weston, and the couple gave a very fair exhibition, which lasted three rounds, Weston having matters all his own way. J. McCormack of the Golden Gate Athletic Club and W. T. Kennedy of the Pacific Athletic Club next followed in a three round setto. When they retired Young Soto and Larry Hawkins, both of the G. G. A. C., stepped into the ring, and for a few minutes made things lively. They boxed three rounds. Next came a fencing contest between Professor Ingbram of the Pacifics and Mons. La Fleur, a French fencing master. Both men exhibited unusual dexterity with the foils. Professor Ingbram, however, scored the most points, and so was declared the winner. The last event previous to the event of the evening was a four round setto between "Texas" Frenchy and Neal Sullivan. The two exchanged some very hard blows, but neither received much punishment. The event of the evening was an eight-round contest for a gold medal and the light-weight championship of the club. The contestants were Joe Hesketh and Ed. Morrissey. Both men were in splendid condition, Hesketh weighing 128 and Morrissy 125 pounds. Hesketh was seconded by P. O'Connor and Tom King, while Texas Frenchy and R. Barthrop stood behind Morrissey. Professor Taylor was chosen referee and Joe Quirk time-keeper. The fight was to last eight rounds, but in exactly half that number Hesketh put his opponent to sleep. It was evident from the start that the men meant business, for they went at it hammer and tongs, each one doing his best to knock the other out, without regard to science. In the first round the honors were about even; in the second round Hesketh knocked his man down several times, and in the third round he still held the advantage. The fourth proved to be the last round, Hesketh knocking his opponent out with a swinging right-hander. The next exhibition of the club will take place September 15th, on which occasion the postponed encounter between Ell and Weston will be the event of the evening.

LAWN TENNIS.

The tennis tournament which will take place at San Rafael on September 7th, 8th and 9th, promises to be an exciting one. It is expected that the leading players on the Pacific Coast will take part. The handicapping committee will be composed of Mountford S. Wilson, Southard Hoffman and W. Mayo Newhall. The entrance fee will be $2.50 for each gentleman player, and, as usual, the ladies may enter free. September 7th, at 3 P. M., will be played the preliminary rounds for the mixed doubles. September 8th, at 10 A. M., preliminary rounds for singles, to be followed by preliminary rounds for gentleman's doubles. Play for the afternoon to commence at 2 o'clock. September 9th (Admission Day) at 10 A. M., unfinished preliminary rounds, if any, for gentleman's doubles, singles and doubles in order named; and at 3 P. M., finals of each match in same order. The tournament committee will be Arthur Page, T. C. Berry, E. M. Greenway and W. Mayo Newhall. The entries will close on Wednesday, September 4th, at 4 P. M., and must be sent to some member of the committee. The day will wind up with a dance at the Hotel San Rafael. A late train will convey those who wish to return to San Francisco to Tiburon, where the boat will be in waiting to cross the bay, and a Sutter-Street car will remain at the foot of Market Street until the arrival of the boat. Quite a number of prominent lady-players have already announced their intention of entering the mixed doubles. Handsome and valuable prizes will be offered for the final winners in each of the matches.

THE WHEELMEN.

The wheelmen are anxiously awaiting the return of the moonlight nights that they may take their accustomed night spins to the Cliff. There is nothing so Paradisiacal as a run along the beach when Luna reflects her golden rays upon the waters of the Pacific.

To-morrow several members of the San Francisco Bicycle Club, in company with a few invited Olympians, will essay a tramp to Mt. Tamalpais. The tramps are to meet at the ferry at eight o'clock, when they will take the first boat to Sausalito. As some of the "speedy" boys intend taking part in the walk, a "hot" day's work may be anticipated.

The Bay City Wheelmen will take a benefit at the Alcazar Theater on the opening night of the Mc Kee Rankin Co., which will be Monday, September 23d, when the play of "A Runaway Wife" will be introduced to the public of San Francisco for the first time. The bonds of the club will become due on the 1st of October, and the Benefit Committee have issued a circular to all the members urging upon them the necessity of each and every one of them helping the club out by promoting the sale of tickets.

IN THE SURF.

The members of the Terrace Club were out in full force last Sunday. Spiller, Dall and Greenbaum did the "brothers" act about twenty times, having been repeatedly encored by the large audience present, and the trio displayed their usual cleverness on each occasion.

On Sunday and during the early part of the week, the surf baths were crowded, the hot weather evidently proving too much for the water-fearing public.

The surf-lovers continue to pour into Capitola and Santa Cruz, and the crowds that now enjoy a daily dip at these places are just as large as they were during the months of June or July.

A swimming tournament under the auspices of the Terrace Swimming Club will be held before the close of the season.

The annual amateur swimming championships of America will take place on the Harlem River, at the Atlanta Boat Club House, 152d Street, on Wednesday, Aug. 21, at five o'clock P. M. The distances are 100 yds. and one mile, and the races are open to all amateurs belonging to any recognized amateur athletic, gymnastic or aquatic club. Those not belonging to any such organization must send with entry proper credentials as to their amateur standing. Entry fee, $2 for each event. The right to reject any entry is reserved. Gold medal to winner, silver medal to second, bronze medal to third.

AT THE OARS.

Owing to the rough state of the water on Sunday last, only a few crews mustered up courage enough to take a spin on the bay. Two of the Dolphin crews were out, and one crew from the Ariels. The Dolphin's rough water boat was used to great advantage, and its crew had any amount of fun and excitement in dodging the breakers that continually tried to swamp them.

Farrel, of the Ariels, is on his high horse because he was requested to resign from Station B. Post Office crew. Mr. Farrel is a professional and as this crew is composed entirely of amateurs, we do not see why he should get so displeased over the matter.

That famous old oarsman, W. T. Welch, is seldom seen on the water nowadays. Five or six years ago, he was one of the most promising scullers on the Pacific Coast.

The great O'Connor-Searle race is the chief topic in aquatic circles. At present the betting is about even, but we are inclined to believe that later on odds will be offered on the Australian. Both men have excellent records, and both will be in the pink of condition on September 9th, but there is something in the appearance of Searle that inspires confidence. It may be, perhaps, that his English way of doing things retrospects the past victories of his countrymen, but at all events if he is defeated it will only be after having fought a stubborn battle.

The fall regatta of the New England Amateur Rowing Association will take place at Boston, Mass., on September 2nd.

The annual regatta of the Missouri Amateur Rowing Association will take place September 15th.

MISCELLANEOUS.

The skating mania has again broken out in the Eastern States. We presume in its course of travel it will shortly reach the Pacific Slope.

Madison Square Garden, New York City, is about to be torn down and a new structure of a similar nature will be erected on the old site.

Since the Merion Cricket Club went out of existence cricket has been entirely abandoned in this city. It is too bad that this good old English game should be neglected so, for the benefits to be derived from its practice are many.

The Pacific Athletic Club has selected fine training grounds at Mr. Clipper's (Fruitvale), and will make improvements so as to allow he members to be in good trim for the contests. They will be free from damp air and fogs and, without doubt, are the best located in the State

The Board of Directors has decided to have a larger gymnasium erected to accommodate its many members. Plans of said gymnasium have been forwarded, and soon a fine building, with bath, plunge, reading and billiard-rooms, will be erected.

Vice-President R. P. Hammond of the Olympic Club who has for some years served the State so efficiently as Surveyor General, is about to change his business relations. On September 1st he will associate himself with Messrs. McAfee & Baldwin, leading real estate and general auctioneers, the style of the new firm being McAfee, Baldwin & Hammond. General Hammond possesses rare business ability, unusual tact, unbounded energy, and an esprit which contributes largely to make everything he touches more briskly and successfully. We trust he may meet the fullest measure of success, and anticipate nothing less for him.

CLUB JOTTINGS.

The Directors of the C. A. C. and the Managers of the Harbor View Park are at logger-heads over the lease of the training grounds out there. Up to the present about $100 has been expended on the improvements, but until the dispute is entirely settled the C. A. C. men say that they will not lay out another cent. From all accounts the park people are to blame in the matter, they having gone back on their promise.

Persons who are in the habit of passing the O. A. C. lot on Post street often wonder when work on the building will be commenced.

The athletic war in the East is at an end. The public are pleased and the athletes are happy over the settlement. Why should they not be? From the very beginning the dispute was a foolish one, and had some of the athletes who originally started the stone of contention a rolling but looked at matters in their proper light, the controversy would never have arisen. We hope the two Pacific Coast rival Associations will follow the example of their Eastern brethren and try and bring about a reconciliation.

Thanks to its efficient and energetic President, Mr. C. Giry, the Pacific Athletic Club is in a flourishing condition. The membership at present numbers over four hundred, and from present indications it will run up to a thousand before the year is out. The Directors of the Club having come to the conclusion that the present headquarters are entirely too inadequate, have decided to look out for more suitable club rooms. This new organization is composed entirely of business young men, and no dudes or useless members of society will be admitted to membership. The club was started for the sole purpose of fostering pure and unadulterated athletics, and only young men who are athletically inclined are desired as members. The P. A. C. will have its gymnasium, its club rooms, its bath rooms, and its reading-rooms in some central part of the city, while its out-door grounds will be situated at Fruitvale. After their day's work the young members can improve their muscle in the gymnasium, and on Sunday mornings a trip across the Bay to the training grounds will do them good. Here they can practice out-door sports on their large tract (which Mr. Clipper of Fruitvale kindly turned over to the club for its use as long as it is in existence). A track will be built there and other improvements made, so that the athletes can pass a pleasant Sunday morning in the midst of a verdant valley surrounded with Nature's ornaments, far away from the pent-up and noisy city. The exhibition of the club for December will be in the shape of an in-door tournament in the Mechanics' Pavilion, when a large programme of games, open to all amateurs, will be offered for competition. The club has no expense whatever attached to it, as all its instructors give their services gratuitously, and whatever funds may accumulate will be invested in prizes which will be competed for by the athletes.

THE OLYMPIC CLUB OUT-DOOR GROUNDS.

For some weeks past erroneous rumors have been floating around in regard to the improvements already made on the lot recently leased by the Olympic Club for the purpose of erecting out-door grounds for the use of its members. It has been erroneously stated that an additional force of workmen had been engaged in order that the work might be completed by Admission Day, on which day it was the intention of the club to formally open the grounds. Such, however, is not the case, and that we might be able to present to our athletic readers an authentic account of what work has already been done on the site, we took a trip out there last Saturday afternoon, and made careful memoranda of the progress made.

It was quite a surprise to us to see such little headway made towards the completion of the grounds. The scene that met our gaze was a large sand-lot, upon which were scattered promiscuously about a dozen loads of lumber. A skeleton fence about thirty yards long divided the lot from the railroad track. The sand covering the lot varied in depth from three to five feet. The rumor about the extra force of workmen being employed at once recalled the story of the three black crows (reversed.) The large force had dwindled down to three men. These men were not actually engaged in working on the lot, but were trying to move an old house close at hand. They were unable to afford us any information in regard to the work, otherwise than that they were certain that the lot was the one belonging to the Olympic Club.

In the first place it will require a very large force of men to clear away the sand, and according to the lowest calculation, the removal of the sand will consume at least a month. Then the grand stand, dressing rooms, club house, fences, etc., cannot be erected inside of another month. And last, but by no means least, comes the track. In order to build a first class track on a solid basis another month or six weeks will be required. Thus it will be seen that three months must elapse before the grounds will be thoroughly finished. It will therefore be impossible to hold the inaugural games before Thanksgiving Day. The Club should make no effort to open the grounds until they are thoroughly finished, and it would be much better to postpone the opening games until Thanksgiving Day, than to hold them a few weeks earlier, when the track will not be entirely settled. It should be the chief aim of the committee in charge of the grounds to see that the track is fit for record breaking before they turn it over to the club as finished, for the athletes are determined to appear in their best form on the opening day and it would indeed be a pity to disappoint them. We hope the committee in charge will hurry up the work for there is no time to be lost, and the athletes will soon begin to grow weary of the long and tiresome wait.

ROD.

The smelt were running pretty freely last Sunday, and many baskets were filled, some of the fishermen being compelled to quit early in the day, because they could not carry the fish.

A large number of the fair sex were noticed among the fishers on the Oakland wharves on Sunday, and they all appeared to be able to hold their own as far as fishing went. One young lady caught ninety five smelt and eighteen rock-cod.

The fish bit very freely at Lime Point, and, as usual, those caught were exceedingly large, It is a great pity that the tides prevent so many people from going there. When the tide begins to run along that shore it rushes like a millrace and sometimes even the most experienced oarsmen are unable to move for hours.

The usual crowd visited Point Tiburon and it's neighbouring points. The largest fish over there were caught around Kershaw's Point. Henry Holden caught a rock-cod that weighed seven pounds, quite a large fish for this neighbourhood.

Three sportsmen, lately returned from Pescadero, speak very highly of the trout fishing in the creeks up that way. Near the Buteno saw mills is a small lake in which large mountain trout abound. Owing to the thickness of the timber, this lake is very hard to reach, consequently but few anglers are aware of its existence.

Last Saturday, Harvey W. Walter, the well known Court Stenographer and a companion paid a visit to the Lime Point fishing grounds, in less than two hours, succeeded in hooking over fifty pounds of large rock-cod.

Quite a number of amateur fishermen hired boats at the Fishermens Wharf on Sunday last, and sailed over to Alcatraz, where several large catches of blue cod were made. One man caught during the day eighty-seven fish weighing one hundred and thirty pounds.

THE KENNEL.

Dog owners are requested to send for publication the earliest possible notices of whelps, sales, names claimed, presentations and deaths in their kennels, in all instances writing plainly names of sire and dam and of grandparents, colors, dates and breed.

Mr. J. E. Lucas' (San Rafael) English setter bitch Bessie (Traynor's Fred—Locan's Gypsie) to Carl R. (Leicester—Dart), August 17th, 1889.

Dr. A. C. Davenport of Stockton, sends notices of sales of Cockers, under date of August 14th, and adds: "I have only been out four times after doves since the season opened, July 15th, but did not find many. However, I hear that the boys are doing better now. I saw three going out Sunday about noon, and heard on Monday that they killed eleven dozens. If so, they had a good shoot."

The five Great Danes imported by Mr. Albert Hoeppner passed into the heads of Mr. Perham W. Nahl, a notable artist, athlete and dog fancier, and puppies from them are advertised for sale by Mr. Nahl in another column. The youngsters are of good size, clean and healthy, and are offered at a nominal price.

Mr. C. M. Munhall, of Cleveland, O., who recently visited San Francisco, has just gained a victory in the courts of Cleveland which entitles him to the especial regard of fanciers everywhere. Mr. Munhall sued to prevent the arbitrary collection of a dog tax and the peremptory shooting of unlicensed dogs. Judge Noble granted a permanent injunction against shooting, holding that a man's dog was his property and could not be destroyed in an arbitrary way or without a day in court. Mr. Munhall is plucky, and we congratulate him upon the stand taken and upon his success.

The sales of pointers to Hawaiian sportsmen printed elsewhere, will be noted with special interest. The buyers, the Messrs. Wilder, are in a position to do the dogs justice, and it is within bounds to write that they have secured grandly bred animals. Roberta is a very fine, roomy, hearty bitch. The puppy is most fashionably bred on field lines. The buyers showed excellent judgment and knowledge of pointer strains when they selected their dogs, and we hope many more setters and pointers of equal quality will go to the Hawaiian Islands.

The breeding of Carl R. and Bessie, noted elsewhere, is probably the last visit that will be made by a Leicester—Dart. The race has been a noble one, and can be traced all through the English setter annals of America.

Elsewhere in this issue Mr. A. B. Truman offers the services of his champion Irish setter Mike T. at stud. Mike gets splendid puppies, and the opportunity is a good one for owners of good bitches. Irish setter puppies by Mike T. and out of peerless Lady Elcho T. are also offered. While in Los Angeles at the dog show recently, a gentleman remarked to us that in an experience of nearly forty years with Irish setters he had never seen the equal of Lady Elcho T. Mr. Truman breeds first class Irish setters and pointers, and his advertisement may be profitably consulted.

THE GUN.

Fine Work by Mr. Fay.

Some of the best trap shooting ever done was recently performed by Mr. Ed. Fay, ex-president of the State Sportsman's Association, and a leading member of the California Wing Shooting Club. The work was all done with a 12 bore, 9 lb. hammerless W. & C. Scott, built to order and full choked; 3¾ drams of No. 2 Eagle Duck, with 1⅛ oz. of chilled 8's in the right barrel and the same quantity of 7's in the left.

The scores were made at Bird's Point on three days, the bird being freshly caught for each shoot, and getting away in very lively style.

All the shooting was strictly to rule as to rise, time, bounds, scoring, etc., and the record is fully entitled to standing as the best made on the coast.

The second score, same conditions, shooting at 36 birds, was:

.....1 0 1 1 1 0 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1
1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1—34

On the third occasion, shooting at 28 birds, he scored:

.....1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 0 1 1 1 1 1
1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1—27

On each day all of the birds caught up, were shot off, under rigid conditions, and the total of the three scores 95 out of 101 bird is a splendid showing. It stamps Mr. Fay as a rarely good shot and is also convincing proof that he is, at last, perfectly fitted as to his gun.

With a Winchester Repeating Shot-Gun.

MONDAY, July 19th.—As far as I am aware, no account has ever been written, here, at any rate, of what a Winchester repeater can do in the field, says Editor Clements, of the London Shooting Times. This being so, and my being a progressist of the most pronounced and inquisitive type, I am going to try one, and with that object in view, Messrs. Kerr, of Queen Victoria street, are going to send me a five-shot 12-bore. I have my ammunition ready, 150 Schultze cartridges loaded with respectively No. 6 and No. 7, and with these I mean, on Thursday, to give the ducks a dusting. This is the first time I have tried a repeater on birds, and I am rather excited at the thought of its capabilities.

Will it be really useful? Shall I be able to put in a double shot now and then? Will the mechanism work well and quickly? Will the gun handle well and shoot hard?

The latter part is likely to be all right, for the firm guarantees issuing none but harddriving fullchoke guns, so the gun ought to be all right on that score. The next thing is the handling. Will it be clumsy or not?

On the whole I am pleasurably anticipating my experience of next Thusday, and in imagination I picture the fun of being able to put in five consecutive barrels, if necessary.

Well, we shall see.

WEDNESDAY.—The gun was sent to us by Messrs. Kerr, and we looked at it and examined its mechanism, handling it this way and that way to get used to it. The barrel is a bit long, but the gun is not heavy.

THURSDAY.—We started by the first train for our happy shooting ground where we arrived as fresh as a rose at about 9 30. Began operations in a thickly reeded "fleet" against the sea-wall. I had sent down a retriever over night and we soon set to work. As he was paddling by my side and I was up to knees in water, up got a duck with a great quack. Bang! Down he comes at about 40 yards range crippled. Went on and put the dog on to him, and he swam back with it. Number one.

At the report, a good deal of scurrying had taken place ahead, and in a second the water was rippled in every direction, then all was still, but an old drake flew up. Isquatted amongst the reeds, and as he flew back overhead, I let him have a barrel, he winced, I quickly jerked the lever, which threw the case out and placed another cartridge in, and by a fluke, for it was then a desperately long shot, I brought him to book. Number two. We then went along the "fleet," carefully working it, and the dog stood pointing. I put up a flapper, which went off with a great flutter, about 2yds. above the water. I gave him 30yds. law and floored him. Then another one got up, and I was ready in time for him, too. Then we got into the big reed bed and there it was very difficult to dislodge the rascals. We, however, got two more there.

Then I was very warm, for the day was excessively sultry, indeed a neighbor of mine who was shooting on the off side of the next "fleet" was, within half an hour of his beginning operations, taken very ill through the excessive heat of the day. Well, I felt oppressed, too, there was not a breath of wind stirring, and I was reeking with perspiration. So I sat down, mopped my head and neck, had a drink, and when a bit cooler I proceeded to tackling the next lot. Then I went in, had lunch and a smoke and went to the last "fleet," but a man who ought to have known better, was there on the wall firing at a gull and put up quite 40 or 50 ducks out of the pond!

When I went up towards this party he made himself scarce, and when I reached the wall I saw him with two other fellows in a boat about 200 yards away.

However, I found plenty of of birds, and got the biggest bag made on that day, as far as I could learn, in that part of Essex.

The gun worked exceedingly well. All you want is being used to the working of it, and then good execution can be done.

[As the experience of our piquant fellow editor, with the arm mentioned, extends, we suspect he will reach the conclusion long since arrived at by this scribe, which is that the Winchester Repeating Shot-gun is a rarely sound, well working and effective weapon. Ours has been tried exhaustively and whether at target for pattern and penetration or on game we do not know its equal. In practice we use but one load for all sorts of game, four drams of good powder and one ounce of soft No. 7's, and with that load we have often broken down wild geese at forty yards. A peculiarity of the gun is that it patterns well with all sizes of shot, and "shoots up" better than any gun we have ever owned. As to speed of manipulation that is a matter of practice, and with well loaded shells, such, for instance, as those prepared by the Selby Smelting and Lead Company on the Chamberlin machine, it is no unusual thing to kill four single birds of a bunch of sprigs. We congratulate Mr. Clements upon his introduction to the Winchester, and may intimate that he will find no demand upon the gun too severe.—FIELD ED.]

More about Mongolian Pheasants.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—Your valuable paper reached me yesterday, and I carefully note letters from J. T. Bowditch, Geo. H. Burnett and Henry Klippel. Now, since my last letter to you I have made a careful study of the Mongolian Pheasant, and have had the opinions and experiences of our several local sportsmen. Mr. Z. Job and the writer have spent a part of most every day since July 15th, in the field, and we had a good opportunity to note the habits of this bird, and we know from what we have seen that they are far from being a game bird. Mr. Job hunts over a fine Sensation pointer, and I have the pleasure of hunting over a fine Llewellin setter "Romeo" who has in his veins the blood of Ripple, Nellie, old Belton, Fannie, Count Derby, Jessica, Count Noble. There have been over 10,000 game birds killed over Romeo, Cal. quail, Bob White, ruffed grouse, woodcock, snipe and prairie chickens. The owner has hunted in California, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Kansas, Indian Territory and Oregon, and ought to know by this time what makes a game bird, and will any sportsman agree that a bird is game that will skulk and then run in cover a mile unless chased by a wild running dog and flushed hundreds of yards away? I have seen Sport and Romeo make hundreds of beautiful points, then road and point for several hundred yards, when up would go a pheasant from one to three hundred yards away, and if this kind of a bird won't make a dog unsteady what will. Then again, what sportsman wants to run several hundred yards at the top of his speed to keep up with a fast running dog for the sake of firing two loads at a pheasant sixty or eighty yards away.

The cry among our sportsmen is, kill the china pheasant, away with him and let us have our grouse, our quail and our ruffedgrouse as we used to have them and then when our dogs make a point we shall have the pleasure of seeing a game bird take wing. Now about the cock bird taking charge of the young after hatching to let the hen lay her second litter, I believe this to be all bosh, for Mr. Job and myself have seen hundreds of coveys with from three to twenty five in a covey, and from the size of chicks just hatched to almost full grown, and not in a single instance have we ever seen the old cock bird with the young, but most always the hen bird was with them; but we have found the cock bird since the season opened in the hills among the oaks or in thick cover and always alone. When I came to this valley I heard such a report among the farmers that the cock bird raised the young, but if such is the case I cannot find one sportsman in this valley that has seen the cock bird with the young. Within the past few days I have seen several coveys of pheasants, but a few days old and in every case the hen bird was with them. As to raising them by the domestic hen being a failure, this is another mistake, as there are several fine broods in this town hatched and raised by a common hen. Mr. F. DeNevin has one brood and Mr. J. Horning has a fine brood nearly full grown and quite tame. Some of the farmers are getting sick of them as they destroy lots of grain, they get on top of a shock and scratch like a domestic hen and the ground around will be covered with wheat. I know what that old sportsman J. K. Orr, would say after seeing this birds habits "the begger, he can teach a road runner, how to get out of a quarter section." As I said in my previous letter I should not dare to trust a young dog on this pheasant.

I had made arrangements to train a brace of English setter bitches for Thomas Johnson, owner of the celebrated Manitoba Kennels, Winfred, Manitoba, but after seeing it would be impossible to get good results with these birds, I have decided not to have them come. My advice to those who think of stocking with the Mongolian pheasant is to give them the "go by" and stock with the King of game birds, the cunning little Bob White, and the prairie chicken.

Brother sportsmen isn't it a pleasure when your dog comes to a stand to know you will have the pleasure of trying your good aim on a true game bird. Mr. Editor I have drawn this letter out pretty long, but I have tried to show this China pheasant up where he belongs, and you can give this letter to the waste basket or a place on the hook.

Yours respectfully,

C. A. LOUD.

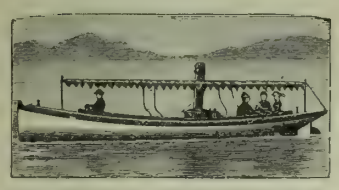
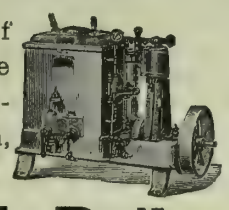
EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—The letters regarding the Mongolian pheasants, contained in your Aug. 10th issue of the BREEDER AND SPOTSMAN, I have read with much interest, and as you seem desirous of obtaining information from various sources I will give you my experience and views.

The Mongolian pheasant introduced into the Willamette Valley by Hon. O. N. Denny in 1882, as stated in the letter above referred to, comparatively speaking, is probably, with the exception of the wild turkey, the finest game bird in the United States to-day.



They are large, exceedingly palatable, very prolific, gamey and shy—and aside from the wild turkey is the only game bird I am aware of, that after reaching maturity has no terror for the pot-hunter—as one frequently hears that interesting specimen exclaim after an unsatisfactory hunt, "that bird has come to stay, you bet."

The fully matured birds weigh as high as 5 pounds each for cocks, and 3½ to 4 pounds for hens, from point of beak to end of tail, the male bird measures from 30 to 40 inches, and the female from 25 to 40 inches.



They range over the entire country from the hills and woods to the open fields and swamps, single and in flocks. Although closely resembling the prairie chicken in habit, they seem also to possess the shyness of the guinea hen, and the courage of the black-breasted game—which latter bird the Mongolian pheasant cock resembles in beak, eye, thigh, breast plumage and carriage.

During the summer and autumn weeks they are usually found feeding in the open fields during the morning and evening hours—and along the streams and cool covers during the warmer hours of the day. In the spring, fall and winter months they are found everywhere, and most unexpectedly, often even among the wild ducks in wet marshes, and in the farmers barn yards where they seldom fail to assert their supremacy. They will not lie to the dog, but run under cover, and only rise to wing when come onto suddenly, or pressed too closely, and for want of cover—their flight is rapid and graceful, and the bird that is fired at and not killed it is impossible to approach again for many days, within 200 yards.

In the early spring they pair and as soon as the warm days begin they make their nests in the same manner as do the game prairie hen and quail. The setting consists of from 16 to 24 eggs. The eggs are dark grey in color, and in size are about 1¼in. longest diam. to ⅞ inches in shortest diam. The young bird when hatched is therefore very small, though it makes up in vitality what it lacks in size—as I have known of birds living and being exceedingly lively for four days without having ever tasted food or drink. After the brood is several days old, the hen very wisely delivers them over to the tender care of her gay cavalier, who doubtless by this time is finding life rather monotonous, and possibly considers marriage a failure. She then devotes her attention to the rearing of a second brood which in due course of time is accomplished to her perfect satisfaction, the two broods then range together until fully grown, often times late in the season more small birds are hatched giving rise to the belief that frequently the third brood is raised by the same pair—be that as it may, notwithstanding the fact that many have been shot, and many nests are yearly destroyed by farmers doing their spring plowing and sowing, the increase has been simply wonderful, as the birds are now found all over the entire Willamette Valley in great numbers.

It is currently reported by many, that the Mongolian pheasant destroys the nests and kills the young of the native game birds. This is doubtless a grave mistake. In this section the quail has been gradually disappearing for years prior to the introduction of the pheasant.

The grouse do not nest in the open fields as heretofore more I imagine on account of timidity than any thing else. They still nest in the groves along the foothills, and this spring I found a grouse sitting on a nest containing about a dozen eggs of her own laying and 5 eggs laid by a Mongolian pheasant hen—which all hatched and grew to maturity together. The nest was underneath a fir bush at the edge of an opening, and instead of destroying the nest of the grouse, in this instance at least, they seemed extremely desirous of assisting the mother grouse in the successful performance of her household duties.

It is not a difficult task to raise them in yards, as many suppose. They cannot be domesticated, however, but may be crossed with ordinary fowls, though I fail to see the advantage gained by such a cross.

The first few days after being hatched, the birds must be fed on larve, bugs, etc., which can be obtained with a little care and attention. After a few day's care in this manner, they may be handled the same as domestic chicks. They soon learn the call of their foster mother, and rush for food at her call as eagerly as do ordinary chickens. I have at present two pairs which are three-fourths grown that I have raised from eggs this season. A neighbor also has six others which he raised, so I speak from experience.

Although I fear you will find this letter rather lengthy, I cannot close without stating that those who best know are unanimous in the opinion that their quality as a table delicacy is unsurpassed by any of our native birds, not even excepting the delicious "Bob White" of the eastern States, which claim, if true, should be a sufficient recommendation.

CORVALLIS, Or., August 16, '89. F. J. DE NEVEN.

The Selby Smelting and Lead Company has done much to foster interest in trap shooting by offering so many rich trophies for competition. The company rightly stipulates that in shooting for its prizes none but "Standard" cartridges shall be used. The ammunition is the very best procurable, and should be universally adopted. For evenness and power the cartridges loaded by the Chamberlin machine have no equals.

Bakersfield visitors have been plenty in San Francisco recently. Last week, Mr. H. L. Borgwardt, Jr., and Mr. D. A. Leonard spent three or four days about the city, calling upon sportsmen friends. This week, Mr. C. E. Lechner has pervaded the resorts where shooting and fishing men most do congregate. All of the visitors are most enjoyable, and the general regret is, that they do not come oftener and stay longer.

The McMinnville, Oregon, Telephone-Register, in answer to our queries addressed to Mr. Chas. Woods, of McMinnville, about the pheasant, says: "The Mongolian pheasants were introduced here a few years ago, and if we remember rightly three pairs of them were turned loose on the prairie near Albany, where they multiplied and replenished the earth in good style. Their fecundity, hardiness and gameness are far superior to our native grouse or pheasant. Upon their introduction into this state the legislature passed a law protecting them from the gun and palate of the sportsmen, for a period of six years, which time will not expire for two years yet. Therefore the remaining question can only be answered from hear-say. They are lively birds and a dog must be quick or they will not "lie.". They frequent open fields and in fact they are becoming very plentiful all over the valley. They are said to be fine eating. There has been some talk among the farmers of petitioning to have the protecting law repealed but it has not been done."

Messrs. Frank E. Coykendall and Joseph Delmas, prominent sportsmen and trap shots of San Jose, returned a few days ago from a five months jaunt through England, France, Germany, Italy, Turkey, Russia, and nobody knows where else. While in England they examined the famous trap grounds about London, and visited the gun manufactories of Birmingham, having three hammerless guns built there. In Birmingham they hunted up Mr. John P. Clabrough, of the firm of Clabrough, Golcher & Co., of this city, and were most courteously treated by him. They report John to be in splendid health, full of business, and prospering, but anxious nevertheless to be in California. At Monaco Messrs. Coykendall and Delmas saw some trap shooting, and declare it to be the hardest ground they have seen. Rarely has an hour been so pleasantly and profitably passed as one spent on Tuesday last in listening to Coykendall's stories about things as he saw them through bright, alert American eyes.

The meeting of the State Sportsman's Association begins at San Jose on Wednesday, October 10th, next and will continue through Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Plenty of good live birds will be on hand, and there will also be shooting at artifical targets. The official announcements will be sent out on September 1st. It is probable that two matches will be listed for each day except Wednesday. On that day the great inter-club contest for the magnificent trophy presented by the Selby Smelting and Lead Company will be shot for by teams of five men from clubs of various parts of coast. The match will be the greatest ever shot in California and will attract a large attendance both of expert shots, and of sportsmen who will enjoy seeing the representative men of the Pacific Coast compete. The official programme will contain a full statement of the conditions of the Selby medal shoot. Two other medal contests will be shot off. That for the Diamond medal of the Association and that for the Selby medal representing the championship of Central California. San Jose is just the place for a great trap meeting being easily reached, a delightful city and the hotel accommodations being ample.

Messrs. Clabrough, Golcher & Co., at 630 Montgomery street, have had mounted and placed on exhibition a monstrous eagle, which has a little history. At the last field trials Ed. Lechner winged the bird one day and carried it to town in the evening. After dinner the field trialers gathered in a room set apart for their use, and the eagle, which was hardly injured at all, was examined. The bird was finally presented to one of the men, who took it into the yard and clubbed it awhile with a stick of firewood, finally reducing it to quiescence, when it was taken back and laid upon a bench beside Mr. Fred A. Taft. The talk was absorbing, and no one noticed signs of returning animation in the eagle until Taft jumped and remarked several remarks that no type in this office can adequately present. The bird had rolled over and fixed its talons in poor Taft's tender flesh. The pair broke away at last, and Taft offered to kill the bird artistically, using a penknife blade. He inserted the blade through the eagle's ear and bored around in its head for some time, finally pronouncing it dead. It was then sacked and shipped by W. F. & Co. to San Francisco to a taxidermist. When the owner called at the stuffers some days afterward he was urgently advised to kill all birds before they were shipped. The eagle had revived, and in its struggles had sadly ruffled its plumage. That eagle has the distinction of being the only living creature that ever drew blood from Fred Taft.

On Tuesday last, Deputy Fish Commissioner W. S. Kittle, chanced to see a Wells, Fargo delivery wagon, upon which were four deer which looked like does. He stopped the wagon, ascertained the name of the consignee, Mr. John Laws, on Clay St., and at once called on Mr. Laws. When the deer were delivered Mr. Laws refused to receive them, because in his opinion they were does. The matter was mentioned to Deputy Fish Commissioner Fred. P. Callundan, and with his usual directness that gentleman at once began an investigation. He ascertained that the deer had been shipped by O. R. Ohlsen from Yoncalla, Douglas Co., Oregon. Mr. Laws showed Mr. Callundan a press copy of his order to Mr. Ohlsen, in which he expressedly requested that bucks only be sent and that evidences of sex be not removed from them. The law of California, prohibits transporting or having in possession "any deer or deer skin or hide from which evidences of sex has been removed" and the natural presumption is that such possession should be considered prima facie evidence of guilt, but as construed in the local police court, it is incumbent upon the prosecution to prove the place of killing. Wells, Fargo & Co., have always been fully in sympathy with those who tried to enforce the game laws and agents of the company within the State are forbidden to receive game out of season or of kinds, the killing of which is prohibited. It is apparent that the instructions to not extend beyond the State line, which is to be deplored, for the reason that the public carrying of does killed outside the State through California, incites local poachers to kill in the hope of reaching a market unmolested.

Mr. E. M. Cooper, general superintendent of the Pacific department of Wells, Fargo & Co., when interviewed upon the matter under discussion, intimated his desire to observe the game law strictly and also of his intention to prevent further transportation in California all sorts of game, the carrying of which is forbidden.

The Fresno Meeting.

Agricultural District 21, has a wide awake body of directors and they are pushing the affairs of the association along with a will. Last week, S. N. Straube Esq., was in this city, and from him we learned that the new grand stand is almost finished, and when so will be the handsomest in the State. The old one was pulled down completely and an entirely new building erected, giving seating capacity for several thousand spectators. Frank Baldwin, manager of the grounds, takes a pardonable pride in them and has devoted all his time, since returning from the East in preparing them for the opening day, Tuesday, October 1st. Although the $20,000 running race did not fill, the directors have arranged to give $12,000 in purses and premiums. Three of the guaranteed purses have already filled, and three stake races have closed, the balance will close on September 21st. They are as follows:

Running—Mile dash; for all ages; $25 entrance, $10 forfeit, $200 added. Second horse to receive $50.

Pacing Race—Purse $800; free for all.

Evening Expositor Stakes—For two-year-olds. Running. Five-eighths of a mile dash; $10 forfeit, $200 added; second horse to receive $50. Winner of any race at State Fair to carry five pounds extra, if winner at State Fair and Stockton, seven pounds extra. Maidens allowed ten pounds. Racine barred.

Trotting—2:27 class. Purse $500.

Running—Three-quarter mile dash; for all ages; $25 entrance, $10 forfeit, $200 added; second horse to receive $50.

Running—Three-quarter mile and repeat; for all ages; $15 entrance, $7.50 forfeit, $100 added; second horse to receive $25.

The association have also put aside $1,000 for extra racing, so there is every prospect of a successful meeting. Hay and straw will be furnished free to all competitors. The Directors announce that they will live up to the American Association rules, three to enter, two to start.

The Napa Fair.

At last the first meeting of the circuit is over and comparison can now be made by former years. Examination shows that this will be the great sensational year for trotting, as already there have been any quantity to go into the thirty list, and never before has there been such an aggragation of speed shown as that given last week at Napa. The directors all worked like beavers to make the annual meeting a success and too much credit cannot be given them. There was also a very important factor that played a prominent part in the result, and helped the entries materially, and that was the well known fact that the track is one of the fastest in the State, and owners desirous of gaining records hastened to compete for the purses, not so much on account of the money offered, as the fond anticipation that records might be made for their horses. There is no money consideration that could repay the owner of Alexander Button, if the get of his great horse, had not made two wonderful heats, Tom Ryder 2:20¼ and Belle Button 2:20. The value of Sidney is enhanced greatly by the performance of Gold Leaf 2:11¼, while Piedmont can now be rated as one of the great sires, the speed demonstrated by his progeny proving that he will in the course of time rank with the best in the country; already he has placed four in the list this year, and the end is not yet. The sons of Electioneer are stamping their young with the same great speed that has made the Palo Alto premier so noted, and those who have Anteeo, Eros, Elector and Antevolo colts may well feel proud, for they are all showing up well.

The attendance each day was very large and kept on increasing from the first, until on Saturday there was over seven thousand persons on the grounds, the grand stand, betting ring, and every point of vantage, being filled by those intent on witnessing the great contests, which were taking place every few minutes.

The ladies present were just as enthusiastic as the male portion of the gathering, and when Mr. Salisbury's great pacer had accomplished the feat for which she was started, handkerchiefs, bonnets and parasols, were waved with a will, which was in perfect keeping with the wild cheering indulged in by those with lusty lungs who made the hills reecho their loud hurrahs. That one scene was a sight never to be forgotten, Messrs. Salisbury, Valensin and McDowell being equally lionized, while the Napa track came in for its full share of praise. Every one was happy and the magnificent performance was the talk of the town, nothing else being thought of.

The principal hotel proprietors agreed among themselves that prices should not be raised during the week, and the association ably seconded their efforts, by announcing in the daily press that any person found charging extra rates during the meeting would be published as extortionists, this having the effect of keeping down imposition upon the many visitors who attended the Fair. The proprietors of the Napa and Palace Hotels did all in their power to accommodate their guests, and are deserving of patronage from the travelling public.

The president, L. L. James, vice-president Loeber and secretary Conkling, cannot be praised too highly for the great amount of work performed by them, nor must be forgotten the balance of the Board of Directors, who as one gentleman expressed it, had all worked like harvest hands, and their labor was plainly visible, for not a thing was wanting. Especial pains had been taken with the track, and trainers and drivers were alike loud in laudation of its exceeding great speed. The accommodation in the grand stand was hardly up to the requirements, but already the directors have purchased additional ground and in the near future the building will be set back and greatly enlarged.

Extra stalls were erected, and many of them were used, the hay and straw so liberally donated by the board was of the best and no complaint on that score was heard from any quarter.

The BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN has confidently asserted for several weeks that 1889 would far surpass any former year in brilliancy, but we are candid enough to confess that such a revelation was not looked for as that produced at Napa. Just think of a two-year-old record of 2:24 (Fleet), a three-year-old walk over in 2:18 (Lillian Wilkes) and a four-year-old pacing record of 2:11¼.

There is not an Eastern track on the "big circuit" that can compare with it. Then for another comparison; we find seventy-one heats trotted in the average time of less than 2:28½, including the district yearling, two-year-old, and the Special race in which the public wished to see Old May Howard, who has a record of 2:24 and must be almost twenty-four years old, although she failed to show better than 2:50¾; we include all that, and then find that about ninety per cent of the starters came from six counties in the State. Where is there another meeting in the country that can make such a showing? The Eastern journals have made a great to-do about the Cleveland showing, but it falls into insignificence as compared with this. Thirteen new comers are added to the 2:30 list and any quantity have lowered their previous records. We do not care to say that this will surpass any other meeting in the State for we look to see it duplicated if not beaten at Oakland or at Sacramento, with a slight chance that Santa Rosa or Petaluma may equal it.

Goodwin's Turf Guide.

The gentlemen who established the Turf Guide filled a long felt want when they decided to issue it in fortnightly numbers, and it is impossible to guess what the average race goer would do without it, now that it has become so very complete. There was a time when we had to paddle along in darkness, but since the advent of the volumes, it is so natural to refer to them for almost any knowledge that is required in matters appertaining to the turf, that it would be a hard matter to do without them. We have received a letter from the proprietors which it may be as well to publish in its entirety, but we feel assured that the public will not grumble at the increase of cost, as they receive so much benefit from the work:

OFFICE OF THE OFFICIAL TURF GUIDE,
241 BROADWAY,
NEW YORK, AUGUST 19, 1889.

DEAR SIR:—

"L'homme propose, Dieu dispose."

The truthfulness of this adage is particularly applicable in our present case:

Some four or five years ago we determined, at whatever cost, never to deviate from the price of 50 cents which we then established for the semi-monthly editions of our Official Turf Guide. As you are well aware, we have never wavered from this figure, nor did we believe then, that circumstances would so fashion themselves as to compel us to break this rule. Of course we looked into the future as best we could, and saw the possibilities and probabilities of increase in racing, but one's wildest imaginations could hardly have foreshadowed the mighty strides which this great sport of kings has taken. In any event we did not believe its rapid growth would be of such proportions as are now developed.

This wonderful advancement has very naturally brought with it as far as we are concerned, much greater and heavier labor, and of course many additional and heavy expenses. All these we have encountered stoically and with good, but gradually weakening, grace, until we are eventually forced to the wall and compelled to give in to the inevitable—as you will see by the No. 7 Guide, which we take pleasure in sending you with this, it contains no less than 500 pages of closely printed matter which we put before the public at 50 cents. We do not believe there is another publication in the country that can show such a parallel. Our "Annual" of 1884 was not any larger. Before the end of the present season we shall issue four more semi-monthly editions to each, of which will be added from 40 to 50 pages more than the present number. To attempt to sell them at 50 cents and leave us a fair margin of profit is simply an impossibility—it cannot be done.

We would that the public, like yourself, understood what it means, the compilation and issuing of a book such as we publish; our labor, etc., would then not only be thoroughly appreciated, but this lengthy explanation would be entirely unnecessary. In any event, we believe the general public will fully understand our position in the matter, and that the raising the price of our Guide from 50 cents to 75 cents for the ensuing four numbers has been thrust upon us through force of circumstances over which, as the saying goes, we have no control. Very truly yours,

GOODWIN BROS.

Grim's Gossip.

A gun by E. M. Reilly, London, is offered for sale in the advertising columns.

R. Porter Ashe is reputed to have won very large amounts on his stable since going East.

Sensation, the California gelding, now on the Eastern Circuit, managed to win third money at Poughkeepsie.

By telegraph we learn that B. C. Holly has sold the great pacing mare Yolo Maid to Marcus Daly, of Anaconda, Montana.

Henry Gore of Sierraville is training a horse called Captain Jack, which, if all reports are true, can beat a "20" clip all to pieces.

The Quincy Directors are still hard at work on their track at Rockwell Park, and hope to have it superior to any in the Mountain districts.

Take a careful look over the entries of the State Fair, there have been quite a number of corrections made which may interest you.

It is rather a remarkable thing that every one who played the races at Napa lost, or says he lost. Surely some one must have netted handsomely.

Mr. Salisbury, is authority for the statement that Direct will trot next year without toe weights. At present the game little black, has four-ounce weights to carry.

The Pleasanton folks who are interested in horse races, are endeavoring to arrange for several days' sport this fall, after the regular circuit finishes.

When Sorrento was taken out of the hands of Buchannan he weighed less than 750 pounds. Tom Sottridge is the new trainer, and he has the colt now, which weighs about 900.

D. J. McCarty has had very bad luck with his runners this season, but what he has lost on them he has more than made up on the trotters which he took East to sell. They have nearly all been disposed of at good prices.

The Bay District track is being covered with a coating of clay, which will improve it considerably. There is also a rumor that Chas. Marvin will have the direction of the fall trotting meeting.

Geo. A. Doherty of the Indian Valley Stock Farm, had at Napa last week a very beautiful filly named Sparkle, for which he hopes to obtain a record before the circuit closes. Victor looks all right, and "Hayseed" feels sure of lowering his record.

Harry Agnew has finally decided to settle in California again, and is looking around for a good breeding farm. His long residence in Honolulu has not changed the love he has for the old State, and his many friends will be glad to hear that he will once more take up his residence here.

There was foaled on the ranch of M. C. Lazier, near Marysville, says the Appeal, on Monday last, a mule colt which measured 3 feet 3 inches in height, 2 feet 5 inches around the girth, and 6 inches around the knee joint. Mr. Lazier wants to know from mule raisers whether or not it is a "good one."

Mr. Gifford, the owner of Atto Rex, is highly indiguant that I gave our readers notice two weeks ago, to look out for that good son of Attorney down the circuit. Now then, Mr. Gifford, here is some news for you; in my estimation there are two horses that will win first and second money from you before the circuit is over.

That old and reliable driver and trainer, Jas. Dustin, has had unusually bad luck this season. Maggie E. and Almont Patchen are both in the veterinary's hands for treatment, the poor horses having been thrown down in the cars on their way to Napa. Gus Wilkes has cut his quarter badly, but still I sincerely trust that J. R. will win him a big pot of money, and the bay gelding is just about good enough to do it.

The familiar face of Dr. Burwell was everywhere discernable on the Napa track. "Doc" is so well known from Siskiyou to San Diego that it is needless to state that he is one of Butte County's noted politicians, and he was at Napa to look after the interests of the Reavis stable. Frank Coombs, M. M. Estee and others of the body politic, evidently made the Doctor's stay very pleasant, for his cherry laugh could be heard from early morning till late at night.

Messrs. Holly, Daly & Green leave Montana after the Butte meeting for California. They expect to start first at Oakland They being the following: Favonia, Yolo Maid, Mascot, St. Patrick, Melrose, Valentine, Pink, San Diego, Frank, Senator, Hattie D, Prodigal, Kafir Lord Byron, and a colt by Electioneer, dam by Geo. Wilkes; filly by Electiondam Manette; filly by Guy Wilkes, dam a Belmont mare, and some other youngsters, 23 in all.

There are many who made Gold Leaf's time 2:12, and some a little under, but not quite as low as the timers gave to the judges. It is only due to them to say that one of their number asked permission to go into the judges' stand, as they would then be over the wire. The request was granted, and the time taken separately was, G. Valensin 2:11 3 5, Mr. Mayhew 2:11¼, and F. L. Coombs 2:11 flat. The medium was taken, and Mr. Mayhew's time hung out. I saw any quantity of watches which were stopped at 2:11, and many from that up to 2:12.

Meeting a director of the Oakland Association, the question was asked "What sort of a meeting will you have this year?"

"Meeting! why we will have the best meeting ever held in the State. The entries warrant that, and we are going to leave no stone unturned to make it superior to the State Fair. The track will be under the personal supervision of Col. P. A. Finigan, who has been appointed a special committee of one, to see that everything appertaining to the course is in perfect condition. He has received Carte Blanche to spare no expense and we are all satisfied that the work could not have been placed in better hands. Each member of the board has some special department to superintend, and we feel confident that the Oakland meeting will surpass anything ever held in the State."

The new and beautiful grounds of the New York Jockey Club were opened to the public on Tuesday last, with a programme rarely equalled. The first race of the day fell to R. Porter Ashe's fleet Geraldine, a California bred, and owned mare. She making five eigths of a mile in the hitherto unprecedented time of one minute. The best time on record, of which there is any authenticity, prior to this was that made by Sam Harper, at Jerome Park, on October 2nd, of last year, 1:00¼. Kittie Pease is also reputed to have made it in a minute flat, at Dallas Texas, November 2nd, 1887, but the track is a short one, and when asked to make affidavits as to the genuiness of the record, the judges refused to do so.

D. M. Reavis of Chico, had the Napa 2:50 class purse completely at his mercy, if ill fortune had not overtaken the stable. His entry Vic. H. is by Blackbird 2:22, dam Ellen Swigert. I saw the mare when Maguire, the trainer, brought her down from Chico, and on her general appearance, made up my mind that she would show a clean pair of heels to any horse, mare, or gelding, that could not touch 2:20. When in her work, I was more than ever convinced that her speed entitled her to the highest honors, but pneumonia set in, and for several days, it was problematical whether she would survive or not. However, owing to the very best of care, the mare is now out of danger, and I hope to see her on the track before the season closes. In the same stable are many other good ones, and it will be surprising if there are not lots of money won by them this year.

I had to laugh at the cheek displayed by one party at Napa, who entered a horse in a trotting race, and won second money. When his driver went to the stand for the premium, he was informed that there was a forfeit of $50 against the gentleman from last year, and that the amount would be deducted from the winnings. A tempest in a teapot was the result, and it finally ended with the party declaring that although he owned the horse, he was not interested in his trotting qualities, and therefore had nothing to do with the gains accruing from the race. He was informed that the society had not placed him in the forfeit list, on account of his large wordly possessions, and on the supposition that he was perfectly responsible for such a small amount, but he cooly informed the Vice President of the association that their conditions stated that the entrance money must accompany the nomination, and therefore, he did not consider that he was obligated to the society. The money was deducted, and pertectly right to.

At auction, last Saturday morning, two of Modesto's young men purchased an old horse for $13. As soon as the purchase was made it struck the young men that in the purchase they had assumed the control of something hardly worth owning, so they concluded to raffle the animal off. By evening 25 chances, at $1 each, had been disposed of. The winner groved to be a member of the demi monde, who also was as anxious to get rid of the horse as those from whom she obtained it. She instructed the men to resell chances at 50 cent each and give the proceeds to a poor and deserving widow. Forty-five chances were soon sold and the winner proved to be George Montgomery, Charles Hall being the thrower of the winning dice Montgomery, to be generous, donated the horse to Hall's boy in spite of the protests of the parent. A compromise was finally agreed upon by Montgomery purchasing a ton of hay and donating the same to Hall on condition that he would accept the animal as a present for his little son. To-day the horse is contentedly eating the hay in the barn of its new owner.—News.

The races at the Seabright track at Long Beach were well attended Saturday afternoon, says the Los Angeles Tribune. There were two starters in the free-for-all trot, Daisy W. and Pendennis. Daisy W. won, but it took five heats to decide the event. At the conclusion of the fourth heat the judges substituted drivers, but this was unnecessary, as the final heat proved.

Daisy W.	2	1	2	1	1
Pendennis	1	2	1	2	2

The 300-yards running dash between Fetterman's Maud, Bland's Flea and Machado's black filly resulted in a dead heat between Maud and Flea in 17 seconds. Maud won the run off in the same time.

The three-eights mile and repeat was captured by Tom Poco in two straight heats in 40 and 38½ seconds respectively. Lady Seabright was Tom Poco's only competitor. Poco carried 155 pounds and Seabright 120.

Names Claimed.

Mountain Rose, for light chestnut filly, star in forehead, left hind foot white, foaled April 26, 1887, by Rosewood, dam Jenny Lind by Ironclad.

Bloucher Boy, for bay horse colt, no white, foaled April 20, 1889, by Daly 5341, dam Jenny Lind by Ironclad. The mare has been stinted to Secretary, he by Director.

I claim the name of Sweetbrier for a gray yearling filly by Coligny, dam Kate Woodward by Eugene Casserly.

A Record Broken.

The new Westchester course seems to have started off in a lucky vein. On the first day of the meeting, Geraldine ran five-eighths of a mile in the even minute, placing a mark that is beyond doubt opposite her name. Now the telegraph informs us that Green Morris' great colt Tipstaff has added fresh laurels to his masters chaplet by winning a three-quarter mile race in 1:12, knocking a second off the hitherto best time on record, and beating such crack sprinters as Volunteer and Emotion. The name of the owner must not be confounded with the gentlemen who built the new track, as they are not the same. Tipstaff is a son of imp. Rayon d'Or, or imp Kantaka, dam Verdict by imp Leamington. As a two-year-old he started eleven times, only earning brackets once, and that when he won the Sapling Stakes at Monmouth Park, on Saturday, July 28, running away from a large field of horses, among whom were Sorrento, Ganymede and the far famed Faverdale colt. Prior to last Monday he has started fourteen times this year, winning five times, his most notable victory being on the second day of the Brooklyn meeting, when he met and defeated Eolian, Fordham, Bell d'Or, Jay F. Dee, Khaftan and Glory.

A Vacancy in the Park Commission.

About five weeks ago the Breeder and Sportsman published exclusively that within a short time one of the Park Commissioners would resign. We were aware of the fact at the time, but could not publish the name of our authority; however, now the statement comes that Gen. W. H. Dimond resigned two weeks ago, and that Commissioners Hammond and Austin are looking around to select a suitable successor to Gen. Dimond. A great deal of opposition has been shown in the past to any improvements suggested by friends of the people—for it must be remembered that the people own the Park—but the old fossils have had their day, and must now give way to the inevitable. A number of enterprising citizens are endeavoring to have a meeting of prominent business men at an early day next week to suggest the name of some prominent property holder as a suitable candidate for the position. San Francisco has grown to be the principal city of the Pacific Coast, with a constantly increasing population, and it occupies to-day the same position to the West that New York city does to the East. Within the past few years the authorities of the Eastern metropolis have discovered how lax the ancients were in not providing breathing room for the poor. Within a decade the aldermen of the Empire city have had to buy immense tracts of land and set them out at enormous cost; in addition to this they have laid out driving lanes for the use of the middle class, who are, in the great majority as taxpayers. In New York, on any bright afternoon, the immense avenues leading to or from Central Park can be seen thickly covered with vehicles, all of the occupants being out to take an airing and show what their horses can do Among the number one can see the butcher, the capitalist, the grocer, the broker, the baker, the newpaper man, in fact every occupation imaginable is represented, and all enjoying the exhilarating sport. "Who could imagine such a conglomeration?" says the antiquated moss-back, but still such is the case. The Dwyer Bros, the Vanderbilts, the Thurbers or Mr. Whyland, a Knapp or a Work, Mr. Shults and one of the Bonners, fill out the list to prove the statement, and we can have the same thing here in San Francisco if the Commissioners will stick to their pledges. Every man in this city who owns a horse of any speed is desirous of taking it out occasionally and airing it on the road. With an open drive, such as Harlem lane, the wish could be gratified, but as it is at present there is nowhere for the masses to drive What we want and mean to have is the speed track, subscribed and paid for by private donation, which, when built was allowed to go to waste owing to the negligence of the Park officials, who have not carried out the wishes of the people. Now it is absolutely necessary that some one should be selected that will look after the interests of those who have subscribed ten of thousands of dollars toward a driving lane and at the same time look after the interest of the taxpayer, and the gentlemen who will meet next week to agitate the question, may be depended on to name a suitable person, one that will do justice to all concerned.

Will you please give me, through your valuable paper, the best remedy of epizootic. I have several valuable mares, and as some of them have it, I thought I would try some other remedy than the old one I have been using.

Answer.—As there are several diseases, the symptoms of which are similar to those of the so-called epizootic, which literally translated means something upon an animal, therefore it is impossible to give you any definite line of treatment unless you will enumerate some of the symptoms exhibited by your mares, when I will be pleased to give your query further consideration.

Two Standard bred Colts,

BRED BY

CALVIN H. FREW.

First.

AGNES FREW, a filly foaled April 7, 1888, at San Diego. She is of a dark chestnut color, body and legs; no white, except stripe on face. She was 16 months old Aug. 7th, and her last monthly record of weight and height showed her to be 55 inches high, and to weigh 787 pounds, with a girth of 6⅜ inches, and 18½ inches around the forearm. How is that for a trotter only 16 months old? In conformation and general proportion she is admirably built, with wonderfully good hind quarters, wide hips, good cannon bones, exceptionally good hoofs, and fine flat knees. She is sound all over, a rare beauty, and the best judges predict that she will show great speed and be the mother of many fast trotters She is halter and bridle broke, and stands without tieing while being groomed.

Her pedigree is extra. She was sired by Woodlake at Paxton, Ills. He by Woodford's Mambrino. Sire's first dam was Hager; she by Alexander's Abdallah. Hager was the mother of the great Countersign. Hager's dam was by Downing's Bay Messenger. Hager's second dam was by Sir Archy. Alexander's Abdallah sired the peerless Goldsmith Maid and five others that made in better than 2:30 Also sired twelve stallions that sired eighty-six trotters in better than 2:30; also sired nineteen dams that produced twenty trotters in better than 2:30.

Gay, the dam of Agnes Frew, was sired by John Bright. He by that matchless stallion Volunteer. He is the sire of St. Julien, who is Gay's half uncle. Gay resembles him so much that strangers who were acquainted with him at first sight of Gay took her for St. Julien. Volunteer, among horsemen, has a national reputation, so needless to follow his pedigree.

Gay is a dark bright bay color; black mane, tail and legs. A powerfully built animal of great force and agility. She is fast, but was never tracked or trained. Her dam was Fashion; she by a Kentucky thoroughbred stallion. In fifty or more races Fashion took first prize or first money. She was a wonder. I owned her when I bred Gay. Fashion was bred by A. J. Reed of Irish Grove, Ill. Her dam was a high bred Hambletonian.

These statements are not guess s, but susceptible of proof, and can be relied on as a verity. I will part with her for $1,000. It is a great bargain, a rare opportunity.

Second.

I will sell said GAY'S STALLION COLT, foaled March 16, 1889, in San Diego, Cal. It is a seal brown color, with black mane and tail. On each of three feet some white, and a small spot in forehead. It has an extra good body, finely muscled up all around, closely coupled, and got a short back, with fine hips. When foaled it measured 36½ inches high, at 1 month 39½ inches high, and weiged 108 lbs. At 4 months old, 47 inches high, and weighed 340 pounds. Last month both colts have grown rapidly, and they are beauties. It was sired by Alert, he by Atherton. Alert's dam was the famous Penoda.

OSSIDINE

KALAMAZOO, Mich., Sept. 15, 1888.

GENTLEMEN:—We have used Ossidine for the past two years and consider it invaluable for Sprung Tendons, Curbs, Ringbone and Spavins; there is nothing equals it; and for us it effected a permanent cure where firing failed, although perfo med by one of the most successful veterinarians on the continent. We have recommended it to others with like success, and believe it has more merit than any blister ever used.

Very respectfully yours, S. A. BROWNE & Co., Prop's.

This scientific preparation is an absolute cure for all bony or callous lumps on horses, and is a more powerful absorbent than "firing," without creating the slightest blemish. After a few applications the excrescence is so palpably reduced that even the skeptical frankly acknowledge that it is by far the most valuable outward remedy for horses ever invented.

The ONLY preparation in the world that will remove a 'Bone Spavin after it has become ossified.

Price $3.00 per Large Bottle,

Owner of Eole, St Saviour, Eolist, etc., says: I have long used it in my stables, and find it to be all that is claimed for it in removing callous and unnatural bony growths, without leaving the slightest blemish. From my experience, I most strongly recommend the use of Ossidine, and feel that it is a necessary adjunct to every stable. Yours respectfully,

SANTA ROSA.

By Our Special Commissioner.

Friday, the fourth day of the meeting, found the same small attendance which characterized the week, and though the entries were good, the interest taken by the meagre assemblage was small. The day was begun with a mile dash. Bruce Cockrill's b m Daisy D., ridden by Narvice at 115 pounds, and W. L. Appleby's b c Wild Oats, ridden by Hitchcock at 107 pounds, being the starters. In the overnight betting Wild Oats was the favorite, but at the track before the race the tip went around that the mare was "out for the stuff," and after that she sold at about even money with the horse. The colt was not in it. The mare got the best of the send off, and went around the turn and into the backstretch with the colt at her flank At the half she was half a length to the good. At the lower turn Hitchcock called on the colt, but he could not respond, and though he got the whip and steel there was no run in him, and the mare came on and won as she pleased in 1:43.

2:50 Class—Trotting.

First Heat—The second event was the betting race of the day. San Mateo's ch m Hazel Wilkes, La Siesta Ranch's b m Wanda, J. Cochran's ch m Allarita, H. B. Starr's br m Flora Belle and A. C. Dietz' b h Ringwood came out in the 2:50 class. The talent went their full length on Hazel Wilkes, putting her favorite at $30, Flora Belle having very good backing at $11, Ringwood having some backers at $6, and the field of Wanda and Allarita selling steadily at $5 and $6. In the first heat they were strung out around the turn in one, two, three order, Flora Belle in front, Wanda second, Hazel third, Allarita fourth, and Ringwood fifth. The latter was sent off in a break. They got into the backstretch in this order. Half way down Hazel Wilkes broke, and the heat was fought out by Wanda and Flora Belle. Flora led easily until just past the half, when she broke, and Wanda went to the front. At the three-quarters Wanda was well away from Flora, who was being collared by Hazel Wilkes. Both Hazel Wilkes and Flora made a faint try at catching Wanda, but she had too much lead, and they let her come in easy in 2:28, Flora getting second, Hazel Wilkes close up to her for third, and Allarita and Ringwood strung out in fourth and fifth place.

Second Heat—The confidence in Hazel's ability to win did not wane, and she sold readily for $25 to $7 for Flora Belle, $5 for the field, and $3 for Ringwood. When the bell tapped Wanda and the favorite went off together. Ringwood left the wire in a gallop, and was never heard of. Flora Belle and Allarita were respectively three and five lengths behind the leaders when they reached the quarter. There Hazel broke, and Wanda went away from her down the stretch, but Flora Belle trotted fast enough to come up within a length of the leader at the half. Allarita passed Hazel, who continued to act badly, and got established in third place. The heat was left to Wanda and Flora Belle. Flora reached Wanda's wheel, and stayed there until half way around the turn when she broke. Wanda came into the straight well away from Flora. Hazel got down to business on the turn and came up close to Flora, when the latter made her break. They came down home in this order, Flora Belle trotting fast and forcing Wanda out in 2:24, two seconds faster than her former record. Flora got a good second, Hazel Wilkes third, and Allarita fourth. Ringwood was distanced.

Third Heat—The field was worth as much as the favorite before the third heat, selling at $25 to $25 for Hazel Wilkes and $7 for Flora Belle. There was some lively hedging going on. It would have been better if the favorite's backers had "stood pat." In the third, fourth and fifth heats Hazel Wilkes was the only thing in it. Wanda was leg weary before she went to the half. Flora Belle, although Buster had been put up behind her, didn't do anything, and Allarita wasn't out for it. Wanda took the lead on the turn and held it to the lower turn, Hazel Wilkes trotting at her wheel. Then as they reached the head of the straight Goldsmith sent the Wilkes mare along and passed Wanda with ease, winning in 2:25, Wanda second, Allarita third, and Flora Belle fourth.

Fourth and Fifth Heats—There was some more hedging done then. The favorite was run up to $70, where the field was bringing but $11, and Flora Belle but $9. Money on the favorite was safe. She won the next two heats as she pleased in 2:28 and 2:30½. Wanda finished fourth in the fourth and third in the fifth. Allarita got second, and Flora third in the fourth, and second and fourth in the fifth heats. They divided third money.

District Yearling Trotting Race.

A mile dash for district yearlings concluded the day's sport. Ben Harris' ch f Starlight, J. L. Wisecarver's ch c Tamarack and E. Bayle's b c Mambrino Button started. Tamarack took the lead at the start, and never let the others get anywhere near him. Starlight made one or two breaks in an attempt to catch the colt, and then contented herself with a poor second. Mambrino Button made a series of breaks which put him out of it altogether. Time, 3:38½.

SATURDAY, AUG. 25.

Saturday, August 25, closed the meeting, and as the directors look out over the empty seats of the grand stand and the few rigs which stood along down the quarter stretch, they realized that in point of attendance the meeting has been a failure, and some saw in the events of Saturday the closing existence of an association which could not live with the fearful odds which the city of Santa Rosa opposed to it.

One running and two trotting races made up the programme. The interest in the two trotting events was lively, for the reason that the entries were local horses, each with his local following.

I. DeTurk, J. N. Bailhache and A. P. Waugh were in the judges' stand.

Running Race—Nine-Sixteenths and Repeat.

First Heat.—W. L. Appleby's b m Alfarata, with Hitchcock up, Kelly & Samuels' b m Susie S., ridden by Cook, and G. Pacheco's ch m Julia P., ridden by Narvice, started in a nine-sixteenths and repeat. According to the talent there was but one thing in it, Susie S. They bought her in the auctions at $25, the other two starters going in the field at $11 and $13, with the backers not very anxious even at these odds. For once the talent were right. The bay mare had no work to do. When the flag went down Julia P. was left at the post. Alfarata jumped off a half length in front of the favorite, and held the place to half way around the turn, when she commenced to quit and got the whip. Susie S. came on under a pull, and got into the straight a length to the good and stayed there, finishing an easy winner in a gallop.

Second heat.—No more pools were sold. Susie S. had the race barring accidents. There were no accidents. Alfarata again went off in the lead in the second heat, and Hitchcock began pushing her right from the start, but there was no run in her, and Susie S. laid alongside until time to make her run, and than she cantered in a length in the lead. Time for the heats, 56 and 55¾.

District Trotting—2:30 Class.

First Heat—District trotting for the 2:30 class was the next thing on, with E. P. Heald's b m Nona Y., G. E. Guerne's b s Alfred G., T. Whitton's b g Lookout, and H. W. Crabb's b m Flora B. as starters. Chas. Marvin, Jas. Dustin, W. McGraw and H. B. Starr piloted the lot. Alfred G. the Anteeo stallion, was fancied as the winner, and with right good judgment, as he went out and won in straight heats. Auction pools sold, Alfred G. $30, the field of Nona Y. and Flora B. $11, and Lookout $8. When they got the bell after scoring three times, Lookout and Nona Y. showed in front on the turn, Alfred Y. close up to them, Flora B. with him. Nona Y. broke just before they reached the quarter, and Alfred G. and Flora passed to the front and went into the backstretch together, Lookout a length behind and Nono Y. behind him a length. From there home the fight for the heat was between Alfred G. and Flora. They passed the half with Alfred G. slightly in front, but as they swung into the turn, Lookout came up and carried Alfred Y. away to the outside of the track, and before Dustin could swing into the pole again, Flora had gone away a length in front of him, and Lookout was at his wheel. They trotted steadily at a good clip into the straight, and then Dustin called on his stallion. The horse responded with a burst of speed which took him to the front at the drawgate, and he came under the wire a good length ahead of Flora B., and four lengths from Lookout. Nona Y. made a series of breaks which cost her everything. Time, 2:27½.

Second Heat.—After the heat the pools sold about the same as before, Flora B. in the field bringing a dollar or two more. The second heat was a race. Alfred G. and Flora trotted together in front and Look Out and Nona Y. as a team a length in the rear. Nona repeated her running tactics whenever the pace grew warm for her. They went in the order named until they swung into the lower turn, when Alfred G. led by a length and the other three bunched behind him. The pace was fast, and for the first time Alfred G. left his feet, and for the first time Nona Y., with Look Out at her wheel, showed in front. Dustin got his horse down quickly and sent him along at a fast clip to regain his lost ground. When they swung into the straight he was in front of Look Out, and at Nona's wheel. A hundred yards further and he was on even terms with the mare. Under the pressure even Marvin couldn't hold the mare down, and she broke. Alfred G. went on and took the heat in 2:23½, Nona Y. finishing second, Look Out, four lengths back, third, and Flora B. fourth. Nona Y. was set back for running, and Look Out was given second place, she taking third.

Third Heat.—The third heat was another fast one, Alfred G. leading all the way. Nona G. tried to stay with him, but broke continually, and when they came down the straight Alfred G. had the heat and race won. He finished five lengths in front of Nona Y. in 2:24½. Look Out got third place and Flora B. finished fourth.

Time, 2:29¾, 2:23½, 2:24½.

District Stallions—2:40 Class.

First Heat—Of the five entries in the District Stallion Race, 2:40 class, four started. They were L. H. Bogg's blk s Sur Del, driven by J. Gray; Murphy & Sanborn's ch s Ned Lock, driven by Goldsmith; J. W. Martin's b s Clay Duke, driven by owner; A. T. Hatch's b s Guide, driven by J. Sutherland, and the Rosedale Farm's b s Daly, driven by Chas. Marvin. Ned Lock had the strongest kind of following in the pool-boxes, and sold like iced drinks at a picnic, bringing $40 in pools where Guide, a strong second choice, brought $35 and the field $15.

The first heat was a dead heat between Ned Lock and Guide. When the bell tap sounded Guide went off in the lead, with Ned Lock second, Sur Del third, and the others bunched behind, and these positions were unaltered until they got into the straight, then Guide lost his feet, as he had done twice on the backstretch, and Ned Lock came up with him. The two came home at a rattling pace, Guide slightly in front. The last fifty yards saw Ned Lock crawling up inch by inch, but he started too late, and as they passed under the wire Guide had a short head the lead. Daly was three lengths behind them, Sur Del one behind him, and Clay Duke, who had made no showing in the heat, a length in the rear of Sur Del. Although Guide was first under the wire, his running was against him, and the judges announced a dead heat, placing the others as they finished. Time for the heat, 2:29½.

Second Heat—Daly made a good showing for the first half of the second heat, and for a time looked a winner, but as a breaker he made a glaring success, and Marvin couldn't hold him to his gait. He trotted fast enough to have won, but invariably went off his feet at the most critical times. Daly led Ned Lock a length to the head of the straight, Guide trotting along in a good third place. When Goldsmith shook Ned Lock up and began his play for the lead, Daly went up and gave it to him. Daly was no more in it. Guide broke in an attempt to catch the leader and lost second place. Ned Lock trotted squarely to the wire and won by ten lengths, Clay Duke slipping by the breakers and getting second place, Guide getting third, Sur Del fourth and Daly a bad fifth. Time, 2:31½. Pools sold before the heat: Ned Lock $50, Guide $27, and the field $15.

Third and Fourth Heats—In the third and fourth heats there was nothing in it except Ned Lock. Dustin was put up behind Guide in the third, and succeeded in leading the crowd from the start to the straight, but Ned Lock started for the front at the proper time, and forced Guide off his feet, winning with ease in 2:28½, Guide second. Daly third, Sur Del fourth and Clay Duke fifth. Ned Lock lead all the way in the fourth heat, and won in the same easy style. Daly finished second, Guide third, Sur Del fourth and Clay Duke fifth. Time, 2:28½. First money went to Ned Lock, second to Guide, third to Daly and fourth to Clay Duke.

Thus was completed the Santa Rosa meeting, or, more properly speaking the Sonoma County Agricultural Park Associations Annual Fair. The races were in the main good, and the Directors did everything in their power to give satisfaction to owners and the public. There was but one unpleasant feature during the week, and that was an occurrence of so trivial a nature as not to deserve more then the passing mention which was given in last week's gossip from the track.

The Anaconda Races.

This Association was organized in 1886, and well it merits the unprecedented success that has attended it, in its initial meetings. Horsemen and all lovers of the turf are loud in their praises of the officers. The Association owes its being to such lovers of horse flesh as Marcus Daly, Morgan Evans, J. B. Losee, W. M. Thornton, D. G. Brownwell, J. K. Mallory, H. S. Neal, W. C. Haynes, Geo. Kendall, W. L. Hoge and others. They have a most worthy and enthusiastic president in the person of Mr. Marcus Daly. It is to be lamented that there are not more Marcus Dalys. Their Secretary, Mr. W. M. Thornton, is the right man in the proper place, and is much appreciated for the energy and skill with which he accomplishes his manifold duties, keeping all the mechanism of racing moving in harmony.

The Anaconda race course is located about two miles from town, and may safely be called the finest in the West. The track is about eighty feet wide, and kept in perfect order, no expense being spared in the labor. The large and roomy grand stand is all that could be desired in neatness and is easy of access. Adjoining the grand stand are commodious and well adapted quarters for the pool sellers. The fences, railings, stands and all buildings are decorated with white and blue trimmings, giving an effective tone to the ensemble of the grounds, showing the interest and care taken by the Association and its most worthy Secretary, Mr. W. M. Thornton. The long rows of box stalls are well filled, there being about one hundred and fifty head of bang tails and trotters domiciled for the meeting.

Anaconda, as you are aware, is in the heart of the mining region. The smelters, one of which is the largest in the world, with their huge smoke stacks puffing day and night, helped, with the forest fires now raging around us, to obscure the sun's rays the entire week, Old Sol himself looking like a huge ball of fire through the dense cloud. Our view of the races was somewhat impeded thereby, and red eyes were worn by many. Notwithstanding this small obstacle, taken all together, it has been a gala week of good sport long to be remembered by the large and eager crowd that packed about the pool boxes, and also filled the grand staud.

There was some dissatisfaction about the start, Bradshaw got in the fourth heat, many thinking if he had received a good send off he would have won the heat.

Petaluma Gossip.

A. L. Hinds is here with Balkan and Alpheus, and he is very much down-cast over his brown stallion. Balkan has a leg, and his racing days are over. After the Petaluma meeting he will be sent to Oakland where he will be put into the stud. Alpheus has not been in condition yet, but is slowly improving and will start at this meeting. Mr. Hinds will make the circuit with the one entry.

The heaviest betting of the week was upon the 2:20 class, Palo Alto, of course, having the call. I saw one pool sold in which Palo Alto brought $200, all the others summing up only $40, and that was an overnight pool, too.

You should have heard the Anteeo yell when the little filly Maud Dee won the two-year-old district purse over the Coligny colt in straight heats. The men were jubilant, and they surrounded Mart Rollins when he dismounted from the sulky and passed their congratulations upon him. There was nothing on the grounds too good for him. Mart came down from Santa Rosa especially to drive the filly, and while talking to him just before the race he had no idea of winning The Coligny colt out classed them all in point of speed, and the only thing he could do was to try and beat the others for second or third money. His success startled him. The Coligny colt was not himself. He had not been given any work after his race at Santa Rosa, and was in no sort of condition for another go. Still, insiders thought he should win and backed him liberally.

A rumor gained circulation that Marvin was instructed by Palo Alto to send the horse Palo Alto for a record in the 2:20 race. I asked Marvin about it, and received a denial. "The only instructions I have," he said, "are to win the race, and that is what I will try to do. He won't trot in better than 2:18 unless they force him to do it. They didn't force him."

L. J. Rose has been an interested spectator all the week. He came up to see his big Alcazar yearling go to beat Norlaine's 2:31½. I asked him what he thought of Stamboul's chances of trotting this season in 2:12. He would give no opinion, but said simply, "I hope he will."

Dawn failed to clip anything from that 2:19½, but I believe he could have done so if he had had a good day. He was not moving very steadily when they gave him the word. I understand that, weather and track permitting, he will be sent again Saturday. He showed no signs of lameness after his mile.

The Petaluma track is a good track for records. It is fast enough to suit anybody, but it has been fearfully hard this week. It was frequently sprinkled, but the sun and wind quickly took the moisture out, and the harrowed ground packed again in a short time.

Franklin made his initial appearance in the 2:20 class trot of Wednesday, and made a good showing for himself, although out of condition When he went into the race he had a blister sore on his left shoulder the size of a ham, and it takes a dead game horse to go a hard race with such a thing as that galling him at every stride.

Belle Button's Napa race seems to have taken everything out of her. She went all to pieces at Santa Rosa, and in the 2:25 class here she was nowhere. She is, in condition, the fastest thing in her class.

Ben Harris has a right good little filly in Lorena. She is speedy and steady, and goes two heats well, but she has the common failing, she quits.

In the last heat of the 2:20 class the starting judge made a bad break in the sendoff. He had previously given out that he would start the horses by the word and call back by the bell. It was not a good start, anyway, and when Hickok, behind Bay Rose, heard the tap he drew up, and did not realize his mistake until too late, thereby getting distanced and losing second money, which he had already secured by his second heat.

Longworth has the honor of going the fastest heat, 2:19¾, yet made by the pacers in the 2:25 class. The horse made a very creditable performance in the race. He is the third of Sidney's get to go inside 2:20. Valensin smiled and Dietz smiled when the first heat was won, and when the race was over they smiled together with a green seal bottle between them. Dietz was the prouder man of the two. Johnson drove the horse well.

The black pacing filly Princess Alice by Dexter Prince, out of a Chieftain mare, will be heard from some day. She is a trifle light and under size for her age, but she stays well and has a good flight of speed. In the hands of a competent trainer and driver she would show something fast this season. Oscar, the man who drove her Wednesday, never drove in a race before, and naturally did not handle her well. He made two or three grievous errors in generalship, which lost him every advantage the filly got by her speed. I would suggest to her owner that he put her in more expert hands, and then he may not be surprised to take first money in the 2:25 class before the circuit ends.

Almont Patchen is still in the hands of the vets and is slowly improving. He was jogged easily on Wednesday, but he is very sore, and Jimmy Dustin tells me that he will not be fit for a race for some time yet. It is almost certain that he will not go at Oakland.

Hickok is playing in hard luck this fall. Not one good thing has fallen to him yet.

A number of the horses were walked down from Santa Rosa, and they arrived in better condition than those that were shipped.

The special trains to and from San Francisco were the means of largely increasing the attendance.

The betting during the week has not been as it might have been, considering the events. More money went into the box in the 2:20 class race than upon any other, and yet that was considered a sure thing.

Toward the Golden Gate, (Fair) the star of the horse empire now takes its way.

Wilfred Page has resigned from the directorate of the association on account of the difficulty he had recently with Cap Harris. Harris was suspended for a year.

Lillian Wilkes' 2:17¾ is a record for her, and also the three-year-old record in a race, barring Axtell's 2:14, when he was accompanied by a runner from the head of the straight.

The runners are sadly missed this week. It is true that California is a trotting horse country, so far as its people's fancy goes, but they like to see the bang tails out now and then. It gives snap to the races, and the ladies particularly like to see a race which is decided in a dash or two heats. There are too many technical points about a three-in-five trot to suit them.

One can judge of the anxiety to see Sunol in a race from the fast that after it was announced from the judges stand Weenesday that she would go on the following day, it was the sole thing talked of by the horsemen, and orders were immediately given to the track men to have the course in the best of condition.

Andy McDowell gave Direct a mile the other day in 2:24, going the last quarter in 32 seconds, some watches making it 31½. "He can go in 2:12," said Andy McDowell after the mile. "Will he be sent for a record this season?" I asked, "Only in a race," he answered. "We don't want any tin cup record for him, but he can go in 2:12, and you can say so in the Breeder."

Jimmy Dustin got up behind Fleet Wednesday morning and drove her two miles in 2:26½ and 2:25¾ without a skip.

Among the horsemen and other prominent people seen during the week were R. T. Carroll, Ariel Lathrop, Billy Bridge, Kellogg, the New York auctioneer; H. Allen Mayhew, Henry Perkins, I. DeTurk, R. Murphy, M. Loeber, Frank Coombs, Nat Coombs, G. Valeusin, Col. Fred Crocker and family, Henry English of Tulare County, Dr. Latham of the Golden Gate Association, M. Salisbury, Tim Farrell, Tom Rocheford of Tulare, Le Seegelken of Santa Rosa, Tom Morris of Glen Ellen, John Even of Napa, and E. B. Gifford of San Diego.

The Petaluma track has alway been a popular place to winter and train, and this year quite a number of good horses have found shelter and work here. Dan Misner has has a string of Mattie P. by Jackson Temple, Nellie K., a yearling filly by Dawn and a bay horse Alcona Jr. by Alcona, dam by Cassius M. Clay, 22. Sid Sperry has Boss, 2:29½, by Gladiator, Clara Z., a two-year-old by Capri, ch m Leila by Rustic, and a two-year-old Anteeo filly, Rosie S. A. N. Burnell has charge of J. H. White's stable, consisting of the b h Hernani by Electioneer, b h Marco by Elector, a black Director colt, which the stable boys call Peter Jackson, blk m Kitty Almont by Tilton Almont, and a number of colts and fillies by Marco and Hernani. Henry Hellman has a Red Wilkes colt, the b h Strathaway by Steinway out of Countess, the dam of Dawn, b m Emma Temple by Jackson Temple and a b h by Almoon. John Hahn has the gray horse Free Trade, a colt by him, and the old horse Whalebone by Inca.

Walter Frost has the well-known horse McPherson, by General McClellan Jr., a full brother to Nellie R., 2:17½, and several good looking McClellan mares. Lee Shaner's lot is by Dawn. Then he has the old campaigners, Kate Ewing and Lot Slocum, the b h Junio, by Electioneer, ch h Oaknut by Dawn, a yearling colt by Sidney, a yearling filly by the same sire, out of Young Countess, a ch f by Dawn and Little Joe, a b g by Junio. James Corcoran has Rollie H., a br s by Anteeo, dam by Geo. M. Patchen Jr., a b f by Billy Lyle, and a ch c, Dusk, by Dawn. Johnny Blue is handling Capt. Harris' lot, consisting of Lorena, Starlight and Harry Mc, a full brother to Rosie Mc. Jas. Maddox has a black horse by Rustic, dam by McClellan, Jr., the ch c Bonanza Jr., by Bonanza, and a brown colt by Dawn. Mr. McDonald has a b s, by Warwick, dam a thoroughbred mare, and a b m by Auctioneer Johnny, by Geo. M. Patchen.

In the report of Friday's races I shall probably have the opportunity of telling the result of a match between Direct and Victor. another between Gold Leaf and Adonis, and of an attempt, perhaps, the success of, Rose's Alcazar yearling at beating Norlaine's 2:31½. All these are on the tapis now: Longworth, 2:19¾, Lorena 2:30, Pedlar 2:27¾, Hazel Wilkes 2:22¼, Lorita 2:23, Flora Bell 2:24. Four heats in the 2:50 class in 2:23½, 2:23, 2:22¼ and 2:23 are not bad.

The well-known horseman, T. E. Moore, of "The Cedars," Shawhan, Ky., has had very bad luck this year. First, the the great stallion Victor Von Bismarck became paralyzed, and then fire caused a loss of $50,000. The following item from the Stock Farm shows that there is still good blood at The Cedars, and we trust it will not be long before Mr. Moore will be surrounded by the best that Kentucky can produce: "A grandly bred colt is Bannermark 9421. He is a bay, foaled May 6, 1888, by Victor Von Bismarck; 1st dam Moonlight by Alcyone, 2:27 (sire of Alcryon, 2:17½, etc.); 2nd dam Twilight (dam of Skylight Pilot, 2:19); 3rd dam by Pilot Jr. (sire of the dam of Maud S., 2:08¾); 4th dam thoroughbred. This colt is fine and speedy, and at the proper age will head The Cedars' stud. He probably combines more of the popular lines of breeding than any colt of his age—four double crosses: Double Hambletonian, and double Clay through Bismarck and Geo. Wilkes; double Mambrino through Mambrino Pilot and Mambrino Patchen; and double Pilot through Mambrino Pilot and Pilot Jr. Bannermark is Moonlight's second foal. Her first foal was Bismarck Pilot, lost by fire. This colt, Capt. Moore thinks, would have beaten 2:30 this year, in his two-year-old form, had he lived. Bannermark also combines the great brood mares Twilight (dam of Skylight, 2:19); Hattie Wood (dam of Gazelle, 2:21); Juliet (dam of Mambrino Pilot 2:27½); Alma Mater (dam of Alcyone, 2:27, Alcantara, 2:23, etc.) These are lines of breeding that will suit all those who fancy the Hambletonian, Clay, Mambrino and Pilot Jr. combination. From his breeding, he should excel on the track and in the stud he renowned ancestors. He will, we understand, be given records from his colthood up to five years old, and will be permitted to serve some mares in his two-year-old form. We wish him the success his breeding seems to warrant, and trust he will give The Cedars still wider fame."

THURSDAY.

Judges—J. R. Troxel, W. R. Merrill and N. Brough. Timers—A. A. Jackson and W. Ash. Starter—W. Billups.

The attendance was a great improvement on the previous days, a fair programme being well run through on time. The pacing race had two starters, the mare Lady Tolman being made favorite, and had it not been for her breaking several times would have won. The winner, John L., is said to be by Juanita, the sire of Almont Patchen. In the mile running, which was the heaviest betting race of the meeting, the talent all went wrong, as Johnny Gray won easy. The last race was really a gift for Lalmont if he had kept his feet, as he could trot all round Stranger.

First Heat—Auction pools, Lady Tolman $10, John L. $7. After coming up twice, they were let go with Lady Tolman going best, and at once taking the lead she was two lengths in front all the way round to the head of the stretch when John L. closed up and with the mare leaving her feet at the distance, won by two lengths.

Time, 2:34½.

Lady Tolman again had the best of the start, taking the pole on the first turn and pacing away, led four lengths up the back stretch. John L. closed up on the turn, getting level four hundred yards from the wire and winning by a neck after a pretty finish. Time, 2:35.

Third Heat—Auction pools, John L. $10, Lady Tolman, $5.

Auction pools: Isabella $25, Gray $17, St. James $7. They were sent off the third time to a straggling start, Grey having a length the best of it. At the turn Gray was leading two lengths, Isabella second, St. James three lengths behind. They ran the same way to the three-quarter pole, except that St. James dropped out of the race, Gray won cleverly by a length, Isabella ridden out, second, St. James pulled up, last. Time, 1:48½.

District Trotting Stallion Race.

First Heat—Auction pools: L. Almont $10, Stranger $6. L. Almont went off at the second attempt leading to the turn, where he broke badly, dropping back five lengths, but improving, was level at the half; breaking again on the turn he was beaten thirty yards. Time, 2:40¾.

Second Heat—Auction pools: Almont $10, Stranger $10. Almont was quickest away, but breaking on the turn, fell back four lengths, and settling down, trotted steadily up the backstretch, catching Stranger at the three-furlong post, and with Stranger breaking almost to a standstill, Almont jogged home thirty yards in front. Time, 2:41½.

Third Heat—Auction pools: Almont $10, Stranger $4. Almont led to the turn when Stranger broke, running slower than he could trot for a quarter of a mile when he was pulled down, Almont jogging home forty yards ahead. Time, 2:46¾.

Fourth Heat—No pools were sold. The pair started at the second attempt, Almont breaking on the turn dropped back four lengths, and remained there until the homestretch, where he closed up, but breaking at the distance was beaten three lengths. Time, 2:40.

Fifth Heat—Auction pools: Almont $10, Stranger $6. They were tapped off at the second attempt, and trotted like a double team to the half, when Almont gradually drew away, leading a length round the turn and two when in the homestretch. Stranger caught him at the distance, but breaking was beaten a neck. Time, 2:35¾.

FRIDAY.

Judges—J. R. Troxel, N. Brough and W. Marshall. Timers—A. A. Jackson and Captain Ash. Starter—W. R. Merrill.

The attendance was about as good as on the previous day, and with a better programme a good day's sport was witnessed. The first race, the mile and a furlong, was an upset for the sharps, who played Isabella to a man. She never could carry Gray fast enough, and he only raced the last quarter, Howson making a very close finish. In the buggy race Mr. Crawford's old gray, who is a general utility horse, locally known as the swill-horse, passed away from the two trotters as he liked, driven by his owner. In the half-mile and repeat Isabella was again pulled out and made a hot favorite, winning pretty cleverly. Mr. Mooney's mare, who was put in over night, was fresh up from grass, and was distanced in the first heat, but seemed to have a nice taking action, and should, from her breeding and shape, make a useful broodmare.

Running Race.

Auction pools: Gray $10, Sir Charles $8, Isabella $2. They were started at the second attempt. Johnny Gray, having a length the best of it, made the pace all the way, leading a length and a half past the stand, and two lengths up the back stretch the other pair level. They drew up to Gray at the head of the stretch, and after a pretty finish Gray won cleverly by a head from Isabella, Sir Charles a length back, third. Time, 2:16.

First Heat.—Auction pools, Lady M. $10, Dick $6, Lee $2. When the bell tapped Lee was palpably too slow. The mare went out leading two lengths to the quarter pole, when Dick (pacer) closed up, and going past when in the homestretch, won easily by two lengths, Lee a hundred yards back. Time, 3:19½.

Second Heat.—Auction pools, Lady M. $10, Dick $8. The mare again cut out the pace, but breaking on the turn, was passed by Dick, who won easily, Lee last throughout. Time, 2:53.

Third Heat.—Auction pools, Dick $20, Lady M. $4. The mare again broke on the first turn, Dick winning as he liked, Lee a bad third. Time, 2:46¾.

Running Race.

First Heat.—Auction pools, Isabella $10, Joker $4, field $2. The flag fell at the second attempt. Isabella was quickest on her legs, and opened up a gap of two lengths before the turn was reached, Joker a length in front of Dutchman. When fairly in the straight Joker made his run, but the mare had a little left, winning readily by a length, Joker second a length in front of Dutchman, Razzle Dazzle outside. Time, :52

Second Heat.—Auction pools, Isabella $10, field $4. Isabella had a length the best of the start, but was passed on the turn by Joker, who led into the straight, when Dutchman and Isabella challenged, and after a close finish Isabella won by a scant length, Dutchman second one and a half lengths in front of Joker. SATURDAY.

The meeting wound up successfully to-day, the association fortunately getting out without losing money, and when one considers that Redding, Santa Rosa and Glen Brook were all on at the same time and that the association gets nothing from the State, the directors are to be congratulated on the result. Better racing would have been witnessed had Creole, Thapsin and others who were expected, turned up. Miller came up on Thursday, expecting to drive the former, but the gelding was not on hand.

The secretary, W. V. Freeman, worked hard for the fair, devoting his time entirely to it, and he was ably assisted by B. G. Mooney, who carefully attended to the scales and acted as clerk of the course. The town turned out every day, men, women and children, but it was rather too early for the farmers, most of whom were still busy handling grain. But several well known faces from neighboring towns were present. J. King, from Woodland, brought up five or six head of runners, among them several by Jim Douglas, and Juanita, a speedy mare, who should take a lot of beating in the northern circuit.

Saturday's programme started with the equestrienne tournament which was begun on the previous day. Miss Stephens on Friday, fell off after her horse had run away for a quarter of a mile. To-day she turned out on another horse being no worse for the accident. After the usual exercises, the prizes were awarded as follows: Miss Jarvis, first, $10; Miss Nora Marshall, second, $7 50; Miss Bertha Todd, third $5; Miss Mona Lowe, fourth, $5; Miss Maggie Stephens, fifth, $5.

Messrs. Billups, Ash and Albery judged the tournament. The two races were not very sharply contested, as Rosa M. had a good bit in hand and beat Mr. Crawford's pacer just when she was asked, while Belle A. had an easier thing with Bird. The other contest, nearest to four minutes, was interesting from the fact that four of the contestants were within a second of four minutes, one hitting it exactly. It had rather a suggestive look, though, and seems highly improbable that no one had helpers. Mr. Bressler, 4:00, took first, C. H. Glenn, 3:59¾, second, M. Thrower, 4:0½, third, F. Muller, 3:59, fourth.

Special Race.

First Heat—Auction pools: Rosa M. $10, Dick $4, Lady M. $2. They went off at the second attempt. Dick, pacing well, took the pole from Rosa on the first turn, and was four lengths in front at the quarter, Lady M. three lengths further in the rear. Rosa broke, losing a couple more lengths, but settling down, trotted steadily to the head of the stretch, when she rapidly overhauled the pacer, and, carrying him off his feet at the drawgate, won easily by three lengths, Lady M. four lengths back, third. Time, 2:42.

Second Heat—No pools sold. Dick, as before, started out fast, taking the pole on the first turn, where Lady M. broke. Rosa was two lengths behind Dick all the way to the homestretch, when she closed up and looked a winner all over, when she went up thirty yards from the wire, Dick winning by half a length. Time, 2:42½.

Third Heat—Auction pools: Rosa M. $10, Dick $3. When sent off Lady M. broke badly and fell back as usual. Dick led all round the turn and up the backstretch, with Rosa close up. The mare left her feet at the half-mile post, but caught handily, and was on equal terms at the head of the stretch. Both made a good drive down the straight, the mare breaking just before the wire, lost the heat by a neck. Time, 2:39¾.

Fourth Heat—Dick and Lady M. led round the turn and to the quarter, Rosa two lengths behind. Lady M. broke and took last position, while Rosa gradually closed on the pacer, and catching him at the six-furlong pole, he broke badly, Rosa winning in a jog. Time, 2:43¾.

Fifth Heat—The trio were level to the turn when Rosa broke, losing three lengths, but settling down gradually closed up on Dick, getting to his head at the upper turn, and with Dick breaking badly, won easily by forty yards. Time, 2:41½.

The Standard.

[AS REVISED AND ADOPTED BY THE NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF TROTTING-HORSE BREEDERS, DECEMBER 14, 1887.]

IN order to define what constitutes a trotting-bred horse and to establish a BREED of trotters on a more intelligent basis, the following rules are adopted to control admission to the records of pedigrees. When an animal meets the requirements of admission and is duly registered, it shall be accepted as a standard trotting-bred animal:—

FIRST.—Any stallion that has himself a record of two minutes and thirty seconds (2:30) or better, provided any of his get has a record of 2:25 or better, or provided his sire or his dam is already a standard animal.

SECOND.—Any mare or gelding that has a record of 2:30 or better.

THIRD.—Any horse that is the sire of two animals with a record of 2:30 or better.

FOURTH.—Any horse that is the sire of one animal with a record of 2:30 or better, provided he has either of the additional qualifications: (1) A record himself of 2:25 or better. (2) Is the sire of two other animals with a record of 2:25 or better. (2) Has a sire or dam that is already a standard animal.

FIFTH.—Any mare that has produced an animal with a record of 2:30 or better.

SEVENTH.—The female progeny of a standard horse when out of a mare by a standard horse.

NINTH.—Any mare that has a record of 2:25 or better, and whose sire or dam is a standard animal.

ATHLETICS.

Athletic Sports and Other Pastimes.

Edited by Arphippus.

SUMMARY.

The regular monthly exhibition of the California Athletic Club was the principal sporting event of the week.

RUNNERS, WALKERS, JUMPERS, ETC.

McKinnon, of the P. A. C., promises to do well in the hammer and shot-putting events on Thanksgiving Day.

A member of the Y. M. C. A. recently cleared 5 ft. 6 in. in the running high jump. He should enter the next out-door meeting.

Schifferstein, Purcell and Coffin will not take part in the next games. Their absence will be sadly felt, and the U. A. C. boys will have things their own way. All three athletes, however, will represent their club at the championship meeting next year.

Handicapper George W. Jordan says that he will be very cautious in handicapping the next games. He intends limiting the starts in the long distance races, so that the scratchmen may have some chance of winning. Mr. Jordan is of the opinion that if a man cannot win with the start allowed him, he has no business sending in his name as a competitor.

Any member of the Golden Gate Athletic Club winning a first prize at the O. A. C. games on Thanksgiving Day will receive a special medal from his club.

Two of the best athletes in the C. A. A, C. assert that if their club does not hold its initial games before Thanksgiving Day they will enter the games of the O. A. C., even at the risk of being expelled from their club.

C. C. Johnson, of the P. A. C., will probably be placed at scratch in the running high jump at the O. A. C. meeting.

George W. Hupers, of the Atheneum Athletic Club, may enter for the half-mile run. Mr. Hupers has already covered the distance in 2 min. 10 sec., and with proper training should come near coast record.

Walter A. Scott, of the O. A. C, will make on effort to again lower the mile record on Thanksgiving Day.

R. C. Hunter, the well known walker, has retired from the cinder path, and is now living in the East. His absence from the Pacific Coast is to be regretted, as a good many of his friends here are of the opinion that he is capable of beating the ex-English champion Jarvis at any distance.

The Pacific Coast one mile walking record of 7 minutes 10 and one-half seconds, held by C. B. Hill, of the Merion Cricket Club, is no longer recognized by the O. A. C. We never heard of the record being disputed previous to the arrival of James Jarvis, the English walker, and it seems strange that after allowing the record for nearly five years the O. A. C. should now turn round and acknowledge that it made a mistake in accepting the record at all. It is claimed that the time made by Jarvis at the last championship meeting is the fastest time ever made on the Pacific Coast, and an effort will be made to have his record of 7 minutes, 11 and one-half seconds accepted as the legitimate one. It is a well-known fact that Jarvis is capable of walking a mile under 7 minutes, and it would reflect more credit on the O. A. C. if it waited until its new champion proved his ability to beat 7 minutes, 10 and one-half seconds before disputing the record it has upheld for so long a time.

The athletes who train at the Bay District track declare that the water-cart man is a bigger nuisance than the dogs. His appearance at the close of day is almost as certain as the setting of the sun.

Two of the most prominent sporting papers in the East will not accept the half-mile record made some weeks ago by W. C. Dohm, of the N. Y. A. C. The editors of the journals referred to claim that the record was not made legitimately. Dohm is a young man, and should experience no trouble in repeating his performance at an early date, when the proper officials will be present to take the correct time.

Rumor has it that a team of athletes from the East will arrive in this city in time to take part in the November games of the O. A. C. We hope the rumor is false. The local athletes will not feel like entering a race for which some of the American champions are entered, and in consequence the number of competitors will be limited to one or two.

A race of 100 yards, for the Bradley medals, took place on the lawn in front of the Coleman House, Asbury Park, N. J, August 12th, and as some of the fastest amateur athletes in the country were among the entries, there was a goodly crowd present. W. C. Dohm was at scratch, and he gave J. C. White three yards and his other opponents four yards start. The result was in favor of White by five feet, his time being 10 3-5 seconds.

The Australian amateur runner Thomas, who is the champion at from four to ten miles in the colonies, is on his way to the United States, and according to a cablegram from Sydney, will take part in the champion games of the Amateur Athletic Union and the Canadian Association.

John A. McPherson, the professional shot putter intends to retire from the field at the close of the present season.

A number of representatives of other clubs participated in the annual games of the Prospect Harriers, held at the Brooklyn Baseball Grounds on Saturday afternoon, Aug. 17th, and nearly one thousand persons witnessed the competitions, which throughout were interesting. A summary follows:

One hundred yards run—Won by A. F. Copland, Manhattan Athletic Club, 1½ yds., in 10¼ s.; F. Babcock, New York Athletic Club, 4½ yds., second.

Three-quarter mile run (club)—J. A. Byrne, scratch, first in 3 m. 21⅗s; E. Thorp, 10 yds., second.

One mile walk—W. Donaghy, Prospect Harriers, 50s., first, in 7m. 48 1 5 s.; C. L. Nicol, Manhattan Athletic Club, scratch, second. in 7m. 6 3 5s.

Four hundred and forty yards handicap—J. F. Wieners Jr, Manhattan Athletic Club, 25 yds., first, in 51 4-5s.; F. J. Leonard, Staten Island Athletic Club, 20 yds., second.

Two hundred and twenty yards' hurdle race—J. C. Devereux, Manhattan Athletic Club, 6 yds., first; N. Cahn, American Athletic Club, 4 yds, second. Time, 27 2-s s.

Four hundred and forty yards' novice race—F. Bray, Brighton Athletic Club, first, in 56 1-5s.; A. A. McAusland, Prospect Harriers, second.

Two mile bicycle race—F. B. Hess, New Jersey Athletic Club, 35 yds.; first, in 6m. 14 3-5 s.; S. B. Bowman, same club, 60 yds., second.

One mile run—Won by A. B. George, Mannattan Athletic Club, 30 yds., in 4m. 31s.; W. F. Thompson, Staten Island Athletic Club, 76 yds., second.

Two hundred and twenty yards race—T. T. Smart, Manhattan Athletic Club, 15 yds., first; E. C. Bowman, American Athletic Club, 12 yds., second. Time, 22 2-5.

One and one half mile run (club)—Won by J. S. H. McGregor, 10 yds., in 7 m. 45 3-5 s.; G. T. Stag, 55 yds. second.

Eight hundred and eighty yards run—J. C. Devereux, Manhattan Athletic Club, 12 yds., first, in 1 m. 59 3-5 s; J. Kumpf, Scottish-American Athletic Club, 35 yds., second.

Triangular race—J. H. Mellor, Prospect Harriers, to ride four miles; W. W. Kuhlke to run three miles, and C. E. Nicolls to walk two miles, was won by Kuhlke, riding over alone.

During the afternoon G. M. L. Sachs presented the Prospect Harriers with the cross country championship colors won in the recent competition.

G. M. Sachs, of the M. A. C., of New York, recently gave to the Blackheath Harriers, London, Eng., a beautiful and costly medal as a prize to that member who should make the highest score at open amateur meetings during the season. This medal was taken to England by C. H. Mapes, of Columbia College, and awarded to H. C. Seard.

THE WHEELMEN.

H. A. Matthews intends taking a trip to Paso Robles some time next month. The distance from this city by road is 216 miles, and Mr. Matthews expects to cover the distance in less than three days.

S. B. Morse and S. Bush, of the S. F. B. C., rode up to Camp Taylor on Sunday last. They enjoyed the journey immensely, and their adventures would fill a volume.

Knapp and Morgan, the well known Eastern riders, accompanied by a team of female riders, will visit this coast shortly. Their first appearance in public will probably be at Sacramento during the State Fair, when they will take part in some of the bicycle races.

Several of the local wheelmen were seen in the park early last Sunday morning.

Only two members of the S. F. B. C. essayed the tramp to Mt. Tamalpais on Sunday last, Messrs. Spencer and McDonald. There is no positive proof that these two gentlemen ascended the Mount, but as there was no referee or judge present to watch their movements, their words must be accepted.

Fred Wood, the professional bicycle rider, closed his career on the path by winning the ten-mile scratch race at the "Sport and Play" meeting at Ashton, Eng, on Monday, August 5th. Wood, who is one of the most popular and yet most modest men that ever rode as a professional, has a long and honorable record as a racing man, and his success in this, his last contest, will be welcome to all. After the race he said, "I am glad I have won, not for the sake of the money, but because I was anxious to beat all the acknowledged champions of the world before I finally retired from the path. I have attained the object of my ambition, and it is now my intention to turn the game up. A man cannot always expect to hold his own against young blood, and now that I have carried off the championship of the world I have fully determined that nothing shall again induce me to don racing costume. I have been riding for nearly ten years and have won 102 races, so I think I can very well retire upon my merits. I have now done with racing, and intend to devote my time to my business, which I find pays me best."

To-night the Bay City Wheelmen will celebrate their fifth anniversary at the club rooms, on Van Ness Avenue. The literary and musical entertainment will begin at eight o'clock, after which an elegant supper will be served. Invitations have been forwarded to all the promiment wheelmen on the Pacific Coast. The B. C. W. are noted for their hospitality, and those who accept their invitation can rest assured that they will spend a very enjoyable evening.

CLUB JOTTINGS.

The sixth cross country run of the Olympic Athletic Club will be held at San Mateo to-morrow. The athletes who intend taking part in the run will leave Fourth and Townsend street, at 8 A. M. The fare for the round trip is 75 cts. After the run the boys will indulge in a swim, and each one should bring along his bathing suit and towels. A fine lunch will be furnished in the afternoon. The run will be under the direction of D. W. Donnelly.

The sum of $2,500 judiciously expended on the Harbor View training grounds would make them the finest grounds of the kind in the United States. Should the directors of the C. A. C. decide to make such an appropriation the expenditures would be doubly repaid in less than two years. If they mean to stand by their amateur members they should spend more money in their interest, for the time may yet come when the amateur branch will be a big help to the club.

The regular annual meeting of the Acme Athletic Club, of Oakland, will be held on next Monday evening, at 8 o'clock, when the election of officers for the ensuing term will be held. The installation of officers will take place on Tuesday evening, Sept. 10th. The club rooms are situated at No. 305 14th St., Oakland.

Notwithstanding the fact that great interest is taken in out-door sports in San Francisco, not one of her many athletic clubs can boast of having training grounds.

The C. A. A. C. may send a team of its amateur athletes to Los Angeles to compete in the Thanksgiving Day games of the Los Angeles Athletic Club.

Two very handsome diamond medals representing the feather and light weight amateur boxing championships respectively will be presented to the two members who shall score the greatest number of victories during the next six months at the exhibitions of the Pacific Athletic Club. All the competitions will be limited to ten rounds, as the club does not sanction finish fights.

The following clubs will place teams in the field on November 28th: The O. A. C., G. G. A. C., U. A. C., P. A. C. and the Eintracht A. C. The struggle for first honors, of course, will be between the O. A. C. and the U. A. C., while the P. A. C. and the G. G. A. C. will do battle for the third place.

The absence of hot water baths in the club rooms of the C. A. C. is a great loss to the members, and some effort to remedy the deficiency should be made at once.

The next exhibition of the P. A. C. promises to be a big success. Some of the most prominent amateur boxers of the coast will lend their services for the occasion.

The fifth annual competition for the individual general athletic championships of America, under the auspices of the A. A. U. will take place on the grounds of the Brooklyn, New York, Athletic Association on September 7th.

The sixth annual championship meeting of the Canadian Amateur Athletic Association will be held at Toronto, Ontario, on September 28th. All the leading Eastern amateurs will take part in the meeting.

The A. A. U. has decided to allow the Manhattan A. C. of New York the privilege of adding a two-mile steeplechase and a ten-mile running race to their programme of games for September 21st. Both events will be for the championships of America.

The American amateur championship meeting will be held on the grounds of the New York Athletic Club at Travers Island, September 14th, The events open to all amateurs are: 100-yard, 220-yard, 440 yard, 880-yard, 4-mile and 5-mile runs; 120-yard hurdle race, 10 hurdles 3 feet 6 inches high; 220-yard hurdle race, 10 hurdles, 2 feet six inches high; 1 mile walk; 3-mile walk; running high jump; running broad jump, pole vault; throwing 56-pound weight; putting 16-pound shot; throwing 16 pound hammer; 2-mile bicycle race; tug-of-war, teams of four men, total weight limited to 650 pounds. Entrance fee $2 per man for each event. The right to reject an entry is reserved. Entries close September 7th to Secretary, P. O. Box 611, New York City.

The new exhibition hall of the C. A. C. was formally opened on Tuesday evening. The members were well pleased at the change, as they were able to witness the boxing exhibitions in comfort and without having to strain their eyes to get a glimpse at the gladiators.

The nominating committee of the Olympic Club have nominated the following officers for the ensuing year: W. Greer Harrison, President; R. P. Hammond, Jr., vice-President; W. E Hollaway, Secretary; Henry B. Russ, Treasurer; Walter A. Scott, leader; directors: M. H. Weed, A. B. Field, E. A. Rix, A. C. Forsythe, J. H. Gilhuly and B. Baldwin. The election will take place next Monday at the rooms of the club, on O'Farrel Street.

The Olympic ticket which appears elsewhere is an excellent one, and there appears to be but one opposition, which is upon the leadership. The nominee, Mr. Scott, has always been recognized as an exponent of outdoor atnletics, and some members of the club believe that since one of the members Mr. John A. Hammersmith has proved himself peerless as a gymnast and leader of indoor sports, he should be made leader, and the office of captain created for Mr. Scott. Mr. Hammersmith is being pushed for the position of leader on an independent ticket and will undoubtedly be elected. It is to be regretted that both men cannot go upon the board, without a contest. Each is enthusiastic and capable in his own way and both are much needed in the board now.

IN THE SURF.

The Civil Service Swimming Club has disbanded.

A swimming club in conjunction with the C. A. A. C. will be organized when the new training grounds at Harbor View are finished.

Professor M. A. Kinucan is a constant visitor at the Palace Baths. He is a very graceful swimmer, and the ladies always enjoy watching his movements in the water.

Several large man-eating sharks have recently been captured in the vicinity of Capitola, and the bathers there should be very cautious about venturing out too far from the shore.

Last Sunday the weather was raw and cold, and in consequence the attendance at the different surf baths was not as large as usual. The Palace and Crystal Baths, however, did a rushing business during the week.

More than fifty ladies swim to the raft at Santa Cruz every day. When a lady now essays the task of swimming out to the raft she attracts no attention whatever; last year the fact of a lady attempting the task never failed to cause commotion amongst the audience on the shore.

Connected with the hotel at San Pedro, in San Mateo County, near Colma, is one of the finest bathing places on the coast. The beach there is very smooth, and the surf just right for pleasure bathing.

A swimming club in connection with the Shelter Cove Baths was lately organized. The club house is very comfortably arranged, and a fine gymnasium has been furnished for the use of the members. The initiation fee has been fixed at $1, and the monthly dues the same. The initiative swimming tournament will be held in the near future, when fine medals will be awarded the winners of the different events.

A diving contest, open to all amateurs, was held at the Terrace Swimming Baths, Alameda, on Sunday last. The contestants were Ed. Mowry, W. T. Hunt, and Harry Harmon. The prize was a handsome gold medal offered by Professor Collins of the Palace Baths, San Francisco. The contest was won easily by Ed. Mowry, of the Terrace Swimming Club, whose graceful diving elicited much applause from the audience present.

Chas. Krum, a member of the New Jersey Athletic Club, on Saturday, August 17th, undertook for a wager to swim from the Bergen Point lighthouse, in the Kill von Kull, to the Bergen Point lighthouse in Newark Bay, about six miles, in 2 hrs. 30 min. He accomplished the feat in 1 hr. 11 min., being materially aided by a strong flood tide.

AT THE OARS.

Owing to the strong wind on Sunday the Bay was exceedingly rough, and only a couple of crews took exercise.

The committee appointed by the Ariel Rowing Club to look after new quarters, so far have been unsuccessful in their search. There is a possibility that the Ariels may consolidate with the Columbia Boat Club of Oakland.

A crew from the Nonpareil Rowing Club, consisting of Watty Watkins, stroke, Brutus Fargo and Ike Holz, waist, and M. A Kinucan, aft, were out in the club's new barge "Mark O'Pollo" last Sunday. They rowed to Oakland, and from there to Tiburon and return. Passing Arch Rock they encountered a very choppy sea, which caused Ike's head to disappear repeatedly over the side of the boat.

The coming contest for the amateur feather-weight championship promises to be one of the best ever witnessed, as both men are in good condition, and are determined to win.

Joeseph Hesketh, the gallant and clever light-weight of the Pacific Athletic Club, has gone in active training at the Fruitvale grounds, Oakland, and will be in fine trim for the coming contest. Too much credit cannot be given Mr. Hesketh for upholding the colors and name of the youngest athletic club in this city, and to quote his own sayings, "I will contest with any light-weight on this coast, and in any battle I will always remember that it is not for my own sake that I contest, but for athletics in general, and also for the honor and colors of my club, the Pacific Athletic, and for an institution which is following the genuine principles of sociability and of athletics." The boys wish success to Joe, and hope that he always will be victorious.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Next to bathing, skating is one of the most popular amusements at Camp Capitola. The rink there is crowded night and day.

Grim's Gossip.

Axtell 2:14. Where will he stop?

Letters from Anaconda say that Tim Lynch has become quite a dude.

Read the advertisement of Vallejo Fair Association and then make all the entries you can.

Maggie B. B., the dam of Iroquois was named in honor of Maggie B. Beck, daughter of Senator Beck of Kentucky.

The Rettie B—McGinnis match is off, strange to say. McGinnis paid the forfeit—not much—but still Samuels paid.

Bob Campbell says that Protection is a great colt, and further adds, but I think El Rio Rey can beat me twenty lengths in a mile.

The Matlock Bros. had a tough time in Montana, both Repetta and Leon went lame, and they will be unable to work again this year.

Tom Hazlitt won quite a pot of money with Black Pilot at Anaconda. He played the box, rode the old black himself, and won after a fighting finish in 1:15¾.

The match for $500 arranged by Goldsmith and McDowell between Gold Leaf and Yolo Maid has been declared off, each party withdrawing his forfeit.

Bell Boy stepped off a quarter recently in 32½, and a half mile in 1:07½. He will lower the stallion record this fall, when the others all get through.

Electioneer has another in the list, this time it is Hattie D. whose dam was Maple. At Anaconda, on the 15th of this month, she made a record of 2:26¾.

The Breeders' Gazette has published a picture, supposed to be Anteeo, and it looks as much like that son of Electioneer, as a jack rabbit does to a kangaroo.

At Butte City, Montana, the boys got quite enthusiastic over the results of the racing, and over $200,000 passed through the pool box, during the meeting.

I have to thank the secretaries of the Associations at Chico, Marysville, Redding, Placerville, Yreka and Petaluma for personal invitations to attend their meetings.

And now Anteeo has two in the 2:30 list. The last one Alfred G. is liable to touch 2:20 before the season closes. Jimmy Dustin drives him with a master hand.

Knap McCarthy has had a stroke of bad luck, inasmuch that Sir Archy 2:16¼, has broke a leg. The limb has been set and the speedy pacer may be sold for stock purposes.

The valuable stallion Nutbourne, full brother to Nutwood, owned by Robert Bonner, died on Tuesday of last week, from the effects of a rupture of the intestines.

Dr. C. W. Aby, manager of the Guenoc Stock Farm, has spent a few days in town this week. He will have St. Savior, Greenback and Fair Tuck exhibited at the State Fair.

Margaret S. will be seen in several races preparatory to going East for the first money in the Spirit Futurity Stake, which will be trotted for at Cleveland, Tuesday, October 8th.

The California boys now in Montana says they never were in a place before where they have so many Sundays in one week, Mr. Baker's horse Sunday coming to the front twice, then came Sunday.

Marvin took his two colts to Petaluma, Friday. Sunol, Bow Bells and Palo Alto were there nearly all the week, they having no engagements in which Marvin wanted to start them at Santa Rosa.

Tom Bally's luck has changed; he won a mile dash with Little Phil, at Anaconda, and now he is on his way back to reap further triumphs if possible in California.

The Vallejo track is almost completed, and several of the parties interested claim that it will be the fastest track in the State. We will all be better able to judge of that when the meeting opens there.

A number of other affidavits to the same effect as the above can be given if required, but as a number of these parties are eighty miles apart, and you go to the press on Thursday, I have had only three days time in which to answer Mr. Lowell with proofs.

Nick Steiner of 311 and 313 Bush St., has a notice in another column calling the attention for our readers to his excellent Hermitage whiskies. Be sure and give him a call, he is thorough horseman and will treat you right.

Mr. Wm. Corbitt of the San Mateo Stock Farm has purchased from H. B. Starr and Mrs. Silas Skinner, the brown mare Flora Belle 2:24 by Algona 730, he by Almont, 1st dam Fontana, by Almont, 2nd dam by Alexanders Abdallah. The price is private.

The Stockton directors have received three entries for their special stallion race, they being Bay Rose, Palto Alto and Direct. Just think what a race that will be. There is a strong inclination to predict that there will be three heats in 2:19 or better.

It is claimed that one of the surest preventives of barrenness is to cleanse the parts thoroughly around the neck of the uterus with a soft sponge saturated with warm water before mating. Young breeders will do well to remember this fact.

Killip & Co., will have several large auction sales of stock, at Sacramento during the two weeks of the fair there, and buyers will have a chance offered them to purchase choice stock of all kinds. When the catalogues are issued I will have more to say about these sales as the quality of the cattle offered by the various consignors are reputed to be superior to any ever offered in the State.

On Saturday last a match race was brought off at Sacramento between J. McCord's Tom Benton and Chas. Gilman's Solitaire. The latter has been very successful in matches, but this time Tom Benton, who is by Gen. Benton, dam by McCracken's Black Hawk, despite several years in the stud and hardly any work, won easily in straight heats, all of them between 2:37 and 2:38.

Parish's Referee, an Eastern Sporting paper, copies the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN'S picture of the great sprinter Geraldine and does not give credit. Grant Parish has lost all sense of honor and principle, but then you cannot expect anything from a hog but a grunt.

The following sensible paragraph is from the Horseman. "Have you plenty of shade in your pasture-field where the idle horses and colts graze? If there are no trees in your fields it will pay to build sheds or coverings of some kind to keep away the rays of the burning mid-summer sun.

An exchange says: "The proper way to stop a paper is to pay up, and then stop it afterwards. If you are a gentleman and don't owe a cent, walk into the office and candidly say you do not wish the paper, or can't afford to subscribe. If you are on the swindle, mark it 'refused' and chuck it back in the postoffice."

Mr. Bonner has sent Maud S. to his farm near Tarrytown, New York, to be prepared for another trail against the watch. It has not been finally settled who will drive the Queen of the turf, but there are strong reasons for thinking that Crit. Davis will be the one selected.

I wish to thank J. H. Bailhasche and I. De Turk, of the Santa Rosa Board of Directors, for courtesies shown me last week. If there had been any others of the board who did any work thanks would have been due them also, but as it was John and Isaac did it all. Shame on such a board.

On the first of September the last payment is due for the $2000, guaranteed purse at Fresno for the 2:20 class. The weights are also to be accepted in the Raisin Handicap. They are as follows: Oro 103, Manzanita 100, Sir Charles 90, Mozart 108, Joe Hogo 103, Hello 103, Laura Gardner 110, Jack Brady 110, Phantom 95, Dan Murphy 105.

Mr. Canfield, of Napa, has a fine weanling which he calls Easter Egg. The youngster is bred as follows—by Wilkes Pasha, he by Onward, dam Coloma by Alcona Clay, son of Alcona, he by Almont; 2nd dam Fontana by Almont; 3rd dam by Alexander's Abdallah. The blood lines here shown are rich enough to suit the most fastidious.

And now the Eastern journals are suggesting a change in the stable management of the Hearst string. Senator, send on for Billy Appleby, Matt Storn, or Dan Hennessey, and you will experience a change of luck. You have good horses and they should win at times, and they would if they were trained properly.

Patsy Duffy, the well-known jockey had the first mount on Gilford, Thursday of last week that he has had for many months, Patsy's fondness for fire-water got the best of him. It is to be hoped that he will now keep straight, and he can make lots of money, for owners know his ability is not excelled by any jockey in the country.

Johnny Goldsmith, of San Francisco, sold the mare Sister V., by Sidney, for $3,000, and not $8,000, as erroneously stated in a California paper, says the Horseman. You should stick to this paper for your California news, and not trust to the dailies for your information, Mr. Horseman. The mare was sold for $8,000, and here is some more news for you. She was won out in the first race she started in, on the Montana Circuit.

J. H. Outhwaite, of Sierra Madre, Los Angeles County, has purchased from Frederic A. Foster, of Irvington, N. Y., the fine bay mare Shirley, by Kentucky Prince, dam Ida by Hambletonian 10; second dam Imogene, by Seely's American Star; third dam by Abdallah 1. Shirley was the fastest of Mr. Foster's well-known team that could go to the pole on the road in 2:20 when in condition.

Mr. E. S. Culver, Secretary of the Pacific Coast Blood Horse Association, has suffered a great loss by an accident that happened to his yearling filly by Three Cheers, dam Queen Emma, by Woodburn. She was running in a large field near Santa Rosa, and in some unaccountable manner cut the tendon of one of the hind legs completely through. She had shown signs of great speed.

When Almont Patchen, Gold Leaf and Yolo Maid meet at Oakland Park, there will not be room to seat the thousands who will attend to see the great contest for supremacy. The high altitudes seems to have affected the Maid, but by the time she returns to this climate will, beyond doubt, have all her speed again. Almont Patchen by that time should be recovered from his injuries.

When the District pacing races was called at Napa, after the first heat the contestants were all sons of Alexander Button, and right royally has he stamped them with speed. Just fancy, the first heat that a horse ever appeared in, to make a record of 2:20½, and the second heat taken by another green horse, in 2:20. Truly Mr. Woodard has a great stallion, one that is a credit to the state.

When I bought this filly at Mr. Seales' auction sale, I believed that I was buying a filly really sired by Fallis, and did not know different until Mr. Henry Agnew brought the matter to my notice, and when I searched into the records and proofs I found for the first time that she was by my horse Eros and out of Accident, and then, of course, immediately announced her proper breeding when the ranch entered her in races. Yours, etc., FRANK H. BURKE.

W. L. Appleby, B. P. Hill, and Kelly and Samuels, did not go to Petaluma with their running horses, but took them from Napa to Oakland. The owners all say the purses offered are too small to run for, and they cannot afford to risk accidents, by taking the bang-tails around the circuit. It is highly probable that next year, very few of the larger stables will make entries on the circuit.

When Robert E. Campbell gave his colored brother, Brown Dick, Protection, the Junior Champion Stake winner, to train he contracted with him that he was to pay $1.50 a day for his handling, and that Dick was to have ten per cent of his winnings, and to be a half-owner of the colt. Dick's contract also says that the great colt cannot be sold without his consent. Early last winter Dick predicted that this son of Prince Charlie would by his performance startle the turf world.

If Driver Rodreguez is not careful he may find some judges who will not be quite so lenient as those at Santa Rosa were. In the race that Hazel Wilkes won Aleretta could and should have beaten her for the fifth heat, but it would have interfered with the play that the gang was making in the pool box. Be a little more careful in future, Mr. Rodreguez, and do not talk so loud coming down the home stretch that scores of people can hear what you say to other drivers.

As will be seen by reference to the advertisement of the San Mateo and Santa Clara county Agriculture Association the entries close on September 8th, and the last payments on the colt stakes are due Sept. 2nd. The society has put up an excellent programme, and offer good purses, which is always an attraction for owners. In the past, San Jose has been one of the favorite places to go immediately after the State fair and there is everylikelihood that the horse. men will want to go there this year as the track is reported very fast.

A. J. Cassatt and J. J. Withers, of the Monmouth Park Association, have been arrested at the instance of the New York pool room keepers, who charge them with keeping "a disorderly house," under an old New Jersey law, which says that any place where gambling is carried on is a disorderly house. This is the result of the directors cutting of the telegraphic communication, so that the result of the races could not be had by the pool room keepers.

PETALUMA.

[By our Special Commissioner.]

TUESDAY.

The opening day of the Petaluma Fair found a better crowd in attendance than there was inside the Santa Rosa grounds at any time during the meeting. The grandstand—a large, comfortable and commodious one—was fairly well filled, and the grounds in front of the stand and about the betting shed were filled with people. During the early hours of the day the pavilion had a good crowd, and the very creditable exhibit was examined with pleasure. The pavilion is one of the handsomest I have seen, and the individual displays are good. The display of fruit is large and varied. Wines and olive oil, flowers, canned goods, merchandise, buggies, harness, etc., are shown in abundance. If, as many assert, it requires a pavilion and a band to draw a crowd to a California race track, then the people ought to come here. But as the horses and the trials and contests of speed are what the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN wants to know about, I will speak first of these.

H. M. La Rue, Robert Crane and H. Mecham were judges for the day, and Messrs. L. J. Rose, Harry Agnew and Wilfred Page held the watches on the flyers. At 1:30 o'clock there was an anxious crowd leaning against the fence awaiting the tap of the bell. It came and called out the starters for the District Two-year-old Trot.

They were R. Murphy's b f Maud Dee, J. H. White's b s Joe, Guy E. Grosse's b s Anteeop, W. T. Bartlett's b c Frank B. and Wilfred Page's b f Leoline. The young ones were guided respectively by Mart Rollins, Chas. Marvin, J. Lawrence, H. Geddings and O. A. Hickok. In the light of Frank B.'s previous performance, the talent, and indeed almost everybody else, looked upon the Coligny colt as a sure winner, and when Sam Whitehead opened the ball with that old, familiar cry, "What am I offered for choice?" a dozen hands went up and named Frank B. at $25. The first pool sold, Frank B. $25, Field $17, and the others went just like it.

First Heat—The young ones had a hard time getting away, and they scored themselves half tired before La Rue gave the word; then Rollins had Maud Dee in front. Going around the turn she was first, Anteeop second, Leoline third, Joe fourth, and Frank B. last. Frank B. left his feet as they swung in, and was never heard of again. They went down the backstretch and to the half in the order given, but from there on Maud Dee and Anteeop were the only ones in the heat. The little filly trotted square and game, and though Anteeop gave her a fight in the straight, he couldn't head her, and she went under a good winner by a head, Anteeop breaking at the wire. Joe was about five lengths behind them, in third place, and Leoline a length behind him in fourth. After galloping the greater part of the distance, Frank B. came down the straight just in time to have the red flag drop in his face. Time, 2:49½. There was quite a chop in the pools after the heat. Maud Dee, although she had been given a hard heat, was worth $40, while Anteeop sold for $22, and the field for $8.

Second Heat.—Rollins was again in the front row with his filly when the word was given, and Marvin had Joe with her. The heat was between them as Leoline and Anteeop commenced to break early in the chase. Maud Dee was two lengths in front of Joe going down the backstretch, and she was a length in front when they passed around the turn and started for home. Then Marvin shook Joe up and sent him along lively. He got up to the filly's wheel and stayed there for a sixteenth, but broke at the critical moment and gave the heat, race and first, third and fourth moneys to Maud Dee, getting second for himself. Leoline and Anteeop tarried too long in their breaks, and were shut out. Time, 2:46½.

District 2:50 Class.

Second on the day's card was the district 2:50 class for a purse of $800. There were originally eight starters for the race, and it was set for Thursday, but the Directors switched it over to Tuesdays and the majority of the horses, not being in condition after their race at Santa Rosa, were scratched, leaving only Palo Alto's ch m Lorita, driven by Marvin, and Wm. Corbett's ch m Hazel Wilkes, driven by Goldsmith, to go. They went in what I afterwards heard horsemen term the best race of the season. If time is a criterion by which to judge, it was a good race. Lorita was the thing in the betting and sold at odds of three to one.

First Heat.—With two such drivers as Marvin and Goldsmith, it was not a difficult matter to send them off, though Marvin got the best of the score, and quickly took the pole. He opened a gap of two lengths by the time they had gone a quarter, and he held that distance, his filly breaking twice before she got to the half, but she loses nothing by a break, and comes down well. On the lower turn Hazel Wilkes began to close, and forced Lorita to another break. Down the straight the pace was very fast, and Hazel got up to the leader's head. Lorita broke at the drawgate, gained something by it, but not enough, and Hazel came squarely in and won by three lengths. Time, 2:23¼. The judges, in rendering their decision, cautioned the drivers against running.

Second Heat—Lorita $35, Hazel Wilkes $25, were the quotations when they came to the score. Marvin sent his filly to the front and took the pole as before. She was three lengths to the good on the backstretch. On the lower turn Goldsmith began to move up, and Lorita broke. She came into the straight in a tangle, but Marvin set her down well and sent her toward the wire under a drive. Goldsmith moved Hazel Wilkes up to Lorita's head, but his mare lost her feet under the pressure, and Lorita took the heat by three good lengths. Time, 2:23.

Third Heat—Pools: Lorita $40, Hazel Wilkes $25. The heat in its features was a repetition of the first. Lorita lead, with an occasional break from the start to the head of the straight when Hazel Wilkes, without making a bobble, outspeeded her, forced her to a break, and got home three lengths first in 2:22½, finishing smoothly and well in hand.

Fourth Heat—In the desperate endeavors made by the hedgers, Hazel Wilkes sold in the pools for $50 and $60, Lorita bringing $15 and $16 against it. Hazel won the heat in the straight. Lorita stayed in front from the start until they got down past the drawgate, when Hazel closed up the gap of a length, and when Lorita went in the air, Hazel dashed in a winner. Time, 2:23.

The third entry on the programme had as starters H. B. Starr's br m Flora Belle, driven by Goldsmith, J. H. White's blk m Kitty Almont, driven by Hickok. T. Whitton's b g Lookout, driven by McGraw, Sanborn & Murphy's ch s Ned Lock driven by Lawrence, and G. P. Baxter's ch m Leila, driven by Sperry. The fraternity booked Flora Belle at $25 against $5 for Ned Lock and $10 for the field. Flora Belle took it easy in straight heats.

First Heat—When they got the word after a deal of scoring, Flora Belle went off strong, Ned Lock a length behind her, Lookout two lengths away, and the rest trailing on account of breaks made by both Kittie Almont and Leila while going into the turn. Though Ned Lock tried very hard, he could never head the mare, and she took the heat, never losing her feet. Ned Lock got second. Lookout lost third place by a bad break and Leila got it, Lookout finishing a poor fourth and Kittie fifth. Time, 2:25.

Second Heat—No pools sold. When Kittie Almont came out she was lame and permission was given to withdraw her. She was too much in flesh and short of work. The word was given to the remaining four. Flora Belle went to the front, Lookout behind her and Ned Lock in third place. Leila broke on the turn and was out of it. Flora was never caught, though Ned Lock and Lookout gave her some hot work down the straight. She won by four lengths, Lookout second, Ned Lock third, and Leila distnced. Time, 2:26½.

Third Heat—A final effort to down the mare was made by putting Marvin up behind Ned Lock and Hickok behind Lookout, but the effort failed, though it made a good final heat. Flora Belle took the lead, but the two horses were well up behind her all the way, and succeeded in forcing her out in 2:24. She was simply too fast for them, and they couldn't head her. Flora Belle got first and second money, Ned Lock second place and third money, and Lookout third place and fourth money.

The much talked of Dawn, the three legged phenomenon, came out between the heats, and Lee Shaner drove him to beat his 2:19½. The horse appeared to be in the best of condition and fit for a good mile. There was a high wind blowing, and the backstretch was hard climbing. The track was hard and fast. Shaner sent the horse off strong, and he put down the quarter in 34½; the half post was reached in 1:10¾; he got to the three-quarters in 1:45, and the wire was reached in 2:19½. A runner accompanied him for the last five-eighths. Considering the wind, the performance was not a bad one for a horse that some men thought would never go fast again. If everything had been favorable, the record would probably have been lowered.

WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 28TH.

There was a big crowd in attendance upon the second day of the meeting. The races were good, but a little one-sided. The programme was begun with a dash for the district yearlings. There were five starters, A. L. Whitney's ch f Anna Belle, J. Harrison's ch f Dusk, R S. Brown's ch f Nellie K, Ben Harris' ch f Starlight and W. F. Edwards' b c Whaler. Four of the lot were Dawn representatives. Anna Belle, Dusk and Nellie K. were put in the field and sold for $25, Starlight bringing $12 and Whaler $5. Lee Shaner was driving Anna Belle, and when the bell tapped he took her off in front, and she trotted the full mile smoothly, winning by six lengths, Nellie K. second, Starlight third, Dusk fourth and Whaler fifth. Time, 3:05½.

Free For All Two-Year-Olds.

The first event to excite and interest was the above. Palo Alto's b c Pedlar and Capt. Harris' blk f Lorena were in it. The talent fancied Palo Alto's entry, and he brought $25 in the auctions to $7 and $8 for the filly. Marvin of course was up behind Pedlar, and Buster piloted Lorena.

First Heat—At the word Lorena took the lead, and went away handily. Pedlar broke going into the turn, and the crowd howled at the favorite. The break gave Lorena a lead of four lengths; she went well to the half but broke there. The break cost her little, and without any crowding from Pedlar, she came on home and took the heat by a good four lengths. Time, 2:30.

Second Heat—When the pool-boxes opened, Pedlar's friends stuck to him for a while, but they soon got enough, and the two sold at about even money. Pedlar scored up well, and when they got the word, he was half a length in front and took the pole. On the turn he opened a gap of two lengths, and on the backstretch increased it to three. Lorena stood no show as long as Pedlar stayed on his feet. For once he trotted steadily, and though Buster made a final effort with the filly on the straight, she was tired, and Pedlar came home fast, and finished four lengths in front of her in 2:27¾. The filly was very tired, while the colt was comparatively fresh.

Third Heat—Lorena got the lead and the pole on the turn, but all the speed was gone out of her, and by the time she reached the quarter, Pedlar collared and passed her, after that she was no more in it. Pedlar made a bad break at the half, and the filly passed him, but as soon as he got down he went along at a 0:20 gait, and was again in the lead when they reached the straight. Lorena quit there, and the colt came on and won as he pleased in 2:35¼.

The next event was the 2:20 class, and had six starters—Palo Alto's b h Palo Alto, driven by Marvin, J. N. Ayres' br h Bay Rose, driven by Hickok, Davis & Co's blk g Franklin, driven by Donathan, E. B Gifford's blk g Don Tomas, driven by Bayliss, G. E. Doherty's b h Victor, driven by owner, and J. A. Linscott's ch h Jim L. driven by Rodriguez. It was Palo Alto's first essay in the 2:20 class, but still the confidence in him was so great that he was backed to win with any kind of odds against his field. The average pool was, Palo Alto, $100, field $40 There was a lot of money in the box on the race but on every side could be heard expressions of regret that Palo Alto was in as the best betting event of the season was spoiled. Every other horse in the race, with the exception of Franklin, was more or less sore from the hard race at Santa Rosa, and the hard track made the going very wearisome for some of them

First Heat—When they got the word they went into the turn at a lively clip, and when they were strung out Franklin was in front, Bay Rose a length behind him, Jim L the same distance from Bay Rose, Palo Alto fourth and Don Tomas and Victor bringing up the rear. Palo Alto made one skipping break, but settled quickly. Bay Rose lost his feet at the head of the backstretch and Victor took his place. Palo Alto closed up, and at the half was on even terms with Jim L. and a short length behind Franklin. A break by Victor gave Bay Rose fourth place again. On the lower turn Marvin began to send Palo Alto along. He passed Jim L., forced Franklin off his feet, and came into the straight leading by a length. Bay Rose also trotted fast on the turn, and when the race for the wire commenced in sober earnest he passed Franklin and tried for the leader. There was too much speed for him, and Palo Alto finished well in hand three lengths to the good of Bay Rose, second, Franklin third, Jim L. fourth, Victor fifth, Don Tomas sixth. Time, 2:20½.

Second heat—A pool sold after the heat, Palo Alto $110, Field $20, and the field buyers were not very strong at that. Palo Alto made a short break as they swung into the turn, and gave the crowd a good lead. Bay Rose and Franklin went almost neck in front, Don Tomas and Victor on even terms behind them, Jim L. back with Palo Alto. Down the backstretch the pace was slow. At the half, Bay Rose and Franklin were still together in front. Palo Alto had moved up and was trotting alongside Tomas and Victor and Jim L. were a pair behind. From that point Palo Alto began to trot. He closed the gap very fast, and at the head of the straight he, Bay Rose and Franklin were head and head. There was a struggle, and a grand one. The three speedy ones came down past the distance post at a fearful pace. Franklin went up, Bay Rose got the whip and put in a burst of speed, and despite Marvin's efforts with the favorite, Bay Rose flew under the wire half a head in front, amid cheers from the crowd. Franklin got in third, Don Tomas fourth, Victor fifth and Jim L. sixth. Time, 2:20½.

Third Heat—Fifty for Palo Alto, and $20 for the Field were the ruling prices in the auctions. Franklin again went off around the turn in front, this time attended by Jim L., Victor and Don Tomas second, Palo Alto behind them. Bay Rose made a bad break at the turn and was heard of no more. When they got around in the backstretch, Franklin had but little the best of Jim L., and Palo Alto and Don Tomas were close up to them, Victor back two lengths. Don Tomas lost his feet under the pressure, and Palo Alto closed up with the leaders and giving into the lower turn passed them as if they were standing still. He was never headed again. Victor, Tomas and Franklin had a sharp fight for second coming down the straight, but Victor broke and Don Tomas gave it up, and Franklin finished second four lengths behind Palo Alto, Don Tomas third, Victor fourth, Jim L. fifth, and Bay Rose just inside the distance post. Time, 2:21¼.

Fourth Heat.—The fourth and last heat also fell to Palo Alto. The send-off was a poor one, Bay Rose and Jim L. both leaving the post in a gallop. The bell was tapped once and Hickok, thinking there was no go, drew Bay Rose up. He saw the others going, and let out again, but the distance lost was fatal. Palo Alto was in front all the time, Franklin and Victor in second place to the lower turn, when Don Tomas and Jim L. closed up with them. From the three-quarters home Don Tomas trotted very fast. He got in second place and made a rush for the lead. Franklin made the rush with him. Marvin drew up to let Hickok in, and Don Tomas crowded him close, finishing second a half length behind him. Franklin third, Victor fourth and Jim L. fifth. Time, 2:23½.

Pacing, 2:25 Class.

The 2:25 class pace fell to a field horse in straight heats, the first time since the circuit began that it came that way. Split heats are the rule with the pacers. Racquet, Edwin C., Belle Button, Longworth and J. H , all the old crowd, were in it, with one new addition in Princess Alice, a three-year-old black filly by Dexter Prince out of a Chieftain mare, the property of J Patterson Belle Button was anything but right and the talent thought Racquet ought to win it. They backed him at $25 to $20 for the field and $12 for Belle Button.

First Heat—Longworth and Belle Button went around the turn two lengths in front of Edwin C in third place. Racquet and Princess Alice brought up the rear. Button stayed with Longworth clear around to the straight, with Edwin C. close up. In the straight the filly quit, and Edwin C. and Longworth had the race home all to themselves. They made it fast Longworth getting in first by two lengths, Edwin C. second, Princess Alice third, Belle Button fourth, and Racquet fifth, J. H. sixth.

Second Heat—The betting men stood pat. Longworth went off in company with Belle Button as in the first heat, Edwin C. in third place. The two leaders were five lengths away at the half, but on the lower turn Edwin C. closed up and Belle Button gave second to him. Longworth was pushed on the straight by Edwin C., but he kept his feet under the whip and took the heat, Edwin C. second, Princess Alice third, Belle Button, who quit on the straight fifth. J. H. tangled himself in a break on the first turn and was distanced. Time, 2:20¼.

Third Heat—Pete Brandow put Andy McDowell up behind Racquet in the vain hope of getting something, but he was too late, Longworth took the lead on the first turn and never gave it up, the only one making a bid at him being Edwin C. and Princess Alice, but neither of them were fast enough to pick him up. They finished, Longworth first, Edwin C. second, Racquet third, Princess Alice fourth, and Belle Button fifth. Time, 2:21¾.

ROD.

Cedar River Trouting.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—Having heard that good strings of trout were being caught in the Cedar River, in the vicinity of Cedar Mountain some eighteen miles from town, Jay might have been seen aboard the smoker of the C. & P. S. Narrow Guage Railway one bright July day, armed with his lancewood rod, reel and flies. Visions of big catches of gamey and heavy trout flit through his brain. When the train at last stops at the mountain, well on into the evening, a "lone fisherman" is soon observed measuring the ties with long and rapid gait. When about two miles are covered the expectant lone fisherman jumps a fence, and striding through the long, damp grass, is soon beside the rushing and roaring, clear and transparent river.

Rod, line, reel and a brown hackle are soon adjusted, and Jay is ready for the trout, big or little, which infest this pretty stream. A long cast is made into a promising-looking spot below an eddy, where the water looks deep and dark and still.

The rain which has been threatening some time now falls heavily down, but, being warm, is not minded by the enthusiastic fisherman, who is soon wet clean through.

Jay has made several casts without result; the fish are evidently not so anxious about the matter as the fisherman, and refuse to bite. Deeming it to be a poor fly he is using, a "coachman" is tried, to his satisfaction, upon the leader,

Another cast, but "where, oh where, is the fly"? It has evidently flown off, as it no longer dangles upon the end of the line; guess it struck upon the pebbles upon the beach, separating the gut.

Another is soon in its place. At second cast there is a rush, a splash and a reeling in of the line, and Jay lands a four-inch trout, much to his disgust, which is fired back into the water so quick that the poor fish could hardly claim to have been ashore at all.

Jay turns his back on this beautiful hole in disgust. Following the river down a few rods, he finally selects a nice, cool and delightful-looking pool, which should almost overflow with scaly monsters, if looks go for anything.

A couple of toothsome flies are soon bobbing across the bosom of the pool; no bite. They bob some more, still no bite. Try it again; result the same. The rain also continues to fall, which is blamed for the bad luck.

It will soon be dark. The heavily wooded mountain frowns gloomily down upon the lonely fisherman, who is now fast becoming anxious.

How on earth is he going to fulfill his promise to his better-half, who has been promised, with a dull and gloomy vow, that the long promised mess will be forthcoming this time, and if the waters of the earth have to be fished fishless?

The last time he was out he didn't have the right flies; the time before that he broke his rod, and still before that again the fish wouldn't bite; all these things have been explained over and over again to the patient wife upon the return trip

But this time Jay is upon his dignity. His reputation is at stake; something has got to be done. Never will he desist till a grand and goodly string is hisn to proudly flaunt before those laughing and credulous eyes, when all will be forgiven. So wake up Cæsar, and to the fray; gird up your loins, and also your wading boots; get into the centre of stream and strike for glory and trout.

Jay is getting excited. He is going to have fish if he has to jump in and kick them to death, or lash the old stream into fury and foam. But gently, what is that? "Gentlemen, did I hear anyone say a bite?" That's what it is, and a good one. A strike, and we've got him. Go slow, old boy, bites are scarce to-night, but we've got to have them. We want that fish, and want it very bad. We need it in our business..

Jay reels in a little, but there is a rush. The line is playing out fast; down stream, and then across it goes; a lull, and again Jay nibbles on the line, till another rush occurs; some more reeling is done, the fish allowing himself to be reeled up close, but he is not spent yet. Jay, in his anxiety to get the landing net under him, is too hasty. Steadying himself against the swift current, which threatens to carry the fishless fisherman down stream, already calculating the weight to be at least ——, when, what was that that rushed away from the net? Alas! it was Jay's big trout, gone with fly, and Jay's hopes with it. As it departed a sad, mournful expression steals over the lonely fisherman's gloomy face.

The rain, the mountain, the fish and luck are leagued against him to hold him up to his better half's scorn.

Darkness now covers the scene and hides him from the frowning mountain. Slowly and sadly is the rod detached, and in a half-hearted, lifeless way doth he meander forth into the damp and foggy night.

That two mile walk which was so swiftly covered such a short time since is lengthened out so long that everybody is in bed and all lights extinguished in the little town when Jay reaches his hotel.

No light is lit that night in room number 14, for a poor one-horse fisherman doth there repose.

Daylight finds him out, bright and chipper. With new life and a new supply of hope and vigor doth he hasten along the track, but in an opposite direction to that of the previous eve. Reaching a long trestle, with a glad and vigorous bound does he strike the earth. Right merrily is the turf spurned from heel and toe. The merry, dashing brook he is alongside again, the fly soon spinning over its surface.

What a lovely morning it is, anyway! How bright things look! How green the mountain sides which frowned so gloomily the night before!

Now shall we gain the long-sought prize! Now shall the scoffer be convinced of the wonderful piscatorial skill of her amiable lord!

An unusually promising pool having been drawn blank (in doggy and birdy language), Jay merrily swings his flies over a ripple in mid stream below some rapids; there is a rush, a strike, and we have him on the hook (or jaw). Never did angler play a fish more carefully or scientifically than Jay played this one (in his own mind), which after a brief but violent struggle is brought to bag. He is a good one indeed, but he got smaller as he got closer to Jay, and when taken in hand, what had seemed a two-pound fish dwindled down to a few ounces. But he soon has a companion a little larger but not near so spunky. Several more casts are made here without result.

Then an old fallen tree extending out over the water is soon selected by Jay as a likely place for a rise, which judgment proved good, as he has soon got a nice, gamey fellow hooked and soon landed. Another meets the same fate.

But this mountain air is very invigorating, and the inner man is loudly demanding some attention, whereat Jay proceeds to eat his lunch, comfortably seated upon a fallen tree; he faced towards the mountain close at hand, his attention being attracted to a near-by shute down the mountain side, formed of logs. Now a log appears at the top, there is a long rush as the huge timber roars downward, disappearing for a second. In another there is a rush of water in the form of snow white spray far up in the air, like a geyser does it foam and boil and tumble headlong back.

Another log appears towed by a team of horses, being liberated it enters the shute and rushes madly down the mountain side to the water below; another splash and throwing up of spray.

Long does our fisherman gaze upon this grand sight, till started by a kingfisher darting noisily by, he remembers his long unfulfilled promise and returns to his task.

Forsaking the log, Jay next wades out into the swift current reaching well into the stream. At the second cast a small trout is struck, but being under eye is carefully returned to its proper element again.

Several more fruitless and fishless casts are made in this spot. Another hole is tried with same luck. Jay is doomed to disappointment; no fish can he catch. His time is up, his reputation gone.

Once more must he face his fate.

Another excuse and explanation for his want of luck must be prepared.

"Mein frent, dey vas mooch too leedle for mein poarders who vas vork in de saw mills all de viles, und deir obdedides vas pig, alretty."

Again is our lucky fishman getting his usual dose of rocky luck, for now he learns that no train returns to the city till next day, but finally getting aboard a logging train he is slowly conveyed back to the Queen City.

His worthy spouse is looking for him from a window. "Here, none of that;" "why don't you come in the front way and not come sneaking in through the alley."

"I see you crawling over that fence there. I know you haven't any trout. It will take you all your life to find out you can't fish."

Jay boldly faces the enemy. "My dear, the fish were all small and not worth bringing home; you don't care for trout anyway. The salmon will soon be running, and I will bring you home lots of them 'so long' one at a time in a wheel-barrow." JAY SEE EN.

SEATTLE, August 19, 1889.

John L. Meares and party enjoyed a successful day's fishing at Sausalito on Sunday last. Mr. Meares was high hook with 136 smelt, while another of the party caught 120 of the same kind of fish.

In general the fishing was very poor on Sunday and during the first part of the week, the Bay being quite rough and muddy.

The smelt caught last Sunday were unusually small.

For good smelt fishing we would recommend the new wharf at Sausalito, where the fish run larger than at any other point around the Bay.

As usual the old Oakland wharf was crowded with anglers on Sunday last. At the end of the wharf some very large rock-cod were hooked, and a lady caught a skate which weighed over 15 lbs. People who are in the habit of fishing off the wharf state that stingrays abound in the neighborhood, and not a Sunday passes by without several of them being captured.

In certain parts of the Buteno Creek close to the sea, large cat-fish abound. Where these fish are, trout never appear.

The grasshopper is about the best bait that can be used for fishing in deep and dark pools, where large mountain trout abound. After refusing everything else, the trout will jump at the grasshopper.

THE GUN.

At San Jose.

A match at twenty-five Blue Rocks was shot off at San Jose on Sunday last for a medal. The scoring as follows: Balata, 14; F. E. Coykendall, 18; A. Ingiesby, 14; George Anderson, 17; H. J. Coykendall, 21; Jos. Delmas, 20. Mr. H. J. Coykendall won.

Gun Club Shoot.

The San Francisco Gun Club held its monthly shoot (seventh of season) at Adams' Point, on Saturday, the 17th ult. The average number of members attended—eleven, and, as usual on these occasions, a very sociable, pleasant meeting was the result.

The birds were not by any means up to Murphy's usual standard of excellence, taken on the average, and while a few were really good flyers, the majority were not. The result, therefore, was an excellent score, with one exception, and in the side match which followed the main event fifty-seven birds were killed out of sixty. This pretty clearly indicates the character of the birds. Accompanying please find the score of the afternoon's shooting.

The last match of this club will be held on the 7th of September, a couple of weeks earlier than usual, so that it will not interfere with the areangements of the members in connection with their quail shooting trips, the open season for all game coming in on the 10th of the above month.

The match will in all probability be followed by a dinner of the club members, to commemorate the wind-up of the pigeon shooting season.

Springfield Notes.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—The local members of Major Frost's rifle team have returned home. They have been feted and dined to their heart's content in England. The team has done grandly. Five consecutive victories over good teams like they met in England is something for the members of the team and their captain, Major Frost, to be proud of. The citizens of Springfield gave Messrs. Bull, Farnsworth and Bumstead a royal welcome home. The prizes they have won are now on exhibition in a sporting goods store.

Rifle shooting among the military shots is looking up. Both the City and Peabody Guards are busy at practice for the coming State shoot at South Farmingham.

T. B. Wilson, the well-known rifle shot, has laid out a fine 500, 600 and 800 yards range for the Rod, Gun and Rifle Club. They have now as frill a range as any in the country.

Mr. T. T. Cartwright, of Florence, Mass., will soon visit California in the interest of a new hammerless gun, with the manufacture of which he is connected. I trust your readers will welcome him cordially. For purposes of comparison I send a table of scores recently made by Major Frosts team. It was made strictly to rule.

Alameda County Club.

The August meeting of the club held on Saturday last at Adam's Point was the concluding event of the club season. The day was fit and the birds were good. The day's scoring decided the ownership of the magnificent silver tankard won a year or two ago from the Gun Club. The trophy went to Doctor S. E. Knowles with a score of 67 out of 72 birds shot during the season. The doctor deserves his reward. He gives much thought and practice to his favorite sport, and is a sure man over the trap. Mr. C. F. Boardman of the club, killed 66 out of 72, a close call for the pitcher. The scores were:

A Singular Bird.

Some very entertaining reading is afforded by the answers of several prominent gentlemen of this county to queries propounded by the editor of the "BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN" of San Francisco, anent the subject of Mongolian pheasants, concerning which he had reason to believe our local sportsmen were "au fait," says the Democratic Times, of Jacksonville, Oregon. Col. Bowditch, of Ashland, courteously responds to the request of the "Sportsman," and in finished diction and noncommittal fashion proceeds to tell what he doesn't know of the subject in a most entertaining style, carefully steering clear of anything that might show a lack of familiarity with topics outside the limits of the law, although his intimation that the reason why the common hen cannot successfully rear the young of the pheasant family, is because the aforementioned hen is not equipped for mammilian secretions, is hardly creditable to one who has been prominently mentioned as a friend of a granger idea. Truly it "places the pheasant scheme in a different light," as the editor sententiously observes. Col. R. A. Miller, of the Southern Oregon State Board of Agricultural handles the subject with his usual caution, and states that the birds are wonderfully prolific. "When the first brood of eighteen to twenty chicks are hatched the male takes charge of them and another brood of from fifteen to eighteen is soon mingling with the first."

If the season is propitious another lot are hatched before winter." Col. Miller also states that it is a mooted question about their eating wheat or destroying grain. If the two Colonels are both right in their premises, and the male pheasant has the mammillary development complete then indeed is the pheasant a "rara avis" and deserving of close observation. We cannot avoid the conclusion that it is a "foul" aspersion upon the character of a deserving bird. Henry Klippel, of Medford, in his carefully worded reply diplomatically evades the question and gives well authenticated figures concerning the "salmon that run up Rogue river, and weigh from 15 to 40 pounds." Mr. Klippel had not his encyclopedia at hand when he wrote or he would doubtless have been more explicit. All concur in denying that the strange creature has effected a lodgment in this county.

State Sportsman's Association.

The eighth annual meeting of the California State Sportsman's Association will begin at San Jose on Wednesday, October 9th, and promises to be the largest and most interesting convocation of the organization that has ever been held. As usual the details of the meeting have been left with the home club, the Garden City Gun Club, and the following programme of trap events has been prepared. The association meeting proper begins on Thursday, but since the match for the splendid trophy presented by the Selby Smelting and Lead Company will be such a long one, it was thought best to shoot that off on Wednesday.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 9TH.

Selby Trophy Team Match; open to teams of five bona fide members of any regularly organized gun club on the Pacific Coast, contestants to have been members of such clubs on September 1, 1889. Change in the Deer Law.

The following ordinance which will interest hunters was introduced and adopted at the last meeting of the Board of Supervisors of Sonoma County:

In the rooms of the Board of Supervisors of the County of Sonoma, State of California:

In accordance with the provisions of an Act of the Legislature of the State of California, approved March 24, 1887, whereby Section 636 of said Act authorizes the Board of Supervisors of the several counties of this State to change the beginning or ending of the close season named in Section 636, the Board of Supervisors of Sonoma County does ordain as follows:

SECTION 1. That no person shall in this county between the fifteenth day of October in each year and the first day of July in the following year hunt, pursue, take, kill or destroy any male antelope, deer or buck.

SEC. 2. This ordinance shall take effect and be in force on and after the 15th day of October, 1889.

Passed and approved this 6th day of August, 1889, by the following vote:—

Supervisor Cady, aye.
Supervisor Clark, aye.
Supervisor Davis, aye.
Supervisor Smith, aye.
Supervisor Allen, aye.

This change in the ending of the close season will undoubtedly meet with the approval of all true sportsmen, as in this section the deer commence running in the month of October, after which time their meat is worthless and the breeding has fairly commenced. The open season for this species of game formerly extended from July 1st until December 15th.

Mr. Loud Emphasizes.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—The issue of August 24th BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN has just reached me, and I am more than surprised, after reading the contents of Mr. De Neven's letter. Now, Mr. De Neven is a gentleman and a scholar, and a very well posted sportsman, and how he can write such a letter I cannot understand, and after calling his attention to this statement about the Mongolian pheasant cock taking the chicks after hatching, he acknowledged to me that he did not believe this himself, but merely wrote it from hearsay. Now, again, Mr. De Neven says the Mongolian pheasant as a game bird is second to none, and a little farther on he says they will not lie to the dog. Now, gentlemen and brother sportsmen, this is all we want to know and all I have been trying to prove that they were not a game bird, and if there is one sportsman that thinks they are I will invite him to pay me a visit and I feel sure he will go away satisfied that my statement is true. I will not discuss the qualities of the bird as table food. I have had the pleasure of tasting many kinds, and I must say the little bob white is good enough for me.

For the past few days I have had the pleasure of hunting with Mr. M. Drummond, from Davisville, Cal., a gentleman and a fine shot, and one who knows what a game bird is, and let me say right here it is a cold day when a grouse gets away from him after his butt plate hits his shoulder. We spent about three hours in the field together yesterday shooting over Romeo and a Llewellin dog owned by Mr. Gerber of Sacramento, Cal. Our bag counted twenty-two, nineteen grouse and three native pheasants, and Mr. Drummond will bear me out in my statements about the gameness of the Mongolian pheasant, as he has seen to his entire satisfaction that they will not lie to a dog, and the only way to find this out is in the field and over a well broken dog. If this bird was allowed to breed at Bakersfield, in less than two years the boys would offer ten dollars bounty on each head bagged to rid the country of them. A few more remarks and I am done. Brother sportsmen, the statements I have made have been after a careful study of the habits of this bird in the field with a well broken dog, and not from hearsay or from farmers that never saw a dog point a game bird. The proof of the pudding is in chewing the string. I would like to hear something about the country around Bakersfield, as I am anxious to locate where there is a good opportunity to work my dogs on quail and to mingle among true sportsmen. Before I close let me say, Mr. Editor, the latch string to our little home hangs out to you and to all brother sportsmen.

C. A. LOUD,

Corvallis, Or., Aug. 26th, 1889.

Messrs. Edward Fay and Crittenden Robinson shot a practice match at Birds Point on Thursday last, and made extraordinary scores, which will be given next week. Mr. Fay is in championship form, and when his match with Mr. C. J. Haas of Stockton comes off, there will be a battle of giants. Mr. Haas is the California wing shooting Club champion for the year, but if Mr. Fay shoots up to his practice form only a clean score can win.

We shall be pleased to receive from our brethren at Bakersfield some descriptions of the facilities afforded in that section to lovers of field sports in answer to Mr. Loud's queries, which appears elsewhere. Our recollection is that the sportsmen of the town are about the keenest, most cordial, and friendly men we have known and that the opportunities for shooting are unequalled. If Mr. Loud can be satisfied with good meats, splendid fruits, quails, cottontails, English snipe, ducks, deer, trout and plain fare like that he will soon fall in love with Bakersfield.

We make a few excerpts from a note received from Mr. Will A. Perry "Silalicum," of Seattle. He says: "When on our club hunt in Eastern Washington Territory in '87, I became overheated chasing the festive John Rabbit over the bunch grass hills of Palouse, caught a severe cold that settled on my lungs, and, as our tribe is give to consumption, I thought that the stamp of him of the white horse was on me, or, as the vulgar express it, my "name was Dennis." But friend, J. C. Nattrass, who is a successful druggist and perhaps has more knowledge of lung complaints than many doctors, took me in charge, and as a result has produced one of the fattest, and I blush to write it, the laziest man on the American Continent. But now I am going to reform. I owe all the sportsman's journals a debt of gratitude and shall soon begin to square my account. As soon as the game law is off, Nattrass and I are going up to the Sumas." [We hope "Silalicum" may wax even fatter, and live long in the land, to entertain and instruct his fellow sportsmen whose opportunities for shooting and fishing are less favorable.]

THE KENNEL.

Dog owners are requested to send for publication the earliest possible notices of whelps, sales, names claimed, presentations and deaths in their kennels, in all instances writing plainly names of sire and dam and of grandparents, colors, dates and breed.

The Cropping Question.

Mr. J. Sidney Turner, of the English Kennel Club, initiated the discussion, and gives the history of the resolution:

Previously to the general meeting held at the Kennel Club Winter Show at Alexandria Park in February, 1889, I had given notice, both verbally and in writing, that I would propose the following: "That any dog born after July 1st, 1889, which has been cropped shall be ineligible to compete for any prize at any show held under Kennel Club rules." As this was by some inadvertence not put upon the agenda paper, I brought it forward in committee (vide Kennel Gazette, February, 1889). It was thought by Mr. Shirley and others who were present that, as the question was a very important one, it should be placed on the agenda paper of the next committee meeting, and every member would have time to consider, and the committee could deal with it as was thought best; consequently, it was again brought forward at the committee meeting held at the Kennel Club on March 5, to apply to Kennel Club Shows only. I stated at this meeting that "in first framing this resolution it applied to all shows held under Kennel Club rules; but, on its being pointed out that such an alteration of a rule could only be made at a general meeting, I had altered the resolution to apply to Kennel Club shows only" (vide Kennel Gazette, March, 1889). Mr. Percy C. Reid at this meeting said he was decidedly averse to cropping, but he considered the committee should be guided by the general wish of exhibitors. But he chiefly objected to the resolution owing to its extremely limited action.

Whatever decision was arrived at it ought to be binding on all shows held under Kennel Club rules, and not on their own two annual shows only. But to do this the resolution must be passed at a general meeting of the Kennel Club, and he therefore suggested that the whole question should be postponed until the general meeting at the summer show, and meanwhile the secretary should obtain the views of all members of the Kennel Club and of exhibitors generally on the subject." Mr. Shirley said "He was of opinion that the Kennel Club should go into the question in a thoroughly practical manner, should take means to find out the views of all interested in the subject, and if the opinion of the majority was against cropping, he for one would cheerfully support any measure for stopping it." After discussion and the reading of petitions from various specialist clubs and exhibitors for and against cropping, it was decided that the whole question of cropping shall be deferred to the general meeting of the Kennel Club next winter; and that meanwhile all breeds that are usually cropped shall have classes given them for uncropped specimens in addition at the two next ensuing shows of the Kennel Club. As the annual general meeting is held in the winter only, and it seemed to me and others that this question should be decided sooner than that time, I wrote a letter to Mr. Aspinall to give notice that at the committee meeting to be held in April I should propose that a special general meeting of the club be held at the Kennel Club's Summer Show to consider the advisability of not allowing any dog cropped after the date of such show to compete at any show held under Kennel Club rules, etc. The etc. referred to illegality, and was withdrawn. As amended, the resolution was carried nem. con. (Rev. G. F. Lovell being present).

Mr. Percy Reid proposed "that the Secretary be instructed to issue a circular to all members of the Kennel Club, etc.," which was also carried nem. con. Now it will be seen that the resolution which I proposed at this meeting was that a special general meeting be held to consider the advisability of stopping cropping, and referred to my previous resolution, which had been so often before the committee. It would have been better if the original resolution had been printed on the agenda paper for the general meeting, but Mr. Aspinall took the wording of my letter to him, wherein I referred to the original relolution in general terms. However, "to consider the advisability of not allowing cropping," or to consider the question whether cropping shall be allowed or not allowed, seems to me to be so near the same thing that only those who receive a special training for unravelling the twist of a spider's thread (for astronomical transit purposes) could dissect out and discover any difference.

Splitting hairs is a clumsy pastime compared to it. I think we may take it that everyone who attended the meeting knew what was the intention. If the Great Dane Club members did not, why did they hold a meeting and pass their curious resolution, which read as if my proposal were not comprehensive enough for them? But they certainly did not mean this. I do not profess to be a master of the rules of debate, but it is certainly new to me that an amendment cannot be proposed to any resolution—if it bear upon the subject—whether it is stated or not in the agenda that amendments may be proposed; and I think Mr. Shirley was quite right in ruling as he did. In conclusion, may I add that I hope no words of mine have given offence to anyone, and that I feel sure that those who disagreed with me were actuated by motives as high and honorable as those which in—for me—an unlucky moment tempted me to bring forward this question, on which I feel "materiem non superabat opus."

A fine fox hound bitch is offered for sale in the advertising columns. She was shown on the bench in May last and won. At the price asked, she is a bargain.

Mr. H. F. Littlefield of Lake View Kennels, Worcester, Mass., a leading breeder of pure collies, writes us that the interest in the breed is increasing fast in this section. It would be gratifying if as much could be said for California The man who first brings to the State and shows a really good collie will sweep the bench.

Mr. W. G. Hay sends from far away Saginaw, Mich., some pictures, which are highly appreciated. Mr. Hay owns some excellent English setters, and is enthusiastic in training and using them. While in San Francisco a few weeks ago, he more than half promised to attend the field trials in January next and bring along a dog or two. We hope he may do so, and that he may induce some friends to accompany him. Mr. Hay writes: "We will have no duck shooting this year, as the water is very low, and we have no rice. I had a good deal of sport the other day with my old setter on woodcock, but only bagged two, not because I did not see more, but because I only needed the pair."

Mr. W. E. Houghton writes from Bakersfield, "Our party has just returned from the Mount Whitney trip—the paradise of trout and grand scenery. No doubt Henry Borgwardt and Dan. Leonard have told you that we took a photographer with us. We have about seventy-five views that cannot be excelled. Six of our party went to the summit of Whitney, Ike L. Miller among the number, and a picture was taken of the group—on the highest point in the United States. You must go up there—you do not know what you have missed all these years. Get Mr. Schreiber up to his speed and make him go, too. I would like to see Will Kittle and Ed. Bosqui join such a party. You know I have been up there five times now, and I am conceited enough to think I am the boss guide. How would you enjoy a half day visiting the most beautiful scenery in the world (no exaggeration), and two hundred trout to your credit at the same time? Such is in store for you, and I repeat, that it is your duty in your journalistic capacity to give the sporting world the benefit of what opportunities California holds out. I returned before the rest. Ike Miller had the good sense to leave the party for a ten day's longer stay, and while I am writing from this parched and dusty rebuilding city, I have no doubt he is landing a four-pound trout up in Paradise. I have a good many sins to figure up when I make up my earthly balance sheet, but if I mention this coming home first, Peter won't ask for any more—it will be a clear case."

[Thanks for suggestions. It really does seem that duty leads to Mt. Whitney, and we can imagine no more capable or delightful guide and companion than Mr. Houghton. Messrs. Schrieber, Kittle and Bosqui, may note the invitation and act in accord with it. A four-pound mountain trout is a magnet that suffices to draw us any distance on the level; whether it would nerve for ascent to the highest point in America remains to be seen. We hear, too, that deer abound in the section referred to, and have often wondered that tourist sportsmen do not take the Mt. Whitney trip. By going to Bakersfield, they could learn from Mr. Houghton everything about preparations for the trip, in fact could outfit there, and get guides, etc. We hope to see some of the pictures made on the recent trip.—KEN. ED.]

Both O'Connor and Searle are doing regular work on the Thames River, and both have a troop of admirers, although the champion is the favorite with the general public. Each has got out racing colors. The Canadian's design is a white silk kerchief with blue border and spots, O'Connor's portrait in the center, the American eagle and Canadian beaver in the upper right and left hand corners, respectively, and small Union Jack and American flags in the bottom corners. Searles' colors are white and blue with the Australian coat of arms and the champion's name in the center. O'Connor has many strong supporters on the Pacific Coast, and among them some very rich men, who are willing to back the Canadian for large amounts.

The Santa Rosa Meeting.

The existence of the Sonoma County Agricultural Park Association has almost come to an end, and at the close of the meeting of last week the members find themselves with an indebtedness of $2,000 or more to unload. The Association gave good races; there is no questioning that fact. They were races which, in the neighborhood of a city, would have drawn a good crowd. At Santa Rosa they did not. There was not even a fair attendance any day, and the gate receipts did not pay for the purses alone, not to speak of the other expenses attendant upon a meeting. The reason for this lack of attendance was not simply indifference to racing, but there was something underneath. Not only did the people of Santa Rosa stay away from the track, but they did everything in their power to keep other people away and to throw a damper upon the meeting. They succeeded in their intent, and succeeded further in putting some of the best men in the county into debt. The Association was not giving meetings for money; they were willing to risk their money for the sake of the sport which was open to all to enjoy, and yet, because the Directors chose to conduct their meetings as they saw fit, and not as the town—who had no money in it—wanted them run, the town set itself up in virtuous antagonism to the Association. It has been the custom for towns to great to its associations every public privilege which could assist in the success of the meetings. Santa Rosa did not do this.

On the contrary, it raised privilege licenses, refused to close its stores or give its workingmen half-holidays, and, in fact, did everything possible to bury the idea that there was a race meeting going on in the town. There is no doubt that the town profited by the meeting. They always do, because the racing brings together a class of men who spend their money freely, but who would probably never see the town unless a race meeting should be in progress. A large number of horses have been stabled at the track for the past two or three months in preparation for the races. Supplies for horses and men came from the Santa Rosa merchants, and these same merchants did not even give their clerks a chance to attend the races.

The whole story of the failure of the meeting lies in the vindictive action of the business people of Santa Rosa. They reaped the benefits of the meeting without contributing anything to it. They have killed the goose which has been laying a very rich golden egg for them, and in time they will see their foolish error, and when the race track has been converted into a sheep ranch they will realize what they have lost and will be sorry that they did not stand by the association instead of antagonizing it.

Eros, the Sire of Wanda.

Last week we published a letter from Mr. Lowell of Sacramento in reference to the pedigree of Wanda, 2:24, that gentleman claiming she was by Fallis, while the proprietor of the mare had given her breeding as being by Eros. The communication has produced the following from Frank H. Burke, which was also accompanied by the affidavits given below. In view of the testimony given, we think that the paternity of the mare is established beyond a doubt.

MENLO PARK, CAL., Aug. 28, 1889.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN—SIR:—In reply to Mr. F. P. Lowell's letter in your issue of August 24th, claiming for Fallis the honor of being the first son of Electioneer to produce a 2:30 trotter in my four-year old filly Wanda, 2:24, I beg leave to produce the affidavits and proofs of the claim I make of her being by my Electioneer stallion Eros, which I think will convince Mr. Lowell and all fair-minded persons that he is mistaken in this matter, though quite naturally so, but he, above all others, must know the number of errors and discrepancies in pedigrees, etc. that will creep into hastily gotten up auction catalogues.

AFFIDAVIT OF C. M. CHASE.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 26, 1889.

On November 17, 1886, my firm sold at auction at Mayfield, Santa Clara County, to Frank H. Burke a bay filly marked No. 36 on the catalogues, and stated to be by Fallis out of Girofle. At the close of the sale Mr. Henry Seales told me that this filly was sold by mistake and was not bred as stated in the catalogues, and desired me to see at what figure it could be repurchased from Mr. Burke.

On February 28, 1889, I sold by order of the executors of Henry W. Seales, at San Francisco, at auction, the four-year-old bay geldiug Samoa, sired by Fallis, first dam Girofle, to J. Howard Smith of Berkeley, being the same sire and dam and year of foaling as was represented to be the breeding of the filly sold to Mr. Burke in 1886.

AFFIDAVIT OF JOHN CUNNINGHAM.

MAYFIELD, SANTA CLARA CO., CAL., Aug. 26, '89.

I have been in the employ of Mr. Henry W. Seales, of Mayfield, California, for the greater part of the last ten years, and have had entire charge of his brood-mares and young colts.

I know the filly bought by Mr. Frank Burke at auction from Mr. Henry Seales on November 17, 1886, to be by the stallion Eros, and out of the mare Accident (by Elmo), as I held the mare in 1884 when served by Eros at Palo Alto. The pedigree given in the catalogue of the auction sale on November 17, 1886, was that of the bay gelding Samoa, that was sold in San Francisco as a four-year-old in 1889.

The mistake occured when getting ready for the auction of November, 1886, at which time I was absent from the ranch, and the Eros filly out of Accident was sold by mistake, when it was the intention of Mr. Seales to sell the bay colt by Fallis out of Girofle. The mare Girofle never had twins.

AFFIDAVITT OF LEE SHANER.

PETALUMA, August 27, 1889.

I was present at the auction held by Killip & Co. for Mr. Henry Seales at Mayfield on November 17, 1886, being at that time in charge of Mr. Seales' trotters. I know the yearling bought by Mr. Frank Burke at that sale. The pedigree as given in the catalogue at that time was erroneous, as I know that that filly was out of Accident (she by Elmo).

The mistake occured while separating the colts prior to the making out of the catalogues; those that were to be reserved from the sale were put in one field, while those that were to be catalogued were retained in the corral. Through mistake the filly out of Accident was put among those to be catalogued instead of the bay yearling colt by Fallis, out of Girofle, that Mr. Seales had intended to dispose of at that sale.

I have seen the filly Wanda, and believe from the form of her jaw and hock and general appearance, that it is the same filly out of Accident, as all of her colts had a particular shaped jaw, throttle and hock that could not be mistaken.

Samoa, by Fallis, out of Girofle, sold in San Francisco as a four-year-old in 1889 by the Seales Estate, is the one that was to have been sold instead of Wanda at the November sale of 1886.

AFFIDAVIT OF GEORGE ELKINS.

I was in the employ of Mr. Henry Seales, of Mayfield, prior to November 17th, 1886, the date of an auction, at which time Mr. Frank Burke bought a yearling filly put down in the catalogue as by Fallis out of Girofle, the sale of this filly being made through a mistake, as the intention was to sell the yearling colt by Fallis out of Girofle, but the colts were wrongly separated prior to making up the catalogues. I know the filly he got was out of Accident, and not out of Girofle.

Mr. Seales and John Cunningham (the men in charge of the brood mares for years) stated that the filly bought by Mr. Burke was by Eros.

AFFIDAVIT OF W. H. VIOGET.

SAN FRANCISCO, August 26th, 1889.

I was present at the auction of a portion of Mr. Seales' stock sold at Mayfield on November 17th, 1886. I saw the filly bought by Mr. Frank Burde at that sale, then catalogued as by Fallis out of Girofle, foaled in 1885; I have seen this filly at least twice a month ever since, and know that she is called Wanda.

Mr. Henry Seales on several occasions attempted to buy the filly from Mr. Burke through me and failing in this told me in 1888, at the State Fair, (when he made the last attempt to buy her) that she was by Eros and out of Accident, which is by Elmo. W. H. VIOGET.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 26th day of Aug., '89. GEO. T. KNOX, Notary Public.

THURSDAY.

The third day of the meeting had a larger attendance than any previous day. The grand stand, betting sheds and paddock were literally packed with people, the crowd all anxious for the three-year-old trot. The day was begun with a five-eighths dash between Cockrill's br h Captain Al, Kingston—Black Maria, and Billy Donathan's ch h Hubbard Earl, by Wildidle, dam unknown. Hubbard Earl was favorite, selling at $25 to $9 for Captain Al. Taylor, on Captain Al, carried 116 pounds, five pounds overweight. They were sent off to a good start. The favorite was half a length in front coming around the turn. Captain Al tired at the head of the straight and the favorite came on and won easily by four lengths in 1:04¼.

There was a feeling of half suppressed excitement pervading the atmosphere about the stables and among the horsemen when the bell tapped, calling out the three-year-olds. That it was to be a race for blood no one doubted for a moment. It was Electioneer and the thoroughbred cross against Guy Wilkes, the whole Wilkes family and the purely bred trotter. Margaret S. was in fairly good fix, but her late sickness prevented her being put in proper trim for a bruising race. The other two were fit to race for a man's life, and they were perfect pictures of a horseman's dream when they passed through the gate and jogged out upon the track. The track was fast, and during the night had undergone special preparation for the great event, and some of the hardness had been taken out of it. Marvin, Goldsmith and McDowell were of course the pilots. I saw each of the drivers before the race, and inquired as to the conditions of the starters. Marvin said "the filly is all right;" Goldsmith had the same thing to say of his charge, and McDowell said Margaret was not good but still not bad.

It was the betting event of the day, and a pile of money went into the boxes, Sunol of course selling favorite, bringing $50, Lillian Wilkes $25, and Margaret S. $5. In the mutuals it was Sunol and the field, with plenty of backers for the Palo Alto filly, every boy in the stable putting up his little screw upon the pride of the place. Sunol came out first, and as she jogged up the straight her beautiful golden brown coat shining and glistening in the afternoon sun like a handsome piece of satin, three thousand pairs of eyes watched her closely, and noted the smooth, gliding gait which marks the perfection of speed and action.

Margaret S. next showed up, and there were many warm comments upon the good mare. Goldsmith was last out with Lillian Wilkes. She, too, presented a handsome appearance, going steadily along with that machine-like gait which has already carried her around the circle in 2:18.

Sunol had the pole, Lillian Wilkes was second and Margaret S. third. They scored but twice and then La Rue gave them the word. They went off with Sunol slightly in advance, but, going into the turn, Lillian Wilkes made a bad break, and before she got down Sunol and Margaret S. were at the quarter post in 34 seconds, Sunol trotting smoothly and without effort, Margaret S. a length behind her. Going down the backstretch Margeret S. on the outside went up to Sunol's wheel and at the half was at her flank. Lillian Wilkes got down near the quarter and came on last, over a distance and a half behind the leaders. Marvin took Sunol well to the front on the lower turn and then waited for Lillian Wilkes. In the straight Sunol drew away to three lengths lead and finished in the slowest kind of a jog, Margaret S. three lengths back, and Lillian Wilkes two lengths inside the distance flag. Time, 2:21½. Quarters, :33¾, 1:09¼, 1:46.

Second Heat—Sunol went away out of sight in the auctions, selling at $25 to $5 for the field, with few takers for the field The three cooled out well and came to the score all the better for the heat. Once, twice, three times they scored, and then went off, Sunol leading Margaret stopped on her wheel, and Lillian Wilkes a length behind. When they strung out on the turn Sunol was an open length first, Margaret S. second, and Lillian Wilkes the same distance back. These were the positions at the head of the backstretch. Then Goldsmith began to move Lillian up. A hundred yards from the quarter she lapped Margaret S, half way down she had collared the Director filly and passed her. When the half was reached Lillian Wilkes was at Sunol's wheel and both going like the wind. They drew away from Margaret S. as if she were standing still. On the turn Sunol went a good length in front and had that much lead at the head of the straight. Lillian Wilkes commenced to crawl up. Sunol went faster; so did Lillian Lillian still gained. Half way home from the three-quarters Lillian had her head at the favorite's wheel. Marvin leaned away over in his sulky and raised his whip. He held it poised for a moment as if undecided, then the lash came down. The filly spurted forward. Lillian was with her. The Wilkes filly, with a burst of lightning speed, got to the favorite's flank. Then the lash fell again and again Sunol swerved from the pole. Thirty yards from the wire they were even; then Lillian shoved her head in front and went under the wire first by a length and a half. Margaret S was just inside the red flag. Time by quarters, 34½, 1:10¼, 1:45, 2:17¾. The people yelled themselves hoarse as the finish was made, and "Lillian wins! Lillian wins!" was the great cry that went up from the densely packed grand stand.

Third Heat.—There was a rush for the betting shed and the money poured in. The greatest chop in record was the result. Lillian Wilkes was sold as favorite against the field, bringing a steady price of $90 against $32, the big double eagles coming up on the auction counter in handfuls. By and bye Lillian sold with Margaret at $50 against $15 for Sunol. They had five scores before they got off, with Margaret S. having the best of the go. Sunol went to the fore in the turn a length a head of Margaret and two open lengths from Lillian. Margaret closed up and was even with Sunol at the quarter, and Lillian three lengths back, broke. There was a cry from the crowd. Sunol went into the backstretch with Margaret at her neck. Lillian got her feet again just past the quarter and was a good six lengths behind. Sunol drew away from Margaret and passed the half, two lengths to the good of her and seven lengths away from Lillian Wilkes. Goldsmith began to drive his filly in the lower turn. She walked up on Margaret and passed her. Then she started for Sunol, three lengths away at the head of the straight. Marvin was already driving Sunol and kept throwing his head around each time to see Lillian Wilkes crawling up. Half way home, when Lillian was at her wheel, Sunol again got the whip, and for once she could not respond, Lillian came on like a machine, regular, level and sure. Marvin gave the filly two or three sharp cuts in a last effort, but she tired and was no more in it, quitting dead away. Marvin pulled her her up and Lillian Wilkes went under easy. Margaret S. was two lengths inside the flag. Time by quarters, 0:35, 1:10½, 1:46 and 2:22. The crowd went wild. Sunol went back to her stall in bad shape, and dry as a bone. They couldn't get a scrape out of her.

Fourth Heat—Pools sold, Field $50, Sunol $5. They scored twice and got the word. This time Lillian went off into the turn in the lead, Sunol second, Margaret S. third. They went around the turn very slow at the quarter, Lillian was a length to the good and Margaret S. and Sunol were together. Down the backstretch Sunol got up to Lillian's wheel, Margaret S. at her wheel. In this order they reached the half, then Marvin moved Sunol up faster. He got her to Lillian's flank and then to her head, and they rounded into the straight on even terms. Margaret S. came up near them and the three in a bunch trotted for home, Sunol doing her best, but Lillian Wilkes well in hand. They reached the drawgate with Sunol and Lillian head and head, then the three drivers drew their whips. The fillies were tired, but Lillian Wilkes had more in her in reserve, and under a hard drive she won the deciding heat by two lengths, Marvin drawing up. Margaret S. finished third close up to Sunol. Time, 2:25. There never was a blanker looking crowd than Sunol's backers after the race. That the filly would be beaten no one dreamed.

2:27 Class.

The 2:27 class, purse $800, was the next thing on the card, and it furnished some close finishes. The starters were E. B. Gifford's blk m Belle B., T. Rochford's b m Emma Temple, and M. Salisbury's b m Hazel Kirke. In the first heat Hazel Kirke was the only thing in it, and took the lead at the start and held it all the way, winning easily in 2:26¼, Emma Temple second and Belle B. third. The second heat was more interesting. Hazel Kirke went off in the lead, followed by Emma Temple. The two were four lengths apart all the way to the head of the straight, when Temple began to close up. She steadily gained on the leader, and under the whip they went under the wire nose and nose. It was a dead heat. In the third, Hazel Kirke again led Temple to the straight. Then Temple made her rush as before and took the heat by a length in 2:23½. Belle B. made no showing in either heat. The fourth heat was taken by Emma Temple, she leading to the lower turn, where Hazel Wilkes closed up and they trotted to the straight and down to the drawgate like a team. Then Emma Temple drew away under the whip and snatched the heat by half a length in 2:26, Hazel Kirke second, Belle B. third.

Belle B. went for the fifth heat and led at the bottom of the stretch. She fell back with a break, and Emma Temple cut in and fouled her, causing the drivers nearly to come to blows after the race. Belle B. went to pieces and left Hazel Kirke and Emma Temple to fight it out. It was an even race all the way up the stretch, Emma winning in the last ten yards. Time, 2:26½.

Special Trot—Two-year-olds.

A special trot for L. J. Rose's b m Mista and Palo Alto's b c Delmar closed the day's events. The first heat was taken easily by Mista, Delmar acting badly and breaking continually. Time, 2:34½. Mista also got the second heat; Delmar broke on the turn and lost too much ground to recover, and Mista trotted on alone, Delmar breaking half a dozen times in the mile, and landing just inside his distance. Time, 2:29.

Judges for the day—H. M. LaRue, Fred Loeber, Robt. Craner. Timers—L. J. Rose, Harry Agnew, J. U. Hastings.

Continuation of Chico Races.

THURSDAY.

A large and enthusiastic crowd turned out to witness the day's sport. The first race, a district pacing (with no record) was won by Wapple. John L. had the race won in the fourth, but was driven to a break when seven lengths in front on the upper turn, Wapple taking that and the fifth heat easily. A vigorous kick was made by the John L. party that Wapple had a record, but as his was a trotting record the race was of course given to him.

The half mile and repeat was supposed to be a certainty for Eve, but she quit badly after the first heat, and Gray, who judiciously laid up the first heat, won the next easily. The mile was deemed a certainty for Applause, but Stephenson sitting still all the way, was caught napping, Dan Dennison, riding a slashing race on Hotspur, making a dead heat on the first. The judges put Howson up in the run-off, and the veteran led half a length to the six furlong pole, and then drew out, winning cleverly by an open length.

First Heat—After scoring up several times, they were sent off, Wapple and Lady Tolman cutting out the work to the quarter, where the mare broke dropping back, while John L. closed up to within four lengths at the half, and keeping up the pace was only a length behind at the head of the stretch and both driven hard. John L. won by a head, Wapple second, the other two just inside the flag. Time, 2:27½.

Second Heat—Auction pools, Wapple $15, John L. $10, Field $4. When let go, Wapple went out leading John L. four lengths at the quarter, Lady Tolman who was third broke bady, falling away back. Wapple kept going right out winning by five lengths, the other two distanced. Time, 2:27.

Third Heat—Auction pools: Wapple $15, John L. $5, They were tapped off at the third attempt, Wapple leading an open length to the distance, when he broke, running under the wire two lengths in front. The heat was to John L. Time, 2:24½.

Fourth Heat—Auction pools: Wapple $10, John L. $12. Wapple led a length and a half on the turn, but breaking, was forty yards behind; he closed up a little on the backstretch, and John L. driven to a break on the upper turn, was passed and beaten out easily four lengths. Time, 2:32½.

Fifth Heat—No pools. John L. broke on the first turn, Wapple going on forty yards in front won easily by five lengths. Time, 2:34½.

In view of the coming contest for $500 a side, between Mr. Taylor of San Jose, and Mr. McCleery, many will watch the 200 or no count game, to be played at the opening of the magnificent Baldwin billiard rooms this evening. "Just to see what play Mc is in," others will attend for the purpose of seeing for themselves if the Professor really can make the balls cut the capers they have heard of.

CHICO.

On Sunday morning, after an interesting conversation with President Crawford, who has been the backbone of the Willows meeting, in which he said that he hoped next year to have a State appropriation for Glenn County (with Willows as the county seat), we took a special stage for Chico, passing through the Glenn Ranch for miles, until we reached Jacinto, on the Sacramento River, the headquarters of the Glenn Ranch. Everything was life and activity, the river boats loading with grain, of which there is great quantities stored on the river bank, and being a day of rest on the ranch, the hands were enjoying their holiday in the little town.

After changing horses we followed the river for several miles on the dustiest road on earth, and then crossed the river, and with the slight breeze blowing across the road, had a pleasant drive to Chico, passing through part of the Reavis' Ranch. After a bath, an inspection of the track found sixteen horses already there, principally local, with the exception of Kings from Broodland, among which was a good-looking bay, four years old, by imp. Lyon's Lawrence, dam by Billet, out of a sister to Luke Blackburn. Lyon's Lawrence is by Vedette, out of Lucca by Scottish Chief. It looked singular to see a horse with such a regal pedigree practically unknown here, but he was bought from Mr. Fergusson in Kentucky by J. B. Haggin, and when suffering from distemper was sold to the King Bros., and has not been worked until this year; he is now in pretty fair trim, considering that he served upwards of thirty mares this season. The Grass Valley contingent came in on the 6:30 train with Rabe Hotspur, Applause, Eva W., Redwood, Thapsin and others, while a host more are expected to-night and to-morrow. The courteous secretary, Jo. D. Sproul, says the stalls are already more than filled or spoken for, and there is every prospect of one of the best fairs ever held in Chico.

TUESDAY.

GOLDSMITH MAID.

Time { First heat..... 2:19¼ / Second heat..... 2:14¼ / Third heat..... 2:17 } May 9th, 1877.

Chico track is one of the oldest and most celebrated in the State, as the above legend (with the old triangle) on the judges' stand shows. This year the stalls were filled beforehand and several outside stables engaged. The opening day was not as good as it ought to have been, the district horses having almost all been drawn out. Neither of them were anything like a race, distance being waived in both, which were won in very hollow style. In the six furlongs and repeat the local talent all backed Menlo, while the Sacramento and Grass Valley contingent would only hear of Applause, making him a red-hot favorite, and right worthily did the gallant son of Three Cheers carry the money. In the first heat he was never extended, running easily in 1:16, with Hotspur and Menlo ridden hard all the way. In the second he came back in the same time, with his head shaking and his mouth wide open, Johnny Gray second, Howson having judiciously laid up the first heat. The judges were President W. A. Shippee, Col. W. Hawkins, and T. P. Hendricks. Timers, J. J. Reavis and Chas. Sherman. Starter, W. Billups.

Two-year-old, District, Trotting.

First Heat.—No pools sold. At the third attempt they were turned loose. Both broke twice before reaching the quarter, and the colt, settling down, trotted away, winning easily by thirty yards. Time, 2:59¼.

Second Heat.—At the second attempt they received the word. The colt broke on the turn, but catching cleverly drew out, and going on, won in a jog by a hundred and twenty yards.

They ran in the same order round the turn, and Applause drew out, winning easily by three lengths, Hotspur second, a head in front of Menlo after a whipping finish, Gray a bad third. Time, 1:16.

Second Heat—Auction pools: (Applause barred), Hotspur $15, Menlo $4, Gray $6. The flag fell to a fair start, Menlo having a shade the worst of it. Applause cut out the work with Hotspur at his girths, two lengths in front of Gray, to the head of the stretch, where Gray closed up, and passing Hotspur, hunted Applause home a length and a half behind, Hotspur two lengths in the rear, third, and Menlo distanced. WEDNESDAY.

The attendance was much better, the stock exhibits being greatly admired, particularly the twenty odd head of horses shown by D. M. Reavis. Old Blackbird, who is now a dappled gray, twenty-nine years old, was visited all day long by crowds of spectators. He carries his age better than any horse I ever saw, his back being good, while his head does not show any traces of his great age, and he is as agile and playful as a kitten. The Holsteins and Devons were also much admired, especially the former, fourteen head having been sent from Senator Stanford's Nira Ranch. The trotting in two of the events (district) was rather tame. The 2:40 class was ultimately productive of a good race as Dennison was given first money without trotting Rabe, in order to give a better contest, all the other owners being agreeable. Almonta was then made favorite, but Redwood took the first heat, Almonta the next, and then Dan Dennison, who was driving Addie, turned loose, taking the next three. In the last heat Redwood was driven by Wilber Smith, but made no better showing than before.

The judges and timers were the same, except that C. H. Merrill took Chas. Sherman's place in the timers' stand. Jo. D. Sproul again officiated as Clerk of Scales and Course, etc.

District Three-year-olds.

First Heat—No pools sold. At the second attempt they received the word, Annie trotting steadily, while Tart broke before reaching the turn, dropping back forty yards. The mare went on easily, and was pulled to a walk under the wire five lengths in front. Time, 2:57½.

Second Heat—They were let go at the third attempt and Tart again breaking on the turn the heat was simply a repetition of the first, Annie winning easily by four lengths. Time, 2:54½.

Third Heat—The pair received the word at the second attempt, Tart again breaking on the turn, was ten lengths behind at the quarter, but closed up to within three, up the backstretch, owing to Annie breaking a bad break. Annie settled down, jogging home, winning by a head, Merrill driving it very fine. Time, 2:54.

2:30 Class—Trotting.

After scoring up several times the triangle was tapped and Redwood went out in front, leading two lengths round the turn, Bird and Almonta neck and neck second, Kate Agnew three lengths back fourth, and Addie E. a bad fifth. Redwood led all the way, Almonta closing up on the upper turn and coming fast down the straight was only beaten a length and a half, Bird third, Addie E. last. Time, 2:27.

Second Heat—Auction pools—Almonte $20, Redwood $8, Field $4. When they received the word at the fourth attempt, Addie E. went right out leaving four lengths round the turn, Redwood second, a length in front of Almonta. Redwood closed up on the backstretch, where Dennison drove wide and Redwood following let Almonta up on the inside, and the mares closing in, left Redwood out in the cold, Almonta winning by a length and a half, Redwood pulled up four lengths back third, Kate Agnew just inside the flag and Bird outside. Time, 2:25.

Third Heat—Almonte $10, Field $5. The quartette were tapped off to a good start, but Almonte breaking badly fell back last, Addie E. going away rapidly was six lengths in front of Redwood at the quarter, Agnes two further back and Almonte who was trotting again three behind Agnew. Redwood under pressure drew up to Addie on the backstretch, but leaving his feet was passed by both the others of whom Almonta was going best when she broke on the turn and Addie trotted home easily two lengths in front of Kate Agnew. Time, 2:30½.

Fourth Heat—Auction pools: Addie $20, Almonta $15, field $4. When they were sent off Redwood was two lengths behind. Addie set the pace round the turn three lengths in front of Agnew, with the other pair four lengths back level, Up the backstretch Redwood closed up to Agnew, but fell back on the turn, Addie winning easily by three lengths from Kate Agnew. Time, 2:28.

Fifth Heat—W. F. Smith drove Redwood in this heat. Auction pools: Addie $20, field $6. Almont and Addie went out together, trotting head and head round the turn, Redwood breaking badly, was forty yards behind. The two leaders kept together up the backstretch and round the turn, when Dennison gradually drew out, being an open length in front of Almonta at the distance, and with the latter leaving her feet, won easily by two lengths, Redwood distanced. Time, 2:25.

First Heat—Auction pools: L. Almont $10, Stranger $6. Almont led three lengths to the three furlong pole, when, breaking, he was passed by Stranger, but settling down, trotted easily past him and jogged home a length in front. Time, 2:34½.

Second Heat—No pools. Almont led from the wire, but making a standstill break on the turn, was soon forty yards behind. Stranger, going very slowly, was passed before the top turn by the favorite, who trotted clean away from him, pulling up to let Stranger inside. Time, 2:35.

Third Heat—Almont led by three lengths when the first turn was made, and, staying in front, jogged home two lengths and a half in front. Time, 2:36.

C. H. Nelson, the great Waterville (Maine), horseman, tells a reporter that he has just received an offer by wire to trot Nelson against the famous California stallion Stamboul for $10,000. If all the arrangements can be properly made Nelson will probably be gotten into shape and started for California as soon as the fall races are over in the East. Mr. Nelson has just received and declined an offer of $50,000 for his stallion, and is exceedingly enthusiatic over the work of the horse thus far.

The famous Sanchez mansion in San Pedro Valley has been remodeled, and additions made, transforming it into a fully appointed modern hotel. Twenty elegantly furnished rooms are available. The table is unexceptionable, poultry, cream, fish and game being supplied from adjacent ranchos. The personal attention of the proprietor is constantly given, and scrupulous regard for the comfort and pleasure of guests exercised.

Two salmon trout lakes with boats are controlled. Bath houses on the finest sea beach of the Coast are attached to the hotel. The best quail and rabbit shooting, and brook fishing for trout are found all about the place.

Hotel San Pedro is reached by taking train to Colma on the coast division of the Southern Pacific Company, thence by the hotel conveyance, over eight miles of picturesque mountain road, within sight of the Pacific Ocean.
